Other events promising unusual interest are sprint races in which Loren Murchison, former national champion, will be pitted against Frank Hussey, sensational schoolboy star, and Cyril Coffee, of the Illinois Athletic club, who ran for Canada in the Olympics.

Harold M. Osborn, Olympic high jump and decathlon champion, also will attempt to eclipse his own indoor record of six feet, six inches in the jumping event.

TIGER FLOWERS SCORES TECHNICAL K. O. OVER BRITTEN

Boston, Jan. 5.—Tiger Flowers, negro middleweight of Atlanta, tonight scored a technical knockout over Billy Britten of Kansas City when the referee stopped the bout in the middle of the fourth round. Flowers had the best of it from the opening bell, Britten was groggy and bleeding from the nose when the referee stepped in. Flowers weighed in at 165 and Britten at 164.

Flowers swarmed over Britten from the start, landing at will with stiff right jabs and left hooks to the jaw and body. Britten landed an occasional right but was unable to do damage. The Tiger's blows seemed to lack power, however, failing to put Britten down for a count. Britten was weakening fast under a fusillade of rights and lefts as referee ended the bout. Flowers' best blow was right jab which he used continually.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE TO PLAY SUB BASE FIVE

At Parish hall on Wednesday evening the fast Army-Navy team will clash with the U. S. Submarine Base team. The Gobs come to Taftville for their opening game of the season and are out to get revenge for the two defeats hung on them last season by the Taftville team. The Sub Base always presents a very strong lineup and from the amount of practice put in during the past few weeks they should be at their best form.

The Army-Navy team will use the same that played against the Fall River team on New Year's day. Denny Murphy who is coaching the boys, is giving them plenty of work and the boys are developing a very nice and snappy passwork attack that should net them scores in their coming games.

SPORTING NOTES

The first national tournament at 18.2 balkline billiards was played in New York in 1896 and was won by Frank C. Ives.

However ancient their origins, most of our popular games date back only to the athletic revival of the nineteenth century.

Ten world's records are held by Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish runner, who is to make his American debut at the games of the Finnish-American A. C., in New York on the night of January 6th.

The first curling club in America was formed at Montreal in 1897. The club was organized by some natives of Scotland, who wished to introduce their favorite winter sport on the St. Lawrence.

The famous Stanley cup, emblematic of the Canadian amateur hockey championship, was offered in 1893 by Lord Stanley, then governor-general of the Dominion, and was won in that year by the Montreal A. A. A.

The pole vault and a two-mile steeplechase without water jump will be new events on the programme of the A. A. U. national junior track and field championships, which are to be held in Madison Square Garden on January 15th.

Waterbury of the Eastern League, put over a deal with the Philadelphia Nationals that they expect to make a pennant contender of the team. The Brasscos sent Pitcher Frank Ulrich and Harold Yordy, hard-hitting outfielder, to the Phillies, getting in exchange Pitcher James Bishop, last year with Waterbury, Bennie Helgeth.

The University of Pennsylvania baseball team has scheduled twenty-eight games for next season.

The Westminster Kennel club of New York, premier organization of its kind in America, is now in its fiftieth year.

About this time, as will be recalled by the older generation of fight fans, Champion Benny Leonard was wont to come out with a New Year's resolution that he would give every worthy lightweight a chance at the crown. Evidently "them days is gone forever."

In the present era of big "gates" and purses, billiards cannot be said to have kept pace with other professional sports. Purses as large as those received by any of the tournament winners of today were pulled down fifty years or more ago by Sexton, Vaux, McDevitt, the Dion brothers, and other cue stars of their day.

Few seasons have been as productive of individual stars as was the football campaign of 1924. Almost every prominent college eleven boasted at least one player of outstanding ability. In many instances it was the work of these players that enabled their teams to make creditable showings on the gridiron. But many of these will be lost by graduation, and coaches everywhere will face the difficult problem of trying to fill their shoes next fall.

Bill Prough, veteran pitcher of the Sacramento team of the Pacific Coast League, has been sold to Shreveport of the Texas League.

Charley Schmidt, at one time catcher for the Detroit Tigers, and more recently manager of the Springfield Western Association team and in turn umpire in that league, has signed a contract to handle the indicator in the Pacific Coast loop. Charley is a brother of Walter Schmidt, late of the Pirates.

Manager Dan Howley of Montreal, was made an attractive offer to become coach of the Chicago Cubs. Howley is reported to have declined.

President Seabough of the Western Association, has sent out a correction on the batting averages of his league, which were released for publication several weeks ago, in the original list Wilbur Davis of Okmulgee, who was with Toledo last season as an infielder, and a large cash consideration.

Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Dodgers, who is ill in Baltimore believed he was about to die Dec. 13, and took the rites of the Catholic church. In the baptismal Ned Hanlon assumed the role of his God father.

George Strohmeyer and Bryan Young, products of the lots in Kansas City, have been tendered contracts for trials with the Oklahoma City team of the Western League. Strohmeyer is a right-hand pitcher, while Young is an infielder.

Jack Dunn, it is reported, has decided to take Joe Boley, his star shortstop off the market because of the failure of major league bidders to meet his terms.

Catcher Homer Haworth has been purchased by Des Moines of the Western League from the Atlanta Southern League Club.

The Giants have purchased Jack Wisner, star pitcher from Rochester of the International League. Wisner, a six footer, and weighing 195 pounds, won 13 and lost 15 games with Rochester during the 1924 season. He is a right-hander.

George Scott, pitcher, with Austin of the Texas Association for the past two seasons, has been sold to Memphis of the Southern League.

Mike Kelley, owner of the Minneapolis Club of the American Association, has purchased Tom Hammond, a big right-hand pitcher from Peoria of the Three-I league. The price was given $1,500. Hammond had a trial with the Millers last fall and made a good impression.

was credited with 50 home runs, and his teammate, C. Davis, with 49. On a recheck of the box scores it was found that each player made 61 four-baggers. In any event the Davises have it.

WALES' PUBLICITY

A book containing $1,120 newspaper clippings on the activities of the Prince of Wales during his visit to Long Island has been compiled by a clipping bureau and sent to London. The volume weighs 325 pounds. To classify the mass of clippings 23 experts worked night and day for two weeks on a job which under ordinary circumstances would have taken three months. The bureau says that no President of the United States ever received so much publicity in so short a time.

POETRY

MY NEW YEAR.

I will think a thought worth while
And send it many a mile
To bless the heart of man.

I will speak a word of cheer
And send it far and near
To bless the heart of man.

I will do an act that's kind
Swift as whispered by the wind
To bless the heart of man.

I will in the silence pray,
Think, speak and act each day
To bless the heart of man.
—Olivia Kingsland, in Nautilus.

HUNTING SONG.

Waken, lords and ladies gay
On the mountain dawns the day;
All the jolly chase is here,
With hawk and horse and hunting spear!
Hounds are in their couples yelling,
Hawks are whistling, horns are knelling,
Merrily, merrily, mingle they,
"Waken, lords and ladies gay."

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
The mist has left the mountain gray,
Springlets in the dawn are steaming,
Diamonds on the brake are gleaming,
And foresters have busy been
To track the buck in thicket green;
Now we come to chant our lay,
"Waken, lords and ladies gay."

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
To the greenwood haste away,
We can show you where he lies,
Fleet of foot and tall of size;
We can show the marks he made
When 'gainst the oak his antlers frayed,
You shall see him brought to bay;
Waken, lords and ladies gay.

Louder, louder chant the lay,
Waken, lords and ladies gay!
Tell them youth, and mirth, and glee
Run a course as well as we;
Time, stern huntsmen! who can baulk,
Staunch as hound and fleet as hawk?
Think of this, and rise with day,
Gentle lords and ladies gay!
—Walter Scott.

When a case concerning the proper fit of an evening gown came before a London court, Judge Sturges K. C., said he could not deal with so knotty a problem himself and asked a woman in court to help him. The woman sat by the judge on the bench. At the end of the case Judge Sturges said that he and his "assessor" had both arrived at the conclusion that the gown did not fit, and so he gave judgment against the maker.

While employes of the California state board of control were gathering for work at Sacramento recently, a pretty parrot flew into the boardroom through an open window. It perched itself on the back of a chair and steadfastly refused to answer any question, even when solicited with a cracker. Finally George Kelaydis, a Greek restaurant owner, appeared at the Capitol to claim the bird, and incidentally revealed that the bird does not understand the English language; it speaks Greek only.

The production of diamonds in South Africa in 1923 was 2,063,095 metric karats, which was the largest since 1920 and comparable in that of any year since the immediate pre-war period, 1911 to 1913, when the yearly output surpassed 5,000,000 karats. The value in 1923 was estimated at $31,048,000. Outstanding features were the increase of alluvial compared with mine production and the development of more serious competition from foreign fields, especially those in the Belgian and Portuguese Congo.

E. F. Spanner, British ship construction specialist, would reduce the damage from ramming in collisions by building ships with "soft ends." Mr. Spanner advocates using vertical instead of horizontal plates for the bow structure, with the lines of weakness formed by the joints of the shell and deck plating arranged in such a way that these points would fail in a more or less predetermined way in case of collision. The resistance to steering offered by the fastenings in the laps and other points would be such that the gradual overcoming of this resistance and the crushing back of the bow structure would absorb the energy of motion of the ramming ship so that she would be brought to a stop without piercing the side of the vessel.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with threefold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

NEW LONDON AUDITOR REPORTS $1,021,000 COLLECTED IN TAXES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 5. — No such drunken and disorderly gang as was encountered by the police Saturday and Sunday nights has come to public notice since prohibition was adopted as the law of the city, state and nation. The policemen were quite equal to controlling the situation. On Main street a gang of white and black sailors from coast guard vessels engaged in a battle in which a darky used a bottle on the head of a white sailor. Then the negro ran and called for help, as he fled from near Douglass street to State street. There he encountered Policeman Daniels and the officer halted him while a couple of hundred curious mortals followed to ascertain what the trouble was all about. It was learned that when the negro used the bottle his courage failed him and he sought to escape. The sailor he struck was after him in a moment and had he found him before the negro ran into the officer's clutches there would have been even more serious trouble. Judge Prince fined the negro $25 in court today. The story was told in court by Chief Boatswain's Mate Moloney and there was not a hitch in the recital.

Manuel Rosa Silva, alias John Cabral, was in a fighting mood on Shaw street. He collected a couple of hundred men and boys by his boisterous and pugnacious conduct, but Policeman Harry Hick gave him a razzle that led him to the lockup and today he was ordered to pay $10. This he did.

George Sheehan, alias "Cowboy", was fined $10 also for his conduct while he was drunk last night. He was "had" till he was locked up. That took the badness out of him.

C. P. Michelle found helpless from intoxication, was down and out, on Atlantic street, when discovered by an officer and the patrol was summoned to get him to the police station. That cost Michelle $5 and the expense of the trip.

The most exasperating disturbance of years was created by Francis Hughes and Reason Grant, sailors from the submarine base. They were in the Capitol theatre and there were using language that would not be tolerated in a low down saloon, their talk being audible in various sections of the house. The management called the house policeman, Frank Phinpena, it happened to be, and he requested the sailors to refrain from conversation that could be heard about them. He informed them that they would be ejected from the theatre if they persisted to annoy others. That sort of thing aroused Grant and he struck the officer in the face a blow that stung him for a second. But that was all; the officer retaliated with a blow that made Grant wince. Sergeant Cavanaugh was in the house on the opposite side from the sailors but he saw what was going on and went to the aid of his associate officer. They landed Grant and Hughes in the foyer in double step time and then continued with them to the sidewalk where the trouble grew till a throng collected and followed the officers and the sailors to North Bank street. Officers Daniels and Nagle had by this time joined the arresting officers and they assisted in clearing the way for them. On North Bank street the sailors called on other members of the navy to come to their assistance. This led Daniels to fire a shot into the air to warn them who interfered to stand aloof. It had the desired effect. One of the men under arrest made a determined effort to secure liberty but a blow from the club of Officer Cavanaugh opened up a seam in the fellow's head that was closed later by a surgeon at Lawrence hospital. In court this morning, when the men arrested were presented for trial and were given the opportunity to speak in their own behalf they declared that they had no word to say. They were ordered to be imprisoned for a term of three months each. The police declare that punishment of that sort will have the most beneficial effect upon sailors and soldiers whose conduct is such as to necessitate police interference.

The woman was charged with conducting a disorderly house, and the others with frequenting. They were presented before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this morning. The charge against the Coleman, Brown and Soba women was amended to disorderly conduct, as was the charge against Lewis, Dodd and Perry. Each of the accused received a fine of $5 and costs. The charges against Coleman and Park were nolled, the latter being used as a witness against the others.

The city council had a meeting of thirty minutes' duration this evening at which the auditor, C. Frederick Washburne reported on the examination of the city books, showing receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year to October 1, 1924. The showing was a most satisfactory one, in that $1,021,000 was collected in taxes. The receipts from other sources than taxes were $19,000 in excess of the estimate. The city kept within the budget estimate. The amount collected from back taxes was $40,000 less than estimated, but that revenue is an uncertain quantity and can only be guessed at.

The city manager was given authority to purchase conduits for road work and the contract was given to M. J. Doyle & Son as the lowest bidder. It was voted to buy auto batteries for the fire and police department from Kelly Electric company as the lowest bidder.

Floyd Grant who recently met with a serious accident is getting along as well as could be expected.

Mr. Grant was drawing logs from the woods to the mill in North Franklin. While riding on the loaded log boat (or sled) he lost his balance, falling backward and hitting his double bitted axe stuck in the log back of him, receiving a deep gash in his hip.

A man residing at Maple Hill, who does not believe in spooks or ghosts, while returning home afoot after dark Wednesday evening heard strange sounds coming from a new stocked clover field by the roadside and many large white objects were noted bobbing here and there in all directions. It was found to be the "white plumes" of a herd of frightened deer.

AT CHICAGO CONVENTION OF AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS

H. T. Gorman, supervisor of repairs, and D. R. Kane, assistant superintendent of repairs, both of this city, with other officials of the Connecticut state highway department, left Springfield Sunday afternoon on the Wolverine express to attend the convention of the American Road Builders association, which opens in Chicago today (Tuesday) and continues for the remainder of the week. While in Chicago the party will make its headquarters at the Blackstone hotel, expecting to be away for a week.

HEAD COLDS ROUTED IN 5 HOURS BY SPECIALIST'S PRESCRIPTION

New Treatment Guaranteed to Banish Every Symptom In 5 Hours—Or No Cost.

No matter how severe or how long standing, the average head cold can be banished in five hours—through a remarkable new treatment perfected by a Cleveland specialist.

Nose and eyes clear up as though by magic. Chilliness and that depressed, useless feeling disappear. Within five hours—often in 30 minutes—you are once more as happy, healthy and full of "pep" as though you had never had the cold.

So successful has the new treatment proved in thousands of test cases that it is now positively guaranteed to banish the worst head cold in five hours—or it costs you nothing.

It is known as Dr. Platt's Rinex Prescription, and was first discovered in the clinical study of hay fever, asthma and other respiratory diseases at the Clinical Laboratories, Cleveland, Ohio. This study confirmed the recent discovery that head colds are not simply a local surface disease, but are due to an actual poisoning of the entire system. This poisoning is caused by some sort of congestion slowing up the normal body processes.

Ordinary cold remedies—mere headache or fever medicines or simple surface treatments—never touched this systemic poisoning. But Rinex, taken in simple capsule form and quickly absorbed into the blood through the digestive tract, goes direct to these poisons and neutralizes them. The result is complete and heavenly relief in five hours or less!

Ridiculous, then, to submit to days and even weeks of misery, uselessness and actual danger of more serious trouble. Get a package of Rinex today and simply try it. Costs a little more than ordinary remedies, but much more economical in the end because one dose often does the work. And remember, your money back instantly if not relieved in five hours.

Free Trial Offer.

Just now, through a special introductory arrangement, you can obtain a trial treatment entirely FREE. Simply go to any of the drug stores named below and ask for a trial package of RINEX. No obligation at all on your part. But be sure to ask for your free treatment within the next three days—this offer is limited. It may be obtained in this city at Lee & Osgood Co.'s, Retail Dept., Smith's Pharmacy, Dacy, H. M. Lerou, C. C. Treat, W. D. Ricker.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES.

New York, Jan. 5.—Stock prices crumpled today under the weight of heavy selling for both accounts, which was inspired by the growing belief that the recent rise had been overdone and that the technical condition of the market warranted a reaction. The sharpest breaks took place in the industrials and specialties, losses of 1 to 4 points in which were quite common, with a few issues showing even larger declines. Rails offered better resistence to pressure, several of the high grade investment issues moving up to the highest levels in years. Total sales, which exceeded two and one-quarter million shares, were the largest since Dec. 5.

Brokers reported that the speculative excesses apparent in several stocks last week had led to extensive profit-taking on the part of conservative traders, which was accentuated by a renewal of bear attacks against those issues whose market position had been weakened by the recent almost perpendicular advance. The rapidity of the decline also resulted in touching off a number of stop loss orders, which swelled the volume of trading.

There was nothing in the news to account for the selling, the principal financial developments of the day, namely, establishment of the highest rate by sterling since the war, and the marked relaxation in money rates, being constructive in character.

American Car and Foundry broke 15 points to 195 in reflection of speculative disappointment that the proposal split-up of the stock involved no change in the dividend rate. Net losses of four to nine points took place in American Can, Dupont, General Electric, Radio Corporation, Universal Pipe, Worthington Pump, Commercial Solvents A, General Asphalt preferred, General Baking, Ludlum Steel, Nash Motors, Stromberg Carburetor and United States Cast Iron Pipe.

United States Steel common opened 1-4 higher at 123 1-4, reacted 3 points from the top and then rallied to 120 1-2.

Independent strength was shown, however, by the American Tobacco issues, Iron Products, Manhattan Electrical Supply, Superior Steel and a few others.

Strength of the high grade rails indicated that the January reinforcement demand was making itself felt in those issues. "Big Four" soared over 14 points to a record high of 158. New York Central touched 122 3-4 and Illinois Central 118 3-4, the highest prices since 1910 and 1913, respectively. International Railways of Central America touched a record top for all time, 19 3-8. Good buying also was noted in the Ann Arbor issues, Atlantic Coast Line, Omaha, Reading, Louisville and Nashville, "Soo", and New York and Harlem, all up from 3 to 4 points.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent., eased to 4 and thence to 3 1-2, where it closed. Time money and commercial paper markets held steady.

Chief interest in the foreign exchange market centered in the establishment of a new high rate for sterling since the war, above $4.76 1-2, bringing it to within ten cents of dollar parity. Other European rates were slightly reactionary. French francs dropping nearly 5 points to around 5.37 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 5.—Bond prices maintained a firm tone today although individual movements were highly irregular. Railroad issues gave a good demonstration of group strength as buying of both high grade investment and the semi-speculative liens was resumed.

Announcement that the Magma Copper company would increase its capitalization by an offering of additional stock to present shareholders caused a sharp break of 9 1-4 points in the company's 7 per cent bonds. Profit taking was reflected in the reactionary movement of other copper bonds, with Chile 6s receding 1 1-4 points.

Strength of a number of convertible bonds was influenced by stock advances. New York Central convertible 6s attained a new high at 116 1-4 as the railroad's shares crossed 122. The bonds closed with a net gain of 1 1-8 points. American Telephone convertible 4s, which have been lagging behind the company's stock on its recent upturn, jumped 2 3-4 points to 130.

New Haven, Missouri Pacific and St. Paul bonds were among those which scored substantial advances today, but Seaboard, Chicago Great Western and Norfolk and Western liens fell back.

In sympathy with the rise in sterling to a new post-war peak, United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 rallied to 117 eclipsing last year's high record. Other foreign obligations were firm.

The $30,000,000 Federal Land Bank bond issue and several smaller offerings today were readily absorbed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Assertions that Argentine wheat was again available to Europe at prices lower than wheat from the United States, had more or less to do with a sharp setback today in wheat values here. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 1c to 3 3-8c net decline, May $1.74 to $1.74 1-8 and July $1.52 to $1.53 1-8, with corn 3-4 to 7c down, oats 3-4@7-8c to 1 1-4c off, and provisions showing 10c to 75c drop.

Heavy selling which set in soon after the wheat market here opened was quickly followed by price breaks that on some transactions went 3 2-4 cents under Saturday's finish. The fact that the Buenos Aires market had receded 1 cent after the Chicago exchange closed on Saturday gave considerable emphasis to opinions current that a decided downward reaction in values had become overdue, and so likewise did a decline today in Liverpool. Meanwhile, no aggressive buying support in the Chicago market developed, and rallies proved transient except for deliveries more distant than May.

Liberal receipts and slowness of cash demand weakened corn and oats. Besides, the visible supply both of corn and oats increased, with the corn supply almost double that of last year.

Big stocks of lard on hand pulled down the provision market.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 5.—Stock prices reacted sharply in today's curb market as a result of urgent selling for both accounts, all classes of stocks being affected.

Prairie Oil & Gas broke 5 1-2 points, but most of the other active oils offered better resistance to pressure, recessions being held to a point or so. Trading started today in Gibson Oil, which ruled steady between 1 3-8 and 1 1-2.

Electric Bond and share (new stock) was one of the most active features, closing about 5 points lower at 83 3-8. Sharp recessions also took place in a number of other public utilities, American Gas & Electric, American Power & Light, Commonwealth Power and middlewest utilities dropping 1 1-2 to nearly 3 1-2 points below Saturday's final figures.

Radio issues were pressed for sale throughout the session, Hazeltine dropping 3 1-2 points and Dubilier, Freed-Eisemann, DeForest, Radio Corporation (old stock) and Thermiodyne reacting from one to nearly three points.

Gillette Safety Razor was one of the few outstanding strong spots, closing nearly three points higher at 61 7-8.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The first week of 1925 saw a decided slackening in the local building due largely to the holidays and the business inactivity that attends the start of the new year. At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton there was a small number of permits issued during the week these being mostly for garages or small buildings.

Contractors report that the year 1924 was one of the most successful experienced in many years. The large contracts were but few, but there was plenty of work for everyone and the carpenters and masons have been kept busy during the greater part of the year.

Work on the local building projects has progressed favorably during the past week and several of the dwelling houses have been brought to the completion stage. The Selias block on Franklin square is progressing favorably after being held up while the foundations were being reinforced. The foundations have been laid and the steel floor beams have been set in place. It is expected that from now on the work will progress rapidly.

NEW LONDON.

The frame is being started for a house on Henry street for Silas Maxson, Jr., 235 Bank street. The contract for the carpentry work has been awarded. The house will be of semi-bungalow design, arranged for six rooms. The house erected for Mr. Maxson on Montauk avenue is finished.

The cellar is being excavated for a house on Montauk avenue to be erected by J. A. St. Germain, 960 Bank street. The house will contain seven rooms. It will be of colonial type, 25x35 feet, with steam heat, tile baths, fireplace, sun porch and all other improvements. The sub-contracts for the steam heating, plumbing and electric wiring will be awarded shortly.

The cellar has been started by H. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue for a frame house on Nameaug avenue. From private plans, the dwelling will be 36x44 feet, arranged for four four-room apartments. There will be steam heat and other improvements. The cost will be about $10,000.

A local contractor has started alterations to the store at 70 State street for Abraham and Samuel Schueer of Bridgeport. The work will consist of the erection of a new store front with plate glass and copper show windows. Interior improvements will be made.

The contract for a store and tenement building in Waterford for Andrew Nichols has been awarded. The foundation for the building has been completed. The building will be 25x41 feet, of frame construction. There will be one store on the ground floor and a six-room tenement on the second floor. The store will have a plate glass front and all modern conveniences. There will be a hot water heating system.

Building Permits.

Mary E. Cushman, frame garage, Alger place $300.

Maud Prentice, frame dwelling, Nameaug avenue, $10,000.

George M. Chapin Est., addition to dwelling, Perry street, $200.

Abraham Schreen et al., store alterations, 70 Bank street, $1,500.

Number of permits issued for the week, 6; estimated cost of buildings, $12,100.

Remodeling Niantic Dwellings.

Two buildings in Niantic are being remodeled for Edward Buxton, Worcester, Mass., to make a single residence. After the alterations are completed the house will contain ten rooms, with a new steam heating system, new plumbing and electric wiring. The contract for the plumbing and heating has been awarded.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 10 sales of real estate as compared to 5 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $24,050 and $4,600.

There were 7 sales of real estate in New London during the last week in 1924 as compared to six sales for the same week in 1923. The mortgage loans were $49,247 and $40,600.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

The record of building permits granted in the leading cities of the state reflects the weather conditions of the past week. During the week just ended there were issued 132 permits in the Connecticut towns, for buildings costing $398,952, comparing with 145 permits granted in the like week of 1923, for buildings costing $1,300,207, and 98 permits in the last week of 1923, the buildings costing $311,462.

The annual meeting which has been held in June in the past, is being changed to January because the annual meeting of the church is held that month. WEST SIDERS PRESENT PETITION FOR NEW MODERN FIRE STATION

Action on petitions and reports comprised the larger part of the business of the January meeting of the court of common council Monday evening in the council chamber. The meeting was called to order at 8.45 o'clock by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters. The minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, after which the clerk read his return of publication of the new traffic and parking ordinances.

Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

From W. A. Ricker and 16 others, asking the city to replace the present West Side fire station with a new and modern building. Referred to the fire commissioners for investigation.

The council referred the communication to a committee which the mayor was requested to appoint, the committee to include in its membership Mayor Waters and Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr. The mayor announced as the other members of the committee Alderman LaRue Bliven, Councilman F. Russell Smith and Councilman W. H. Aldrich.

Referred to the police commissioners with power.

The monthly reports of the city treasurer, street commissioner and the quarterly report of the fire marshal, the quarterly report of the chief of police and the quarterly cash statement of the water department were accepted.

A letter of appreciation was received from the West End Community association, thanking the city government for its co-operation in making possible the new skating pond at East Great Plain. The letter called attention to the fact that children are in the habit of coasting down streets in the city and suggested that certain streets be reserved at stated hours for coasting and that traffic through those streets be forbidden during the hours the streets or sections of streets are reserved for the children, and that police supervision be provided. The section of the letter referring to police protection while the children are coasting was referred to the police commissioners.

Flowers at Nolan Funeral.

The large number of beautiful flowers sent for the funeral of William R. Nolan at Taftville last Wednesday were contributed as follows: Pillow, wife; spray from baby; cross, parents; heart from brothers; pillow from sisters; cross, Catherine Fitzmaurice; crescent, Mr. and Mrs. Mulvey; spray, Mary Martin; spray, Dr. and Mrs. Hoey of Providence; spray, Mr. and Mrs. James Daly; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Benoit; wreath, Alexander Jordan; crescent, J. Pothier; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Philip and George Severino; and others from unknown donors besides many spiritual bouquets.

Mr. Nolan was born in Taftville, Dec. 23, 1899, and lived there all his life. After graduating from the Sacred Heart school he assisted his father in the fruit and produce business until 1920, when he went into business for himself. He was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Fitzmaurice of Taftville, by the Rev. U. O. Bellerose, in the Sacred Heart church at Taftville and leaves besides his widow, a 15 months' old daughter. A loving son, an affectionate husband and father, he was stricken down in the very bloom of his young manhood and leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss. The eloquent tribute paid to him by Father Bellerose at the New Year's services moved many of his hearers to tears.

MEANING OF NEW YEAR SHOP MEETING TOPIC

1925—What does it mean to us? was the topic used by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts in speaking to the men of the Richmond Radiator company Monday at the noon hour. The meeting was under the direction of the Y. M. C. A.

The following is a brief synopsis of the address: New Year's Day does not commemorate any noteworthy event, although many such have transpired on that day e. g. the Emancipation Proclamation which was issued Jan. 1, 1863. It is unlike any other day we celebrate. Feb. 12 and 22; June 30 and July 4, are quite distinctive in what they emphasize. The speaker defined New Year's as an important waymark in time and space. It finds an analogy in latitude and longitude, which, while imaginary serve a very important purpose. In sailing over the oceans it is necessary for the mariner to know how far he is north or south of the equator, and also to know what is his longitude.

New Year's serves a good purpose in telling us where we are—a knowledge which sometimes brings us up with a jolt. Finding out where we are is just what the palmist meant when he wrote: "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

The following applications were made: 1. It is a part of wisdom to find out just where we stand financially. 2. Where do we stand politically. 3. Are we fulfilling our social relations; and 4, How do we stand with God?

NORWICH TOWN

The following concludes the reports submitted at the annual meeting of the First Congregational church New Years' afternoon:

In addition to the gift of $25 to the Church Repair Fund and $5 to the Seaside Sanatorium, Ever Ready Circle of the Kings Daughters gave during 1924, $5 to the Near East, and $5 to Rev. and Mrs. T. E. Davies of Westminster.

The secretary of the One Aim class, Miss Mabel Corrigeux, in her report mentions that six new members joined the class during 1924.

From an entertainment and sale, when the members of this class united with the members of the W. A. S. the one-half proceeds $35 allotted the One Aim class, was presented to the Church Repair Fund.

A good sum was given to the Cradle Roll of the Sunday school, also to the Near East Relief.

Mention was made of the impressive commission for one of the class members, Miss Gertrude S. Avery, who last September was commissioned to take up a life work on the missionary field in Ahmednagar, India. The report said: Her classmates and teacher feel very proud of her and look forward to her return at the expiration of five years, meanwhile asking the prayers of the entire parish and God's blessings upon her, to give her health and strength to carry on her chosen work.

The True Blue class, Miss Helen Schwenk secretary, has held a meeting each month at the homes of members. After considering business a social hour has been enjoyed.

The proceeds from a lecture given by Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey last April, and of which this class was in charge, were given to the Interior Decorating committee of the church. This class has also given twenty-five hymn books to the Sunday school.

The first three quarters of 1924 the W. Y. T's. studied "Bible and Social Living," and the last quarter "How Jesus Met Life Problems," by Harrison Elliot. The lessons have brought out many discussions which were entered into by all. Charles Learned substituted six weeks when the teacher, Jessie Hyde was unable to be present.

The class held two business meetings in the year at the home of Miss Hyde. The meetings opened with devotions and were followed by a social time.

One new member has been added this year. December 5th, the Family Album was presented in the chapel before a large audience by the W. I. T's. and the One Aim class. The W. I. T's share of the proceeds $35 was also given to the Church Repair Fund, and $3 was presented toward the Christmas entertainment.

The Men's Forum has met nearly every Sunday noon in the church auditorium, with many interesting discussions in the class. Several times the Women's classes have shared the lesson with the forum. The membership is 15. Some of the members have an excellent record of attendance. The collections taken through the year were $43.01. Expenditures amounted to $34.85 leaving a balance of $8.16 in the treasury.

The forum furnished the 150 holiday calendars distributed recently among members of the parish, to accumulate funds for church expenses.

The Drop-in-Class, this past year, has kept up its usual efficiency in attendance at Sunday school and class meetings. Once in two months a business meeting has been held at the parsonage when all business of the class is transacted. The class has a membership of 25.

February 29th, a parcel post and box social was held in the chapel. Members of the class in old fashioned costumes sang the old songs, representing an old fashioned singing school. Mr. Yerrington being the singing master.

A rummage and food sale was held at the Buckingham Memorial April 12, and a cafeteria supper was given in the chapel July 16. From sales, suppers and gifts during the past year, the class has received $135.36. From this $77 was given to the church Improvement fund and $30 toward Sunday school quarterlies of the younger classes.

A collection was given to Miss Margaret Beards work in Montgomery Normal school, Georgia.

The yearly Christmas cheer was provided for several children, in the shape of clothing and toys, $13 being raised for this, also gifts given. A number of bouquets and flowering plants given to the sick and shut-ins have shown the love and good will of the class.

The C. I. G.'s of the Sunday school organized November 9, 1924, with the following officers: President, Rose Durr, treasurer, Lucille Browning, secretary, Louise Avery. The teacher is Miss Louise B. Hopkins. A service and social committee was elected, each consisting of three members. The class motto is We Mean Business to Carry on the King's Work.

Before the organizating of the class while Mrs. Frazier was teacher, $17 was raised for the Church Repair fund by a sale of candy.

As an organized class the members hope to show loyalty to the church and Sunday school by assisting in any way that they can.

The report of the annual meeting of the First Congregational Sunday school as submitted by the secretary Frank E. Sterry follows: The meeting was called to order by Rev. Mr. Bailey who led in prayer. The report of the secretary and treasurer, was read and approved, as was that of the librarian, Home department, Men's Forum and the several organized classes. This was followed by the report of the executive committee on the school's funds, also the report of Clyde M. Beebe and Thomas H. Bacheler on having a budget for the funds. The election resulted as follows: Superintendent, Dwight W. Avery; first assistant, Henry T. Frazier; second assistant, Clyde M. Beebe; secretary, Frank E. Sterry; treasurer, Miss Helen Avery; librarian, Frank S. Avery; assistant librarian, Miss J. G. Benney, who was also elected superintendent of the Home department; library committee Miss J. M. Case, Mrs. Charles P. Learned and Miss Jennie L. Congdon; organist, Herbert L. Yerrington; chorister, Miss Bessie M. Grant.

The Sunday school accepted the offer of $30 from the drop-in class to help defray the expense of the quarterlies, said amount having been paid in.

The average attendance of the school during 1924 was 88, money collected $211.17, an average of $14.06 per Sunday. Besides $120.53 expended for supplies, hymn books, etc., this school has given several gifts for beneficences, ranging from $5 to $35, totaling $140. These include substantial gifts to Frederick J. Werking in the south, New London county association, Rev. Edward M. Smith, Ing Hok, China, Piedmont college, Miss Ruth Beebe, Athens Alabama, McCall Mission, Northland college, Lincoln Memorial, Boston Seamans fund, Aged Ministers, etc.

The report of Mrs. Henry T. Frazier treasurer of the Church Improvement society, shows a good amount in the treasury at the beginning of the New Year.

During 1924, several large sums have been turned over to this society from various classes in the Sunday school, Young Peoples' Christian Endeavor society, Home Missionary society, and Ever Ready circle of the Kings Daughters, proceeds from sales, suppers and entertainments, amounting to about $375, to be used for de-decorating the interior of the church.

This amount, together with a few large gifts of money presented to Frank S. Avery, treasurer of the church corporation, also several other substantial personal gifts, brings the full total up to more than $600 already received, toward defraying the expense of improvements to the church.

The installing of a new heater in the church, with repairs and the expense of redecorating, amounted to about $800. Much has been paid for to date through these liberal contributions and plans have been laid for the payment of the balance.

Prior to the holiday season, neat little calendars on which was a picture of the church, with an envelope attached, were circulated among the members. Beginning with Thanksgiving it was requested that the members place ten cents in these containers for every holiday and the individual's birthday, for one year. These calendars will be called in about Thanksgiving, 1925.

Herbert L. Yerrington recently made mention before the members of the parish of the First Congregational church, of how he had expended some of the money presented him in May, 1923, at his 50th anniversary as organist of this church, when a reception was tendered him. At this time Organist Yerrington was presented $120 in gold in a case, which with other gifts of money which came in later brought the amount up to $140. Mr. Yerrington decided to purchase an Edison phonograph, somthing he had had a desire to have in his home. Mr. Yerrington extended a cordial invitation to the parish members to visit his home and enjoy some of his fine records with him.

After passing the holiday recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Sterry of Lee avenue, Miss Florence Sterry returns to Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, to resume her studies in Home Economics.

The first in a series of Union prayer meetings, the First Methodist Episcopal and the First Congregational churches uniting, is to be held this (Tuesday) afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Congregational chapel. Rev. James B. Aldrich of the Methodist church is to be the speaker.

RAISING $300,000 FOR STORRS COMMUNITY HOUSE

Communities in Connecticut are to be asked to give proportionate parts towards the $300,000 fund which is being raised in the state for a new church plant and community house at Storrs. The proposed church and community house will serve the students, faculty members and their families and employes at the Connecticut Agricultural college.

The project for the Storrs church and community house was undertaken by the Connecticut Federation of Churches which has long felt the need of more adequate facilities at Storrs for religious training.

Connecticut as a state has been fairly generous in meeting the material needs of the Connecticut Agricultural college. Under public statutes existing since 1818, the state can do nothing toward meeting the religious and spiritual needs of the college and its community. Realizing this situation and for this reason the Connecticut Federation of Churches took upon itself the task of launching a movement for providing fuller religious and social opportunity for the young people who attend the Connecticut Agricultural college.

The $300,000 fund is to be divided as follows: $150,000 for a new church building; $75,000 for a community house, and $75,000 for endowment. The sum of $300,000 makes adequate provision not only for constructing and equipping the proposed religious plant but for its maintenance as well. The Storrs community made up almost entirely of resident faculty members, cannot be expected to carry the entire burden of maintaining religious opportunities for the several hundred students; hence the provision for endowment.

The present church structure was built about 1846, on the site of earlier buildings erected to serve a strictly rural community. There has been a church on this site since before the Revolutionary war and the present structure as well as the proposed building, preserve many of the traditions of earlier New England religious architecture.

The present church has a seating capacity of only 200, which is obviously inadequate for a student body now numbering more than 600 and a growing community. Like many of the earlier church structures the beauty of its exterior is not matched by inside comforts. It is almost impossible to heat in winter and the ventilation is what one might expect from a country church of generations past.

Of the 500 students at the college, 60 per cent are Protestant, representing Congregational, Episcopal, Baptist, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, Universalist and Dutch Reformed denominations, while 36 per cent. Jews. The faculty, experiment station and extension service staffs, comprising about sixty heads of families and forty unmarried instructor and employes, are largely Protestant.

The community house, although under control of the church, would be open to all students regardless of religious affiliations. The Storrs project has been endorsed by Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

Some of the purposes the community house would serve:

Adequate housing for the Sunday school.

Congenial atmosphere for the Christian Endeavor society.

Rooms for student Bible classes.

A home for the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and similar organizations.

Religious meetings, where desired, of non-Protestant groups.

Headquarters for Ladies Circle and other church organizations.

Suppers and other social gatherings under auspices of the church.

Among the uses of such a structure apart from a religious character but for wholly commendable purposes, may be mentioned:

Meetings of student clubs, fraternities, student council and other organizations.

Social and educational gatherings under management of the Faculty club, Woman's club, or other faculty or community groups.

Small dinners and banquets such as those of football team, dramatic or debating clubs and student publications.

Entertainment of visitors such as parents of students, visiting athletic teams, transients.

Regular meetings of Boy Scouts, the local grange, etc.

CHRISTMAS PARTY HELD BY PHILATHEA CLASS

The Philathea class of the United church held its annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. P. O. Roberts, 29 Lafayette street, on Friday evening, with Mrs. Roberts and Miss Elsie Adams as hostesses. One member was reported absent.

The business part of the meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. May Young. Routine business was transacted after which a social hour was enjoyed. From a heavily laden Christmas tree, gifts were distributed to all members present.

Delicious refreshments of salad, rolls, coffee, cake and ice cream were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William H. Dawley, when the annual supper and election of officers will take place.

Birthday Celebration

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wood, 29 Lafayette street, six little boy friends were entertained at a party in celebration of the sixth birthday of their son, Master Eugene Wood, Jr., Saturday afternoon, from 2 to 5.

The children played indoor games and at 4 o'clock, seated at a table in the dining room, were served sandwiches, cookies, cake and lemonade. In the center of the table was a birthday cake with six lighted candles. Mrs. Wood was assisted in serving by her daughter Helen.

BRAINERD THE REP. CHOICE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Was Nominated Last Night at Senate Republican Caucus For President Pro Tem.—Will Automatically Become Lieutenant Governor When Governor Bingham Resigns—House Republicans Chose Representative Darbie of Killingly as Candidate For Speaker—Full Details of Legislative and County Caucuses.

Hartford, Jan. 6—Light blazed out of every window in the state capitol tonight as it does once every two years on the eve of the opening of a general assembly sessions when members-elect gather to arrange preliminaries for organization. Inside, the several floors of the building were scenes of animated gatherings and there was a hum of activity as members-elect and their friends made and renewed acquaintances.

The senate republican caucus nominated Senator J. Edwin Brainerd, of the twelfth district for president pro tempore which means that on Thursday he will automatically become acting lieutenant governor when Governor Hiram Bingham resigns and Lieutenant Governor John H. Trumbull takes the oath as governor.

The house republican caucus chose Representative Elbert L. Darbie of Killingly, who was in the last house as its candidate for speaker.

The nominations in both caucuses were unanimously made by acclamation as were the choice of clerks. In the senate J. Frederick Baker, who served last session was named and in the house Daniel M. F. Hickey, of Stamford was named for clerk and Albert S. Bill, of Hartford for assistant clerk. The selections of doorkeepers and messengers also were made, those of the house being made in by a committee composed of a member of each county.

The house caucus also adopted a resolution offered by Dr. William Higgins, of Coventry paying tribute to the labors of State Chairman J. Henry Roraback. The resolution follows:

"Be it resolved by the republican representatives of the legislative session of 1925 in caucus assembled: That we hereby extend to the Honorable J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the republican state central committee, our sincere appreciation and hearty thanks for his successful efforts in promoting the interests of the republican party and the welfare of the state."

The labors of the caucuses were quickly over and for a time members stood in the corridors to renew acquaintances. County caucuses were held prior to those in the house and senate. A group of democrats met, a part of the 23 representatives-elect with the two senators-elect, Tone of New Haven and Lawlor of Waterbury to talk over the outlook. It was decided that Mr. Bransfield of Portland should be the party floor leader in the house and Senator Joseph Tone, by reason of seniority should look after democratic interests in the upper body.

Most of the women members of the house, all republicans attended the caucuses. They did not sit together except that a group of six including Mrs. Hooker, of Hartford and Mrs. Lewis, of Stratford were in the seats directly in front of the speakers' desk. In the senate, a floral basket graced the desk which Senator Harry Blakeslee will occupy.

The senate caucus was called to order by the senior member, Senator E. P. Golden of Meriden, who presided, with Senator Doty, of Hartford, as clerk. Senator Samuel Shaw of Redding, nominated Senator J. Edwin Brainerd for president pro tem and the choice was made by voice vote. Senator Philo Platt of Newtown, named Mr. Baker for clerk and it was so voted.

The following were chosen for doorkeepers and messengers, assignments to be made tomorrow: Robert Johnson, New Britain; Sherman B. Stocker, Beacon Falls; Elton Skilton, Morris; John E. Kingsbury, Coventry; Frederick Perkins, New London; Frederick Knapp, New Fairfield; Charles Torkleson, East Hampton and Charles R. Perrin, Windham, one from each county. The caucus then adjourned.

The house caucus was called to order by State Chairman Roraback who congratulated members that the republicans once more had returned to power. When he asked for nominations for a chairman, Charles Williamson, of Darien, mentioned John H. Hill, of Shelton and he was chosen. Mr. Hill thanked the members for the honor. When a nomination for clerk was called for Representative B. W. Alling, of New Britain named Representative Ernest L. Averill of Branford and he was chosen.

Dr. Higgins of Coventry then expressed pleasure at being again in the house and prophesied the session would be a pleasurable one. He said he had sat under five speakers: Holcomb, twenty years ago; Tilson, who has done sixteen years of service in congress; Frank E. Healy, Judge Walsh, of Greenwich and Fred W. Huxford, of Stamford and he felt certain that his candidate for this session would measure up to the high standard set by those others. He named Mr. Darbie saying that eastern Connecticut had not had a speaker since Frank B. Brandegee was in that office 39 years ago. Mr. Darbie, he said, had served well on the judiciary committee and would serve the house well. The choice was made by voice vote.

For clerk, Elwyn T. Clark, of Haddam named Daniel Hickey, assistant clerk last session, and the motion was seconded by J. Mortimer Bell, of Salisbury who said that "Dan Hickey's smile" will carry him through life, and it would always make the house smile with him. Mr. Hickey was chosen and Mr. Alling offered Mr. Bill's name for assistant clerk and he was chosen.

Judge L. J. Nickerson, entered at this point and was applauded. He took a seat on the rostrum where the last session he held forth as speaker.

County caucuses reported the following as a joint committee to select messengers and doorkeepers: Raymond A. Johnson, Manchester; Ernest L. Averill, Branford; P. Ambrose Sullivan, Montville; John Thornbill, Brookfield; A. T. J. Clarke, Canterbury; J. Sedgewick Tracy, Canaan; Elwyn T. Clark, Haddam and Dr. Higgins, of Coventry. Mr. Higgins offered his esolution on Mr. Roraback and the caucus adjourned.

The joint committee had a long session and finally agreed on the following for house messengers: Curtis A. Holmes, Columbia; Westerly A. Miller, Torrington; Cornelius A. O'Connell, West Haven; John Hanson, of Stratford.

For doorkeepers: George W. Scoville, Middletown; Frank I. Date, of Franklin; Raymond P. Fuller, Hampton; Augustus Boardman, New London and Frederick Ericson, Danbury with Hartford county to make its selections tomorrow.

In the Litchfield county caucus Mr. Tracy of Canaan, was chairman and Elliott Bronson, of Winchester, secretary. J. F. Lynch of West Haven, presided in New Haven county, and Robert Adamson, of Ansonia, was secretary.

George W. Sisson of New London, was chairman in New London county caucus and George G. Engler of Norwich, secretary. Mr. Hill of Shelton presided over Fairfield county and Samuel Peck of Putnam in Windham county. W. W. Shailer, of Essex, aged 74, called to order in Middlesex county and E. T. Clark, was made chairman and E. G. Burke of Deep River secretary.

TWO NOMINATIONS AT DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS

Hartford, Jan. 6—Representative-elect Joseph P. Bransfield of Portland, was nominated as the democratic candidate for speaker of the house, and Lewis W. Phelps of Andover, was nominated for reelection as state auditor by a caucus of the democratic representatives-elect at the capitol tonight. No other candidates for either position appeared and the nominations were unanimous. Nineteen members were present.

Edward M. Yeomans, chairman of the democratic state central committee, presided and Secretary A. S. Lynch, of the state central committee was clerk. The two nominations was the only business transacted. Representative-elect Bransfield, was nominated by William J. Thomas of East Haddam and Mr. Phelps was nominated by Frank A. Newman, of Tolland.

In accepting the nomination for speaker, which carries with the minority leadership of the house, Mr. Bransfield asked for cooperation from the democratic members nad promised active leadership declaring that while the democratic numbers were small their influence as a unit would be great.

Chairman Yeomans urged active interest in all legislative matters, saying that any opposition by united democrats would be respectfully listened to.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON'S MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE

Hartford, Jan. 6—Governor Charles A. Templeton, who will retire from the office of chief executive of the state tomorrow issued the following message to the people of the state today:

My fellow citizens: When two years ago you honored me with the highest office within your power to bestow I promised my utmost endeavor to prove worthy of that honor.

That oath of office has been constantly before me. My one ambition has been to serve you as your governor. My one pride has been my state. My one thought has been your welfare. No man has been turned away by me until heard. I have evaded no issue. I have followed the path which seemed to be right.

In following that path I have been very happy. It has led to some hard things, but to far more than were pleasant. It has brought me the infinite satisfaction of working side-by-side with you for the good of Connecticut, of association in the public service with splendid men and women, of friendships that will last as long as life itself.

If our task has not always been easy it has always been worth while. Whatever I have accomplished would have been impossible without your co-operation and loyalty. There is still much remaining to be done. In doing it, I bespeak for my successors that same spirit of good will, that same helpful criticism that same loyalty to the interests of the state which I have received at your hands.

As I give over the leadership with which you entrusted me my gratitude goes out to you, my affectionate good wishes will remain with you.

(Signed.)
CHARLES A. TEMPLETON.

CURE FOR INFECTION AT ROOTS OF TEETH

Toronto, Jan. 6—Elimination of infection at the roots of teeth, recognized as a subtle and frequent cause of rheumatism, eye trouble, heart disease and other serious ailments, is claimed for a discovery announced today after five years' research work at the University of Toronto.

The new treatment, an article in the Dominion Dental Journal stated, uses copper amalgam as a permanent filling for the root canals of teeth. Fillings in current use are said to have been unable completely to close the root canals and infection has been possible in the unfilled portions. This unseen poison, carried by the blood, circulates throughout the system with disastrous results to the body of the victim who is usually unconscious of its existence, the article adds.

Copper amalgam has already been used by some practicing dentists, the article stated, but its permanent germicidal effect was not confirmed previous to the experiments. Credit for the achievement which will be explained at the March meeting of the international Association of Dental Research at Chicago, was given to Dr. F. C. Husband, a Toronto dentist.

EMERGENCY DEFICIENCY BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 6—An emergency deficiency bill carrying $157,000,000 which would be available for immediate expenditure was passed late today by the house and sent to the senate.

An attempt was made by Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee to attach an amendment to the bill providing $50,000 for defraying the expenses of the president's agricultural commission, but it went out on a point of order by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas.

Major provisions of the bill, in addition to the Inland Waterways Corporation item, are $150,000,000, to be used in refunding internal revenue taxes illegally assessed and collected; $3,501,200 for continuing work on dam Number 2 at Muscle Shoals, Alabama; $375,000 for eradicating reported epidemics of bubonic plague among rats at New Orleans and Oakland, Cal., and $150,000 for repairing the coast guard cutter Manning to make her seaworthy.

An amendment to eliminate a section carrying $14,000 to pay expenses of messengers bringing the count of the electoral vote to Washington was rejected on a point of order. Representative Cable, republican, Ohio, its sponsor, urged that the vote be transmitted by registered mail as an economy measure.

The house devoted today entirely to the deficiency bill, laying aside until tomorrow the army supply bill.

RECEIVER FOR PACIFIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

New York, Jan. 5.—Waldo S. Reed was appointed receiver for the Pacific Development corporation, a Wall street import and export brokerage firm, by Federal Judge Hand today in equity proceedings brought by the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, which sued to withhold notes for $815,000.

Liabilities were said to be $12,000,000 and assets in excess, but undetermined. The petition states that the corporation's assets consist of stocks and notes of numerous other corporations, the value of which in many cases have become impaired.

A statement given out at the office of the development corporation late today declares that the number of creditors is small, consisting principally of banking creditors.

The Pacific Development corporation was organized under the laws of the state of New York on January 18, 1917, to acquire subsidiary companies and engage in importing and exporting to and from the Orient.

Germany Protests Cologne Occupation

Text of Reply to the Allied Ambassadors Will Probably be Made Public Thursday.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—(By the A. P.)—Germany's initial reply to the council of ambassador's note regarding the Cologne occupation was handed to the allied ambassadors here this evening.

The text will probably be made public on Thursday, but it is learned that the note characterizes the extension of the occupation beyond January 10 as a fundamental breach of the treaty of Versailles; It is also understood that the reply rejects the right of the entente to postpone its evacuation of the bridgehead on the ground of the alleged defaults by Germany cited in the ambassadors' preliminary note of January 5.

The Berlin government's answer, which was drafted at today's cabinet meeting, is confined to a formal protest against violation of a treaty principle by the allies. Specific discussion of the alleged defaults mentioned in the allies indictment will be deferred until Germany has received the ambassadors' supplementary note.

The grounds on which the continuation of the Cologne occupation are based to designate the accusations of the allies as being intended primarily for foreign consumption.

"The bogey of 150,000 German uniformed policemen will probably result in a demand that only women be recruited for police duty in the future," observes the Boersen Zeitung, which also ridicules the charge that the German general staff has been restored.

FINANCE MINISTERS OPEN SESSIONS IN PARIS TODAY

Paris, Jan. 6—(By the A. P.)—Delegations from twelve of the allied and associated nations are in Paris tonight preparing to reopen tomorrow some of the thorny discussions that have grown out of the peace conference which began here about six years ago.

Frank B. Kellogg, American ambassador to Great Britain, who with Ambassador Herrick and James A. Logan, Jr., United States observer no the reparation commission, constitute the American delegation to this conference, arrived here today. He spent the evening in conference with Mr. Logan and the two got in hand the threads of the many intricate and complicated problems the fiance ministers and experts must settle. Mr. Kellogg will confer with Ambassador Herrick and Mr. Logan tomorrow morning before the conference meets in the clock room at the foreign office.

Winston Churchill, the British chancellor of the exchequer, was another arrival. He spent the evening conferring with the Marquis of Crewe, the British ambassador to France, and tomorrow morning will take up with M. Clemental, the French finance minister the troublesome question of war debts.

It is fairly well understood in the best informed circles that Mr. Churchill will submit to M. Clemental a proposal for a full allied conference on war debts to be held in Brussels, in March. This suggestion has not yet been brought to the attention of the American delegation officially; but in any event the Americans will take no interest in any talk concerning debts.

ELBERT H. GARY STRONG FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

New York, Jan. 6.—The present disregard of law "constitutes a blot upon our escutcheon," Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said tonight at the annual dinner of the citizens' committee of one thousand for law enforcement, in a plea for observance of all existing legislation.

Mayor William E. Denver of Chicago told of conditions existing in that city before and after reform measures taken by his administration. Senator William E. Borah of Idaho discussed the relatively of law enforcement to the general welfare and emphasized the moral responsibility of individual citizens.

A special committee, with Mr. Gary as chairman, will take breakfast with President Coolidge at the White House Thursday when reports made to the meeting will be presented. Other members of the special committee who will attend the breakfast are John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Robert Fulton Cutting, V. Everit Macy, George A. Wallis, Col. Patrick Henry Callahan, Fred H. Smith and Attorney-General General Harlan F. Stone.

"If any law, in our opinion, is not wise or just or desirable,' Mr. Gary said, in introducing the subject, "we properly may try to change it in a regular way; but no man has the right to violate or evade any law while it is in force, unless his honest conscience compels him to do so on what he believes to be a moral ground; and then he must subject himself to the penalty provided for violation if the regularly constituted authorities decide that his opinion is wrong."

DIFFER ON AUTOMATIC TRAIN CONTROL DEVICES

Washington, Jan. 6.—Difference between railroad executives and the interstate commerce commission over installation of automatic train control devices were emphasized today in separate actions by both sides of the controversy.

The railroad executives, assembled here for a joint meeting of the directors of the American Railway association and the executive committee of the Association of Railway Executives, made public a statement outlining their objections to installation of the devices, as ordered by the commission. About the same time, by coincidence, the commission signalized its own position on the question by rejecting requests of three railroads, the Baltimore & Ohio, Central of New Jersey, and Richmond, Fredericksburg, and Potomac, for additional time beyond January 1, last, to make the experimental installations ordered.

The railroad chiefs, in considering jointly the country's traffic outlook compiled an estimate that 1925 would produce the largest volume of business ever put on the rails. For the first quarter of the present year, it was said, prospective traffic, as seen by the soliciting agencies and joint railroad organizations, indicates that carloadings will be 2.2 per cent in excess of those of the same period in 1924, which broke all records.

MENTIONED TO SUCCEED ATTORNEY GENERAL STONE

Washington, Jan. 6.—Attorney General Stone began a farewell drive today in an effort to leave his department of justice desk clear of all questions that possibly can be decided before he takes up his new post as a member of the supreme court.

The White House remained silent today respecting a possible successor for Mr. Stone, but numerous names were mentioned in official discussion about the impending vacency. The names of Charles B. Warren, former ambassador to Japan, Judge Frank Dietrich, of Idaho, Silas Strawn of Chicago, and Judge Arthur Rugg, of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, were heard most frequently, but no comment on them was forthcoming from any official.

There was also the rumor that Frank B. Kellogg, ambassador to London, might be brought back to head the department of justice and that Solicitor General Beck, who will automatically take charge of the department temporarily upon Mr. Stone's retirement, would in turn succeed Mr. Kellogg. Talk of such an arrangement, however, had no clearer complexion than that concerning other names.

MEANS ARRESTED AT HIS HOME IN CONCORD

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 6.—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, was brought here late today to take a train tonight for New York, having been arrested at his home at Concord, N. C., on a bench warrant ordered by Federal Judge Lindley in New York yesterday, when Means failed to appear for trial.

Means, said to have been suffering recently from gall stones, declared here tonight he was feeling better. A number of federal agents accompanied him here and Deputy Marshal M. C. Coin of Charlotte, will take him to New York.

Means earlier in the day had been declared by Dr. Charles Britt, representing the government, to be in fit condition to make the trip. Dr. Britt examined Means for the government, after his own physician, Dr. Joe A. Hartsell, had declared he should not be allowed to be taken to New York.

VETO OF POSTAL PAY BILL SUSTAINED BY THE SENATE

Vote Stood 55 to 29, One Less Than the Necessary Two-thirds to Override the Veto—Party Lines Were Disregarded in the Vote, Six Republican Senators Abandoning the Administration Leaders—Of 34 Democratic Voting, One Cast His Ballot For the Veto—Salary Increases Now Are Dependent Upon the Enactment of the Pending Administration Measure to Advance Pay and Postal Rates Simultaneously.

Washington, Jan. 6.—President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay increase bill was sustained today in the senate by the margin of a single vote.

Twenty-nine senators supported the executive while 55—one less than the necessary two-thirds majority to enact the bill over the veto—opposed him.

With this action by the senate, the pay measure, passed at the last session, 73 to 3, died automatically. In its place will be brought forward the administration's combination pay and postal rate increase bill, but leaders generally are agreed that this measure has small chance of enactment at this session.

Republican ranks split wide open on the issue of sustaining the president. Opposing him were such leaders as Jones of Washington, party whip; Wadsworth of New York; Reed of Pennsylvania; Moses of New Hampshire, McNary of Oregon, and Edge of New Jersey.

Only one of the 34 democrats voting cast his ballot for the veto. He was Dial of South Carolina, but it was announced that Senators King of Utah, and Owen of Oklahoma, who were paired, would have so voted had they been able to cast their ballots.

Of the six senators defeated for reelection, five—Ball, Bursum, Dial, McCormick and Sterling—voted to sustain the veto. The sixth, Shields, of Tennessee, was absent and not paired. Two of the three new senators, Butler, Massachusetts, and Metcalf of Rhode Island, supported the executive, while Means, Colorado, opposed him.

To Override the Veto

Republicans — Brookhart, Couzens, Edge, Elkins, Frazier, Gooding, Howell, Johnson of California, Jones of Washington, Ladd, LaFollette, McLean, McNary, Means, Moses, Norris, Reed of Pennsylvania, Shortridge, Stanfield and Wadsworth—21.

Democrats—Ashurst, Bayard, Broussard, Caraway, Copeland, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ransdell, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Stanley, Swanson, Tramwell, Underwood, Walsh of Massachusetts and Walsh of Montana —33.

Farmer Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total 55.

Against Overriding the Veto

Republicans—Ball, Borah, Bursum, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Cummins, Curtis, Ernest, Fernald, Fess, Greene, Hale, Harreld, Keyes, McCormick, McKinley, Metcalf, Norbeck, Oddie, Pepper, Phillips, Smoot, Sterling, Warren, Watson, Wheeler and Willis—20.

Democrats—Dial 1.

Total 29.

Pairs were announced as follows: Ralston, Indiana, and Bruce, Maryland, democrat, for, with Spencer, republican, Missouri, against.

Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota and Wheeler, democrat, Montana, for, with King, democrat, Utah, against.

Reed, Missouri, and Stephens, Mississippi, democrats, for, with Owen democrat, Oklahoma, against.

Senators Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, and Shields, democrat, Tennessee, were absent and unpaired. There is one vacancy the seat formerly held by the late Senator Brandegee of Connecticut.

Two of the senators who voted yesterday to recommit the pay bill voted today to pass it over executive disapproval. They were Moses, of New Hampshire, who reported the pending pay and rate increase measure, and Shortridge, of California.

In the three hours of debate that preceded the vote today, charges that the administration measure was a smoke-screen to defeat the vetoed pay bill were renewed and were vigorously denied by Chairman Sterling of the post office committee, who declared the proposal had been brought forward in good faith, and would be pressed vigorously.

The South Dakota senator also took issue with those members who predicted that the administration bill could not be enacted at this session. He declared there would be no difficulty in getting it through if senators arguing to override the veto would show as much zeal in supporting the new measure.

"Home ducks" and White House breakfasts again figured in the discussion, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, predicting just before the roll call that if the veto were sustained it would be by the votes of senators defeated for re-election.

Calling attention that the bill had been passed at the last session by a vote of 73 to 3, the Alabama senator said it made a great difference in many cases whether senators were voting before or after an election.

Senator Frazier, republican, North Dakota, one of those read out at the councils of republicans, of the senate, declared he had not been hurt by that action, but that he had "felt a little hurt," when he failed to receive an invitation to "the broad breakfast table at the White House where were served buckwheat from Ohio, with maple syrup from Vermont, and sausages from Maryland, from the Chicago stockyards."

SENATE PASSED INTERIOR DEPT APPROPRIATION BILL

Washington, Jan. 6.—In a two-hour session tonight the senate passed and sent to conference the interior department appropriation bill, first of the regular supply bills of the session. It carried approximately $328,800,000.

DISCIPLINE RESENTED BY REPUBLICAN INSURGENT.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The edict of the republican senate conference, reading out of the party four LaFollette insurgents was assailed on the senate floor today by Senator Ladd of North Dakota, one of the four, as an attempt to apply "rigid and autocratic discipline."

"My duty is first to the people of North Dakota," he said, "and I deny that the representatives of New Jersey or Pennsylvania shall dictate the limits of my party loyalty."

Previously, Senator Frazier, the other North Dakota senator, who also came under the fire of the party organization, declared it did not hurt his feelings that he was barred from "the councils of the Grand Old Party."

"But it did hurt my feelings," he added, "when I was barred from the broad breakfast table at the White House where we were served buckwheat from Ohio, with maple syrup from Vermont, and sausages from Maryland, or the Chicago stockyards, I don't know which."

Senator Ladd said the republican party had departed far from the principles of its founders, and accused the present-day leaders of supporting wealth against the masses.

Declaring he had been a follower of the party of Lincoln since he was old enough to distinguish between principles, he asserted the party had come to represent the principle of rule of the masses by the classes.

Decrying party caucuses, he said they always had been used to frustrate the will of the majority and to stifle even truth itself if it "interferes with the special interests." He added that frequently its motive was that of the "black-hand."

The speaker declared he and others of the rank and file were "justified" in every effort they might make to reclaim the party and place it again in the pathway that the founders had intended it should travel.

B. & O. PASSENGER TRAIN CUT IN TWO BY EXPRESS

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Four persons were injured, none seriously, tonight, when the crack Washington Limited on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was struck and cut in two by a Western Indiana railroad passenger train, as the Baltimore & Ohio train was leaving the city on its run to the capital.

Both trains were crowded when the accident occurred. The Western Indiana train struck a mail coach of the Baltimore & Ohio train, this fact probably saving many more from injury. One of the coaches of the Baltimore & Ohio train was thrown on the platform of the Oakdale station where several persons narrowly escaped injury.

PREFERENTIAL TREATMENT FOR AMERICAN EXPORTERS

Paris, Jan. 6.—(By The A. P.)—Minister of Commerce Raynaldy said today that he would recommend to the cabinet council proposals granting to American exporters preferential treatment under the tariff revision bill introduced in parliament last month.

Inasmuch as the measure would raise duties, particularly on automobiles, typewriters, adding and calculating machines and cash registers, to almost prohibitive heights, the minister said he would place before the council a suggestion that American exporters be granted certain minimum duties in cases where such duties were not applicable under the new law. It would also be suggested, he said, that Americans receive the benefit of minimum duties in all instances where the proposed minimum rates should exceed the present intermediate and general duties.

Thus American exporters, M. Raynaldy pointed out, would be in a relatively better position than their competitors in other countries for whom no such preferential treatment is contemplated. The minister was anxious to explain that the new tariff increase is not aimed at the United States, but that France is forced to revise her schedule because of similar action by neighboring countries.

HAD PASSPORT ISSUED IN HER MAIDEN NAME

New York, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Helena Normanton, a lawyer, who arrived today on the Adriatic with a passport issued to her by the British foreign office under her maiden name, although she is married, is credited with being the first English woman to achieve that distinction.

The victory is said to be the second Miss Normanton has won, her first being in 1923, after her marriage to Gavin B. Clare, a London business man, when she was admitted to the English bar, and insisted on retaining her maiden name.

Miss Normanton said she is here to study conditions and observe the workings of the American government.

The White Star liner arrived twenty-four hours late because of strong westerly gales and heavy seas encountered all the way from Liverpool and Queenstown.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

The weekly session of the Willimantic Rotary club held Tuesday noon in the Y. M. C. A., was one of much interest, two speakers on the list accounting for an extension of the allotted time for a regular session. Adjournment was not taken until 1.50. When Charles R. Pomeroy, the only absentee, makes up his attendance by being present at a meeting of some other club, Tuesday's meeting will be recorded on the minutes as a 100 per cent. session. President Harry W. Standish presided. The premier singers of the day, President Standish, Dr. R. Bullock Jones, John R. Pickett and Ellison S. Smith warbled "Old Black Joe," in truly plantation style. John Ahearn led in the vocal numbers. Among communications read by Secretary Hill was a complimentary letter from District Governor A. Avery, regarding the excellent attendance of the local club during the past month. Governor Avery will make his official visit here on the evening of January 20 and Chairman Jim Bath of the entertainment committee will arrange for a programme and a suitable place to hold the meeting. Another letter was one of appreciation from Miss Ruth Webber for a Christmas gift sent her by the club. Relative to a Sunshine club established by the Springfield, Mass., club, a communication was read asking for the support of the local organization. Guests were Dr. Stanley Osborne of the Hartford club, Herbert D. Pollard and Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the First Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Wheelock gave a graphic comparison of two trips to France. On the first he crossed the ocean to participate in the World war and he briefly described the ravages of some of the greatest battles, Chateau Thierry and the Argonne Forest engagements. On his second tour he was on his honeymoon trip. This was last year and in relation to the rebuilding of the devastated areas of France, he paid a compliment to the marvelous spirit of reconstruction evident in that country.

Dr. Jones gave a summary of his life history. The incidents which he related and his manner of delivery was such as to hold the undivided attention of the members and his sallies of humor occasioned much laughter. The Doc came into being in 1899 in the southern part of New Jersey. With a few words about his high school and college days he traced his professional career up to the present. Next Tuesday, Albert B. Smith will go as the local delegate to the convention of the Rotary Boys' Work committee in New Haven and he will be accompanied by several of the members. Members remaining here for the local meeting will be regaled by Walter Abbe, who will unfold his life history.

Some 2,400 employes of the local plant of the American Thread company will receive the reduced pay brought about by the wage reduction of 10 per cent. ordered through the mills of the company, to take effect the week beginning January 12. The cut establishes the wages on a plane similar to that following January of 1921, when the wage cuts were affected by the general wage lowering in the textile industry of 22 1-2 per cent., 12 1-2 per cent of this cut being restored on April 20, 1922. Listed below is a table of the increases and decreases in wages adopted by the American Thread company since the beginning of 1916, during which four raises to a total of 30 per cent. were made: January 24, 1916, 5 per cent. increase. February 4, 1916, 5 per cent. increase. May 10, 1916, 10 per cent. increase. December 1, 1916, 10 per cent. increase. June 4, 1917, 10 per cent. increase. December 3, 1917, 10 per cent increase. June 3, 1919, 10 per cent. increase June 2, 1919, 15 per cent. increase. December 1, 1919, 15 1-2 per cent. increase. June 14, 1920, 15 per cent. increase. January 1, 1921, 22 1-2 per cent. reduction. April 30, 1923, 22 1-2 per cent. increase. January 12, 1925, 10 per cent. reduction.

A. S. Hawes, state forester, spoke before a meeting of the Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon, in a very interesting talk, accompanied by stereopticon slides, on the History of Connecticut Forestry. He touched on the periods of greatest significance and change in the contours of the country from the settlement of this section by the Europeans, and their subsequent demolition of the forests through clearing lands for farms, the inroads of the portable saw mill, and the ravages of fire and fungus diseases to the present. He recalled the lines from the diary of Samuel Pepys from England at the time of Charles II., the period at which that country was entirely dependent upon the newer England for its large timber. "Much happier today" wrote Mr. Pepys "than for many; for all the New England ships came home to Falmouth twin masts for the king." And Mr. Hawes explained how since Governor Trumbull referred to his Connecticut as "not having been cleared since the deluge" the forests have dwindled until even with the scarcity of lumber and the high cost of building to force the movement for state forests through the east, Connecticut has by far the smallest acreage of any state nearby. One acre to eight, as compared with Massachusetts. Among the sections in Connecticut under state care, Mr. Hawes described the largest as at Eastford, with others at Union, Portland, Simsbury, Cromwell and Hartland, with special mention of the People's Forest at Burlamsted, of which the whole eight hundred acres have been contributed by various clubs and state organizations. It was voted the Women's Club make a gift of the sum necessary for the purchase of two acres to this forest.

MR. AND MRS. RAMSAY WALLACE NOW IN CALIFORNIA

Many in Norwich as well as Willimantic remember the culmination in marriage some years ago of the romance between Esther Dondero, then a student at Windham High school, and Ramsey Wallace, motion picture actor. The marriage took place while Miss Dondero was attending the College of Oratory in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were recent guests at a swimming party given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray, at their estate in California. Others present included Vivian Martin, also of motion picture fame, and Mitchell Liason, art director for Cecil B. deMille. Since his marriage, Mr. Wallace has been in Willimantic several times, and two plays given here under the auspices of the Woman's club have been under his direction, one of them the well-known Kick In. Mr. Winworth covers 27 miles every day, and visits 13 farms. He has to leave his home at six o'clock and in bad wheeling and rough weather, the cream colector's lot is far from a happy one. At the creamery, the cream is tested each day, by means of samples from each man's product, thus keepink the cream and butter at continued high standing—for which this plant is famous.

A man who read in The Bulletin about the improvements during 1924, said that as an improver no Jewett City man had anything on the late G. A. Bushell. He transformed the park section of East Main street from an unsightly collection of rambling sheds, barns and shacks into three modern residences, now owned by Mrs. H. E. Paul, Perly Melvin and John Mort. Then came the park and improvement of St. Mary's church grounds, all adding beauty to this pleasant residential section of the borough.

The January meeting of Westerly Board of Trade was held in the Colonial club on High street Tuesday evening, Vice-President Everett E. Whittle presiding, with Wells R. Fowler secretary. About thirty members sat down to the dinner which preceded the business session and was served as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Olives Pickles
Dinner Biscuit
Roast Beef
Mashed Potatoes Peas
Rolls Demi-Tasse
Ice Cream Cake

In the business session which followed, the recommendations of the executive committee with the proposition of combining the board of trade and Shore association with the increase of annual dues to $25 a year was reported, definite action to be taken when it comes to a vote at the annual meeting next month.

The following nominating committee was named to present a slate at the annual meeting in February: Irvine O. Chester, Walter C. Hiscox, Andrew W. Fisher and Clifford W. Campbell.

F. C. Cooley, general passenger agent of the New Haven railroad, had written Frank W. Coy, chairman of the traffic committee of the Westerly board of trade to the effect that numerous inquiries for transportation to the eclipse zone area had been received from Boston sources, some of which were educational in character. It was state that Westerly was the nearest point and that some location near the railroad station was desirable from which to view the phenomenon which would be of an hour's duration. Plans call for trains to leave Boston at 6 o'clock in the morning and returning to leave Westerly that Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock. Tuesday E. L. Wilson, assistant passenger agent of Boston and Ticket Agent Thorndike had come to Westerly and in company with Mr. Coy had visited available sites such as the Vose baseball park, off Granite street, the playground field off High street as well as Hinckley Hill in Pawcatuck, which seem to them to be too far from the railroad station. The train was to make stops only at Attleboro and Providence. From Boston a Woman's club of 100 members had wished for a car for themselves. It was stated that the Colonial club and the Westerly town hall would be open to provide warmth and shelter for the visitors. Mr. Coy thought that signs should be printed with arrows marking the way to the sites selected and that a reception committee should be appointed to meet the visitors as well as to provide hot coffee, dogs and sandwiches for them. James M. Pendleton thought that the visitors could be taken to the shore and stated that at Napatree point at Watch Hill the period of totality was nearly two minutes duration while in Westerly it was one minute and three-tenths. From his sister, president of Wellesley college, he learned that college was to be entertained by Connecticut College for Women, New London and Wesleyan college, Middletown, was to be entertained at Brown university, Providence. He thought that part of the visitors could be cared for at Westerly and part at the short. Arthur Perry moved, and it was voted, that a committee of not less than five be named with power to spend money for the entertainment of the visitors on the day of the eclipse and to provide coffee and sandwiches. The committee named consists of Frank W. Coy, Arthur L. Perry, James M. Pendleton, Arthur N. Nash and Daniel F. Larkin.

Chairman Whipple thought that a resolution in favor of state police should be adopted and on motion of S. E. Davis it was voted that the secretary prepare a resolution in behalf of the Westerly Board of Trade favoring the establishment of a Rhode Island state police, a copy of to be sent to the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the house and members of the legislature from Westerly.

In the matter of spending money for advertising purposes, Secretary Fowler announced that the Westerly town council had taken favorable action having instructed the town solicitor to draw up and enabling act to be presented by Westerly legislators.

From Chairman Mcdonald of the Connecticut board of public roads a letter had been received in reference to the widening of the Pawcatuck river bridge, the west approach of which is 7 feet narrower than the other, in which it was stated that his department "did not contemplate such action at the present time."

Thomas Perry named as a committee to be present at the budget meeting of the Westerly town council, S. H. Davis and Wells R. Fowler, to see that an amount was set up for the purpose of being voted on at the annual Westerly financial town meeting in February.

This (Wednesday) morning at 10.30 o'clock in the superior court rooms will be continued the Westerly trial calendar for Washington county when the first case to be called will be Angela M. Guarino vs. Westerly Motors, Inc., Judge Arthur P. Sumner of Providence no the bench.

At the Misquamicut Golf club house, Watch Hill, a complete sprinkler equipment has been installed. As a further protection from fire, two new hydrants have been located near the building

Senator Abraham P. Datson, left Westerly Tuesday morning to begin his senatorial duties. He was accompanied by his son, Capt. John F. Datson, commanding officer of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C., stationed at Westerly, recently appointed an aide on the staff of Governor Aram J. Pothier.

At a party given by Mrs. Earl F. Robinson, 15 Lester avenue, Monday evening, the engagement of her sister, Miss Nancye Lanphear, to M. Walter Flynn, Jr., both of Westerly, was announced.

The Girls' Friendly club of Christ Episcopal church is to hold its meeting Friday evening.

At the Westerly office of the American Thread Co., Supt. A. W. Bell announced that by orders from the directors of the thread company in New York, wages of the 300 operatives of the local plant would be reduced 10 per cent., to take effect Jan. 12.

The cut will be general at all of the plants of the American Thread Co., in Fall River, Holyoke, Mass.; Willimantic, Conn., Westerly and Willimantic, Me.

The cut will affect 7,000 operatives at the several plants, which are on a short schedule due to the business depression in the cotton business the past two years.

On Monday evening at 8 o'clock in their club rooms in the Potter Langworthy block was held the fifth annual meeting of Westerly Masonic club, No. 176. The reports of the officers and committees showed that the club had a prosperous year, financially and socially. The meeting was called to order by Treasurer Louis Stanton in the absence of President Smith who was in New York and vice president Rathbun in Boston. Secretary Albert E. Barber read the secretary's report, which was followed by the report of the Treasurer Lewis Stanton. The election resulted as follows: President Herbert W. Rathbun; vice president, Raymond H. Grip Left You a Bad Back?

Is winter time your backache time? Are you lame, stiff and achy; tortured with constant backache and sharp stabs of pain?

Look, then, to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills weaken the kidneys and prevent them from properly filtering the blood. Then follows nerve-racking backache, sudden stabs of pain, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities. You feel weak, tired—all worn out.

Don't wait! Delay may prove serious. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here Is Norwich Proof:

My kidneys didn't act right at all. I had known of Doan's Pills helping another member of the family, so I used them and found relief."

Broadway Theater

Mrs. Wallace Reid's stirring new photodrama Broken Laws, coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday starts and ends with a thrilling race with justice.

And it can't be beaten, as the picture demonstrates.

A boy and his father are "beating a speed cop" as the mighty drama of the screen opens. They get away with it, temporarily.

In the closing scenes the boy, now 18, has another race with justice. He is charged with manslaughter. For he killed a woman while emulating the early speed exploits of his father.

And he loses.

The boy, a part played by Arthur Rankin and the mother, played by Mrs. Wallace Reid, present a pitiful picture as the judge pronounces sentence upon the pair.

Mrs Reid is supported by an able company including such sterling players as Percy Marmont, Jacqueline Saunders, Ramsey Wallace, Arthur Rankin, Virginia Lee Corbin, Lincoln Stedman, Pat Moore and Jane Wray.

Broken Laws is a worth-while contribution to the screen by the woman who dared to produce Human Wreckage.

Broadway Theater

Another surprise program is scheduled to open at the Broadway theatre tomorrow.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville is said to be great and we advise you to see it, if you want to get a real treat.

Richard Dix comes to the Broadway theater on Thursday in his newest Paramount starring picture A Man Must Live, directed by Paul Sloane as his first screen work.

It has been said that the best of Paramount's First Famous Forty are yet to come and they certainly must have a hunch about A Man Must Live, adapted from Jungle Law, by I. A. R. Wylie.

Jacqueline Logan and Edna Murphy head a strong cast playing in support of the star. Others are George Nash, Charles Bever, Lucius Henderson and Jane Jennings.

Breed Theater

Few if any motion pictures have revealed the tragedy of weak willed men to better advantage than the Fox production, The Wolf Man, which comes to the Breed theater today and tomorrow with John Gilbert in the title role.

As the Honorable Gerald Stanley, scion of a noble British family who is cursed by a weakness for drink, Gilbert perhaps does the finest work of his career. Stanley, when sober is the perfect gentleman, of high principle and unimpeachable character. When drinking, he becomes The Wolf Man, a beast without morals or conscience. The part gives Gilbert a striking opportunity and he assuredly seized it with excellent effect.

The story opens in London, where Stanley believes he has killed the brother of his fiance during a drunken orgy. His own brother, in fact, gives him this impression when he remembers nothing of the preceding night. Whereupon, the young Englishman sails to Canada and takes work in a lumber camp in northern Quebec. Ripping fights, not only against steel muscled antagonists, but against his sub-conscious personality, make a powerful story which pictures better than it reads.

For the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in That French Lady, an adaptation of W. J. Hurlburt's stage play. The Fox news will complete this big double bill.

With the announcement in Philadelphia of the approaching marriage of Mrs. Frances Paul Fell Devereux and Radcliffe Cheston, jr., it became known that Mrs. Devereux had obtained a divorce on December 30 from Attalo Devereux.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

While little general complaint had been heard about the matter up to Tuesday, some concerns engaged in manufacturing and some business houses have found themselves handicapped in giving fast deliveries of express matter, by reason of the fact that the shipping facilities here have been reduced by the removal of two passenger trains and the substitution of motor driven passenger cars on the New Haven road.

Formerly it was possible to get express matter out of here on the northbound train leaving here at 9.36 a. m., but a passenger truck with no express facilities is now on that run. This cuts out the northbound express shipment possibilities to two a day—the first on the boat train in the early morning, the second to an afternoon train leaving here about 4 o'clock. The boat train is too early a proposition to be very valuable for the average shipper, so, northbound, his facilities that are really worth while are cut to one a day.

The matter was called to the attention of chamber of commerce officials Tuesday afternoon. They stated that no formal complaints had been heard about the matter, but that it would be given attention.

One concern is seeking to speed up its outgoing express by sending it south in mid-forenoon and let it be reshipped from New London for Boston and other points north of here. This arrangement does not help out on shipments for Putnam or other points directly north of here on the local line.

Contemplating the new arrangement and the causes that are back of it—insufficient business to warrant the operation of the trains that have been taken off—one wonders what the future may hold as to providing such rapid service facilities as the modern business world has accustomed itself to use. One wonders, too, if the express company would oppose, as the railroad has opposed the operation of bus lines, a motor express service between New London and Worcester, reaching all the intervening communities. Much heavy freight is now so handled over the highways between these points.

Ice harvesting is underway at Quinebaug lake, where several thousand tons are stored each year for use in Danielson. The ice is of the highest quality, clear as crystal and hard as flint. On Tuesday the ice that was being cut measured between 9 1-2 and 10 inches in thickness. All of the houses at the lake will be filled with as great rapidity as possible. A large force of workers is engaged with the task. Some of the new ice was being distributed Tuesday to customers here.

It has been observed with interest the past few days that the big motor busses operating on the Providence-Hartford route have been running without Connecticut registrations. This is possible, it is explained, because the operators of the bus line have secured from the superior court in Hartford county a temporary injunction restraining either the motor vehicle department or the state police department from interfering with the operation of the busses, because they have no registration, until such time as the courts decide cases now pending relative to the operation of the line.

It is understood that the motor vehicle department issued no new registrations to the line for 1925. The busses running through here on this line are now operating only with Rhode Island numbers, whereas up to the first of the year they also carried Connecticut numbers.

Speaking of transportations matters, the motor busses or passenger trucks that the New Haven road is operating through Danielson are proving an interesting subject of discussion just now and have been the cause of at least one laughable incident. A man who was at the station Tuesday morning, holding a ticket for Worcester, viewed the truck with evident curiosity when it arrived, patently never having seen one before. He had finished his casual inspection when he asked a bystander when the train for Worcester might be expected to come along. He was told to hop on quick, for the thing he was looking at was the "train" he wanted.

Beginning Thursday, the first trolley car of the Connecticut company out of Norwich for Danielson will leave that city at 5.15 instead of 5.45 a. m., as has been the rule. The other cars making the connection will be run as at present.

Where there is a water shortage in this territory conditions are steadily growing more acute. It would appear in all seriousness that "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No Mo." This water shortage means that in numbers of cases much water has to be carried considerable distances for the use of live stock.

Excepting as to continued cases, Killingly does not figure in any conspicuous way in the list of cases on the criminal docket for the Windham county superior court, which opened at Putnam Tuesday.

Confidence is expressed that much of the four mile stretch of concrete state highway to be constructed between the borough line at Morin avenue and a point above Attawaugan, completing the Putnam-Danielson link of the all-concrete route to New Haven will be built this year.

The first of the bonus certificates for former service men have been received here and have brought joy to those who have them. The certificates have been examined with interest by all who have seen them.

Evidently the silver dollars that the treasury department would like to see in circulation, instead of bills of the same denomination, do not hold any special appeal for the people of this community. A banker said that his institution has a supply of the silver dollars on hand, but few care to accept them, preferring the paper money.

Edward McBride of this place is engaged at the state capitol at Hartford in an official capacity during the legislative session.

Prisoners from the county jail at Brooklyn were transported through Danielson Tuesday to be put to plea during the afternoon at the session of the superior court in Putnam.

The announcement in Tuesday's Bulletin that the fire department desires a number of additional honorary members proved of interest to men who are eligible and would be desirable.

Large numbers attended the services at St. James church Tuesday, in observance of the feast of the Epiphany.

Mrs. Rose Warren, Hawkins street, is a patient at the Jane Brown Memorial hospital in Providence. It is expected that she will remain there for several weeks.

Forecasts appearing in the press Tuesday that Representative E. L. Darbie of Killingly is to be made speaker of the house at the state capitol in Hartford was received with very general interest and enthusiasm in Danielson.

PUTNAM

Fourteen persons were put to plea at the criminal term of superior court which began its sessions here Tuesday afternoon. Judge Newell Jennings presiding. In only two cases were state prison sentences imposed. Henry Breault, alias George Breault, alias Henry Bushman, pleaded guilty on five counts charging breaking and entering, burglary and theft. On the first count he was sentenced to not more than five nor less than four years in state prison, to one year on the third count, and to one on the fifth count. Judgment was suspended on the second and fourth counts, the imprisonment terms not to run concurrently.

Arthur Fournier, who was implicated with Breault in some of the offenses, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to not less than two years.

Robert Thomas, seventy, without home or friends, broke into a bakery at Danielson and took enough food to satisfy his hunger. He pleaded guilty and the court, evidently keeping in mind the fact that it was winter and that Thomas, whom was intelligent, had no criminal record sentenced him to six months in the county jail.

Joseph Savage and Daisy Champagne were charged with adultry. Both pleaded not guilty and they will have a hearing Thursday.

Sedrick Kennett, eighteen years old, pleaded guilty to theft and was sentenced to the state reformatory.

Leo Bousquet, charged with breaking and entering, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the reformatory, the sentence suspended and the accused placed in charge of a probation officer, Charles L. Torrey, being appointed as such officer.

William Zuranski pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor laws and was fined $200.

James Shay, 74, a resident of Phoenixville, dropped dead while on a visit to his brothers at Middletown a few days ago. He was born in England but came here when a young man. Two sons and a brother survive.

W. P. Warren, town selectman, has received a copy of Wendemeith's Checker Companion as a prize from the Boston Checker club. He took part in the tournament held there on New Year's Day and finished in the semi-finals.

Edward Perry, a son of Louis Perry of School street, is winning recognition at the Whitinsville Machine Works where he has been employed for a year and a half. The current issue of the monthly magazine published by the company gives his portrait and a complimentary notice. He is a gradute of Putnam High school and of Northwestern university.

That check for $20,000 of state funds which it was claimed was never received by the First National bank, and that Treasurer Glipatric appropriated to his own use, evidently was found and is part of the assets of the bank, according to the report made by Anson T. McCook, the retiring state treasurer.

He says that the state's claim for $125,000 was first cut down to $105,000 the difference of $20,000 representing a check which the receiver contended never reached the bank from the then state treasurer, who was also cashier of the bank. The comptroller of the currency, however, granted a reconsideration and allowed the claim in full. The report adds that if the depositors of the bank are paid in full, there will be no loss to the state and if any loss should result, reimbursement might properly be required under the treasurer's bond. Preliminary notice has already been given to this effect.

Because of rumors that have been in circulation Charles E. Searls, state attorney, authorizes the statement that he alone is responsible for bringing detectives to Putnam and to other towns in the county to work on liquor cases. No other official, he said, had anything to do with the matter, and no other attorney had any knowledge of what was being done.

The republican representatives-elect and the senators-elect to the general assembly from the towns in Windham county were guests at a dinner at the Putnam inn, Saturday, of members of the state central committee, Miss Katherine B. Byrne of Putnam and John F. Reardon, North Grosvenordale, of the 28th senatorial district, and Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic and Mrs. Frink of Canterbury, of the 29th district. There was a general discussion of the measures that may come up during the session of the assembly which begins today (Wednesday). All but two of the members were at the dinner.

The universal week of prayer is being observed this week in three special union services, all the Protestant congregations participating. This (Wednesday) evening they will meet in the Methodist Episcopal church and the theme for meditation and prayer will be The Church Universal and the Missionary Enterprice. On Thursday in the Congregational church, The Nations and Their Leaders will be the topic. And The Home, the School and the Young People will be the subject at the Union Baptist church Friday evening. Each service commences at 7.30. The large attendances and fine spirit in the services held at this time last year are not forgotten and worshippers in all the churches are looking forward to similarly fruitful gatherings in the present week. The fact that no service is scheduled for St. Mary's Episcopal church this year does not indicate any lack of interest upon the part of that church, but because of delay in getting plans for the week started it became impossible to include a service in that church.

M'KENNA AND STONE.

Although there are causes for regret for the retirement of those who have been long and favorably connected with the United States supreme court, the resignation of Justice McKenna does not come as a surprise. Having reached the age of 82, he has been a member of the highest court in the land for a dozen years longer than it is possible for a member of the Connecticut supreme court of errors to remain on the bench, and while this does not reduce the high grade of service which he has rendered it has long since been evident that retirement has been only a question of time for a considerable period.

It is a long, honorable and praiseworthy record which Justice McKenna has established through his public service which antedates his connection with the United States supreme court.

In the choice of his successor President Coolidge has unquestionably made a selection that will meet with nationwide approval. Attorney General Stone has been a member of the president's cabinet for only a few months, but he has given evidence of his qualifications and has demonstrated his fitness for the place on the bench. Attorney General Stone found plenty to do, but he had devoted himself to the task in a most satisfactory manner. He has made it evident that he was at the head of the department of justice and not letting politics influence his job. He has begun some much needed housecleaning and has brought the department back to that high position from which it should never have been permitted to get. By training and experience Attorney General Stone possesses the ability to fill the office to which he has been chosen with credit to the country and himself. The president clearly indicates the type of man that is wanted for such a place of responsibility. It is a bit unfortunate that the change is to be made before he has had a chance to complete his work as attorney general, but there is no reason to believe that there will be any toleration of a return to former conditions there, while administration reins are in the present hands.

AN UNENVIABLE RECORD.

In taking care of future conditions some consideration has to be given to the past. For that reason there is ground for giving serious attention to the revelations which are made by the registrar of motor vehicles of Massachusetts to the automobile fatalities of the past year and the emphasizing again of the need of more thorough law enforcement, which he has not been backward in urging while the state has been making the record which he terms "the worst we have ever had."

During 1924 there were 709 persons killed and 19,679 injured by automobiles in Massachusetts. That means almost two persons killed and approximately 54 injured every day, and an appreciable gain over the previous year. The fact that there are more automobiles in the state does not justify that in the opinion of the registrar. The conditions have resulted of course in spite of the efforts to get just the opposite results and to impress upon all users of the highways the importance of safety measures.

It isn't a very pleasing outlook for Massachusetts, or any other state when it contemplates the fact that highway deaths were increased by 131 in the year just gone and without some check being placed upon it there can be expected to be a greater increase in the twelve months which are just starting. The death and accident lists show an increase in both for children and clearly set forth the fact that whatever may have been the care exerted by the users of the highways, or the efforts put forth by those vested with the enforcement of the laws, there is good and sufficient reason for insistence upon greater care during 1925.

The situation itself should be a sufficient argument for reducing the carelessness and the recklessness, but such effort as is being made in that direction by individuals and organizations deserves all possible encouragement and support by the courts when it comes to dealing with those who are clearly a menace to the life and limb of others.

FLIMSY CONSTRUCTION.

Following the collapse of the roof of the big auditorium at Camp Holabird near Baltimore, the structure is described as "a frame building of flimsy construction, completed in 1919 at a cost of $48,000."

A building of flimsy construction can hardly be regarded as a safe place for the congregating of the hundreds or thousands who might gather there since any public hall is expected to be surrounded with such recognized requirements as a building that will not collapse or be a danger in other ways to those it shelters.

Snow was the undoing of the Holabird auditorium. The roof fell because it was unable to support the weight placed upon it from the outside. It was quite in keeping with the conditions surrounding the theater which collapsed in Washington about three years ago, with the exception that the auditorium happened to be vacated at the time. Had the crash come a short time before or a short time later, it would undoubtedly have caused deaths and many injuries.

But what stands out so glaringly in connection with this collapse is that the building was recognized as one of flimsy construction, and yet it was used for public purposes and within a few hours there would have been 500 or more at a moving picture show in the hall.

Perhaps the building codes of the cities along the Mason and Dixon line permit the erection of buildings without giving much thought to the covering of them with roofs that will withstand the weight of sizeable snow falls, but if that is the fact there are sufficient cases to show the menace of such a practice. Perhaps there is a system of inspection which disregards the dangers of flimsy construction and takes the view that the public must take its chances. Whatever the underlying facts as to the responsibility for the crash, even though no one was injured, they will unquestionably furnish good and sufficient reasons for those at fault being called to account. Flimsy construction ought not to be permitted when it means danger to life and limb.

CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT.

At the session of the general assembly which will open today there will be much legislation sought and unquestionably much granted. The aim as in all cases should be quality rather than quantity. The welfare of the state must get the consideration it deserves, and that duty cannot be too carefully measured by the town and district representatives.

At this session there will come up one piece of national legislation for ratification—the child labor amendment to the federal Constitution. That amendment is sought because the endeavor to better child labor conditions in certain states could not be constitutionally accomplished under the federal laws that were enacted. The proposed amendment goes so much farther than the proposed laws that it has brought against itself widespread opposition. It is put forth as a child labor amendment and yet it will enable congress if it becomes a law to govern the work of individuals up to 18 years of age. Even though it is presented as an enabling act there is an unwillingness to place any such authority in the hands of congress; and in view of what states have done and are doing to safeguard and protect children there is disposition to turn over such responsibilities to a federal bureau.

Sentiment runs strongly against the amendment in Connecticut, even as was manifested in the referendum which was held in Massachusetts. One state has ratified the amendment, and if the New York World's canvass is correct there are more than enough to defeat it. Connecticut will unquestionably be found in that list.

TREE AND SHRUB PLANTING.

While only a limited amount of outdoor work can be done at this season of the year, it is possible to make preparations for those efforts which must of necessity be done in the spring. In recognition thereof there cannot fail to be interest in the suggestions made by organizations or committees relative to winter planning for the setting out of trees and shrubs as a part of city improvement work.

Time and again such matters are called to attention in the tree or shrub planting season, when it is too late to obtain the necessary supply and make the required arrangements. It consequently has to be allowed to go over and in the delay no one assumes the responsibility and the excellent idea is forgotten.

When the committee on trees and shrubs called the attention of the Civic Improvement and Park association of Providence to the importance of making plans for such work now, the merits of its suggestion cannot fail to impress themselves upon others who are, or should be, interested in similar accomplishments. Norwich could with profit and future betterment give a bit of thought to this very thing.

Trees and shrubs play an important part in making a city attractive. They likewise contribute no little value to property. Opportunities are many for employing them with pleasing results and small expense. Public spirit may well be awakened in this direction for the replacement somewhere of the many shade trees that are yearly removed for one reason or another. As the Rose of New England, Norwich should be ever busy in tree, shrub and rosebush planting.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

How many times have you reverted to the habit of writing 1924 when 1925 was intended?

Have you stopped to figure out the number of pay days in the opening month of the new year?

Will there be the same trouble getting drivers' licenses that there has been getting auto licenses?

The new number plates are a decided improvement over the faded and mud-covered markers of 1924.

There seems to be no end to the number of cross word puzzles, or of those who are fascinated by them.

The man on the corner says: January hasn't as yet furnished any compelling reasons for going to Florida.

Some are declaring in a manner that approaches a boast that they have already smashed that set of new resolutions.

The estate of an umbrella mender amounts to $125,000. Perhaps you never figured there was money in such a business.

Ohio state college wants to spend $16,000,000 in the next two years, which doesn't differ so much from the desires of a number of individuals.

Does the steamship company that is ready to buy our merchant marine ships, at what it considers a fair price, figure that Uncle Sam is going to give them away??

TRAVELERS' TALES

"Now, tell us all about your lovely trip abroad," said the tactful hostess who believed in luring guests on to talk about things which interested them, no matter how much it made her suffer. "I am so anxious to hear all about it!"

"If you live to be 98 you'll still be anxious," the horribly frank guest assured her with great cheer, attacking a crispy second joint. "Long before I crossed the ocean I had it all figured out that not any clam could be clammier than myself on my return.

"'What kind of time did you have?' I had observed that people always were asking returned travelers when first they met and the returned traveler would explode like a lava crater, rattling off like a badly synchronized machine gun. 'From there,' he would proceed happily, 'I took the rail to Proto-placa-on-the-Pizzicati and went to the Grand hotel—'

"'Protoplaca!' somebody would squeal. 'Oh, that's where we had those perfectly wonderful fried bananas! No, come to think of it, they weren't fried, they were baked.'

"'I got the most marvelous handmade dress in Protoplaca,' somebody else bursts in. 'Every stitch handwork and it cost only—'

"'You shouldn't have gone by rail,' offers another. 'There's the most wonderful motor ride along the coast!' That's where the Smith's had that frightful accident and crippled Smith for life!'

"By this time the assemblage has totally forgotten the returned traveler, still waiting with his mouth open to continue his journey from the Grand hotel in Protoplaca to the Grand hotel somewhere else and they never do remember him. There he is with the account of his trip all seething within him, and it reacts on his nerves and he becomes a morose, disappointed man. If in desperation he corners a victim and starts to rehearse his tour somebody always calls the sufferer to the telephone or some woman appears and insists, 'John, do you know what time it is? We really must start—we're just dying to hear all about your wonderful trip, Mr. Squeeke. Do come over some time and bring your photos and cards, won't you? Come, John!'

"Perhaps he takes her at her word and arrives some evening with a large box of picture postals and photos. 'This,' he will begin, 'is the hotel where I stayed in Billfoldia—my window was right around the corner here and from it I had the most marvelous view—it doesn't show in the picture of course! This is the back yard of the little pension in Kechak—those blurred things were the prettiest plants and over here just outside of the picture was my table where my meals were served—'

"'John,' says the hostess prettily to her spouse, 'I know Mr. Squeeke will understand and we really are terribly interested in your thrilling account—but if you are going to get TAIBR on the radio you've got to tune in right away.' And after that they play three-handed bridge, which he hates, and presently it's time to go home and he finds the family pet dog has gone to sleep in the box of pictures.

"Having witnessed this little scene so frequently I dispensed with a camera when I packed. And I bought not a single picture postal card. I did not even mail one back.

"I suppose you are thinking I should have bought cards just for myself to keep and remind me of my trip when I grow old, and look them over. My father brought back cards both times he was over and since childhood's hour I have seen those carefully tied up bundles of pictures popping out of drawers, falling down from closet shelves and taking — room we wanted for something else.

"Nobody at all who's truly alive has time to dwell in the past these days, however attractive it may have been! I don't expect even to have to recollect anything that happened this summer, much! I had a real good time, of course!"

It was some minutes before anybody could think of a single thing to say. Chicago News.

Wallace Lured by the Out-of-Doors

The call of the out-of-doors was too strong for Lewis Wallace and in the smiling months of the year, he often played truant.

Born in Brookville, Ind., he was taken to Covington, Ind., when five. Entering school, he frequently was whipped for truancy. Slow in his studies, he liked to read and draw pictures. He was six when his mother died, and he was taken to live with a neighbor. When his father married again, he rebelled, but after two days in the woods he returned nearly dead with the croup and was nursed by his "new mother." Frequently he stole away to the hay mow or woods to read.

At 13 he was sent to Centerville and his private teacher encouraged his desire to write. Back in Indianapolis, he attended the seminary, but was more interested in a literary society and at 16 wrote a thrilling serial for it.

Apprehended while trying to get to Texas to fight in its battle for independence, he had to shift for himself and went to work for the county clerk.

In his reading he traveled, and then began to write The Fair God. He studied law and failing to get a license to practice, carried out his plan to enlist as second lieutenant in the Mexican war.

Returning home after the war, he resumed his writing and his law. At the outbreak of the Civil war he was made a colonel, but was promoted to the rank of brigadier general of volunteers and distinguished himself at Shiloh, in the defense of Cincinnati and at Monacacy.

Five years after he had returned home he completed what he was 43 The Fair God, had it published, ran for congress, and lost. Five years later he began a serial of his conception of the story of the Three Wise Men. At the end of another five years, when he was 53, he published it as Ben Hur, after having written much of it while governor of New Mexico. Sales of the book were slow at first, but grew gradually until Ben Hur was translated into many tongues. A year after its publication he was made ambassador to Turkey.

The Prince of India and other works followed, and General Lew Wallace became renowned as a writer, a diplomat and a soldier.

Stories That Recall Others

One More Chance for Santa

"Well, Walter, did Santa Claus come to your house?" was asked of a five year old.

Yes. He came all right.

"What did you get?" was then asked.

"Oh, just like my brother, a sled, some games and others things."

After he had been congratulated on the liberal remembrances he offered the following: "But, I want to tell you I'm going to give Santa Claus just one more chance. I wrote for an electric train, a bicycle and other things, and I even know a four year old who got a lectric train."

His Christmas List

Robert, aged six, had written out a list of things he wished for Christmas, among them gifts for mother and father. Included in the list was a "Nice new dress for mother." It was agreed between him and mother than whenever he was naughty something was to be stricken off the list. He was on his good behavior for several days, when one night he refused to wash before going to bed, when mother said: Well, Robert, we will have to take something off the Christmas list.

"Yes," he said, "mother take off the nice, new dress."

PROMINENT FIGURES WILL BE MISSING IN LEGISLATURE

Several of the leading members of the 1921 session of the general assembly at Hartford will not be present at the forthcoming session. Among these is former House Leader John Buckley of Union, who is now United States district attorney; former speaker Leonard J. Nickerson, who was appointed to the superior court bench by Governor Templeton, former leader, Arthur F. Ells, who also received a judgeship appointment from the governor; former Senator Charles M. Bakewell of eighth district of New Haven who was chairman of the committee on education and who this year failed to nomination; former Senator Ernest E. Rogers of New London, who has been elected state treasurer; Senator John N. Brooks of Torrington, former chairman of the committee on banks, and who was not a candidate for re-election for this session; Malcolm Rudd of Lakeville, who also did not seek renomination. Representative Henry Morgan of Westport, who was one of the most prominent democrats in the session two years ago and Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic, democratic house leader this year defeated as a candidate for congress.

The two representatives in the house from Hamden, Frank A. Warner and Henry F. Hall, are going back for their third term. They were in the house of representatives in 1921 and 1923.

The republicans have 239 representatives in the house and the democrats 23. The democrats have only two representatives in the senate. They are Joseph Tone of New Haven and Joseph H. Lawler of Waterbury.

All American plants of the Ford Motor company which closed Dec. 24 for the annual inventory reopened Monday. More than 124,000 employes returned to work in the Detroit district.

SOME MIDDLE-AGED WOMEN ARE AILING ALL THE TIME

Mrs. Ackerman and Mrs. Mayer Tell Women How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Them at This Trying Period

MRS. ELSIE ACKERMAN CONVOY, OHIO

Convoy, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has straightened me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it! It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. ELSIE ACKERMAN, Convoy, Ohio.

Mrs. Mayer's Experience

Litchfield, Conn.—"I have given your medicine a fair trial (I am on my fifth bottle) and can truthfully say that it has helped me. I am at the Change of Life and was not able to sleep nights, had indigestion, palpitation of the heart, pains in my right and left sides (more so if I hurried), had a rapid beating in my left ear and dreaded to see night come. I felt smothered if I lay on my left side, I had gas dreadfully, at times felt as if some one had me by the throat, had hot waves through me and sometimes I would shake in spells of nervousness. I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot praise it enough. I can say it does all it claims to do and I can recommend it to my friends. I can sleep much better, the pains in my sides are gone, I am not so nervous, my digestion is much better, and I very seldom have the hot waves. I must say that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine for women's ills and I will answer letters from women asking about it."—Mrs. JOSEPH MAYER, Sr., Box 36, Litchfield, Connecticut.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

"I'll Show You"

Now let me think a minute or three,
Better slip on my thinking cap.
I fear I am only half awake
After my winky nap.

Yes, your Uncle Dave closed his eyes for just a blink and maybe a little tiny wink. But my dear old Thinking Cap is working now, and so, here we go, for another rabbit tale.

"I'm going to print a sign," all of a sudden exclaimed Sam Scare Crow, on whom the little bunny was calling, you remember, my little Jack Rabbit fans. Yes, the bunny boy was sitting on a three legged stool and the old Scare Crow on a wooden bench in the little flag-house close to the railroad crossing when I left off in the last story.

"What will the sign say?" asked the little rabbit curiously, opening his knapsack to take out a lollypop. Lucky for him, wasn't it, that the Big Brown Bear had filled it that very morning? Well, I guess yes three times and may be four.

"I'll show you," answered Sam Scare Crow picking up a nice smooth board on which he had written in pencil:

"Stop! Look! Listen!"

Then with a brush and a can of red paint he commenced to make the letters stand out bold upon the smooth white board. "There," he exclaimed by and by, after a while, "it's done. Now I'll fasten it up—ah on the post near the crossing where everybody can see it quickerty quick," and picking up a small step ladder, he asked the bunny boy to bring along the hammer and box of nails.

It took the old Scare Crow only a few minutes to fasten on the sign, and then stepping back a little way, he glanced at it thoughtfully. "Bunny boy," he said, all of a sudden, turning to the little rabbit. "Did you ever hear a little voice whisper: 'Stop! Look! Listen!'"

"Yes, yes," answered the bunny boy. "Bobbie Redvest oftens says that to me. When Mr. Wicked Wolf dropped me in his big gunny sack Bobbie Redvest helped me find a way out. If I hadn't obeyed him when he whispered 'Wait a minute' I wouldn't be here today. No indeedy. Mother would have never seen her little boy again."

"Well, maybe you've learned something," went on the old Scare Crow as he walked slowly back to his little house. "I think God, who made all the furry coated and feathered folk in Rabbitland, speaks through the little robin's voice. In the big wide world, where boys and girls read the Jack Rabbit stories, his voice speaks low and sweet right in here," and the old Scare Crow tapped his chest with his finger, "asking boys and girls to 'Stop! Look! and Listen!' when they are about to do something which they know they should not do."

"I'll tell Mother what you've said," answered the little rabbit as he hopped away into the next story.

BUYS CENTRAL BUILDING FOR INVESTMENT PURPOSES

The Central Building at 41-47 Broadway was sold Tuesday to William H. Murphy of 206 Broadway, proprietor of a variety store at 110 Main St., by the Central Building Co., of which Henry H. Gallup is president and Edwin B. Miner treasurer.

Mr. Murphy's purchase is a modern five story and basement brick building, 60x80, containing two large stores and 51 offices, as its name indicates. It is located in the business center of the city, having been erected in 1894. It occupies the site of the old Central Baptist church, which was transformed into a frame business block, but was largely destroyed by fire on Jan. 20, 1894. The present building replaced the burned structue.

Mr. Murphy, it is stated, has bought the property for an investment and will probably move his variety store into this highly desirable new location.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George D. Burgess.

Norwich friends received word on Monday of the death of Mrs. Annie Burgess, widow of George D. Burgess, 70, which occurred Saturday, at her home on Park street, Dorchester, Mass.

Mrs. Burgess, formerly Annie Williams of Brooklyn, N. Y., for the past twelve years or more, had been an invalid, the greater part of the time being in a private sanatorium. During this period of illness Mrs. Burgess received the devoted attention of members of her family.

She was removed to the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Buckner, about Thanksgiving time, that she might spend the holidays with her loved ones and it was while there that the end came, just at the beginning of the New Year.

Possessed of an agreeable disposition it was Mrs. Burgess' greatest pleasure when doing for others. Her cheery personality and her loyalty to her family and friends, has left a lasting impression on those who knew her best. She was especially fond of animals and her home was never without pets.

Mrs. Burgess is survived by two daughters, Miss Charlotte A. Burgess and Mrs. William J. Buckner, and a grandson, Donald Buckner, all of Dorchester, also a sister, Mrs. W. J. Wheeler, besides other relatives mostly located in New York state.

The funeral took place Monday at the Episcopal church with which Mrs. Burgess had been affiliated prior to her serious illness. Burial was in Forest Hills cemetery.

About thirty-five years ago the Burgess family lived for a time in Norwich Town, when the late George D. Burgess was a salesman for the former Richmond Stove company, of Norwich. Mr. Burgess died about twenty-five years ago, after the family had moved to Massachusetts, at the time of his death being with the firm of Du Parket, Huot and Manuse, of Boston.

For many years after the family moved from Norwich Town, the Burgess girls returned to pass the summer with friends, being guests each year for several weeks at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Capron. Their mother likewise on several occasions has been entertained at the Capron home and it was during these visits that the family became well known to Norwich people, having cherished many lasting friendships. During their young life, when the preference was given them, the Burgess girls chose a visit to Norwich, instead of attending the World's Fair in Chicago, so well did they like Norwich and value their friends here.

SENTENCE OF FROM 5 TO 9 YEARS FOR G. A. FINN FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

At the opening session of January criminal term of the superior court here Tuesday morning, with Judge Allyn L. Brown of this city presiding, George A. Finn, formerly treasurer and secretary of the Bankers Trust Co., of this city, pleaded guilty to the charge of embezzlement of $93,104.64 on Oct. 24, 1924, which was three days before his arrest. He was put to plea on only one count.

Before Judge Brown pronounced sentence, Attorney J. J. Desmond, with whom John T. Barry was counsel for Mr. Finn, addressed the court with a plea for leniency. Judge Brown, in pronouncing sentence, stated that more counts could have been added against the accused if it had been chosen to do so, and that penalties would have attached to each count. He pronounced a sentence of not less than five nor more than nine years in state prison.

At the solicitation of friends of Mr. Finn, Sheriff Sidney A. Brown arranged to have him taken at once to Wethersfield to begin serving his sentence and Deputy Sheriff M. J. Martin went there with him after the morning session of the court.

After the arrest of Mr. Finn last October, a statement issued by the state bank examiners gave the amount of the defalcation or embezzlement as $146,241, an amount that was at once made up by the directors, headed by Angus Park, president of the bank. The name of Gabriel C. Berker, manager of a stock brokerage office in this city, was linked with that of Mr. Finn in the developments that followed the discovery of the embezzlement and a warrant for the arrest of Berker on the charge of theft of $53,000 was issued. Promises were made for Berker that he would return to the city, but none of these have been fulfilled although it is known that at least two Norwich men have seen and talked to him within the past two weeks. It has been generally believed in the city that the wanted man is in New York. Following the arrest of Finn a group of friends gave bail for the bank treasurer in the amount of $50,000, which gave him his liberty to await the superior court session.

Twenty-one new cases were on the docket when court was opened at 10 o'clock by Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton. Prayer was offered by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of the United Congregational church.

The pen contained eight prisoners, five having come from the Norwich jail and three from New London.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur M. Brown quickly started having the accused persons put to plea, and before the session was finished for the day every one of the twenty-one cases had been disposed of except one in which there will be trial the only trial of the session. Many of the accused pleaded guilty in answer to the accusation read to them by Clerk George E. Parsons and in some cases there were continuances or nolles.

Cases Continued.

The first case was that of Ernst Schiefer charged with sabotage, in New London.

The case of the state against John C. W. Wilbur of Salem, charged with murder, was continued, due to the fact that the accused is in the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane.

The case of the state against Stephen Hunter of Norwich, charged with indecent assault, was continued because the defendant is still in the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane. A charge of theft of poultry against Charles Loomis of Bozrah was continued for the same reason.

To Reformatory.

In the case of the state against Americo Barbetti of Norwich charged with statutory burglary the defendant pleaded guilty. The accused was sentenced to the state reformatory for boys. He was arrested after a burglary at Sisk's drug store.

A charge of leaving a gate open on the land of another against Florence Brown of Ledyard was nolled by the court after State Attorney Arthur M. Brown had described the case as one that should never have been brought into the superior court.

Highway Robbery Charge.

In a charge of highway robbery against Eugene Bunnell of Norwich, who held up and robbed a Polish peddler in Greeneville of $96, Judge Brown gave the accused a suspended sentence of from one to one and a half years. A plea of leniency was made by Public Defender Charles L. Stewart, which claimed that the man had three children to support and that he had lived in Norwich for 14 years previously having a good record. He was placed on probation.

Joseph Connors, otherwise known as William Connell of Montville was given three months in jail for indecent exposure. He has been in jail since Sept. 27, 1924.

Berthum O. DeVault of New London charged with breach of peace was given six months in jail. He was alleged to have struck Catherupo Bruno alias Charles O'Brien. He has already been in jail since No. 25, 1924.

A two months jail sentence suspended for one year, was given Lloyd Hilton of New London for breach of peace. He is alleged to have struck Luther Moshan and has been in jail since Sept. 28. He was placed on probation.

Continuance was given in the charge of embezzlement by bailee against Abraham Hirsch of New London, because of a civil action in that case is pending.

Frederick Lawrence of Norwich was given nolles absolute in a charge of statutory rape

For Reckless Driving

Clarence Luther of Preston, whose automobile caused the death in another car of Mrs. Morris W Wilkinson and Mrs. Ella Parks of Poquonoc Bridge was fined $25 and costs for reckless driving. Luther in the justice's court where he was bound over had been charged with statutory manslaughter. The state, however, altered the charge when circumstances of the accident became known, and Morris Wilkinson, widower of one of the victims, stated that he did not wish to prosecute the defendant. The accident happened on Derry Hill on the Montville road.

William Smith of Griswold, charged with indecent exposure, was fined $25 and costs and given a suspended four months jail sentence and placed on probation.

Charges of arson against Henry Wills of North Stonington were continued by the court. It was stated by the state attorney that it was clearly a case of arson where the man held a grudge against the owner of the building he burned. The accused is in the Norwich state hospital for the insane.

Will Stand Trial

Two separate charges of violation of the liquor law were combined in one in the case of Annie Zalinski of Norwich. She pleaded not guilty and will stand trial. The date of the trial was set at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning when the jury has been summoned in.

Derry Hill Fatal Accident

Lorenzo Belli, alias Lawrence Bealy of Mystic, was fined $25 and costs on the charge of reckless driving. Bealy was first charged with manslaughter. Bealy on November 9, last, was proceeding from New London to Norwich. When near Derry Hill he met a car coming in the opposite direction, and getting over to his side of the highway, collided with a motorcycle ridden by Joseph Kutis, fatally injuring him. It was claimed that the motorcycle was parked without lights.

Auto Driver Fined $500

Claude C. Jette of Killingly, an employe of the state highway department, pleaded guilty to the charge of statutory manslaughter for having caused the death of Tony Pocaro in an automobile accident on Stanton Hill, Groton on Oct. 29, 1924. The machine driven by Jette, with Pocaro as a passenger, struck a tree, fatally injuring Pocaro. Prosecuting Attorney Brown spoke at length on the case in moving for sentence, stating that Jette was a Trinity college graduate and a capable man who was earning promotion in the state highway department. Jette had gone from Mystic to New London to get a mason and he admitted that he had two drinks of wine at Pocaro's house in New London. If it had not been for the wine, this case would be disposed of like the other two automobile cases at this session of court, but the evidence would not show that Jette was intoxicated or that there was anything more than the odor of liquor on his breath. There was much doubt whether what he had had to drink was responsible for the accident. Yet the element of drink in the case called for something of punishment and warning. The prosecutor said he didn't believe imprisonment was neccessary, but there ought to be a fine commensurate with the offense. He asked for a fine of $500.

Attorney Brogan of Groton spoke briefly for Jette and Judge Brown imposed a fine of $500 and costs remarking that the court could not have disposed of the case without a jail or state prison penalty if there had been intoxication and the fine was not given for intoxication.

Theodore Kundig of Norwich pleaded guilty to indecent assault upon Margaret Muench at Norwich on Aug. 27 and was sentenced to one year in jail.

On Perjury Charge.

Henry R. Christopher of this city, a minor, was sentenced to three months in jail on the charge of perjury in giving his age to secure a motor vehicle operator's license.

Prosecuting Attorney Brown explained that Christopher had not been brought up under favorable surroundings, but he had a brother in New London who would look after him, and he urged that the young man be given a substantial jail sentence under suspension. Public Defender Stewart spoke for Christopher, asking leniency. In passing sentence Judge Brown said that the possible penalty was from six months to five years imprisonment. He said there are probably many young men in the state doing just what Christopher was caught at and the time has come when the court has got to take notice of these infractions of the law.

Frank Franco, of Providence, and Mrs. Verna L. Ross of Attleboro, who were arrested on Nov. 5, 1924, when they were living in this city, pleaded guilty to adultery. Franco was given a sentence of six months in jail and Mrs. Ross was given the same sentence, but suspended until the May term, because of the condition of her health. Her husband is a sailor but has had little to do with his wife and has never supported their child. There is a divorce suit pending and Franco and Mrs. Ross are intending to marry when they can legally do so.

Prosecuting Attorney Brown recommended an absolute nolle in the case of Edward B. Sheldon of Ledyard accused of obtaining an automobile under false pretenses. He said the case looks like an attempt to collect a civil debt through the criminal court.

The bond in the case of Michael Sacks were reduced from $3,000 to $1,000 and the case was continued to the May term on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The same continuance was made in the case of Charles Yanconski, alias Charles Young, of Norwich, accused of operating an automobile without the consent of the owner.

DESCRIBED WHALING TRIP TO PRIMARY COUNCIL

With Miss Jennie E. Congdon in the chair the January meeting of the Primary council was held at the Broadway school Tuesday afternoon when business of a routine nature was conducted. Following the business meeting a supper was served at 6 o'clock under the direction of Miss Bernice Willey.

The feature of the meeting was a talk by Miss Helen Marshall who related some of her experiences on whaling trips in a sailing ship captained by her father, when she was a child. On two of these expeditions, she said, she and her mother accompanied her father and at that time it was quite unusual for a father to take his family because of the dangers that accompanied such a trip. Continuing, the speaker said, these ships went out from Nantucket, circled Cape Horn and out into the Pacific where the whales were sought by the men. It was the sperm whale that was hunted and three and four years passed by before a load of oil was secured.

Miss Marshall also told how the whales were sighted, caught and how the oil was taken from the whales on the boat. These whales measured 80 feet in length and 35 feet in circumference and usually were peaceful animals, seldom attacking the boat. On these trips she said several islands along the Pacific coast were visited where fruit, etc., was found by the sailors. Although some of these islands were inhabited by civilized people, a number of them were inhabited by savages, concluded the speaker.

Miss Marshall showed to the interest of the members some very interesting pictures of whaling ships and pictures of the animals, along with some articles made of whalebone by the sailors in their leisure time.

The talk was thoroughly enjoyed by the members and a vote of thanks was extended Miss Marshall for her very interesting and instructive address.

MASSACHUSETTS SWINGING TO TILSON'S SUPPORT

Strong support for the elevation of Representative Tilson of Connecticut to either the speakership or the floor leadership has developed among members of the Massachusetts delegation in the house. Though the Bay State members, as a whole, have not climbed off the fence as between the candidacies of Madden and Longworth and though it is unlikely that they will take a definite stand for some time to come, there is a general feeling that Tilson's abilities and experience in the next house should obtain for him a position of greater power than he has hitherto occupied. Aside from this of course there is the natural bond of kinship and good will between the sister states and neighbors, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Prior to coming to congress, Tilson had served one term as speaker of the Connecticut House of Representatives, an experience which his followers assert would serve him in good stead as one of the recognized republican leaders of congress. He is well versed in the mysteries of congressional procedure and steeped in the lore of precedence. He is also one of the best parliamentarians in the house, always an asset to the house leader or the speaker.

In addition to these qualifications his followers point to his backing of President Coolidge in many a legislative crisis and they emphasize the record of his strict party regularity.

Longworth seems to be definitely in the lead in the contest for the speakership. Though Tilson has announced his candidacy for the speakership, it is understood that his friends believe he has a better chance for the floor leadership. There is, of course, no vacancy, nor will there be any vacancy in the floor leadership unless Longworth gets the speakership. Hence the only post for which Tilson would logically offer himself would be the speakership.

Longworth and Tilson, it is argued, would make a strong and efficient team. Geographically, also, it is argued it would make a strong appeal. The combination of Ohio and Connecticut, the former having the speaker and the latter the floor leadership, would make in the opinion of many for efficiency in 69th congress, and the restoration of party rule.

MISS CATHERINE DODD INJURED AT PLAINFIELD

Miss Catherine Dodd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dodd of Rockwell street, is reported to be improving after injuries sustained when she was struck by an automobile driven by Mr. Blain of Moosup, in Plainfield, Monday afternoon.

Miss Dodd, who is teaching in Plainfield High school, was walking home, accompanied by two other teachers when she was struck. She was picked up unconscious and it was at first feared that she had sustained a fractured skull. Her condition improved Tuesday and she was reported as resting more comfortable.

According to witnesses of the accident, Miss Dodd, with the two other teachers, was walking along the highway when two machines came along in the same direction. One tried to pass the other, crowding the girls. Miss Dodd stated that she could remember nothing after being struck, but it is believed that the rear machine caught her coat for she was hurled for some distance. The driver of the car stopped and gave his registration and license and kept in touch with the condition of Miss Dodd during the day Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodd were notified of the injury to Miss Dodd and immediately went to Central Village where their daughter was taken following the accident.

BINGHAM'S FATHER NOT SCHOOL TEACHER

The Bulletin is informed that the item in Friday's paper mentioning the Senator-elect's grandfather Hiram Bingham as "having kept a school for girls in York square, New Haven," was incorrect. On account of advancing years Rev. Mr. Bingham gave up his missionary work in the Hawaiian Islands and came to spend his later life in New Haven. While he married for his second wife the principal of the York Square Seminary for Girls, Mrs. Bingham retained full control and conducted the school the same as before her marriage with Mr. Bingham. Later the school was removed to another part of the city. While teaching in New Haven the writer of this correction was a member of the family of Rev. and Mrs. Hiram Bingham in the 60's and Mr. Bingham took no part in the teaching or school arrangements.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

NURMI BREAKS THREE WORLD'S MARKS IN FIRST APPEARANCE IN AMERICA

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 6.—(By The A. P.)—Less than two hours after he had beaten the pick of American talent in a mile race in which he shattered two world's records, Paavo Nurmi tonight wound up his American indoor debut with another world's record victory in the 5,000 metre run at the Finnish-American games.

Nurmi decisively conquered his countryman, Willie Ritola, in the finishing exhibition of his epic performance and clipped ten seconds from the world's record for 5,000 meteres set by Joie Ray in 1919. Nurmi's time was 14:44 3-5.

In his previous race, Nurmi not only broke the world's indoor mile record but was announced as shattering the 1,500 meter mark on his way to triumph.

His time for the 1,500 meters was 3.56 1-5, as compared with Ray's former record of 4.01 3-5, made last year, while at the mile, Nurmi's time of 4.13 3-5 clipped a full second from the old mark established in 1919. Nurmi concluded his unprecedented sweep when he broke the tape in the 5,000 meter event in 14.44 3-5, which bettered by ten seconds the record Ray hung up in 1923. On his way to the mark, however, Nurmi failed by three seconds to equal the three mile record which Ritola set in 1923 at 14.15 4-5.

Nurmi's astonishing feat, in which he removed any last lingering doubt of his ability to flash under any conditions and at all times the marvelous speed he showed in winning four Olympic triumphs six months ago, was the climax to the Finnish-American A. C. track and field carnival in which seven world's performances altogether were hung up.

Loren Murchinson, sprinting ace of the New York A. C. shared a major portion of the night's laurels when he sped to new world's sprint marks at 50 meters, 220 yards and 250 meters, while Alan Helfrich, Penn State flier, accounted for the seventh world's record when he established a new mark for 500 meters.

Nurmi, however, so far overshadowed all else that these sterling performances were almost forgotten in the brilliance of the flying Fin's achievement, which stands as the high-water mark for indoor athletic competition.

Nurmi's astonishing times were no less remarkable than the ease with which he conquered his opposition. In the mile, he apparently had plenty of reserve as he led Ray to the finish by three yards in spite of the fact that the little Chicagoan ran the greatest indoor mile race of his career and himself finished three-fifths of a second inside his own former world's record.

Again, in the 5,000 meter race, Nurmi followed Ritola's pace for most of the long journey but shot to the front two laps from the finish and widened to fully twenty yards the gap separating him from his countryman at the finish.

The mile was the most spectacular of the two races, for while Nurmi and Ritola outclassed their fielding of four other rivals in the final race, Nurmi faced stern opposition at times from both Lloyd Hahne of the Boston A. A., and Walter Higgins of the New York A. C. in the shorter struggle.

But when the bell rang for the last lap, Nurmi passed Ray, who had been setting the pace, as though the latter were standing still and easily held his margin in spite of the desperate final spring of the little American who surrendered his laurels only after a gallant struggle.

A crowd of close to 12,000 that packed the historic garden to its rafters gave Nurmi an ovation such as a few athletes have ever received. Hundreds of the Finn's countrymen rushed down to the track as he won his final race and it required police aid to get Nurmi to his dressing room and out of the hands of enthusiastic followers. Outside the Garden, fully 5,000 disappointed fans were turned from the gates.

Nurmi's performance, in which he duplicated in even more sensational fashion his Olympic feat of taking two races in a short space of time, was hailed by experts as particularly remarkable in view of the Finn's comparatively short period of preparation for indoor running, under strange conditions and after an ocean journey.

CLOSE BILLIARD MATCHES PLAYED IN N. L. TOURNEY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 6.—Close and stubborn fought billiard games featured the second leg of the handicap amateur billiard tournament which got under way last week. Two matches were decided by the narrow margin of one point each, while the two remaining matches were also closely fought. Monday night's matches showed that the tourney harbored some clever billiard players, and in the future the league will see some more good playing.

William Brooks and Louis Douglass began the first of the four matches, and this pair were so evenly matched that it was anybody's game up until the final point was clicked off by Brooks. Brooks captured this match by a score of 25 to 24, the first of two games which were decided by this narrow margin.

Walter Harkins was able to get away to an early lead over George Sheffott and he won the second match by a score of 25 to 18. Sheffott made a belated attempt to catch up with his opponent and came within four of tying the winner. Sheffot in this last minute spurt clicked off five and three in successive innings.

The third match on the program between William Bush and Joseph Watterson saw a classy match. Some fine billiards, with three cushion shots were made frequently throughout the match. Watterson's undoing came about when he left his opponent in a very advantageous position. This was the only flaw in Watterson's play during the match, but he was matched up with one of the best billiard players in the city. The outcome of this match was 25 to 15 for Mr. Bush.

E. A. Damon lost the fourth and final match of the evening by a scant hair to R. Moules, when he missed a billiard by that proverbial hair. With five billiards needed to darry off the winners honors, R. Moules set to work by keeping the balls closely together after he made a fine four cushion billiard, he ran a block of five and won from his opponent by a 25 to 25 score. This match saw two real billiard experts pitted against each other, with the skill of each counting heavily in the final outcome. This match was the best of the evening and these players will be watched as they climb their way towards the top of the standing.

PLAINFIELD LOSES CLOSE GAME TO BULKELEY, 7 TO 6

(Special to The Bulletin)

Plainfield, Jan. 5.—In what is thought to be a high school record for a low score in this part of the state was established here tonight when the Bulekely High basketball team nosed out the local high school, 7 to 6, in the last few seconds of play. A basket by Vogt, the Bulkeley center, in the last 20 seconds of play gave the Whalers the game.

The conflict was exciting and really fast, neither team holding the advantage of more than a point throughout the contest. Close guard work by both teams prevented a larger score although there were several missed baskets that would have won the game for either had they been hooped. The summary:

ARMY-NAVY FIVE TO PLAY FLOTILLA TONIGHT

The Army-Navy Five after two straight defeats will endeavor to get back into the winning column again when they meet the U. S. Submarine Base team in Parish hall tonight. The local quintet, which from all indications at the early part of the season had great confidence of making the year a banner one, suddenly fell out of their stride and were unable to display the teamwork and passwork which they had mastered in some of the earlier games this season. After a stiff practice under the supervision of Coach Murphy the team has regained some of the lost talent and feel sure that they will hand the gobs the first setback of the season. The local five will play the following men in their lineup: Belair, Cardie or Murphy, forwards; Harris, center; G. Coleman, Mills or T. Coleman, guards.

The Sub Base is by no means a weak opponent as the fans realize when they recall the final appearance of the Gobs on the local court last season. Although defeat in a close battle the sailors put up a great defensive fight and threatened at one stage of the game to snatch off the victory. The team this season is declared to be even superior to the aggregation of last year. Each member of the Flotilla quintet is of championship calibre and has a reputation of having seen plenty of service on many teams both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The Gobs will present the following lineup: Lewis, a flashy forward of the Pacific coast and Compton will hold down the forward berths; Robbins will jump center with O'Hare and Bantz in the backfield.

The preliminary will be between the Army-Navy Seconds and the Scotland Town team.

NURMI WILL ENTER FOR MILLROSE GAMES

New York, Jan. 6.—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish Olympic champion, will continue his American indoor campaign, started tonight at the Finnish-American games, when he competes in the Millrose A. A. Carnival at Madison Square Garden, January 27 and 28. Millrose officials announced tonight that Nurmi will compete in two special events on successive nights, appearing first in the two-thirds mile race and the following night in the Rodman Wanamaker one and a half mile race.

Relay teams of leading colleges and universities in the east and middle west, besides a host of club stars have been entered for other features of the program.

REAL BOWLING MATCH HAS BEEN ARRANGED

A real bowling attraction has been arranged for the latter part of the month and will bring to Norwich two of the state's best bowlers. The match was arranged in Hartford Monday night between Gaines and Renise, representing Hartford and Frank Barber and Roy Fillmore, representing the eastern part of the state. One match will be rolled in Hartford, one at Norwich and the third in Danielson. Local bowling fans know the type of bowlers that Barber and Fillmore are but know the Hartford boys only by reputation. However the local bowling enthusiasts are ready to back their men against the Hartford boys for fun, money or marbles.

This match is the outcome of the revival of bowling in Eastern Connecticut and it will not be the last big match that will be put on at the Aetna this season. Negotiations are under way to bring the best bowlers in New Haven, Waterbury, Bridgeport and other cities in the state here. It is possible that the eastern part of the state will have a representative team in the state tournament this year.

NEW TRACKS ADMITTED TO THE GRAND CIRCUIT

Cleveland, Ohio Jan. 6.—With the admission of two new member tracks, Aurora, Ill., and Atlanta, and important additions to and changes in the rules, Grand Circuit stewards ended their annual meeting with the re-election of H. K. Devereaux, Cleveland, president; E. W. Swisher, Columbus, vice president, and W. H. Kinnan, Cleveland, secretary treasurer, and the selection of ten stewards. Cleveland was selected for next year's meeting.

A schedule covering 16 weeks, the longest season in its history, was distributed among the ten member tracks. The season opens at North Randall, Cleveland, June 22, a new early starting date, and closes the week of October 13 at Atlanta. Four weeks racing will be held at North Randall, two at the start and two in August, the most ever assigned one track.

SUB BASE QUINTET HAS VERY BUSY WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 6.—With three games scheduled for this week, the Submarine Base squad of basketeers will face one of the busiest weeks on their schedule. This week will really be the test week in basketball for the tars, for their opening which was so auspicious at Westerly against the Cycle club quintet promises the Base team success in the future. The Army-Navy quintet leads the array of three teams and will be played at Taftville on this (Wednesday) evening. On Friday, the Plainfield five will be encountered in the second contest of the week, this game to be played at Plainfield. Final festivities for the week will come to an end when the local coast guard and the Sub Base hook up at the state armory on Saturday night.

TO PUBLISH TESTIMONY IN O'CONNELL-DOLAN CASE

New York, Jan. 6.—Baseball Commissioner Landis today informed a committee of New York baseball writers in a letter that he expected to make public within a few days the full testimony of Jimmy O'Connell and Cozy Dolan, made to the commissioner before the two members of the New York Giants were banished from baseball for attempted bribery.

The letter from Landis, sent in reply to a request from the New York writers that this testimony, including O'Connell's confession, be disclosed, was dated January 3 and said in part:

"Although I had expected to give out that testimony for publication long before this and will not postpone such action much longer, I must withhold it at least for a few days more in what I conceive to be the discharge of my obligation in the matter."

Landis has been pressed for some time to reveal the text of the testimony made to him by O'Connell and Dolan, in addition to the statements by Frank Frisch, George Kelly and Ross Young, other members of the Giants mentioned in O'Connell's confession but exonerated by the commissioner's probt. Until today, however, Landis has declined to make the matter public on the ground that it would not serve the best interests of his investigation to do so.

His announcement was speculated upon here as a possible indication of further developments in the near future in the bribery scandal which came out just before the last world's series.

GARVEY KNOCKS OUT SMITH IN FIRST ROUND

New York, Jan. 6.—Ed Garvey, former Notre Dame football player, tonight knocked out Ben Smith of Englewood, N. J., after one minute and 30 seconds of fighting in the final bout of an all-heavyweight card at the Pioneer Sporting club.

In the semi-final six round bout, Yale Okun, of New York, was awarded the judges' decision over Georgie Smith of Brooklyn, who substituted for Chief Halbran.

Mel French of Brooklyn knocked out Piedro De Laura of Italy and Jimmy Francis of West Hoboken, N. J., knocked out Jack Ford of New York. Ed Keeley of Bridgeport, scored a technical knockout over Carmine Caggiano of New York.

Back about 1870, James N. WANDERERS CLASH WITH ROVERS THIS EVENING

Tonight the Baltic Wanderers will play one of Manchester's fast teams when they meet the strong Rovers in what is expected to be a fast game on the Baltic gym surface. Manager Hills is bringing down a strong lineup. Madden of Co. G will jump center, and Plentland of Co. G will play left forward. Both players were in the lineup when Company G took a fall out of Plainfield last Friday night. For the other positions House and Hills are down for right forward; Wylie and Stowe, right guard and Zwick and Nichols for left guard. For the Wanderers Coady, Ridgeway, Simoneau, Charron and Walter Robertaille will play the forward positions, with Ralph Robertaille and Ragner Swanson playing guard.

For the preliminary game the Bantams will play the fast Emps, who have been winning all their games and who claim to have the best team around Norwich and vicinity. They took a fall out of the Bantams on the Y. M. C. A. floor by a wide margin a few weeks back.

To give the Manchester boys a chance to get acquainted with the young ladies the basketball management will give a dance after the games.

Local Boxer Fights in Florida

Young Al Coulon of Taftville, a promising bantamweight, is doing his stuff in the squared circle at the Florida winter resorts. A few nights ago Coulon fought a fast eight round draw with Joe Temes, a bantamweight that has been cleaning up in the southland. The bout was a semi-final and was one of the best on the card according to Tampa sport writer.

WALKER AND M'TIGUE CLASH IN NO-DECISION BOUT THIS EVENING

New York, Jan. 6. (By the A. P.)—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, will climb two steps out of his class tomorrow night when he meets Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, in a 12-round no-decision match in the Newark armory.

The welter king has everything to gain and nothing to lose in this match. By knocking out McTigue or winning on a foul, Walker can capture the 175-pound crown. On the other hand, a knockout victory for McTigue would still leave Walker king of the 147-pounders, as the light heavyweight champion is not eligible for the welterweight division.

Although the men are two divisions apart there will not be a great difference in their weight when they step into the ring. McTigue, really a middleweight, will scale near the 160-pound mark while Walker will come in around 153.

If Walker succeeds in stopping McTigue within the 12-round limit and thereby winning the world's 175-pound crown, it will be the second time in boxing history that a fighter has held two titles in such widely separated divisions. In 1897 Bob Fitzsimmons, middleweight champion won the heavyweight title by stopping Jim Corbett.

In the 10-round semi-final match, Bobby Barrett of Philadelphia, will meet Jack Rappaport of Newark.

The physical measurements of the two world's champions follow:

GURDON C. AVERY, OF NEW LONDON, DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS FARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 6.—Gurdon C. Avery, 66, 186 Main street, a well known resident of the city practically his entire life, died suddenly of acute indigestion at a farm owned by him and his brother, George G. Avery, 241 Broad street, late this afternoon. Mr. Avery was for many years manager of the livery stable owned by G. G. Avery & Son. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elsie B. Avery; three sons, Kenneth B., Clayton W., and Carlisle C. Avery; a daughter, Mrs. Cornelia L. Grimes, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Lamb and Mrs. Genevieve Weed, all of New London. He was a member of Komonoc Hose company, No. 4.

Mr. Avery and his brother went to their farm, which is located in the section of East Lyme familiarly known as Butlertown, where they were engaged the greater part of the day in clearing woodland. About 5 o'clock Mr. Avery experienced a feeling of severe pain in the region of the heart and almost immediately collapsed. His condition became worse rapidly and he expired within a few minutes after being stricken and before a physician could be summoned. Medical Examiner F. W. Dart of East Lyme was summoned and after ascertaining the facts in connection with the death of Mr. Avery, gave permission for the removal of the body to a New London undertaking establishment.

At the January meeting of the Harbor club tomorrow night, James Whittlesey of Hartford, state commissioner of domestic animals, will address the gathering.

Mrs. Carrie M. Shurts, 69, widow of P. Hall Shurts died last night at her residence, 84 Bristol street, after an illness of about four months. Mrs. Shurts did not long survive her husband, for Mr. Shurts died last February. She was born in Fairhaven, N. Y., but had resided in New London the greater part of 40 years. Mrs. Shurts was a member of the Second Congregational church. She is survived by three sons, Harry T. and Arthur H. Shurts, New London, and Frank E. Shurts, West Haven; a daughter, Mrs. Gerard Banfield, of Hartford; a brother, Frank E. Sayre, Glenbrook and a sister, Miss Harriet A. Sayre of this city.

Director of Law Frank L. McGuire today notified the Connecticut company that the city of New London would claim damages from the trolley company because of one of the pieces of fire apparatus of the municipality being damaged New Year's Eve when the fire truck was in collision with a trolley car. The amount of damages the city will claim has not been determined for it is not known what the cost of certain parts to be obtained and their cost of installation will be. The truck, a Seagrave pumper, purchased at $12,500, was used by the Northwest Hose company. On the night of the accident the machine was responding to an alarm for a fire that gutted the residence of Max Perr, 196 Pequot avenue. As the truck rounded the turn from Brainard to Broad street, the trolley car, one of the double truck type, did not stop as it approached the intersecting highways, with the result that the crash occurred. A city ordinance calls for all vehicles, including trolley cars, to come to a stop at the approach of fire apparatus. The operator of the fire truck declares that his siren was being sounded and that the motorman of the car, Edward Wheeler failed to heed it, but continued to operate the trolley car in an effort to save the car pass the intersection of the streets.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Emmett M. Hayes of Poquonoc, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Audrey L. Hayes, to Joseph A. Murr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Murr, 671 Montauk avenue.

The recent production of the three-act drama, "Kempy," at the Lyceum theatre by men and women interested in the work of the hospital, netted the treasury of the institution $600.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. John Mansfield, 113 Jefferson avenue, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mae C. Mansfield, and Thomas Cole, of New York. The marriage was solemnized at St. Patrick's church, New York, Dec. 7 last. Mr. Cole formerly resided in New London.

Annie Cuddy, residing at the rear of 37 John Street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital tonight and will be there several days; for during a brawl at her home early this evening she was attacked by John Carney of Brewer street, a boiler maker, who wielded a kitchen chair upon the head of the woman. Carney was taken into custody charged with breach of the peace and assault. Thomas Raybould, who was in the place at the time of the assault, is being held as a witness against Carney.

The trio had been at the Cuddy home some time and all had partaken of drinks. During the early evening Carney and the Cuddy woman became involved in a quarrel, which ended when Carney seized a chair and swinging it over his shoulder, brought it down with force upon the head of the woman, the blow inflicting an ugly scalp wound. Residents in that vicinity communicated with the police and Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen Braxton Hill and Augustus Ray were sent to the place. They found the Cuddy woman bleeding profusely from the scalp laceration and accompanied her to the police station, with Carney and Raybould. The woman was attended by City Physician George P. Cheney, after which she was transferred to the hospital, while Carney and Raybould were lodged in cells.

Some weeks ago Frederick W. Mercer, president of the Lawrence hospital association offered the property on the east side of Main street north of Federal street, to the city, at a fair price, in order that North Bank St., might be extended to Main street. The city has since decided that the work should be done, but that this is not the propitious time for beginning and carrying through the project. Last evening the council declined to accept the offer of Mr. Mercer so today he offered the property to E. A. Copp, who had previously made a proposition to purchase it. The land and the building upon it was the property of the late Sebastian D. Lawrence, who gave to the city the money with which the hospital was erected. There are two other parcels of land which the city must buy in order to extend North Bank street. It is not likely these can secure them now at the price at which they could have been obtained some weeks ago.

Andrew Chio is in New York for a few days.

Edward S. Nolan went to New York last evening.

The probe of the special committee of the city council for the purpose of determining the efficiency of the police department will be resumed tomorrow evening, according to present plans of the committee, Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius E. Whiton. The patrolman stated to first take the stand is the veteran, Michael O'Neill.

It is understood that City Manager William A. Holt will take note of the disturbance and fight at the Capitol theatre, late Sunday night, when Reasen Grant and Francis Hughes, sailors stationed on United States Coast Guard ships, engaged in a fight with the police. The battle was carried to the street and resulted in Hughes being badly beaten as were several sailors who attempted to rescue the two prisoners. This forenoon Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who with Patrolmen Philopena and Edward Daniels, figured in the near-riot, was closeted with the city manager for three-quarters of an hour, during which time Sergeant Cavanaugh related just what occurred at the picture house and on the streets leading from the theatre to the police station.

A navy patrol, a chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base, was on duty in the vicinity of the theatre when the trouble occurred, but he refused to take a hand in the row and assist the police, because the sailors were attached to the coast guard and not the submarine base. A feeling of deep hatred has existed for a long time between the submarine base sailors and the bluejackets at the coast guard.

Patrolman John Foley is confined to his home on Williams street by a severe attack of grip.

A gang of laborers began the task this forenoon and before the end of the week, it is expected that the entire harvest of seven inch cakes will have been stored. The company will cause a second gang of workers to begin harvesting the crop on the second pond tomorrow morning and because of rain being predicted the work of getting the ice into the storehouses will be rushed along as rapidly as possible.

Fire this afternoon caused damage estimated at close to $2000 to the grocery store and stock of J. W. Cochrane, 292 Broad street, the fire originating when an oil stove used for heating the store exploded.

The blaze occurred when several clerks were in the store and with the explosion of the stove the burning oil was scattered upon inflammable material well to the rear of the place. The clerks attempted to subdue the flames, but it gained rapidly, causing an alarm to be run in from Box 29, corner of Broad and Ledyard streets. The department responded in quick order and laying several lines of hose to the wooden structure, the fire which was located entirely in the rear of the building was attacked with a deluge of water. After a half hours work the flames had been extinguished but the building was badly damaged, while a major portion of the stock had been either destroyed or damaged.

TWO SEIZED BOATS YIELD LIQUOR WORTH $70,000

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 6—Sloop La Felice, gas-propelled and the schooner Mascot were captured in the Sound today by coast guard patrol boats, both craft being laden with valuable cargoes, the aggregate value of which, it is estimated is about $70,000. Both craft are now under guard at the state pier and this afternoon the masters and crews were presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich. Capt. H. Hanson, New York, master of La Felice was held for trial in bonds of $1500 and his one crew member was held in bonds of $500. Cap. Ole Anderson, of Brooklyn, master of the Mascot, was under bail of $1500 while a bond of $500 was exacted of the three members of the crew. All furnished a surety on their respective bonds, the bondsman being a New York man, who arrived here at 4 o'clock.

Both the Mascot and La Felice have about 500 cases each of champagne and whiskey.

La Felice was sighted off Montauk about 3 o'clock this morning by the crew of the C G 235. A chase was made for the rum-runner, but when she was overtaken a search of the craft did not reveal any liquor. Some time afterwards, while the C G 235 was still scouring the Sound a craft was observed proceeding toward Montauk Point, with no display of lights. The coast guard craft put chase and with the firing of two shots across the bow of the rum-runner, La Felice came to a stop and a search then revealed the cargo of 500 cases. La Felice was then taken in tow and brought into port.

The capture of La Felice is the second time that the boat had been seized in local waters, last May the Revenue Cutter Seminole captured the craft, which at that time carried about 200 cases of liquor.

This afternoon the C G 235 while lurking along the Sound for rum-craft, captured the Mascot, which was headed westward, presumably for New York. After a chase of several miles the Mascot was overhauled and members of the crew of the chaser boarding the schooner, it was found that the rum-runner carried 500 cases of mixed liquors in her hold. The schooner was taken in tow and headed for this port, the chaser and her prize reaching here about 3 o'clock.

"A Spiritual Man", was the theme of the Sunday morning sermon at the First Congregational church, when the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey spoke from Romans 12-1. And Jonathan said to David, go in peace, forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying The Lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed forever. And he arose and departed, and Jonathan went into the city. Preceding the evening sermon, the Young People's Christian Endeavor service took place, with Millard Manning, leader. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, Jan. 6—With the financial position of the market improved by yesterday's sharp reaction, stock prices rallied briskly today under the stimulus of lower money rates and the announcement of higher dividends on the common stocks of the Atchison Railroad and the American Smelting and Refining Company. Net gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to 6 points on total sales slightly in excess of one and three quarter million shares. Some irregularity was apparent at the opening, but the general list soon swung upward behind the railroad shares with a brisk demand noted for the eastern carriers. New York Central crossed 124 to the highest point back to 123 1-2 where it was up one price in fifteen years and then sold 1 3-4 on the day. Net gains of 1 1-2 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific preferred, Norfolk and Western, Reading, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, St. Paul preferred, Southern Railway, Denver, Rio Grande and Western preferred, Louisville and Nashville and the Wabash preferred issues. Jersey Central and New York and Harlem advanced 3 3-4 and 7 1-4 points, respectively, each on a small turnover.

Steel shares responded to reports of further improvement from the steel centers, United States Steel common closing nearly two points higher at 122 3-8, after having sold half a point above that figure. Bethlehem, Crucible, Republic, Gulf States and Sloss Sheffield steels showed net gains ranging from 7-8 to 3 1-2.

American Car and Foundry, which broke 15 points yesterday, recovered six points of its loss. Net gains of 3 to 6 points also were recorded by General Electric, Sears Roebuck, Universal Pipe, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Associated Dry Goods, Atlantic Refining, Brooklyn Edison, Fisher Body, Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke and the Westinghouse Air Brake.

Punta Alegre Sugar rallied nearly 5 points to 45 on the declaration of the regular dividend of $1.25, regarding which some apprehension has been felt. American Smelting and Atchison both reacted from their earlier high levels of profit-taking by professional traders, the former dropping from 98 1-2 to 96 3-4, where it was up one point on the day, and the latter breaking from 123 to 119 5-8, up 5-8 on the day.

Call money opened at 3 1-2 per cent. and then slipped to 3, where it closed. Time money and commercial rates remained unchanged but funds were in more plentiful supply.

Foreign Exchange rates were slightly reactionary, with the rise in sterling halted by the heavy selling of that currency in London. Demand sterling, which sold around $4.76 3-4 yesterday ruled about a cent below the high. French francs were steady just under 5.40 cents. Other changes were largely nominal.

AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY

"To Give is to Receive"

Every yard of woolen or worsted fabric that comes from the looms represents a portion of almost every form of human endeavor. The wool growers, the railroad workers, the textile workers and the manufacturers and distributors of clothing—all contribute their share to the making of cloth and receive in turn the warmth and comfort of its use.

and Reading General 4 1-2s lost on the day.

The rally in Punta Alegre sugar stock which followed declaration of the regular dividend was reflected in the movement of the company's seven per cent. bonds which moved up 1 3-8 points. Eastern Cuba and Manatie Sugar issues improved in sympathy. Magma Copper sevens retrieved more than 5 points of yesterday's nine point loss.

Prospective new financing includes a $12,000,000 loan for the August Thyssen Iron Works, for which negotiations have about been completed and a large volume of state and municipal issues.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 6—Broader export and milling demand helped to bring about a decided upturn in wheat prices today. It was estimated that 2,000,000 bushels, mostly domestic wheat, had been taken for shipment to Europe. The close here for wheat was strong, 2 1-4 to 4c net higher, May 1.77 7-8 to 1.78 and July 1.54 3-8 to 1.54 1-2 with corn 1 1-2 to 1 5-8c up, oats at 3-4@7-8 to 1 1-4c advance and provisions unchanged to 35c higher.

Notwithstanding numerous reactions the general swing of the wheat market was upward from the outset. Much of the early impetus was due to speculative buying based on opinions credited to several large operators that the market had reached a turning point and that within a month any attempts to purchase large amounts of wheat or rye would congest the market for both grains. The big factor in the late trade, however, was heavy buying of cash wheat at Kansas City, presumably for export via the gulf. Rye sales to Europe, meanwhile, totaling 500,000 bushels were also noted.

Corn and oats followed the lead of wheat and rye, regaining part of recent losses. Offerings of corn became unusually light.

Packers' buying rallied provisions after sharp declines due to big sales of a liquidating character, especially in lard.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 6—Stock prices displayed marked improvement in today's curb market, rallying tendencies being apparent in every section of the list. Most of the active oils moved within narrow and irregular limits although gains of a point or so were recovered by Imperial of Canada, Prairie Oil and Gas, Eureka Pipe, and South Pennsylvania. Lago, one of the most active issues, dropped 1 1-2 to 5 1-4.

A better demand was noted for the public utilities. Commonwealth Power jumped 5 1-2 points on a few sales. American Power and Light advanced two points and American Gas and Electric 1. Lehigh Power securities closed unchanged at 113 after having sold four points above that figure. The rally in the radio issues was led by De Forrest, which closed 1 1-2 points higher at 29 1-4. Gillette Safety Razor crossed 64 to a new high. Trading in the new electric bond and share stock was given active with a 3 point range, the high and closing price of 83 representing a small fraction, least on the day.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 6—Easier money rates were reflected in a firm tone to bond trading today. With call funds back to 3 per cent. and increased offerings of time money being made with lower rates, buying orders increased for a variety of both high grade and speculative liens.

Although no new developments were reported in the St. Paul railroad's refunding situation, the bonds staged another rally, presumably in anticipation of a satisfactory solution of the program when it is taken up in February. Net gains in six of the active issues ranged from 1 to 2 points. Among the other railroad bonds which improved materially were Iowa Central fives, International Great Northern adjustment 6s, Erie convertible 4s D and Minneapolis and St. Louis 5s. Norfolk and Western convertible 6s.

POETRY

A WISH

Mine be a cot beside the hill,
A bee-hive's hum shall soothe my ear;
A willowy brook that turns a mill,
With many a fall, shall linger near.

The swallow, oft, beneath my thatch
Shall twitter from her clay-built nest;
Oft shall the pilgrim lift the latch,
And share my meal, a welcome guest.

Around my ivied porch shall spring
Each fragrant flower that drinks the dew;
And Lucy, at her wheel, shall sing
In russet gown and apron blue.

The village church among the trees,
Where first our marriage vows were given,
With merry peals shall swell the breeze
And point with taper spire to Heaven.
—Samuel Rogers

A PASSER-BY

Whither, O splendid ship, thy white sails crowding,
Leaning across the bosom of the urgent West,
That fearest nor sea rising, nor sky clouding,
Whither away, fair rover, and what thy quest?
Ah! soon, when Winter has all our vales oppressed,
When skies are cold and misty, and hail is hurling,
Wilt thou glide on the blue Pacific, or rest
In a summer haven asleep, thy white sails furling.

There before thee, in thy country that well thou knowest,
Already arrived, am inhaling the odorous air;
I watch thee enter unerringly where thou goest,
And anchor queen of the strange shipping there.
Thy sails for awnings spread, thy mast bare:
Nor is aught from the foaming reef to the snow-capped grandest
Peak, that is over the feathery palms, more fair
Than thou, so upright, so stately and still thou standest.

And yet, O splendid ship, unhailed and nameless,
I know not if, aiming a fancy, I rightly divine
That thou hast a purpose joyful, a courage blameless
Thy port assured in a happier land than mine.
But for all I have given thee, beauty enough is thine,
As thou, aslant with trim tackle and shrouding,
From the proud nostril curve of a prow's line
In the offing scattered foam, thy white sails crowding.
—Robert Bridges

SNATORIA WORKING ON VACCINE FOR CONSUMPTION

When Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, in concluding an address at the medical conference which was held Monday at the Norwich state tuberculosis sanatorium, passed around to the assembled physicians some tubes of hard jelly on which were rose-tinted growths of tubercle bacilli, one of the doctors remarked that those tubes spanned the whole course and history of the modern anti tuberculosis campaign.

The tubercle bacilli in these tubes were the direct descendants of the first that were seen by the scientists of the United States.

Soon after Robert Koch's discovery of the tubercle bacillus and his demonstration that it was the cause of consumption, he sent a fine culture of his germ to Dr. Trudeau of Saranac Lake. There it was successfully grown and studied. Sub-cultures of it were given to many American laboratories. One of them came 17 years ago to a Connecticut laboratory, where it has been cultivated and studied ever since. Now, as Dr. Campbell demonstrated, it has lost practically all of its disease-producing power and can be readily grown with or without its hard shell of wax. Much time and energy has been expended the past few years in efforts to deprive the tubercle bacillus of its hard shell, and Dr. Campbell and the other superintendents of the Connecticut tuberculosis sanatoria have come to believe that this strain possesses all the desired qualifications for providing the greatly desired vaccine for consumption. For some time they have been at work in all the state laboratories on the subject. The problem, however, is so large and has so many facets that definite statements as to success and failure cannot be made at present, and probably not before the early summer.

Dr. Campbell also reported investigations made by himself and his staff at the Norwich sanatorium on the effect of iodide of potash on the vitality and disease-producing power of several strains of tubercle bacilli. He found that, whereas it made the cultivation of tubercle bacilli difficult, the drug does not interfere with their ability to cause tuberculosis.

The medical staffs of the Norwich, Meriden, Hartford, Niantic and Shelton sanatoria were present. The occasion was the monthly medical meeting of the state tuberculosis commission.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAMME FOR Y. M. C. A. MEETING

What might be called an exceptional meeting was held at the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association on Sunday afternoon when practically all the seats were occupied in the large gymnasium of the "Y" building. The occasion was the special sacred musical program on the piano accordion by Pedro Mordella of Boston, an interesting address by Rev. E. C. Dunbar and solo singing by Hugh Kinder. Mordella rendered most beautifully the following selections: Handel's Largo, Come Thou Almighty King, Abide With Me, How Firm a Foundation, Silent Night, The Lost Chord, Onward Christian Soldiers, The Holy City and The Perfect Day; every number of this program was played with great skill and impressiveness, and doubtless the large audience will long remember this sacred program. Hugh Kinder's solo was well received. The address by Rev. E. C. Dunbar was listened to with marked interest; his topic was, The Harmonious Life, and he said in part the following:

I find that the meaning of harmony is "adoption of parts to each other" and the meaning of discord is, "want of agreement, a harsh or confused noise or uproar." I recall when I was a boy that I used to make a baseball with an old stocking and yarn, but after it was played with a little while it became lop sided, and useless for the game; afterward I bought a 25 cent ball, but I soon found out after I entered that we must have a standard ball. There are lop sided lives; the harmonious life is a well rounded life. We need to care for the physical side of life: thank God for work; many of us would do little if it were not for work; but we must not attempt to work all the time. We must attend to our intellectual life; our minds must grow; there is a wealth of worthwhile books which we have free access to in our libraries; we grown-ups must give the opportunity of mind development to the children. Then there is a great need for us to enter heartily the social side of life, and there is so much of social life that is healthy and fine that there is no need of indulging in that kind of social life that is unworthy. We must also develop the religious side of our lives, for this is paramount in importance; the soul must grow; what is religion? It is love to God and to our neighbor. No one can measure God's love, its breadth, its length, its depth and height are far beyond our reckoning. We never let our love go out to God but that He sends us back greater love and we never let our love go out to our fellowmen, but we receive back more than we give. Let us see to it that we constantly develop all four sides of our nature and then we will live a harmonious life.

GENERAL MANAGER TAGGART GIVES TALK ON MANUFACTURE OF GAS

The manufacture of gas was explained in an interesting and instructive talk by Charles W. Taggart, general manager of the Norwich Gas and Electrical department, at a membership meeting of the West Side Community association Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth street school building. The meeting which had a good sized attendance was presided over by the association president, Paul A. Brown, a brief business session preceeding Mr. Taggart's talk. John McWilliams, as chairman of the public skating pond committee, gave a report on the committee's activities in securing and opening to public use the new pond at East Great Plain. John J. Parsons reported for the committee in charge of the matter of securing an electric light at the school entrance. His report was confined to one sentence, "The light is there," for which he was given a shower of applause.

Mr. Brown made a report of progress on the proposed new fire station for the West Side. He called attention to the fact that the present station was built over a half century ago for a volunteer fire company. The building needs a lot of repairing he said. It needs a new floor or the apparatus is going down through and the present sleeping quarters are poor. There is no section of the city that is growing quite so fast as the west side. Later on it is going to be hard to get a piece of land for the new station. We don't specify the location for the new station. That is left with the fire commissioners. What we ask is a new fire station.

A number of new members were admitted to membership, bringing the present membership up to over 150. Ernest Latimer was named chairman of the "nuisance committee." Mr. Brown proposed that an athletic ground be provided for the boys and girls on the West Side. It is imperative that we have an athletic ground for the young folks, he said. The idea met with approval by the meeting and Mr. Brown was empowered to name a committee to take the proposition into consideration.

Mr. Brown announced that the new West Side Community orchestra started its rehearsals Tuesday with a membership of 21. James Corcoran, Charles Ellis and Merton Swan were named a committee to arrange for the programme for the next meeting of the association.

Manager Taggart Speaks

Mr. Brown then presented as the speaker of the evening Charles W. Taggart, general manager of the Norwich Gas and Electrical Department. Mr. Taggart spoke briefly of the early history of the gas industry and its very rapid growth in this country. He explained the manufacture of coal gas and water gas and showed by the aid of a large diagram the various tanks and apparatus used by gas plants.

In part Mr. Taggart said: The growth of the gas industry in the United States affords striking proof of this nation's desire to obtain the full benefits of all conveniences inventive genius can produce. In 1806 there was one use for gas and one house was lighted by it in this country. Today, there are more than 1200 uses for gas. It takes sixty thousand miles of street mains to deliver the gas of the country to its consumers, while more than eight million meters measure the gas as it passes into thousands of miles of smaller piping to serve more than 45 millions of people in the home, the factory and the community with light, heat and power.

Today there are more than 1,000 artificial gas companies supplying gas to 4,600 cities, towns and villages. In annually distributing over 300 billion cubic feet of gas to consumers these companies purchase and use each year more than ten million tons of coal and more than one billion gallons of oil, their two chief items of raw materials.

Ask a disinterested person how gas is made and the reply is usually "They make it in the holder over there. I don't know much else about it." It is one of the main purposes of this talk to correct this misunderstanding and to show you the manufacturing side of this business. Of the various processes and methods employed, we need concern ourselves with only two—the coal gas process and the water gas process. All artificial gas is produced from coal or oil or a combination of the two, together with a certain amount of steam.

In the coal gas process, bituminous or soft coal is placed in sealed or air tight chambers, called retorts and subjects to heat from an external source. When the retorts have been charged with coal the heat drives off the volatile contents in the form of a gas and this passed through a hydraulic main where a portion of the heavier tar and amoniacal liquor is taken out. The gas passes through a primary condenser where its temperature is lowered to approximately 105 degrees to 110 degrees and the lighter tar is separated. The next step in the process is removing the ammonia from the gas in the secondary condenser.

The gas now passes through a bed of iron oxide and shavings, where the hydrogen sulphide is removed by the iron oxide. From the purifiers, the gas passes through the station meters and enters the storage holder and becomes a commercial product, ready for delivery to the consumer. This is the final stage in the making of coal gas.

We now take up the water gas process, although the term is misleading, for water, as such does not enter into the process. It would be more correctly described as a carburetted or enriched gas process.

The modern types of water gas making apparatus generally consists of three cylindrical steel chambers lined with fire bricks and provided with proper gas, steam, oil and air blast connections.

The first of these chambers, the generator contains a coke or anthracite coal fire from four to nine feet deep laid on a grate. Coal is usually charged in the top of the generator and clinkers and ash drawn from door near the bottom. The second chamber or carburetor, is provided with an oil spray at the top and is filled with a checker work of fire brick.

The super heater, which is the third chamber, is filled with checker work of fire brick. The process of water gas manufacture is divided into two operations, known as the "blow" and the "run." During the blow the air is forced through the fuel bed and combustion brought up to the proper gas-making temperature. During the "run" the air is shut off, steam is admitted and passes through the fuel bed.

The heat of the incandescent coal decomposes the steam into hydrogen and oxygen. The oxygen combines with carbon from the coal, forming hydrogen and also carbon monoxide, which is a combustible gas. At this point, the water gas passes into the carburetor. A petroleum distillate known as gas oil is admitted through a spray provided for that purpose and is vaporized by coming in contact with the hot checker-work of fire brick in the carburetor, the mixture forming what is known as crude carburetted water gas.

From this point the gas enters the superheater and is made into a fixed or permanent gas by means of the high temperature of the fire brick checker work through which it is made to pass. Its subsequent treatment in the condensing and purifying apparatus is essentially the same as in the coal gas operation, after which it enters the holder and from there goes to the consumer's premises through the distribution system.

The outstanding difference between coal gas and carburetted water gas manufacture is that the first is the simple distillation of bituminous coal by which it is reduced to coke and its gaseous contents driven off, while in the second, blue gas is generated from anthracite coal or coke, and enriched by the addition of gas oil. Both gasses have the same general properties and characteristics. Their heating and illuminating values do not differ materially from the standpoint of the public service and in the range of application they are practically the same.

The huge tank in which the gas is stored at the plant, the gas meters used at the place of consumption to measure the gas and the reading of gas meters were also touched upon by Mr. Taggart whose talk proved both interesting and instructive to those present.

During the course of his talk Mr. Taggart showed how gas is manufactured with the aid of small retorts and gas making apparatus. There was also on display an exhibition of gas heaters for rooms and gas heaters for hot water kitchen tanks.

CONTESTED DIVORCE SUIT BEFORE JUDGE AVERY

Difficulty in finding an attorney to represent the defendant in the contested divorce suit of Stanton A. Burdick of Pawcatuck vs. Rhea S. Burdick, now of Dorchester, Mass., caused a delay in the opening of the civil side of the January additional session of the superior court, with Judge Christopher L. Avery on the Bench. The session was held in the common pleas room.

Attorney Hibberd R. Norman was secured and after a short recess to allow him to become acquainted with the case, testimony was offered. The plaintiff married the defendant on Nov. 13, 1922, in Fall River, Mass. The plaintiff married the defendant on demand but it is alleged that the defendant falsely made such demands.

Mr. Burdick testified to living at the home of his parents since 1907. He is a graduate of Brown university and first became acquainted with his wife in October 1919. He saw his wife two or three days previous to Christmas in 1921. On Nov. 12, 1922, he received word to come to Fall River, which he did with his father, and arrangements were made for their marriage on the next day, Nov. 13, 1922. The day following the wedding, his wife went to Boston to stay with a mutual fried. On Dec. 21st a child was born. In January he found letters in a trunk from another man, but his wife denied knowing the man. Judge Avery did not allow the contents of the letters to be put in as evidence.

All were received by the defendant during the months of March, April and May 1922. The day following the discovery of the letters the witness left his wife and returned home to Pawcatuck and has not lived with her since that time.

Other testimony for the plaintiff was given by Christine McQuinn, May Henderson, Louis K. Burdick and Gertrude W. Burdick, when put on the stand by Attorney H. W. Rathbun.

The defendant, who held her little girl on her lap while she was on the stand, was the only one to testify for the defense and adjournment was taken until today (Wednesday) when medical testimony will be introduced.

E. C. POWER CO. LAID NEW SUBMARINE CABLE

The Eastern Connecticut Power company laid a new submarine cable Monday under the Connecticut river just below the highway bridge between Lyme and Saybrook.

This cable is made up of three stranded copper conductors for operation at 11,000 volts, being insulated with rubber and jute and covered with a steel armor. The cable is 2,100 feet long and weighs approximately six tons, or about 6 pounds per foot.

This cable is used to supply power to the Central Connecticut Power & Light company in its Essex territory comprising the towns of Old Saybrook, Westbrook, Essex, Saybrook and Chester, and also for service to the Clinton Light & Power Company covering the towns of Clinton and Madison.

The laying of such a cable is a rather interesting procedure and for that reason several representatives of different electric companies in the state witnessed the installation.

Italian Women Will Organize

About 40 Italian women residents of Norwich are planning to organize an Italian Women's society here in the near future. The work of organizing has been due to the efforts of Mrs. Mary Pedace and the first meeting is to be held later in the month. At this meeting a name for the society will be chosen and officers for the first year will be named and installed. It is expected that many more Italian women will become interested in the society during the month and that the society may be organized with a membership of nearly one hundred.

CLAIMS INVENTION OF SELF-RUNNING WHEEL

Amedee Boulanger of 64 North Main Street stated at the Bulletin office Tuesday that he had succeeded in an invention upon which he had been working for 16 years. This, he said, is a self-running wheel, which once started keeps on running indefinitely. He has tested it on a 54 hour run without stopping and without supplying any power from without. It is a wheel constructed of metal, and is 2 inches high and 1-3 inch thick. It is mounted on a shaft and the power it supplies is taken off the end of the shaft.

Mr. Boulanger, who is a blacksmith, was unable to show the wheel in motion Tuesday as he said he had dismounted it and taken it apart in order to preserve the secret until he shall have taken the necessary steps to secure a patent.

INAUGURATION OF HIRAM BINGHAM AS GOVERNOR WAS A BRILLIANT CEREMONY

The Affair Was Attended by More Pomp and Enthusiasm Than Any in the Past Twenty Years or More—Oath Was Administered by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler—Today Governor Bingham Will Resign and Lieutenant Governor John H. Trumbull Will Be Sworn in as Governor by Former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb—The Inaugural Ball Was One of the Most Brilliant Social Functions of Its Kind in Many Years.

Hartford, Jan. 7—Hiram Bingham was sworn in as governor of Connecticut this afternoon. He had ceased to be the lieutenant-governor of the state about twenty minutes before John H. Trumbull took the oath of that office in the presence of the senate over which he presided but a few minutes.

Tomorrow at 10 a. m., Governor Bingham will hand his resignation to Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti, following the precedent made by Governor Seymour when he resigned in 1853 and a moment or two later, possibly a little longer, Lieutenant Governor Trumbull will be sworn in as governor by former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb.

The oaths of both the officers mentioned was administered today by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler. This has been the ordinary course for a great many years but procedure also provides that a judge of the superior court may administer the oath, and through personal friendship, Lieutenant Governor Trumbull desires that "Uncle" Marcus Holcomb, a retired judge of the superior court, should give the oath.

After being once more a private citizen, Mr. Bingham will take the 11 o'clock train on his way to Washington, making a short stop-over at his home in New Haven. He is expected to be in the national capital at night. He will be sworn in as a United States senator and his first public appearance as such will be at the dinner to be given Ambassador Jusserand, of France, when he will speak of the literary attainments of the guest of honor.

Brilliant Ceremonies

The inaugural ceremonies had more color more display of the military uniform, larger audiences and more excitement than in the past twenty years or more. This was due probably in the part to the remarkably fine weather and the desire of many to see at the time, as it was said in the capital, three governors at one and the same time, that, is retiring governor, Templeton and Governors to be Bingham and Trumbull.

Every Seat Taken

Long before the ceremony began in the house chamber every seat was taken, the corridor outside was jammed, the gallery packed to its limits and scores of persons in positions where they could look through the windows into the house of representatives. Scores of members of the house had no seats nor could they get into the place. The senators when they came down stairs for the joint convention reached the seats reserved for them, only after the state police had opened up a lane.

The governor's party from the executive chambers to the house was through a lane of people. Chief Justice Wheeler walked with Mr. Bingham Governor Templeton did not go to the chamber as did Governor Holcomb with his successor Governor Lake, for Governor Lake with Governor Templeton. Former Governor Holcomb sat in the seat close by State Chairman J. Henry Roraback.

Governor Bingham's inaugural address required eighty minutes for reading. It was unusually long for such documents. The first applause he received during its reading was when he condemned bill boards on the country highways. Several times afterward he had to stop while his audience showed its approval of his suggestions for legislation.

After the oath had been given to the state officers the governor's party returned to the executive chambers where hundreds of persons passed in line to shake Governor Bingham's hand.

Mrs. H. H. Townshend was among the number and Governor Bingham was in conversation with her for a couple of minutes. She is a member from New Haven and in the senatorial campaign publicly stated she was opposed to Mr. Bingham and would vote for his opponent, Hamilton Holt. The usual luncheon was served in the governor's office to guests and the state officers each had their own little luncheon parties in their offices.

Governor Bingham's family party at the ceremonies included Mrs. Bingham and their two children and Lieutenant Governor Trumbull had his family and his mother, making a party of ten.

Trumbull Message in Two Weeks

Lieutenant Governor Trumbull two weeks hence will address a joint convention of the general assembly and read to them a message in the nature of one which he would have given if inaugurated as governor.

The legislature itself stands adjourned until next week Thursday at 11:15 a. m. At that time it is expected, committees will be announced. The following week will come the assignment of seats and the message of Governor Trumbull and after that there will be a settling down to business.

The closure of new business will be effective with the session of January 20. Both branches voted that session days may be Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday but in February probably no more than three days a week will be used for sittings.

Organization of both branches was carried through approximately two hours. In the house the fact that Mrs. [illegible] district is the first [illegible] in that body led [illegible] of New Britain to offer the following resolution which was adopted: "Resolved by the senate that the felicitations of this senate and they are hereby extended to Mrs. Alice Pattison Merritt, [illegible] from the second district, upon the occasion of being the first member of her sex to become a member of this body."

Senator Hall in moving passage said that the senate was especially honored in the fact that Mrs. Merritt was the "first of the stronger sex" to sit in the senate. Mrs. Merritt a few minutes later was made a member of the senate committee on contingent expenses with Senators Lawlor and Anderson as the other members. President Pro Tem Brainard being impressed with the fact that housewives are experts in handling contingent expense accounts.

Governor Templeton sent into the legislature a list of his recess appointments which were sent to the committee on judiciary. He had nothing further to send in and was not in the building when a joint committee went in search of him to see if he had any communication to transmit. The governor gave his validictory to the newspapers yesterday.

Brainard and Trumbull Spoke.

President Pro Tem Brainard responded to his election to that office and Lieutenant Governor Trumbull also spoke after he had taken up the gavel. He said that he regretted lacking the privilege to preside over the senate of which he had been "deprived"

STRIKE AT WALTHAM WATCH PLANT SETTLED

Waltham, Mass., Jan. 7.—Nearly three thousand workers, composing practically the entire personnel of the Waltham Watch company, tonight voted to end their strike by ratifying an agreement reached yesterday at a meeting of the workers' committee, company officials, and the state board of arbitration, according to an announcement by President Ernest Faulkner, of the Watch Makers' Protective association. The agreement carries with it no reduction in wages.

The strike was occasioned by the announcement of a wage reduction by the company. By the terms of the agreement the company will continue to conduct an open shop, but has agreed to recognize the Watchmakers' Protective association of which the workers are members. It was announced. No discrimination will be shown those who took part in the strike.

A committee, composed of members of the union, officials of the company, and a member of the state board of arbitration will be formed to investigate wage scales in effect in other watchmaking plants to compare them with local wages with a view of adjustment.

The strike has been in effect for about 22 weeks.

TO SEEK LEGISLATION ON PICTURE FILMS

Hartford, Jan. 7.—The move to amend the general statutes in regard to the qualifications for motion picture films and their showing, started at the 1923 session of the legislature, will be continued this year, it was learned today. The present statutes provide that the only exemption from the requirements imposed upon theaters, fireproof house for machine, etc., is in a case where the film is of celluloid acetate (non combustible) not more than one hundred feet in length nor more than one inch in width. This, proponents of the proposed bill claim, gives one company a monopoly of supplying films to churches, schools and groups which wish to show motion pictures but have not the standard theater equipment.

The standard size film is more than one inch wide and it is claimed that many of the subjects desired for showing by non-theatrical organizations are not obtainable on the small size film necessary. Proponents of the bills say that similar laws have already been passed in New York and Massachusetts.

The Soviet Red Cross intervened to support the treasurer's stand. The court took the case under advisement.

Ministerial Problem In Germany Unsolved

Chancellor Marx Has Abandoned His Idea of Forming a Non-Partisan Cabinet.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Chancellor Marx has been forced to abandon his idea of forming a so-called non-partisan cabinet. He will inform President Ebert tonight that the definite antagonism of Stresemann's German people's party to a government comprising the bourgeoise and socialist parties disposes of all prospects of affecting a coalition which would have a majority in the reichstag.

As a final solution to the ministerial crisis, the chancellor will now endeavor to form a cabinet comprised of experts recruited from the ranks of government officials. These ministers would not be affiliated with any of the political parties.

There will be no change in the Prussian government, where the present cabinet, headed by Premier Von Braun and comprising socialists, clericals and democrats, will continue in office. The posts of Dr. Von Richter and Dr. Otto Boelitz, two of the retiring people's party members, will be filled with resentatives of the present coalition parties.

PROFIT TAKING SENDS STOCK PRICES DOWN

New York, Jan. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Stock prices crumbled again late today under the weight of another large volume of profit taking sales, and bear selling, but not until after nearly fifty issues had eclipsed their 1924 high prices, and the general railroad average had attained the highest peak since 1917. Total sales were slightly in excess of one and three-quarters million shares.

A heavy demand for railroad stocks in which dividend increases or resumptions are expected, developed soon after the opening of the market. Southern Railway touched 82 1-2, the highest price in its history; New York Central crossed 124 to the best price since 1916; Illinois Central common sold above 119 for the first time since 1913; Missouri Pacific touched the highest level since the reorganization of the company in 1916 at 75 3-4 and Union Pacific sold at 151 7-8, the top price in nearly three years. All closed, however, below their high quotations of the day, New York Central showing a small fractional net loss at 123.

The demand for the rails, combined with lower money rates and the encouraging tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews, also brought fresh buying into the industrial and public utility issues. Extreme gains of 4 to 7 1-2 points were recovered by Brooklyn Edison, Mack Trucks, Fisher Body, Adams Express, Federal Light and Traction, Atlantic Refining, Burroughs Adding Machine, the Commercial Solvents issues, Cushman & Sons, Detroit Edison, Gulf, Mobile and Northern Preferred and S. S. Kresge, but most of these were substantially reduced in the later trading.

West Penn Power broke nearly 8 points on one sale and net losses of 2 1-2 to 6 points were recovered by about a dozen other issues, including United States Cast Iron Pipe, American Bosch Magneto, Worthington Pump, Manhattan Electrical Supply and United Fruit.

EARTHSHOCK IN BAY STATE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE

Boston, Jan. 7—Eastern Massachusetts and New Hampshire today suffered a definite earthquake, the fifth in the three centuries of the recorded history of New England's earth disturbances, which rocked houses, office buildings and other structures, and caused panic among thousands. The quake was most pronounced in the coastal district from Portsmouth, N. H., to New Bedford, Mass.

The shock, at first believed to be merely a tremor, caused by a frost crack, was recorded on the seismographh at Harvard University in Cambridge at 8:10 this morning and was accompanied by rumblings that caused many to believe that a fierce explosion had occurred in Central Massachusetts. Houses shook and windows were broken in Greater Boston and along the north shore, where the earth shook and many took refuge in the open. Citizens farther inland indicated by calls to newspapers their belief that a powder mill had exploded.

NEW WARDEN FOR THE ATLANTA FEDERAL PRISON

Washington, Jan. 7.—John Snook, warden of the Idaho state penitentiary, has been appointed by Attorney General Stone as warden of the Atlanta federal prison.

The attorney general was advised late today of Mr. Snook's acceptance, and formal announcement of the appointment is expected by tomorrow.

Democratic Row In the U. S. Senate

Senator Dial, Dem., Under Pressure, Retracts Arraignment of His Party.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Bitterly assailed in the open senate by leaders of his party, Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, finally withdrew today from the permanent record his address of last Saturday, blaming democratic members of congress for the party's defeat last November.

Thus was closed one incident in the row which began on the democratic side late last month with the delivery by Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, of an address of import similar to that by Senator Dial. The Maryland senator, too, has been the object of open assaults by the regularly constituted leaders among the democrats, but h sladdress still stands in the record.

Renewal of the verbal warfare today came with a request for Senator Dial to withdraw parts of the address in which he said the democratic party had lost the election because it deserved to lose it, and charged political sabotage by some party leaders.

Interrupting to say that if Senator Dial, after reviewing what he had said Saturday, desired to express a frank apology to his democratic colleagues, they would meet him "with pleasure," Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader, said the senator would have to withdraw all of the address because it appeared "to have been a deliberate affront to his colleagues and a befouling of his own nest, a discrediting of the constituency that honored him by electing him."

"It is a pitiable thought," Senator Robinson continued, "pitiable beyond the power of the human mind to conceive or the human tongue to characterize, that a man should be deemed worthy of a seat in this body and should, after several days' deliberation, take the half-way course of volunteering a half-hearted apology for an offense which he has neither the courage to justify, nor the intelligence to withdraw."

Senator Dial replied that he had spoken "merely in general terms," had not intended to say anything that was "unkind or harsh," about his colleagues, and that his chief purpose was to arouse the democratic party to see if a way could be found to get it unified again.

"That is a beautiful object," interjected Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas.

A $1,000,000 LIBEL SUIT AGAINST HENRY FORD

Chicago, Jan. 7—Aaron Sapiro, counsel for several farmers' cooperative organizations, today mailed to Henry Ford a document preliminary to a projected libel suit for $1,000,000 against Mr. Ford.

The document in which Mr. Sapiro's allegations appear is a formal demand for retraction required by Michigan laws as a preliminary to a libel action.

The suit, Mr. Sapiro said, on his return from meetings of cooperatives in Washington, will be filed in Detroit, if after 30 days Mr. Ford does not retract certain statements alleged to have been made in his journal, The Dearnborn Independent. In a series of articles, Mr. Sapiro alleges, his name was linked with those of Julius Rosenwald, Otto Kahn, Bernard Baruch, Albert D. Lasker and E. Myer, Jr., in charging him with participation in an alleged Jewish conspiracy to control American agriculture, "or to organize the farmers of America in the interests of communism."

Mr. Sapiro accuses Mr. Ford of approving "an attempt to destroy my participation in the cooperative marketing movement."

"We will prove," he said, commenting on his action, "that Mr. Ford does not understand the cooperative movement, its purposes, or its effects."

In his notice of intention to bring suit, Mr. Sapiro also names E. G. Liebold, vice president and treasurer of the Dearborn Publishing Company; W. J. Cameron, editor of the Deaborn Independent and the Ford Motor Co.

POLITICAL EXCITEMENT IN ITALY HAS COOLED DOWN

Rome, January 7—(By the A. P.)—Benito Mussolini, the Fascist premier, apparently has weathered another storm which threatened to develop into a crisis of major proportions with a cabinet that now is thoroughly Fascist. Mussolini has begun to make his plans for holding general elections, thus giving the impression to the country again that he is in power for some time to come.

The political excitement seems to have cooled down considerably, though there is no telling how long it will remain so. Some clearer idea of what the next move by the Aventine opposition may be is expected to be revealed after its general meeting tomorrow. Meanwhile the Fascist government is forging ahead with energetic measures to nip in the bud any plots against the existing regime, and in addition it is continuing to suppress the opposition press. Another characteristic move along this same line was reported today in the gossip in the lobbies of the senate and the chamber of deputies that the government intends to dissolve Free Masonry. It was also said that a royal commissioner would be appointed to administer the press associations which are now under the presidency of General Buncivenga, one of the leaders of the opposition.

VIOLATION OF IMMIGRATION AND PROHIBITION LAWS

New York, Jan. 7.—Federal indictments for violation of the immigration and prohibition laws were returned in Brooklyn today against the captain and mates of the auxiliary schooner Alco Felice I., which was captured by coast guard cutter C-34 last New Year's eve while attempting to land 6,000 cases of champagne and 2,000 cases of whiskey in Huntington bay.

Captain Michael Romano, Antonio Gallo, first mate, and Antonio Romano, second mate of the Felice, were named in the indictments. Their violation of immigration laws is alleged to have consisted in helping two alien members of their crew to escape authorities. Seven others of the crew are held in $1,500 each as material witnesses.

BRITAIN AND U. S. SETTLE WAR CLAIMS DIFFERENCES

An Agreement Reached at Conference in Paris Between Winston Churchill and James Logan, Jr.,—Basis of the Agreement is Said to Be Based on an Extension of the Period of Payment of the American Army Occupation Costs From 12 Years to 25 Years.

Paris, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—The fundamental basis of British and American accord regarding the payment of war damages and reparations to the United States was considered to have been practically reached this evening, following a conference held today by Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, and James A. Logan, Jr., American representative with the reparations commission.

This basis was said to be an agreement for an extension of the period of payment of the American army occupation costs from twelve years, as specified in the Wardsworth agreement to twenty-five years. In return for this extension, it was said, Great Britain will agree to a United States share in the Dawes annuities without disturbing the percentage allored each ally under the Spa agreement.

Belgium, which under the Spa agreement was granted a priority with eigh per cent. of the receipts, must, under the Dawes plan, relinquish her priority or reduce her percentage to five per cent., thus making three percent available for the payment of American war damages. This three percent, together with amounts available from cutting the Wadsworth payments in half, would be applied to war claims.

Both countries made discussions from the viewpoints they had expressed in an exchange of diplomatic notes, and a private and informal conversation between James A. Logan, Jr., the American representative, and Winston Spencer Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, harmonized the respective positions, which appeared very far apart, if not irreconcilable, prior to the conference.

The United States, by conceding an extension of time for the payment of the costs of the American Army of Occupation from 12 years to 25 years, obtained the assent of Great Britain to her sharing in the Dawes plan of annuities by being allotted a certain percentage under the Spa agreement, probably three per cent., which is likely to come from Belgium.

The United States maintained her priority for the payments of the army costs, while she obtained "common stock" in the Dawes annuities for her war damages—this in return for her concession as to a two-fold extension of the schedule of payments.

As Mr. Logan had previously obtained the assent of Belgium, France and Italy to the American right to share in the Dawes annuities, Great Britain alone demurring, all countries represented in the conference now have been won over to the American viewpoint, and the work of the conference is expected to be "facilitated and expedited," to quote the words of the official communique issued by common accord by Chancellor Churchill and Mr. Logan at the conclusion of their talk.

Opposition is certain to come from Belgium on the question of a reduction of her percentage and relinquishment of her priority. Under the Spa agreement Belgium was granted priority without eight per cent of the receipts, but under the Dawes plan she must relinquish her priority or reduce her percentage to 5 per cent, making 3 per cent available for American payments.

HOW AGREEMENT IS VIEWED IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Officials here familiar with detail of the American-British claims question apparently were able to read between the lines of the communique issued in Paris today something which engendered more than the usual diplomatic optimism over prospects for an agreement.

Presumably the "particular points" under discussion between Chancellor Churchill and Mr. Logan, had to do with the American proposal for a compromise as to the time for payment of the American claims under the Dawes plan.

In rejecting the British suggestion that the legality and equity of the American claims be referred to arbitration, the Washington government is understood to have emphasized its desire not to be oppressive. The correspondence has not been made public, but it is known the United States pointed out that the American claims might be grouped with the American army of occupation costs, and that the whole sum repaid over a period long enough not to constitute a severe drain upon the German annuities pool out of which the allied and associated governments must collect their reparation payments.

G. B. MEANS TOO POOR TO RETAIN AN ATTORNEY

New York, Jan. 7.—Penniless and bearing traces of recent illness, the once jaunty Gaston B Means former department of justice agent, today was taken before Federal Judge Lindley by government agents who had arrested him on a bench warrant in his Concord, N. C., home.

On his plea that he was too poor to retain an attorney to defend him, Judge Lindley appointed Abraham I. Menin, as his council, and Means agreed to go on trial tomorrow on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice. The court continued his $10,000 bond. Judge Lindley did not declare it forfeited as he threatened to do on Monday when Means failed to appear for trial.

When the case opens tomorrow Judge Lindley will decide a motion for separate trial made by counsel for Thomas B. Felder, Means' former attorney. The court also will consider the case of Elmer W. Jarnecke, one-time secretary to Means who changed his plea to guilty on Monday. It was said that Jarnecke would testify for the government.

Means, Felder and Jarnecke are accused of having obtained $65,000 from officers of the Crager System, Inc., a bond selling concern, and the Altoona Glass Casket Company on the representation that they would use the sum in bribing former Attorney General Daugherty and other government officials to maintain a "hands off" policy in an illegal stock selling scheme.

Means pleaded illness in excuse for his failure to appear for trial Monday and sent a telegram from his physician stating that he soon was to be operated on for the removal of gall stones. Government officials accuse him of feigning illness to avoid trial.

FINANCIAL SHOWING OF NEW HAVEN ROAD

New York, Jan. 7—In contrast to a deficit of nearly $3,000,000 reported by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in 1923, it is estimated in Wall Street that earnings for 1924 will be close to $3 a share. $125,000,000 BOND ISSUE BY THE A. T. & T. COMPANY

New York, Jan. 7—The American Telephone and Telegraph company announced tonight that it had sold to a banking group, headed by J. P. Morgan and company, a $125,000,000 issue of 35 year five per cent. gold debenture bonds. Proceeds from the sale will be used by the company to make loans to its associated companies or to acquire their securities, thus making funds available to the Bell Telephone system for additions and betterments.

Public offering of the bonds will be made tomorrow at a price of 95 and interest to yield slightly more than 5.30 per cent. Associated with J. P. Morgan & Company in the offering will be Kuhn, Loeb & Company, Kidder Peabody & Company, the First National Bank of New York, the National City Company, the Guaranty Company, the Bankers Trust Company Harris Forbes & Company and Lee Higginson & Company, comprising the banking grouping which has handled American Telephone financing in the past.

While the company entered the class of billion dollar corporations several years ago, the new financing will increase its combined stock and bond issues to $1,300,000,000, one of the largest totals on record and almost as great as that of the United States Steel Corporation.

In the last month he said he had stolen from letter boxes in New York and New Rochelle and that while living in Georgia he had pilfered rural route boxes near Macon and Augusta.

The amount of money Odell obtained from money orders and checks enclosed in the mail he took, could not be estimated by the police. Odell, unable to furnish bail, was sent to jail.

COMMERCE CHAMBER HEARS CHILD LABOR LAW DEBATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 7.—Much enthusiasm and a large attendance marked the January meeting of the chamber of commerce Wednesday night as one of the best held this season. A special number led by John F. Ahern and given by a body of vocalists, added zest to the session. The singers were John Hurley, Amie Martineau, Russell A. Andrews, Robert H. Fenton, Harold Lincoln, Louis Dondero, Frank M. Lincoln, James P. Mustard, Walter Costello, Walter Abbe, Frank H. Foss, Harry Gaucher and Albert B. Smith.

The reading of the minutes by Secretary Channing Merrill and the adoption of a resolution on the death of Daniel Holbrook, introduced by W. C. Norris, made up the business of the meeting. President James P. Bath turned the meeting over to Augustus E. Greene, chairman of the entertainment committee. At this point some 20 women entered the parlor to be guests of the chamber during the program which was a debate on the Child Labor Law and the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution. Captain Frank P. Fenton was the affirmative speaker relative to the ratification of the amendment. P. L. Gerety, of Derby, was introduced as upholding the negative. At the outset Mr. Fenton made it clear that the amendment did not call for the absolute prohibition of labor for for children under 18, but would give congress the power to discriminate and regulate the nature of work which a young child would be allowed to do. He gave a history of of the child labor movement dating from 1906 and pointed out that it was a measure which had been discussed fro mevery angle since that year. The three political parties figuring in the last national election recommended a child labor law in their platform. President Coolidge and the late President Harding and Wilson were among party leaders who approved some form of law to limit child labor, as well as hundreds of the country's influential individuals and women's and men's organizations.

P. L. Gerety of Derby, representing one of the largest manufacturing concerns in Connecticut and in many other parts of New England in a campaign to prevent ratification of the 20th amendment by this and other states, then took up the negative side. His first statements were to the effect that in this particular debate he did not represent any of his clients or firms, but spoke merely as a public spirited citizen. He launched his side of the question by remarking that at no other time in the history of America has a child labor law been of less necessity and he substantiated this statement with statistics showing the increase in child population with a stupendous decrease in the number of children 16 years of age employed. The country has made marvelous strides in eliminating child labor without any law, according to Mr. Gerety, who went on to brand NIs proposed amendment as revolutionary, an encroachment on the rights of the states and pernicious movement to establish child labor and educational bureaus, conducted at enormous cost to give good provisions to a band of politicians. He further called it an effrontery to the mothers and fathers of the land.

In rebuttal Capt. Fenton argued that it was the function of the government to safeguard youth in cases where parents were unqualified. Capt. Fenton held his ground with remarkable ability in view of the fact that he was pitted against a man of wide experience who had made an extensive study of the question at hand as part of his life's occupation. Mr. Fenton's efforts were fully recognized by the audience and the fact that a vote was taken against his side in no way reflected his oratorical ability.

In a general discussion, Walter B. Knight, agent of the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing Co., local carton manufacturers, made a strong plea against the ratification of the amendment. At the request of W. C. Norris who asked for the expressed sentiment of the members of the chamber to direct him on how to sign a referendum on the question on behalf of the organization, a vote was taken. James B. Fullerton and Secretary Morrill were appointed tellers. Sixty-five votes were cast, 53 against ratification and 12 in favor. Adjournment was taken at 9.45.

During the present year, a beautiful oak pulpit, table, stand and chairs were presented the church by Mrs. Lawton; a beautiful oak communion table and chairs were given by Samuel B. Butterworth, and an ornamental electric lamp was installed on the organ console, the gift of Mrs. William Barstow. There was also the generous gift of $1,080 from Mrs. Lawton to be applied on the church debt conditioned on the raising of a like amount.

The first of the year the church adopted the duplex envelopes and the treasurer, Frederick D. Lyon, reported that the Missionary money from these envelopes, with contributions of $30 from the C. J. S. and $14 from the Woman's Guild had been sent to the home office. He also reported a balance in the church treasury.

The following societies reported progress in assisting in the work of the church: The Sunday school and all its departments, the Ladies' Aid, the Friendly Helpers, the C. J. S., the Woman's Guild, the Lincoln Club, the Young Men's Bible Class, the Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and Junior Congregation. They helped loyally in the work of the bazaar, contributing substantially to the general treasury. The Guild has completed successfully its first year and is making larger plans for the future.

The following officers were elected: senior deacon for four years, Walter Kingsley serving in this office for a long term of years; clerk, Cecil L. Butler; treasurer, Frederick D. Lyon; standing committee, Walter D. Cleland, Elmer E. Phillips, John C. Kingsley, Mrs. Joseph Stubbs, Mrs. Carl N. Mathewson; chorister, James Royle; superintendent of Sunday school, Alfred Royle; assistant superintendent, Ray W. Greene; head usher, Milton E. Winser. The tellers appointed for the meeting were, Clarence Winser, William Exley, George Inglis.

Several important actions were taken among the a vote of appreciation expressive of sincere gratitude on the part of the church to the donors of the generous gifts. One of the marked improvements during the year was the installing of an automatic electric pump and connecting the water system with the Tillinghast well, much of the work being done by volunteer help. A social hour followed. Chocolate and cake was served by the committee, Mrs. Carl N. Mathewson, Mrs. Arthur H. Mathewson, Miss Annie L. Tillinghast.

Saturday evening, the First Ecclesiastical Society, which handles the finances of the church, held its annual meeting. Charles F. Heap, chairman presided. He made a report in which he clearly set forth a year of splendid progress, showing a substantial reduction of the debt on repairs, the excellent condition of the church property and an increased amount of insurance. Cecil L. Butler, clerk, read the minutes of the last annual meeting and reported on all subsequent meetings of the society and committee. Walter P. Latthrop, treasurer gave a detailed report of the finances, showing all bills paid, that about $2,500 had been paid on the indebtedness and that a balance remained. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Double Feature at the Breed

The Wolf Man, a William Fox picture featuring John Gilbert, closes a two day run at the Breed theater tonight. This film has well merited the attendance which marked its presentation here. Gilbert equals the best work of his career in the role of the Honorable Gerald Stanley, dissolute young Englishman with a fondness for drink and a dual personality.

In his cups, Stanley is The Wolf Man. When himself, he is gentility at its best. Gilbert impersonates this odd character with fine feeling. A capable cast gives strong support and the picture has been nicely directed by Edmund Mortimer. The scenes in England and in the north woods of Quebec are equally realistic.

For the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in That French Lady, an adaptation of William J. Hurlburt's play. The Fox news complete the bill.

Broadway Theater

There is less real home life in America today than ever before, asserts Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at her headquarters in Washington.

Clubwomen of the nation are uniting to remedy this situation and therefore are vitally interested in Broken Laws, Mrs. Wallace Reid's new photoplay dealing with mother love and law observance, which is coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday.

Broken Laws deals with two mothers, one who indulged her son in every whim, and another who neglected her daughter for the delights of a jazz life. The problems that they encounter make up a story that includes thrills, suspense, emotion and fast action from start to finish.

Mrs. Reid plays the leading role and is surrounded by a company of stars.

R. William Neil directed, and a medieval production was provided.

Broken Laws is called the biggest play in years by those who have seen it.

Broadway Theater

A marvelous blending of music, song, dance, comedy and novelty perfectly enhanced by beautiful scenery and electrical effects is the kind of B. F. Keith vaudeville program you'll see at the Broadway theater today, Friday, and Saturday. Our advice is don't miss it.

Richard Dix in his new Paramount starring picture, A Man Must Live, coming to the Broadway theater today is supported by a cast which far outshines that which appeared with the new Paramount luminary in his first production as a star, Manhattan.

Jacqueline Logan, who played opposite Dix in Manhattan, again has an important role. She shares feminine honors with Edna Murphy in A Man Must Live, adapted by James Creelman from the story, Jungle Law, by I. A. R. Wylie. Miss Murphy has appeared before in Paramount pictures and was recently seen in The White Moth.

Slater Hall Musical Course.

It will be a brilliant occasion when Georges Enesco, an outstanding genius of the modern musical world and recognized as one of the greatest violinists in the world appears in Slater hall on Friday evening, January 9th, under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy.

This delightful programme will be given:

Concerto E Minor	Mendelssohn
Poeme	Chausson
Follies d' Espagne	Corelli
Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso	Saint Saens
Zigeunerweisen	Sarasate

The Steinway piano will be used. Edward Harris will be the accompanist.

The following interesting resume of the programme was contributed by Charles J. Dyer, the well known musician:

Enesco's playing the Mendelssohn Concerto Friday night will be an event for those present. The Concerto is perhaps the most pleasing to a large public than any other now that Mendelssohn is coming into his own old popularity again, the performance will be particularly interesting. It was always the favorite of such performers as Kubelick, Kocian, Sarasate, those violinists with a particularly brilliant tecnique. The Adagio is beautiful, broad, melodious and the finale rapid, scintilating in runs, sparks to which—under Enesco's hands, the public will be carried away with. The fell to it which the next number gives—Corelli, Folies d' Espagne, is full of the old Italian feeling of quite another school, Saints-Saens Rondo Capric completing with the fourth school—German, Italian, French, Spanish—and illustrating by outstanding numbers from each—perhaps the finest programme a violinist has brought to us. Enesco's tremendous ability is backed by an equal natural understanding, a splendid appearance. He is undoubtedly one of the greatest violinist virtuosi of the present time. He came to America especially for Mrs. Coolidge's music festival in late September and has just returned to us again from a flying trip to his home Roumania.

Cross words are not always puzzling.

DANIELSON

Killingly shares in the distinction that has been conferred upon Representative Elbert L. Darbie of this town by the republicans of the house at Hartford in nominating him for speaker, the nomination being equivalent to appointment. The honor he has received was forecasted for him prior to the re-election in November, for he had made a splendid record previously in the legislature as a representative of this town and had become an outstanding figure in the house that the speakership practically was assured for him in the event of another republican victory in Connecticut and his own return to the legislature.

Attorney Darbie is a native of the town of Killingly and has spent his life here. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Darbie of North Main street. Admitted to practice law in Connecticut on January 15, 1913, meanwhile has become one of the best known members of the Windham county bar. Mr. Darbie was born December 31, 1882.

Attorney Darbie has been for years one of the most capable and effective workers in the republican organization in this county. Now and for years past he has been the chairman of the republican town committee. He has held the position of town tax collector and has been a burgess of the borough of Danielson.

In Masonic circles Attorney Darbie is known throughout Connecticut. He is an officer of the Grand lodge of Connecticut. In the various Masonic bodies with which he has been affiliated he has held important offices and always filled them with distinction. He is a member of Putnam lodge of Elks, Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows and of Sedgwick Camp, Son of Veterans, of Norwich.

Attorney Darbie' military record is an interesting one. In August, 1901, he enlisted here in Company F, Third Connecticut Infantry and by successive stages advanced to a captaincy in the Coast Artillery corps on December 1, 1909, commanding the company from that time to 1916, when he was transferred to the National Guard Reserve Corps. Attorney Darbie is a member of St. Alban's Episcopal church of Danielson.

Killingly is very proud of the fact that he is to be speaker of the house, the first eastern Connecticut man to hold the place in 39 years.

John B. Bassett of Broad street is the newly elected president of the Bohemian club, which he has efficiently served for several years as a member of the executive committee. A. At the present time the club has a membership of about 180.

Relatives and many friends were at St. James' church at 9 o'clock Wednes nes morning to attend funeral services for Mrs. Annie Kirk Fitzgerald, widow of Edward Fitzgerald, who died last Sunday at Elizabeth, N. Y. Rev. Edward Kirk of the diocese of New Jersey, a nephew of Mrs. Fitzgerald, was celebrant of the solemn mass of requiem, Rev. E. X. Richards being deacon and Rev. James McCarthy subdeacon. Burial was in St. James' cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Father Kirk and Father McCarthy. The bearers were Hugh Gorman, Hugh Gorman, Jr., Thomas Gorman, James Riley, Michael Heaney of Providence and Edward Maher. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The funeral of Mrs. Amanda Dignault was held from her home in Moosup Wednesday morning with services at All Hallows' church at 8.30. Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, the pastor, was celebrant of the solemn mass of requiem, with Rev. Oscar Normand, deacon and Rev. Charles Mathieu of Willimantic sub-deacon. Following this service there was another high mass of requiem at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan, Rev. J. C. Mathieu being celebrant at this service. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery, Wauregan, the committal service conducted by Rev. J. C. Mathieu. The bearers were Frank DeMars, Joseph Frenette, A. Allard, L. Robitaille and Mr. O'Connell. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill plans to hold the inquest pertaining to the death of Miss Annie McCauley of Mechanicsville on Saturday of this week, but this will be dependent upon the coroner's ability to get all of the witnesses together at that time. Miss McCauley died at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam last Sunday as the results of injuries received in an automobile accident at Putnam on a Sunday evening in December.

Gregory Swirka, who lives on the Warren farm, in the Killingly Center district of the town, pleaded not guilty Wednesday morning, when presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court to answer to a charge of theft. The charge grows out of the disappearance of a mowing machine and cultivator which Byron Lewis, owner of the farm, purchased at an auction held there in December. To allow Mr. Swirka to obtain counsel the case was continued and in default of the $200 bond required for his appearance Mr. Swirka was taken to jail, to remain until next Monday morning, when the case is scheduled for a hearing.

Harvesting of ice at Quinebaug lake continued during Wednesday at top speed. With 4500 large cakes stored on the first day of cutting, Tuesday, the crew had the houses about a quarter filled when the started work Wednesday and had boosted the harvest to about one-half will be cut by Wednesday night. The ice is of uniformly excellent quality and was running about 10 inches in thickness during Wednesday's cutting.

The chamber of commerce has instructed its grievance committee to take up with the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad company the matter of more adequate train service for Danielson, with a view to improving the facilities here for despatching and receiving express matter. The substitution of a gasoline car for two trains a day has reduced the express service from what it is felt Danielson's manufacturing and business interests are entitled to in view of the importance of this center as a manufacturing and trading center. The chamber of commerce likely will not suggest what should be done, but it expects the railroad company to at least restore the od facilities, this might be done by supplying an express service on the new gasoline cars. If no satisfactory arrangement can be made with the railroad company, the matter will be taken before the public utilities commission of the state. This was decided at the annual meeting of the chamber on Tuesday evening. At that time it also was announced that Appreciation day in Danielson—the great field day for bargains—has been set for January 17.

The meeting elected Harry E. Back president; Walter Anderson, vice president; A. M. Thompson, secretary and Clifford H. Starkweather, treasurer.

SIX YEAR OLD SCHOOL BOY KIDNAPPED BY HIS FATHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Jan. 7.—State officers stationed at the Danielson barracks were engaged Wednesday in an effort to recover Francis Harrington, six years old, who was kidnapped by his father during the forenoon while the child was out for recess from the branch of St. James' parochial school that is located in The Cloister, a structure owned by the Connecticut Mills company, on Morin avenue. The taking away of the boy was the sequel to the appearance here of the father and two other men.

Anna Harrington, mother of the boy, complained to Chief John McFarland of the borough police Monday about the presence of the boy's father with the two men and of her fear that he would take one or more of their several children away. The men went away, however, without anything of special interest developing. The father returned on Wednesday with two other men, the party traveling in a car bearing Massachusetts registration plates, and obtained possession of Francis, as set forth. The mother a resident at 81 Morin avenue, not distant from the school, was quick to hear of the child's disappearance and notified both the state and borough police. In the meantime the father had driven away with the child and several hours later not a trace of them had been found.

The mother and her several children came here from Worcester a few week ago. What caused the separation of the parents was not made clear during Wednesday, but the father has expressed a desire to have one or more of the children with him with a view to placing them in some convent school. Negotiations not succeeding, it is believed, the kidnapping of the child followed.

Search was being made in Massachusetts Wednesday afternoon for the father and the boy taken from here.

PUTNAM

One of the men put to plea Wednesday in the superior court was Paul Zimmerman of Danielson, charged with taking an automobile belonging to another man and driving home with it. A few days elapsed before the machine was located. Zimmerman had not attempted to dispose of it and his friends claim that he had no criminal intent in taking it. He bears a good reputation and was never arrested before. He pleaded not guilty, his hearing was assigned for Thursday and then continued at which time it is believed that the charge may be rolled.

The case of Charles Norris, charged with non-support, which came before the superior court Tuesday, has some peculiar angles. He was represented by Attorney Hunt of Hartford, who gave the following version of it to the court. Morris, Mr. Hunt said, was a hard working man of steady habits, who had been in the employ of one concern for twenty years. During nearly all of that time he and his wife lived happily. They have two children of whom Morris is very fond. Returning from work one evening he found that his wife and children had disappeared from their home at East Haddam. On investigation he learned that they had gone away with a brother of Morris. The wife refused to return and subsequent efforts on the defendent's part to bring about a reconciliation has been futile. Morris had also been refused permission to see his children or to have them with him for a part of the time, notwithstanding that for more than a year he has contributed $10 a week to their support. Both the wife and children are now living in North Grosvenordale. As the first step toward securing a court order Mr. Hunt said that he had advised the defendant not to pay this $10 and he had been arrested for failure to provide. He entered a plea of nole contendre and said that he was willing to have sentence pronounced.

Judge Jennings said that he accepted the plea as virtually one of guilty and sentenced Morris to sixty days in the county jail, execution of it to be suspended if the defendant furnished a bond of $300 guaranteeing to pay $10 a week for support as formerly. This satisfied Mr. Hunt, who said that he would now take such other legal action as may be necessary to secure a court order that would enable his client to have the children with him a part of the time. Morris was paroled in his attorney's custody.

Tait Bros., manufacturers of ice cream are to build a refrigerating plant and distributing station in Putnam. The headquarters of the company and its principal factory are in Springfield but they have distributing stations similar to the one to be established here in Worcester, Hartford, Bridgeport, Holyoke, Northampton and other New England cities. Putnam's advantages as a shipping point appeal to them. C. A. Reynolds of Springfield, one of the officials, has said that a building, 50 by 75 feet, will be built on some central site and so constructed that manufacturing could be done there later if deemed advisable. The refrigerating machinery for the plant is now ready.

Ernest L. Davis has gone to St. Petersburg, Florida, for the winter.

The annual meeting of the common council of the city of Putnam was held Wednesday evening with all members present and Mayor Chapdelaine presiding.

The report of City Treasurer Charles H. Brown showed the city debt $161,179, an increase of about $4,000 over last year, but there is a cash balance in the treasury of $5,000 as against about $150 January 1, 1924. The cash receipts during the year amounted to $114,454.99. Tax collections were $48 242.98. Other receipts were $7,-773.05 from the special sewer assessments and $6,823 paid in by the city court nearly all of which was collected from violators of the liquor laws.

Expenditures for the various departments were: Fire department $9,690, police $12,106, courts $2,021, highway $10,470, general expense $5,439, street lighting $8,149, salaries of city officials including janitors, $1,280, sewers $478, grading, curbing and gutters (special appropriation of April 28) $9,470, notes $83,000, bonds and sinking fund $7,000, interest $8,695.

Fire Chief Thurston's report showed the fire loss in 1924 was very small. The damage caused by fire was $3,200 and the net loss to citizens was but $500. The property involved in the fires and which might have been destroyed is estimated at $200,000. Mr. Thurston called attention to the difference between the loss of last year and the year before where the latter totalled $160,000. There were seventeen fires during 1924 and 92 alarms to which the firemen responded.

Peter A. Gardner, health officer, reported the following cases of contagious disease during the year: Scarlet fever in town of Putnam 18, in city of Putnam 73; typhoid fever 3, pneumonia 16, mumps 7, whooping cough 19, measles 27. He commented on the fact that although there were many cases of contagious diseases they were in a mild form. He said that the cooperation of the physicians, the school physician and school nurses and school superintendent helped to check the spread of any of the maladies. In regard to the closing of one of the city schools for a short time because of scarlet fever he said that it would not have been necessary or desirable except for the fact that the parents were needlessly alarmed.

Charles T. Thayer, superintendent of the fire alarm telegraph reports that the system was in fine condition. He recommends the replacing of a mile of iron wire with copper, and the installation of the newer type of alarm boxes in place of the old.

Archie Macdonald, Jr., brought up the subject of the small salaries which are paid the officials of the city. The judge of the court and the prosecuting attorney are paid $500 annually, the assistant judge $300, and the assistant prosecutor $100. Mr. Macdonald said that in view of the great increase of work which the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law had imposed on these officials he thought their pay should be increased. In order to do this an amendment to the charter is required and he asked that prompt action be taken, if the council agreed with him that these officials should receive more pay. On motion of Mr. Rogers, Mayor Chapdelaine appointed the following committee to consider the matter of the pay increase, as well as a complete revision of the city ordinance, Richard, Rogers, Dubois and Ames.

Mr. Macdonald also asked and was given authority to bring suit where necessary, to enforce collection of unpaid taxes. He is the city tax collector.

The police report for December showed only 31 arrests, 16 for violations of the liquor laws. Of the offenders five were taken to jail, ten were bound over to court and seven paid fines and costs aggregating $862.59. Thirty-four tramps were given lodging at the police station.

The Central Construction Co. of Pawtucket asked for and was given permission for the erection of a new building for the H. K. Silk Co.

The Chamber of Commerce offered to bear half the expense of erecting a sign at Miller's corner on Woodstock avenue to aid automobile drivers. The council voted to place the sign there and to pay half the cost.

THOMAS RAWLEY KEEPS RAILROAD MEN FROM JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 7.—Joseph C. Bartlett and Joseph R. Noyer, conductor and engineer of the freight train in the collision at Mechanicsville, two months ago, which caused the death of William S. Carpenter of this city, engineer of the passenger train, were presented in superior court Tuesday afternoon on the charge of manslaughter. They pleaded not guilty and their trial will be held before a jury next Tuesday. Both men have been at liberty on bonds of $2,000 each. When they entered pleas these bonds lapsed. Arrangements had been made for surety bonds from the same company that furnished the others, but there was an unaccountable delay in their arrival. Their attorneys are Charles L. Torrey of this city and Clayton Smith of New London. The latter kept the long distant telephone lines busy and was assured that the bonds had been forwarded and would arrive in time to prevent the men from being taken to jail. But at 5 o'clock they were still missing. Judge Jennings said as the charge was of such a serious character he did not feel that he could parole the accused men in the custody of their attorneys. Court had adjourned and the officers were waiting to take all prisoners back to jail, when Thomas Rawley, train despatcher of the New Haven R. R. Co., appeared with a personal bondsman, who was accepted by the court and the men were released. The surety boy reached E. M. Warner, clerk of the courts, this (Thursday) morning.

MAKES FAT PEOPLE SLIM

New York Physician Perfects Harmless Method of Reducing Weight.

The loss of as much as a pound of excess fat a day with no harmful results is the record made by many patients of Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, who announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without change of diet or unnecessary exercise. It is also said that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-When-Reduced" Plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R-6.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

There appears elsewhere in this issue of The Bulletin the greater part of the inaugural address of Governor Hiram Bingham. It deserves careful and thoughtful reading, giving as it does much information concerning state government, conditions and certain recommendations which have to do with the betterment thereof.

Governor Bingham prefaces his address with a clear statement of the unusual position in which circumstances and the vote of the people of Connecticut have placed him. His readiness to serve when and where desired is unmistakable, and he has no hesitancy in recommending the one upon whom the duties of governor will devolve as he leaves for Washington.

Not only had Governor Bingham had an opportunity to become acquainted with the operation of the state government and the work of the state institutions during his term as lieutenant governor, but he has prefaced his statements concerning them with a personal visitation and a study of conditions. Because of that his words carry additional weight.

The message which he gave the general assembly is forward looking, gives due consideration to public welfare, calls for adequate respect for personal liberty until public safety requires changes, urges the adoption of just laws and decries the introduction or consideration of bills and resolutions of a public nature which are not demanded by the public, and pointedly calls attention to certain ills and conditions that require early attention. It is a long but a good message, and unquestionably gives voice to Connecticut sentiment.

There are pertinent suggestions which he makes concerning the highway problems, and it has long been evident that the situation created by the commercial vehicles, and particularly those of other states which use and profit by the Connecticut highway system, deserves attention.

Highly deserved are the words of commendation concerning the tuberculosis sanatoria, the state hospitals, the reform and penal institutions, and most certainly is he right when in urging fireproof buildings, he says, "All appropriations for buildings intended for the use of the state's wards should be large enough to enable the erection of fireproof structures."

Governor Bingham shows his love for the outdoors when he directs attention to the detrimental effect of billboards, the efforts which other states have made to eliminate them and the injustice of marring the highways with what would not be tolerated on public property.

What he had to say about medical legislation is patent. It is a subject that seems sure to receive proper attention at this session of the legislature, and when he advises the direction of as much attention at the state college to marketing as to production he unquestionably hits upon a subject that is of much importance to the consumers as well as the farmers of the state.

There may be some matters which seem to have been overlooked but these Governor Bingham has apparently left for Governor Trumbull to present at a later date. As to taxation, however, Governor Bingham refers to the reduction in the state tax two years ago and expresses hope for further reduction this year and he points out the necessity for a policy of economy.

Connecticut as well as the legislature has been spoken to. It is a practical and common sense statement. Read it.

SPURRED TO ACTION.

Repeatedly has it been shown that there has to be loss of life and the endangering of many others before proper attention is given to the enforcement of existing requirements concerning safeguards, or the establishment of many that are really required.

Boston is just realising this as the result of the recent fire in a private hospital. But for that fire in which one life was lost, a number injured and many subjected to serious danger, Boston would apparently be satisfied to let conditions which have been brought to light continue undisturbed. In the Boston fire as in that at Babb's Switch, Okla., the quick burning Christmas tree helped to make matters much worse at the very start, but in the former instance at least it served to direct attention to conditions which seem to prevail in private hospitals where people in various degrees of helplessness can be expected to be.

Boston has laws governing the private hospitals, but it is anxious now to learn if the laws are being respected or enforced. If they have been basking in the belief that they were it feels the need now of finding out. The fire has created an uncertainty on that point. If the inquiry that is contemplated, or perhaps now underway, results in the finding of evasions the failure to comply with or the lack of enforcement of the law on the part of the authorities it will be much needed information. If it is found that there is no disrespect of the law and enforcement is all that can be expected there will be much relief felt. The disclosures would then indicate whether additional protective measures are required.

It is unfortunate that losses of life seem to be necessary in order to set forth the importance of adequate safeguards, but that is invariably the case. It happens in a great number of instances in spite of the advance knowledge of the value of prevention. There is even greater cause for regret over the fact that just such cases fail to exert their corrective influence over larger numbers, and longer periods of time. They are too quickly forgotten.

THE SUSTAINED VETO.

It was a close vote that sustained in the United States senate the veto of the postal pay increase bill by the president. It means the sustaining of the president's judgment and the failure of that particular piece of legislation.

President Coolidge in vetoing the bill at the last session of congress expressed his opposition to the manner in which increases were voted generally, without accomplishing the pay adjustments as conditions warranted. He opposed it also because no provision had been made for furnishing the money to meet the increase. The bill was originally passed in the senate by an overwhelming majority and the change in the vote indicates the change in sentiment that has taken place among the senate members since the president's reasons for the veto were given.

This does not mean that the possibilities of an adjustment of pay among the postal employes are ended. It means that other legislation will be required and it is to be expected that it will be legislation that will take into consideration the very points that were emphasized by the president relative to the vetoed measure.

In the readjustment of wages in the postoffice department consideration should be given to the facts as they exist and to the making of such increases in keeping with the services involved. The same holds true in regard to the raising of the postal rates to provide the funds for the increased wages. In the new legislation which is to be expected on these matters, action in keeping with the facts, and not a hit or miss course that will cause as much injustice in one direction as it does justice in another, is desirable.

RED FIRE APPARATUS.

In certain cities the color of the fire department apparatus has always been red, or at least during the period of paid departments. It has existed so long that it is regarded as a fixture and the impression gained that it is the accepted color for such a department.

The advantages of it speak for themselves. One glance and the color indicates the character of the vehicle and the nature of its mission. The fire bell and the siren give warning but one doesn't have to stretch his neck to locate and get out of the way of the red fire wagon. There are cities which have not adopted the color, but leave the fire apparatus with no such contrast to other vehicles.

That it should be the subject of a communication by the writer of a letter to the Springfield Union, in which city the apparatus is painted black, is not surprising in these days of rapidly increasing highway traffic and the probability of street jams.

Public fire alarm signals do not aid the department in getting to and fighting a fire. They do give warning that a clear way should be provided.

Sirens do not speed up the fire apparatus but they do help in getting through traffic.

Red paint doesn't make the fire apparatus any more efficient, but it does serve to indicate the character of the work in which it is engaged and obtains for it immediate recognition and less obstruction.

Red is an appropriate fire department color and the importance of such a distinguishing mark cannot be too greatly emphasized in connection with the service that is expected of the firefighters.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some of the resolutions are already showing the need of stronger reinforcements.

The more the new traffic rules are tried out the better understood are some of the bad features.

As far as you have gone, how do you like the new traffic regulations, and how many have you violated?

It is rather a long vigil but there are those who are watching for the day when the groundhog test is made.

When the scientist told the world that men are destined to be bald he at least got a smile out of the wig maker.

Those who have to shovel snow will be happy if the fall in the weeks to come is no heavier than that in those just passed.

Special trains are to bring people into Connecticut for the eclipse, but there seems to be no such rush for the dark continent.

Governors may not tell the legislatures all that ought to be done but if recommendations are followed the results will be conspicuous.

If you have any little matters that you want to call to the attention of the general assembly you might as well get them in shape to trot them out.

Los Angeles orders horses off the business streets by next July. Slow as the horse may be it doesn't bother traffic half as much as the parked automobiles.

The man on the corner says: The trouble with the one-way streets is that you can't stop and hold a conversation with a fellow going in the other direction.

Looking through a number of the gubernatorial messages, it is quite evident that governors are in sympathy with the president on the subject of economy.

Connecticut greets and releases Governor Bingham, and as it does so it welcomes to the governor's chair in John H. Trumbull a man in whom it has the utmost confidence.

TOO KEEN OBSERVER

"I know why all the girls I see on the street these days look so grim," decided the handsome young man. "They have recovered from the disappointments of the summer campaign and are saying oh well, maybe there'll be better luck during the winter season! And filled with determination they are hustling around getting ammunition for a do-or-die session!"

"What disappointments?" inquired the girl who was pretty, but dumb.

"Every girl who doesn't get engaged during the summer," carefully explained the handsome young man, "is disappointed naturally. Here she has spent wads of father's money and much gray matter selecting a wardrobe and worn the dressmakers to frazzles and kept the family on tenterhooks with absolutely no results to justify all the excitement and discomfort. Discomfort for the rest of the family, I mean.

"So setting her jaw, she sallies forth and woe betide any young man who isn't looking or who doesn't hop quickly to one side! There is no peace for her until she can drag one into the family fireside, saying, 'See, dear papa and mamma, I've caught one—and such a nice one!'

"On every side when a girl is getting ready to go away on her summer vacation you can easily note the intense interest and anticipation of her family. All the aunts and cousins and sisters come running in, loaning her their new scarf from Paris or a cute string of beads, a party cape and the latest thing to keep one's hair in curl. They sit around while she packs and relates tales about girls they know who went away for the summer without a single idea of getting married and came back in the fall the countess of Paris Green or something.

"Why once Cousin Sally's sister's daughter was spending a month at Piecrust lake, just sketching and enjoying nature and the Pickwicks had the most stunning young lawyer up for the week-end and he ran across Sally's niece out sketching and fell in love with her on sight. A perfectly lovely romance and they are so happy. It pays to be nice to the cottagers.'

"And Alsatia never has started out with such a fascinating wardrobe, they all say. She looks too sweet in that white crepe with the blue dots and the shirred mull. And when she puts on one of the droopy hats she has just shown them you scarcely can notice the slight cast in her left eye.'

"Well, Alsatia goes away rehearsing mentally all these day dreams, her heart beating fast, and it isn't till the end of the fifth week that she has to admit that Piecrust lake is just like all the lakes where she has spent summers since she was 6—a nice, sunny lake that nobody goes out on because they can get around faster in their cars and nobody up there but fat old people and children.

"She returns home with her teeth gritted together for what will happen.

"'What kind of summer did you have?' asks the family, anxiously, translated it means, 'Have you any good news? Any nice people up there?' they ask. This means, 'Don't, for heaven's sake, tell us there were no men this time!'

"Not that they say this in so many words. Ideas may be conveyed in various other ways—by signs and remarks as to how much they spent getting her ready and how hard father works and how mother spent just hours all summer doing a darling set of doilies—well, of course, the family can see those themselves! And they pitch again. So then Alsatia hustles around after she has dried her eyes and buys a new bale of party frocks and stirs things up for the brief round of winter gayety. She's 23 and it does look serious! It's time she got married! That reminds me—I wanted to ask you if you wouldn't marry me—I'm crazy about you!"

"Nope," said the girl who was pretty and usually dumb. "I don't want to get married at all. Jasper! And if I did it wouldn't be any one who understood us weak women so well!"

The handsome young man was so surprised that he was entirely speechless for the time being.—Chicago News.

Hertz Studied on His Vacation

Having made his way from newsboys to a position of trust, John D. Hertz worked so hard that he broke in health, then after combining recreation with business he took new ideas back to the office, and was called "crazy."

Born in Chicago's West Side, he attended school only a short time because he had to help with the family income. He sold newspapers next drove a delivery wagon and then obtained a place on the staff of a newspaper.

As assisting sporting editor he felt that his salary was large, but he went into the auto sales business with Walter W. Shaw. Noticing that from six to ten cars usually were idle in the garage he suggested that they be used to haul passengers, but the cars were so large that the cost of operation and repairs ate up all the profit.

With the aid of a catalogue he chose parts and began to build automobiles. After operating the Shaw Cab Company many years he decided to go into the taxi business on a big scale, but few taxi companies were meeting expenses, many had failed, and capital could not be raised.

Driving work and long hours caused his physical breakdown and his doctor sent him to Europe. While recuperating Hertz studied the system there and returned home enthusiastic over his new plans. Others in the company thought his head was affected, but decided to try his "freakish" ideas. And when competitors saw his yellow-hued cabs and cut rates they said he was "crazy" and would not last a month.

At first the public laughed, then they rode and business boomed. The Yellow Cab started with 30 taxicabs and for five years the factory could not catch up to the demands. Other cities were invaded, then it was found that the personal element figured in taxi business, and all the lines except the Chicago lines were sold. Then the Chicago motor bus lines were taken over. The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company began supplying to other cities, and its volume climbed to $25,000,000 a year.

How Hertz heads the Yellow Cab Company with its 3000 taxicabs in Chicago and the Yellow Taxicab Manufacturing company that has supplied cabs to nearly 100 American and many foreign cities.

CHILD TRAINING

Josephine Weyman

"Never mind, nobody'll know," said mother with a smile at Aunt Edith as she picked up the biscuit which had fallen on the perfectly clean kitchen floor and put it back on the plate. "Never mind, nobody knows," echoed little Caroline later, picking up a small piece of bread from the floor of the cafe and putting it on the bread plate.

"That child is a born 'imitator,' you will sometimes hear a parent say, and then watch amusedly as mother or father do or say something which they certainly would not want imitated.

All children are natural imitators. How much harder the parents' task would be if the child did not so unconsciously teach himself!

I know of no other method of so easily giving children the right standards of growth and development than suggestion and example. Here undoubtedly lie the father's and mother's joy and duty. It is for them to suggest in stories, in pictures, in play, as well as in their own personal lives, just what they wish their children to be. Let them wish it hard enough, have faith enough to try hard enough for it, and as in the old magic tales, the wish is bound to become reality!

Have you ever heard a kindergartener ask, "What does the Little Pig do with his two little ears?"—and the children seem to respond, "Why, he listens, he hears, with his two little ears!" How much easier, then, for the teacher to obtain and keep the attention of her class!

Dr. Dewey, of Columbia University, tells of a child who quickly picked up a doll's dress from the floor: "I'm not going to teach my child to throw her clothes on the floor," she said. So very often the children's play with their dolls which to them are so actually identified with themselves will provide the opportunity for a suggestion of lasting value. How soon Dolly will have to have to keep in such a rumpled bed!" or "I am sure that Dolly must like the nice way her things are put away. For this reason the wise mother will provide a box of the proper convertible shape if her little girl can not trunk for doll's dresses. What little girl doesn't long for a trunk for her baby's small belongings?

Stories and pictures are particularly valuable to right [illegible] N[illegible] that every story must have a moral, but rather that good stories invariably suggest a nobler, lovelier way of living, and act of courage, a gentle thoughtfulness, or a sustained endeavor which at the story's ends will bring its own deserved reward. If parents only realized how susceptible children are to such suggestions, that they could accomplish much by merely presenting the right pictures and stories, certainly they would examine more carefully the books and pictures placed before them.

"O, Robert, don't do that!" exclaimed a mother when she discovered her small son distorting his face before the mirror.

"I'm trying to look like the boy in the picture," he answered pointing to the colored supplement.

Duncan came to dinner recently with a big bump over his eye. "No, I haven't been fighting," he said in an answer to his mother's inquiring look. "I interfered and the fellow I wanted to help didn't understand and struck me. He doesn't seem to know much anyway. He's a great big chap and only in the second grade. The fellows were going to punish him for throwing stones at them."

"Why did you want to prevent them?" asked his mother.

"I felt sorry for him. Somehow he always makes me think of Patsy."

The Patsy of Kate Douglas Wiggins' story?"

"Yes. He looks like him only he's older. Poor kid I guess he must have lost a lot of his Pep, Patsy."

"Have you read the story recently?"

No you read it to me when I was a little chap don't you remember?"

"Yes, she's his mother thankfully.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ER RIF

Er Rif becomes a mountain range without a country by the announcement from Premier Rivera that Spain is abandoning this part of Morocco for two or three years, maintaining a single coastal post between the ports Melilla and Tetuan.

"Being deprived of the right to expect protection from the 'fatherland' is not calculated to bring to the Berber inhabitants of Er Rif the usual grief civilization associates with such a loss, because they finish on self-protection more than Spanish administration," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington, D. C.

Er Rif starts with the southernmost of the Pillars of Hercules, the ancients' name for the Mediterranean's gateway to the Atlantic. Gibralter, sentry box of Britannia, is the northern pillar. From the northwest tip of Africa Er Rif swings down the Mediterranean coast, thus embracing nearly the whole length of the Spanish Zone in Morocco. Its eastern end crosses into French Morocco.

"To Spain Er Rif is much more than a mountain chain with soft blue shadows in its gorges; it means hills where the nation has sunk millions of its treasury's gold with little prospect that it ever shall be dug out again. It means a place where thousands of Spanish soldiers have met death and many Spanish armies have met defeat.

"Although Spain has held Ceuta, companion town to Gibraltar, since the time of the conquest of Pizzaro and Cortes in America, it did not attempt to extend its dominion over the interior until the middle of the last century when Europe began to partition Africa. Tetuan is 26 miles from Ceuta but until 1859 it was spiritually as far away as Capetown and a Spaniard had as good chance of life going overland to Capetown as to Tetuan. In that year a Spanish army, under the direction of an O'Donnell, took 36 days to go the 26 miles. The Spanish Zone of Morocco is smaller than Vermont. Its role has been the 'enfant terrible' of Spain.

"The Moors of the Spanish Zone are descendants of those Arabs who flowed into Spain and ruled from Granada. Reminders of their Spanish conquest are often found in such un-Arabic names as Garcia, Aragon, Morales. With them is the mountain fastnesses are the Berbers who are the original native stock. Their blood is said to account for the blue eyes and white skin which often surprises a visitor to Morrocco. Impoverished and suppressed by these races are the Jews, most of them descendants of Jews who fled to Africa during the Spanish Inquisition.

"In Moorish and Berber towns the Jews are compelled to live by themselves in a quarter often walled, called the Mellah. Their way is hard. Before Spain controlled the interior a Frenchman disguished himself as a Jew and made his way to Shesagan, near the French border. He said that he never passed a Moslem who did not say, 'May God burn in the Eternal fires of Hell the Father who begat you, Oh Jew.' But the Jews thrive and when the Spanish come they often prosper."

Stories That Recall Others

Sufficient Explanation

Horace, Lawrence and Judith, were playing school, Horace, being the oldest of three children, was the teacher and asked Lawrence to give the definition of the word "elevated." Lawrence not being able to rise to the occasion said: "I don't know what it means."

"All right," said Horace, "I'll tell you. Mother elevated the jam from you and Judith, but she didn't elevate it sufficiently."

Even Judith, who was still in kindergarten, understood the explanation.

A New Word

Harry is a five year old, who was pounding with a hammer a few days ago. He cracked his thumb and exclaimed: "Oh, blampy it."

"Why, Raymond," exclaimed his father who was near, "What did you say? Where did you hear that word?"

"Why that is what all the other boys say when they hurt themselves."

MOTOR TRAFFIC BILLS COMING IN LEGISLATURE

It is a little early for prospective legislation to show up in the general assembly at Hartford but it is predicted that the next session of the general assembly will be marked by much important legislation.

It is expected that one of the important pieces of legislation in the legislature will be what is called automobile legislation. Bills that will hit motor truck traffic that uses the Connecticut highways are expected to be presented. For a long time past it has been thought that the state should regulate some of the motor truck traffic that uses the state highways. Much of this traffic originates in other states and pass over Connecticut to other states. It is said that the steam and possibly the electric roads will develop a lively interest in the legislation to regulate motor truck freight traffic.

It is expected also that bills will be introduced to revise the medical practice act in this state. This it is said is due because of the many cults that are now practising in Connecticut and that there is need for a revision of the medical acts of Connecticut to meet present day requirements.

After the preliminary session of the legislature today (Wednesday), adjournment will be taken probably for 10 days and in the meantime the committee appointments will be made and will be announced when the legislature is reconvened after the first adjournment.

Governor Bingham will not transact any official business after he reads his inaugural message on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the hall of the house of representatives. He will hold an informal reception after the message is read and will attend the inaugural ball in the evening, but the next day he will leave for Washington to take up his duties as United States senator. He has taken quarters in the Powhattan hotel in Washington and that will be his residence in Washington for the remainder of the present session. Before the next session of Congress Colonel Bingham will probably have established another place of residence there.

The governor has not yet announced his senatorial appointments. It is expected that Henry M. Barry, who was secretary to the late Senator Colt, of Rhode Island, will be the secretary to Senator Bingham. Three clerks will also be appointed.

RUSSIAN ART IS EXHIBITED AT WATERBURY

An exhibition of Russian art, consisting of nearly 300 pictures by the foremost artists of Russia opened in the auditorium of the Mattatuck Historical society, Waterbury, on Monday evening. The scheme of the exhibition is completely comprehensive. All of the outstanding tendencies in Russian art are represented from the ultra-conservatives to the extremists.

In both aim and character the exhibition differs from any gathering of Russian art so far exhibited in this country. It is at once an attempt to offer a general prospective of Russian aesthetic activity and a gallant effort to sustain those native artists who are actually in need of material assistance.

The exhibition was organized by the Russian Art societies of Moscow, and Petrograd for the purpose of acquainting the people of the United States with contemporary Russian art and to help Russian artists who experienced great hardships and difficulties in obtaining the necessary supplies for their work.

As originally exhibited in New York a few months ago, the exhibition included more than 1,000 pictures, from which the Waterbury group (consisting of nearly 200 of the finest examples) was chosen.

It is upon its merits as a collective survey of Russian art, coming direct from Russia that the display must be considered. Its strength likes first in its novelty, and secondly in its stimulating variety. Most of these artists, though well known in Europe, have never before appeared in America, for which reason alone their work should enlist intelligent interest. The exhibition does not pretend to be an ideal or definite presentation of contemporary Russian art. It is primarily an appeal for sympathy and support. And yet after its own particular fashion it eloquently expresses the diversity the baffling complexity of the native aesthetic consciousness. It indicates, as well, something of that larger sense of struggle and aspiration which seems fated to presage the unfolding of the Slavic soul.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

"Wish I Had My Skates"

The Old Duck Pond was smooth with ice,
The big mill wheel was still,
As Mr. North Wind blew the snow
Across Old Strawberry Hill.

But Little Jack Rabbit didn't care.
Oh my no, His little white fur overcoat was nice and warm, and the woolen muffler which Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, had tied around his neck kept the snowflakes from tickling his whiskers. On he hopped, clippetty clip, hippety hip, this particular bright winter morn, his little knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging on his left paw.

By and by, after a while, and a bump and a smile and more fun a mile, he came to the big ice that lay across the Bubbling Brook like a long bridge—very convenient in the summer time for little four-footed people to use as a crossover to the Pleasant Pasture. Now, of course, the brook was frozen, so it wasn't needed.

"Wish I had my skates along," thought the bunny boy stepping down on the smooth ice. "What fun to skate across slipperty slip!" But they were at home in dear Old Bramble Patch, on a shelf in the closet, so the bunny boy took a slippy slidy, and two slidy slippies, and the next minute he bumped into the opposite bank. Up he hopped and looked about him. As far as he could see the white carpet of snow lay smooth and sparkling under the rays of Mr. Happy Sun, who was shining down from the Big Blue Sky country. Many of the birds had flown to the Sunny South, but in a bush, not far away, maybe a hop and a skip or three, sat little Charlie Chickadee.

"Good morning," laughed the little rabbit. "Had your breakfast?"

"Yes, indeedy," answered that cheerful little birdie. "There are lots of dry seeds on the grass, tops and bushes. Oh, yes, I've eaten my morning cereal. That makes one strong, you know."

"So Mother says, and she ought to know," replied the bunny boy. "I ate my Clover Cereal and drank a glass of milk for breakfast. Mrs. Cow never forgets to give the Milk Man enough for Mother and me. She pours it on my cereal and in her cup of tea."

"You're a bunny poet," laughed the little cheerful chickadee. "Do you often talk in poetry?"

"Mother says the world is full of poetry," answered the little rabbit. "She says Willie Wind sings a song when he blows on a tree, or when he whispers in the leaves through the trees."

"Guess she doesn't like Mr. North Wind's chilly song," twittered the little chickadee.

"Oh, yes she does," laughed the little rabbit. "When he blows down the chimney or under the door, she smiles and says:

"Don't you hear him shout to us;
Never mind the noise I make,
Nor the snowflakes on the floor,
I won't hurt the Angel Cake."

And in the next story

"Only a short two weeks ago I was so tired, nervous and worn-out from the strain on my nerves and strength of being a useful drudgery, that I thought I could not get up another day.

"A short two weeks' treatment of the newer form of easily absorbed iron has given me a marvelous increase in health, strength and energy. Now I can do my whole house with-out help, and do not have to sit at home in the evening all in, nigh and nervous."

The above is a typical hypothetical case, said a well-known physician, formerly of Bellevue Hospital Out-Door Dept., New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, recently. "You cannot be well and strong and full of vim, force and power unless your blood is rich in iron. It is your red blood that carries you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale and watery. Poor blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you may have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all 'run-down' and tired out.

"When your blood lacks iron, do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron, which is like the iron in spinach, broths, and meat juice, and is in a form easily assimilated by your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks and if you have not, Mr. Thousands of others obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. The following local druggists will sell you Nuxated Iron with this satisfaction or money back guarantee:

ROTARIANS ENJOY WHAT HEAVYWEIGHTS PROVIDE

Why five members of the Norwich Rotary club are very poor was clearly demonstrated at the noonday luncheon on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel when these five men were hosts to the club. If the menu such as was served to the club by the hosts is served in their own homes frequently there is no doubt in the mind of every member as to the reason for the overabundance of flesh that these men carry. Not only did the hosts provide the dinner but they also furnished the delightful orchestra which played during the dinner.

The tables were prettily decorated and each member received a carnation, the gift of Otto F. Ernst, one of the quintet of "fatties." The menu served was: cream of celery soup, olives, celery, roast native milk-fed shoat, french bread, ice cream and apple pie, cakes and coffee. The shoat occupied a place of honor on a table in the center of the dining hall and was an object of great admiration.

President Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting and Shan Palmer was the song leader. The singing under Mr. Palmer's leadership was the most spirited in many months. An orchestra under the direction of Robert Colberg, with Miss Pellerin at the piano, may have had something to do with the singing. There were selections by Charles A. Saxton, a past president, and by President Campbell and also by the hosts and visiting Rotarians. The Current Topics speaker was Charlie Taylor who talked on the coming total eclipse.

Brief remarks were made by the Fatties, Herb Leroy, George Carroll, Charlie Wells, Rue Bliven and Otto Ernst. The meeting was enjoyable from start to finish.

OCEAN BEACH OWNERS WIN IN INJUNCTION AGAINST LEVERONE

By a decision handed down by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson of the superior court, before whom the case was tried, Ocean Beach property owners win their case against Antonio Leverone of New London in which they asked for an injunction to restrain him from maintaining any business or using any building for business purposes in the so-called restricted strip.

The suit was brought by B. A. Armstrong, C. H. Klinck, L. E. Whiton, F. W. Mercer, Alfred Colt and the Post Hill Improvement Company.

Memorandum of Decision.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Nickerson says:

In 1892 Thomas M. Waller and James Hislop purchased certain land situated in New London known as the Ocean Beach property which they subsequently conveyed to the Post Hill Improvement Company. Afterwards, on May 5, 1893, that company conveyed to the city of New London for park purposes a part of said land as described in paragraph 5 of the complaint. In that deed the Post Hill Improvement Company as grantor excepted and reserved from the land conveyed a strip of land about 1,800 feet long and 110 feet deep or wide stretching along the beach front, southerly of Bentley avenue. Said strip of land was laid out on a survey map drawn by Daboll & Crandall and designated as "reserved strip." Said map is referred to in said deed and made a part of the deed. The said "reserved strip" was laid out, improved and developed by the Post Hill Improvement Company and all lots fronting on the beach in said reserved strip have been conveyed by said Post Hill Improvement Company. On most of said lots summer cottages or residences have been erected by the owners. In all of the deeds by said Post Hill Improvement Company of lots on said reserved strip there were restrictions and conditions upon them of the same similar in form and effect. The reservations, conditions and restrictions in all of said deeds were placed therein in conformity with a general scheme of development of said property for the benefit of the owners of the lots on said reserved strip and in order to protect the owners of those lots from such uses of the property as would interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of said lots as residential sites.

Deed to Fitzgerald.

On October 24, 1896 the Post Hill Improvement Company et al, by deed of that date conveyed to Patrick H. Fitzgerald "a certain lot on the tract of land situated in said town of New London, known as the Ocean Beach property" being a part of the extreme westerly section of the reserved strip. That deed contains the following:

"This conveyance is made, given and received upon the condition that there shall not be erected or maintained without the consent of the owners of three-fourths (3-4) of the lots on the strip marked "Reserved Strip" on a map heretofore filed by the grantors in the office of the town clerk any building or part of a building within 10 feet of the northerly or southerly side of the land herein conveyed or any building costing less than three hundred and fifty (350) dollars or any building to be used as a public bath house, store, restaurant or saloon or any other business purpose, or any building or shed to be used for horses provided the grantor thereof furnish at a cost of five dollars a year a suitable shed for the shelter of horses and carriages for each of the owners of lots on the strip aforesaid who may desire such accommodations. Said grantee shall have the right to lease by the year bath houses on the lot herein conveyed without the privilege of subletting."

On November 16, 1896, the said Post Hill Improvement Company by deed of that date conveyed to said Patrick H. Fitzgerald "a certain lot of land situated in the town and county of New London, in a certain tract of land called the "Ocean Beach property" and which adjoined that described in the deed of Oct. 24th, that deed contains the following:

"This conveyance is made, given and received upon the condition that there shall not be erected or maintained without the consent of the owners of three-fourths (3-4) of the lots on reserved strip any building or part of a building within 10 feet of the southerly side of the land herein conveyed or any building costing less than three hundred and fifty dollars (350) or any building to be used as a public bathing house, store, restaurant, saloon or for any other public purpose or any building or shed to be used for horses, provided the grantors hereof furnish at a cost of five (5) dollars a year a suitable shed for the shelter of horses and carriages for each of the owners of the lots on the aforesaid reserved strip who may desire such accommodation. The grantors also grant and convey to the said grantee, his heirs and assigns the right to the adjoining lot of the said grantors bounded on the south and west by land of the grantee herein conveyed and on the north by Bentley avenue and on the east by the land of the City of New London, that the view from the land herein and heretofore conveyed to said grantee, shall be obstructed by no building on said adjoining lot of a greater height than the present bathing houses on the said adjoining lot which height is 12 feet and to such limitation and restriction of building on said adjoining lot. The grantors do hereby bind themselves, their successors, heirs and assigns forever."

Conveyance to Leverone

On May 19, 1920, Jeremiah E. Fitzgerald, et al, who described themselves as trustees of a trust created in the will of Patrick H. Fitzgerald, deceased, conveyed to the defendant Leverone the property described in paragraph 1 of the complaint and which is the subject of this action. In that deed the property is there described and referred to as "the same land conveyed to the said Patrick H. Fitzgerald by deed of the Post Hill Improvement Company, et al., dated October 24, 1896, recorded in the New London land records, Vol. 90, Page 580 and the deed of said Post Hill Improvement Company et al to Patrick H. Fitzgerald dated Nov. 16, 1896, recorded in New London land records, Vol. 90, Page 592." The deed also expressly excepts "the right of way reserved to the grantors in the above mentioned deed of the Post Hill Improvement Co., et al to Patrick H. Fitzgerald and any valid restrictions referred to in said deed of said Post Hill Improvement Company et al to said Patrick H. Fitzgerald except in so far as the same have been removed by lapse of time, changed conditions of Ocean Beach or otherwise."

Fitzgerald and his estate held the property for approximately twenty-four years under the restrictions that attached to all the property referred to as the "reserved strip." Not only were there references to these same restrictions in the deeds he received but the defendant had full knowledge of the restrictions connected with the use of the property.

On June 4 1894 the Post Hill Improvement Company conveyed to Edward S. Neilan "lot No. 1 of the park cottage bathing house lots as designated on a map of said lots by said engineer and being ten (10) feet long by six' (6) feet in depth, the same to be used for private bathing houses only and said houses to be not more than fifteen (15) feet in height and to be built in conformity to the plan of the Post Hill Improvement Company. No change of the use of said lot nor of the said height of the buildings to be erected thereon to be made without the consent of the grantors and of the owners of the lots between said lot and the beach."

The same date there was conveyed to Peter Dorsey "lot No. 7 of the park cottage bathing house lots * * * being ten (10) feet long by six (6) feet in depth (with similar restrictions as on the Neilan lot No. 1).

The said lots adjoined the northerly side of the lot conveyed to Fitzgerald on Nov. 16, 1896.

Deeds to Leverone

On June 26, 1920 Cora T. Neilan, as "attorney in fact" for Edward S. Neilan executed a quit claim deed to the defendant Leverone of "lot No. 1 of the park cottage bathing house lots as designated on a map of said lots made by Daboll & Crandall, civil engineers." It is also referred to as the same lot described in the deed from the Post Hill Improvement Company et al to Edward S. Neilan "to which deed and its contents relative to said lot No. 1, reference is expressly made."

On August 13, 1920, Thomas F. Dorsey, executor of the will of Peter Dorsey, conveyed to the defendant Leverone lot No. 7, of the park cottage bathing house lots. The description in the deed of the Post Hill Improvement Company to Peter Dorsey is incorporated by reference.

Wilkinson Obtained Consent

On October 1905, Arthur A. Wilkinson obtained from more than three fourths of the owners of the property at Ocean Beach of the reserved strip the written consent "to sell confectionery, ice cream, soda water, pop corn, cigars, etc., on the lot of land situated on the southwest corner of Bentley avenue and the main thoroughfare to the beach."

At approximately the same time, Oct. 6, 1905, the Post Hill Improvement Co., by quit claim deed conveyed to said Arthur H. Wilkinson "a certain lot of land with buildings thereon standing situated at Ocean Beach Park, in the town of New London and bounded and described as follows: Northerly by Bentley avenue; easterly by land of the city of New London; southerly by land of the estate of Patrick H. Fitzgerald; and westerly by Charles D. Boss." The land conveyed is situated northerly and easterly of the Fitzgerald lot and in the northeast corner of the reserved strip and includes lot No. 7 of the "park cottage bathing house lot" conveyed to Peter Dorsey, June 4, 1894 and lot No. 1, of said "park cottage bathing house lots" conveyed to Edward S. Neilan June 4, 1894. Wilkinson had full knowledge of the restrictions as applying to the lots so quit claimed to him. He obtained the consent of more than three-fourths of the owners of the reserved strip and the deed substantially at the same time. He evidently held the papers as the deed was not recorded until Oct. 18, 1906. The purpose of the quit claim deed is obvious. The Post Hill Improvement Co. held important restrictions and rights in connection with the Dorsey and Neilan lots. It had also subsequently conveyed certain rights of unobstructed views to Fitzgerald. The consent of three-fourths of the owners having been obtained under the restriction clause the quit claim deed was employed as a means of the conveyance.

Wilkinsons to Leverone.

On April 28, 1921, about six months after this action was brought, one Arthur H. Wilkinson and Minnie A. Wilkinson executed a quit claim deed to the defendant Leverone conveying their interest in the "same premises conveyed to Arthur H. Wilkinson, late of said town of New London, deceased, by the Post Hill Improvement Co., by its quit claim deed dated Oct. 6, 1905 and recorded in New London land records, Vol. 104, page 456." It appears from the recitals in that deed that the Arthur H. Wilkinson who was named as grantee in the quit claim deed of the Post Hill Improvement Co. of Oct. 6, 1905, was deceased at the time when the deed was executed. What interest or title Arthur H. Wilkinson and Minnie A. Wilkinson, grantors in the deed of April 28, 1921, to the defendant Leverone had in the property therein described does not appear. When this suit was brought on Oct. 21, 1920, the defendant did not have even a shadow of title to the Wilkinson property. The deed of the Wilkinsons was not executed until April 28, 1921 and about six months after this suit was brought and while it was pending. Whether the written consent to A. H. Wilkinson, therein named and since deceased, and which does not appear to have ever been on record but of which the defendant Leverone had full knowledge and notice is personal and limited to Wilkinson during his lifetime only, or whether the consent thus given passed on April 28, 1921 by the quit claim deed of the property executed by Arthur A. Wilkinson, and Minnie A. Wilkinson, as therein described, and without reference or mention of such consent or whether any title at all passed to the defendant by that deed is not involved in this case and therefore not before the court for determination, and it is unnecessary to express any opinion thereon. The only question presented is the land described in paragraph 1 to which the defendant derived title from Fitzgerald in May, 1920.

The plaintiffs are the owners of different lots on said reserved strip. They purchased the lots on said reserved strip. They purchased the lots and have erected cottages thereon for residential purposes, relying upon the general scheme of development of the property and the protection of the restrictions contained in the deeds thereof. After obtaining title from Fitzgerald the defendant erected a shed or structure and started therein a store or place of business for the sale of merchandise. Thereafter this action was brought. The complaint was served upon the defendant Oct. 21, 1920. At that time he had a structure in the nature of a shed on the premises described in paragraph 1 of the complaint which he used as a store. At the time when he erected the shed he had full knowledge of the restrictions. About a year after this action was commenced against him and while it was pending in court the defendant erected a building which is now on the land and which he has since used and is now using as a public store and conducts therein a retail mercantile business. The defendant testified that he knew of the restrictions but concluded "to take a chance" and build the present building.

Flagrant Disregard of Court.

It is difficult to imagine a more flagrant disregard and disrespect for the court and this proceeding against him than that shown by the defendant. Before he built the first structure or shed to be used as a store he was warned and had full knowledge of the restrictions connected with the property. He erected the building now on the premises after the commencement of this suit for an injunction restraining him from maintaining a store, restaurant or any place of business thereon. He was fully aware of the restrictions claimed in the complaint which had been served upon him. He says he concluded to "take a chance." He cannot now be heard to urge that the plaintiffs were guilty of laches. The suit was pending to assert the plaintiffs' right and for an injunction against the defendant. He took the chance and must abide the consequences. There is no equity in his claim.

Not Called "Casino Lot."

The defendant claims that the lot in question was called the "Casino lot" and was not included as a part of the "reserved strip." It was referred to in different ways in different deeds. In none of them from which the defendant claims title is there any mention of a "Casino lot." There claim of the defendant that the "Casino Lot" was not included as a part of the reserved strip and not subject to the restrictions imposed upon the owners of the other fifty lots in such strip is without foundation. The general scheme under which such restrictions were made extended to the entire strip so reserved. It was so treated by all having dealings with the property. It was specially inserted in the deed to Fitzgerald and by reference in the deed from his trustees to the defendant. It was evidently considered as applying to the entire northeasterly corner of the property in October 1905 when Wilkinson obtained the consent of thirty owners "to sell confectionery, ice cream, soda water, pop corn, cigars, etc., on the lot of land conveyed to him." The reservation in the Fitzgerald deeds was in pursuance of the general scheme of development and was for the benefit of all the lots in the reserved strip, including the plaintiffs. The whole scheme was to keep by proper restriction the reserved strip free from all places used as stores or any other business purpose. The reserved strip situated as it is upon the beach is valuable and provides attractive residential sites. It was developed for that purpose by the promoters. It was publicly announced by Thomas M. Waller and others who were connected with the Post Hill Improvement company and all purchasers of the property were told that they could rely on the fact that the reserved strip would never be commercialized and no business would ever be allowed except by consent of three-fourths of the owners thereof. Each purchaser of the lots of the strip is restricted and the restriction is for the benefit of each and all of the residents or owners of the lots. It was intended to cover all the land in the reserved strip and the restrictions were for the purpose of rendering more beneficial the use and occupation of the property for residential purposes. The plaintiffs are the owners and occupiers of lots in such strip. They are subject to and have the right to enforce the restriction. Baker vs. Lunde 96 Conn. 530.

The scheme has never been abandoned in any essential feature. The defendant appears to claim that the Post Hill Improvement Co., in its deed to Wilkinson passed all its interest in the whole "Casino lot." It conveyed what is stated in the deed which is a certain lot of land with buildings situated at Ocean Beach Park and expressly bounded by the land of Fitzgerald. By no stretch of imagination can the deed be extended to include anything on or connected with the Fitzgerald lot.

The restrictions imposed in the deed of the Post Hill Improvement Co., to Fitzgerald was not imposed for the personal benefit of the Post Hill Improvement Company but created an equitable right appurtenant to all the land in the reserved strip. The Post Hill Improvement Company after the sale of its interest to Fitzgerald has no power to discharge or affect the restrictions and the equitable right of lot owners to enforce them. Baker vs. Lunde, supra 538,539.

The issues are found in favor of the plaintiff.

An injunction should be issued restraining and enjoining the defendant from maintaining a store, restaurant or any place of business on the premises described in paragraph 1, of the complaint, and from using any building on the land described in paragraph 1 of the complaint as a public bath house, store, restaurant or for any other business purpose.

Judgment is entered accordingly.

MINISTERS OF COUNTY ENJOY HELPFUL CONFERENCE

A "quiet day" for fellowship and consultation was held Wednesday at the Central Baptist church, practically all Protestant ministers of New London county and a number from nearby counties attending the sessions during the day and listening to inspirational addresses. The meeting was the third annual meeting of the ministry of the county and the experiment has met with success and has become a feature of the religious life of the county.

In the absence of Rev. Henry M. Thompson, D. D. general chairman, moderator of the Thames Valley Baptist ministers' meeting, who was ill, the service was opened by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. Following the devotional exercises and welcome by Rev. Dr. Pitt, an address, The Life and Work of the Minister, was delivered by Rt. Rev. Edward C. Acheson, D. D., suffragan bishop of the diocese of Connecticut. Bishop Acheson made it clear that the word, "minister," has kept its primal meaning of humble service. In his address he pointed out that effective work grows out of a right life. The address was then discussed by Rev. Gordon F. Bailey, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott and others.

The day's topic, The Church and the Home, was then taken up by Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Norwich, who impressed upon the minds of his audience fundamental things that link the church with the home, particularly stressing the value of the family altar. Discussions of this topic were given by Rev. Dr. J. Beveridge Lee of New London, Rev. Charles S. Nightingale of Moosup and Rev. A. N. Foster of Norwich, personal experiences being cited. An impressive session of prayer, led by Rev. Prof. Edward M. Chapman of Connecticut college closed the morning session.

At noon a delightful luncheon was served by the ladies of the Central Baptist church, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London being in charge of the luncheon meeting. The after response was made by Rev. J. Eldred Brown of Norwich, who voiced the appreciation of the ministers for the hospitality shown them by the Central church and especially by the ladies of the church. After lunch the continuation committee, reported through Rev. Henry W. Hulbert of Groton who recounted incidents in the early meetings of Protestant ministry of the county.

The afternoon session was opened with a talk on Religion in the School, by Prof. Henry A. Tirrell, principal of Norwich Academy, this being followed up by a talk on Religion in College, by President Marshall, D. D., of Connecticut college, much information of value being given in these two addresses. The Restored Family Altar, was the subject assigned to Rev. P. M. Kerridge, who pointed out its value in the religious life of the community.

The closing talks were on A Practical Program for the Home and the Church, and were given by Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, D. D., Rev. Myron R. Denison and Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D. D. Dr. Howe in his talk pointed out the need of preaching and studying theology in connection with religion and said that the work of Christ was dependent on every minister for as the minister preaches and does, his church will do and the work of the kingdom will either go ahead or go back. A closer preaching of the truths of the Bible is what the world needs, he said in closing.

The session closed at 4.30 o'clock with a hymn and benediction by Rev. Dr. Howe, hoping soon for one of the most successful held in the history of the New London county association.

NURMI WILL BEGIN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN ON INDOOR TRACKS

New York, Jan. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Not content with reaching heights of fame and brilliancy such as no other star in track history has ever reached, Paavo Nurmi, erstwhile paperhanger of Helsingfors, who raced to world's glory last night in his American debut, has mapped out a campaign which will carry his flying feet through a good portion of the east and middle west during the next few months.

The phantom Finn will make his next appearance a week from tonight when he competes in a special race at the Municipal A. A. games on the Madison Square Garden track which he tred last night in conquering his foremost rivals, Joie Ray and Willie Ritola, and smashing three world's records in two races.

With only a train ride intervening, Nurmi will shift his course to Chicago, the following night, January 6, when he has agreed to race at the Illinois Athletic club meet and again match strides with Ray, doughty little American who ran the greatest mile of his career last night in a gallant but vain attempt to catch the Finn.

Nurmi will complete this month's program by running on successive nights at the Millrose A. A. carnival here, January 27 and 28, and three days later is expected to appear at the Boston A. A. games his program for next month already includes races at the Wilco A. A. meet here, February 7, and the Johns-Hopkins fifth regiment meet at Baltimore, February 23, for which he was signed today.

Praise and acclamation were heaped in unprecedented measure today by critics upon the sandy-haired Nordic marvel, but Nurmi took it all modestly and with the calmness characteristic of his personality.

The keynote of the superlative comment showered upon Nurmi was recognition of the ease with which he won his first two American races last night, looking over his shoulder and easing up as he led Ray to the finish in the greatest mile ever run indoors, and less than two hours later, sprinting away from his countryman, at 5,000 meters in a second burst of world's record speed. His achievement was all the more remarkable in the light of the fact that both Ray and Ritola, giving every ounce of their speed and stamina, were themselves inside the records which Nurmi displaced. In the mile, Nurmi, Ray, Lloyd and Hahn and Jimmy Connolly, who finished in that order, all were inside 4.17, an unprecedented occurrence in the memory of track veterans.

Nurmi himself, commenting briefly on his races, substantiated the impression that he was not extended in either event, although it marked his first competitive appearance indoor. The graceful frictionless rythem, of his space-devouring stride, his wonderful stamina and apparently boundless reserve speed astounded old-timers and demonstrated that Nurmi, in spite of swift changes in climate and conditions, had lost none of the dazzling speed he flashed in the Olympics six months ago.

Veterans who saw Nurmi last night for the first time were practically unanimous in proclaiming him supreme among all distance runners, including such stars of bygone days as Alfred Shrubb, the famous Englishman, Hannes Kohlemainen, Another Finn those star faded into oblivion in the last Olympics; Mel Sheppard, noted middle distance ace, and such famous milers as John Paul Jones, Norman Thonger and Abel Kiviat.

Sheppard was among the stars of other days who saw Nurmi last night while others included Tom Hapin and Arthur Duffey, of Boston; George Bonhag, who still holds several distance records; Billy Kramer, Maxey Long, still possessor of the quarter-mile record on a straightaway; Ernie Hjertberg, Swedish trainer; and Harry Frederick, once holder of the mile championship.

A. A. U. officials, who contributed much to the success of the Finnish-American games, left no doubt of the official sanction for Nurmi's records as well as the three sprint marks hung up by Loren Murchison and the 500-metre record set by Alan Helffrich. Record applications were made out at the conclusion of the meet with such dispatch that Nurmi, when asked to sign his blanks, manifested astonishment. It takes at least a year in Finland, he said, to pass upon records.

CHAPMAN PLAYS KILLINGLY TEAM ON FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 7.—A nemesis of a year ago, will be encountered by the Chapman Technical High school basketball team at the school floor on Friday night, Killingly High which proved to be the master of the Red and Black last season by taking the locals into camp twice during the course of the season comes here on Friday to register again in victories.

Tech has found the road unusually rough in the past two games, and the result is that two losses have been enacted to date. A humiliating defeat at the hands of Deep River High last week had turned the attention of the Tech mentor to perfecting a stronger defense. This particular phase of the game found Tech woefully weak and unable to operate against the forward work of the Deep River players. Deep River operated with a larger degree of success as a result of the lax work of the Whalers.

How successful Killingly has been during the past season is unknown, little news coming from the upstate team asserting their ability. However the Tech quintet is cautious, giving out no feeling of victory if they expect one on Friday. Only hard work has featured the preliminary workouts of the Chapman Tech team, with some improvement noted in the all around work. It gives the Tech supporters a sense of security to think that the team will give the same performance which was the watchword of last season's quintet.

No changes are apparent, for Hewitt at center, Andrews and Hicks at the forward berths, and Montgomery and Knox in the back court were used in the scrimmages against the second team during the past week. This combination is a fixture, and more time is being spent on improving the pass work of the team to make the quintet a more dangerous team. This game will be followed by numerous other games scheduled for this month, making this month the busiest of the entire three during the basketball season.

MARTIN OUSTED FROM RING FOR STALLING

New York, Jan. 7.—After Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, recently crowned bantamweight champion of the world, and Augie Pisano, Coney Island bantamweight, had fought almost three slow rounds of a six-round bout at the Ridgewood A. C., Brooklyn, tonight, the referee waved the men to their corners and declared a "no contest."

The referee warned Martin in the first round, accusing the champion of pulling his punches. Both men continued through a slow second, and into the third round, when the bout was stopped.

The crowd booed the champion from the start of the fight.

The fight was slow from the start, both men pulling their punches and making no effort, in the opinion of those at the ringside. Clinches and wrestling featured the fight.

Shortly after the bell sounded for the start of the third round, the referee stepped between the fighters and waved them to their corners, declaring it a "no contest."

Three policemen escorted the referee from the ring, but there was no disturbance other than booes and hisses for the boxers.

The bout, the first in which Martin has participated since he won the world's title, was for the benefit of the Christmas fund.

Martin weighed 115 pounds and Pisano 122.

In the semi-final Vincent (Pepper) Martin scored a technical knockout over Billy Miller in the sixth round. They are junior lightweights.

Ted Blatt, of St. Paul, drew with Jackie Gordon, of Brooklyn in a six-round featherweight preliminary.

McEWAN REAPPOINTED COACH AT WEST POINT

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Announcement was made today of the reappointment of Capt. John J. McEwan as head coach of the army football team for the 1925 season.

Captain McEwan has served here as head coach for the last two years. In 1923 Army played a scoreless tie with the Navy, its chief rival, but in the season just passed McEwan turned in a winner when Navy went down to a 2-0 defeat.

Captain McEwan, who was graduated from the Military Academy in 1917 played four years as a cadet of the Army eleven. During that time Army won from the Navy four years in succession. McEwan was selected as All-American center in 1914. He captained the Army eleven in 1916.

YANKEES TAKE 13 PITCHERS TO FLORIDA

New York, Jan. 6.—The New York Yankees today announced they would take a squad of 13 pitchers to their training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., this spring, including six survivors of the 1924 squad and seven newcomers. The club also announced it had released Pitchers George Pipgras to the Atlanta club of the Southern Association and Walter Roettger to the St. Paul club of the American association. Al Mamaux, veteran hurler who saw most of his service in the National league before joining the Yankees, also will be released to a Class AA club soon.

The hold-overs in the 1925 training corps comprise Waite Hoyt, Bob Shawkey, Sam Jones, Herb Pennock, Walter Beall, youngster obtained last year from Rochester in the International league; and Osborn Gardner, University of Washington star, who joined the Yankees at the close of last season.

The list of newcomers is headed by Urban Shocker, spitball star secured from St. Louis. The others are Ray Francis, former Detroit and Washington southpaw, and Monroe Schwartz, both obtained from Atlanta; Henry Cullop, purchased from Omaha; Henry Johnson, from Bradentown, Fla.; Joseph Maley, from Richmond, Va.; and John Bradley, a free agent, hailing from Little Falls, N. Y.

COMMISSION COMPLIMENTS KAPLAN ON TITLE

New York, Jan. 6.—The New York state athletic commission, in a letter to Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., winner of the featherweight elimination tournament to determine a world's champion in the 126-pound division, formally declared Kaplan the world's champion and proclaimed him the "most capable of the class."

The letter, evidently intended to remove any doubt from Kaplan's mind as to his eligibility for the world's title, in view of the charges of Latrobe Cogswell, chairman of the Maryland state athletic commission and president of the N. B. A. says in part:

"No title in the history of professional boxing has been won in competition so independent, widely distributed and free from influences or suspicion.

"We accordingly recognize you as the featherweight champion of the world; a recognition under the circumstances you are entitled to and will receive from the public at large."

The letter was signed by the three commissioners and Colonel J. J. Phelan, chairman of the license commission.

PLAINFIELD TO PLAY SUB BASE FRIDAY

The fast Army and Navy club team held a fast workout at the Plainfield Community House Monday night. The boys were run through a hard drill and had shooting practice for a half hour. Manager Lester Salisbury reports that his team will be in good condition for the game Friday night with the Submarine Base quintet. Benjamin, the crack forward, will be out of the lineup the rest of the season as he has two fingers on his right hand split. Although handicapped by the loss of Benjamin the team showed snappy work Monday and the local fans feel confident that the boys will annex another scalp Friday night.

WALKER OUTPOINTS M'TIGUE IN SLUGGING MATCH IN NEWARK ARENA

Newark, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, stepped two notches out of his class and outpointed Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight, in a rather tame 12-round no-decision encounter in the Newark armory tonight. It was a battle between a fighter and a boxer and the fighter won, according to a majority of newspapermen at the ringside.

Walker was the aggressor all through the milling but he was handicapped by McTigue's height and reach. There were no knockdowns and except for a small cut over McTigue's right eye, no marks showed on either principal.

McTigue, a head taller than his youthful opponent and enjoying a greater reach and ten pounds in weight, fought purely a defensive fight except for a few skirmishes which did little or no damage. On the other hand Walker fought with a bull dog tenacity which virtually made the fight.

Rushing his heavier foe, Walker punched with his right and left to the head and body but McTigue, a clever boxer, sparred his way out of the situation when it became unpleasant for him and took what landed without a whimper, giving ground at every blow but always remaining vertical.

Walker tried to put the light heavyweight champion away, using everything in his power to overwhelm McTigue but the veteran, an old master, handled the situation cleverly without regard to customers.

The welter king worked at top speed during most of the encounter, only slowing when his task became hopeless. Then McTigue opened up but his aggressiveness was brief and he relegated himself to his defensive shell again when Walker began to push.

The fans were disappointed with the encounter. Toward the latter part of the fight the crowd began to hoot and howl and the exit for the doors started as early as the eighth round.

The Preliminaries.

Bobby Barrett, hard-hitting Philadelphia welterweight, knocked out Jack Rappaport, of Newark in the eighth round of a scheduled ten round match. The match was even up to that point. A terrific right floored Rappaport and he was out for several minutes.

In a ten-round preliminary to the Walker-McTigue fight Harry Martone, Jersey City middleweight, decisively outpointed Charlie Arthurs, of Newark.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE TAKES MEASURE OF FLOTILLA

In a game that was marred by a large amount of unnecessary roughness on the part of the visiting team the Army-Navy Five of Taftville chalked up a 28 to 18 victory over the Submarine Base Five at Parish hall Tuesday evening. The chief offenders of the Base team were Compton and Lewis, the two forwards of the visitors. Taftville made eight of the many fouls that were called on the Base team count and is more than all the rest of the games played this season.

Harry Mills and Harris were the shining lights of the Army-Navy team, the former scoring 10 points and the latter 6. George Coleman also played a good guard game. In fact, the entire local team showed brilliantly compared to their performances against the last two teams played here. The Army-Navy team will lose the service of Harris who leaves shortly for the west where he will enter Haskell Institute, better known as the Haskell Indians. The summary:

MEEHAN ACCEPTS POSITION AS COACH AT N. Y. U.

New York, Jan. 7.—(By the A. P.)—John F. (Chick) Meehan, coach of the Syracuse University football team for the past five seasons; was appointed to a similar capacity by New York University today under a three-year contract. Meehan will succeed Tom Thorp, former Columbia football star, who recently resigned the post at New York University.

Meehan did not appear before the athletic governing board, which body elected him to the position today, but wired his acceptance and notified the board he would be in New York Saturday to sign a contract. Joseph K. Schwarzer, coach of freshman athletics at Syracuse and one of Meehan's coaching aids, was appointed as an assistant to Meehan but the length of his contract was not revealed.

Meehan was selected from a list of ten candidates, including Bob Fetwell, present coach of the United States Naval Academy team; "Bo" McMillan, former Center college star and present coach of the Centenary college eleven; Eddie Butler, former Cornell football captain; Fred Dawson, coach at the University of Nebraska; Harry Stuhldreher, Notre Dame quarterback and a member of Walter Camp's 1924 all-American team; and Sol Metzger, former Pennsylvania and Washington & Jefferson coach.

William S. McCarthy, present baseball coach at New York University, will assist Meehan together with Schwarzer, but the remainder of the coaching staff will not be announced until after Meehan confers with the members of the board Saturday.

The challenger resents the selection of Fred Bretonnel, former European lightweight champion, as Dundee's opponent for the 15-round bout here on January 27, and intends to force Johnny to meet him before the latter's return to the United States.

CLAIMS RUM RUNNING TRUCKS CAN BE TAKEN

New light, sharply defining the effectiveness of the national prohibition act and its predecessor, the so-called smuggling act, or Section 3450 of the old internal revenue act in regard to all illegally transported liquor, is thrown on the subject, recently raised by the decision of Judge Thomas in the Garford Motor Truck Co., test case by United States District Attorney John Buckley. All trucks and automobiles engaged in the transportation of liquor are still subject, as formerly, to confiscation by the government under the national prohibition act, with the consequent result that the vendee is liable to the forfeiture of all his rights and interest in the transporting vehicle, said Major Buckley.

Citing the Thomas decision in the recent test case decided in favor of the Garford Motor Truck Co., as claimants and referred to the circuit court of appeals, to which the government will carry the case at its next session, Major Buckley pointed out that in this particular case Judge Thomas although holding section 3450 of the smuggling act applicable to transportation of liquors also held that constitutional vendors, the Garford people, and the New York & Boston Dispatch Co., were innocent and consequently should not be forced to lose their interest in the confiscated machines.

Major Buckley said that this test case when decided by the circuit court of appeals, will establish a legal precedent and will definitely settle whether or not action can be brought under Section 3450 of the smuggling act. He differentiated between the two prosecuting procedures by pointing out that under the national prohibition act only the interest of the vendee can be confiscated, while under the smuggling act and all persons interested must suffer the loss of their respective interests.

He said that section 3450 was much more powerful as a deterrent with the fear of the loss of the entire value of the transporting vehicle.

A former claim contested the validity of Section 3450 in regard to liquor transportation, maintaining that the passage of the national prohibition act automatically repealed the former statute. Then congress in 1921, re-enacted Section 3450 and the United States district attorney's office has since acted under this validity at its discretion.

The case, when it comes before the next session of the circuit court of appeals of the second district, will determine the law on all such cases for Connecticut, New York and Vermont.

Stiff Joints Now Limbered Up By New Oil Formula

Remarkable New Discovery Gives Quick, Soothing Relief For Creaky, Swollen, Painful Joints

German chemistry that has given to the world aspirin for headache pain and novocaine for painless dentistry has now come forward with another discovery that makes enlarged, swollen, pain-racked joints a thing of the past. A combination of certain oils, known as Buhler Oil, has been discovered, which is simply rubbed on and disappears in a few seconds, showing how quickly it penetrates and is absorbed by the tissues. Even in the most severe and stubborn cases, almost instant relief has been obtained.

Swollen, painful and distorted stiff joints, whether it be in the ankle, knee, thigh, shoulder, neck, wrist, elbow or fingers of your hand, are due to some infection which has involved the tissue lining of the joints. This, in most instances can be traced to internal poisons, such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth or a diseased tonsil giving off poisons, which are carried in the blood to the joints thereby setting up an infection of the delicate membrane lining the joints and causing the joints to become enlarged, swollen, creaky and extremely painful. Buhler Oil, when applied to the affected joints is readily absorbed by the tissues and penetrates quickly to the aching joint, neutralising the pain-causing poisons in much the same way as Milk of Magnesia neutralizes an acid stomach, giving instant relief.

Get a bottle of Buhler Oil today and try a few applications in one evening. It gives quick results because it is instantly absorbed and contains a special ingredient which at once penetrates to the poison infected membrane in the pain-causing swollen joint. Your druggist has it and we guarantee it to help you or it costs you nothing. Sold by Lee & Osgood, Andrew McLaughlin, J. A. Morgan, G. G. Engler, Geo. M. Rathbone.

by a unique election. He said the senators had been elected by the people to consider and enact laws with impartiality, fairness and in their best judgment. He assured every senator that the door of his office would be open to them if they wished to see and talk with him.

Advice by Speaker Darbie.

Mr. Darbie, speaker in the house, also made a response to his election, saying that many bills would be presented for consideration. He said: "You will be called upon to appropriate vast sums of money for various purposes, and to raise money by various forms of taxation. In considering these questions it will be well to follow the custom of five last general assemblies in adopting a 'pay-as-you-go policy.' While, however, economy is our watch word it must not be confused with parsimony. Our officers and employes must have adequate salaries, and proper facilities, that they may perform efficiently their duties. Our highways and institutions must be maintained, our unfortunates cared for, our youths educated. Therefore, when appropriations for these purposes are asked for, they should receive your careful consideration, and the most necessary and meritorious your support.

"We should remember that we have taken an oath to support the constitution of the United States and of Connecticut. In all our undertakings let these two grand old documents be our rule and guide, ever remembering the rights and liberties therein guaranteed. Guard jealously these rights and liberties, and avoid encroachment upon them, either by the scented bail of federal air appropriations or by constitutional amendments tending towards a centralization of power in federal government.

"Legislation will never make men perfect and measures advanced by more theorists which tend toward socialism, or across out to Utopia, should meet with your instant disapproval. Keep before you a mental picture of the American flag, with its red stripes symbolic of the heroes blood that has been shed for it; with its lily-white stripes and stars, emblematical of peace and purity; with its blue field signifying the liberties we enjoy. And keep this triumvirate of colors distinct in the form in which they are blended. We want no red flag of anarchy or bolshevism; no white flag of cowardice or weakness; never these alone; but always joined to the blue field of liberty."

During the morning business in the house Judge Holcomb who was elected speaker twenty years ago today sat on the speaker's dais. In the respective branches the presiding officer recognized Senator Cronin and Mr. Alling, of New Britain to make the motions indicative of the positions they will hold as party floor leaders, and as senate and house chairmen of the judiciary committee.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

NORWICH ROTARY CLUB

GOV. BINGHAM'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Hartford, Jan. 7.—Following is the inaugural address of Governor Hiram Bingham delivered today before the joint session of the general assembly:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker and Members of the General Assembly:

The constitution of Connecticut provides that the governor "shall from time to time give to the general assembly information of the state of the government and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall deem expedient". It has long been the custom to regard this occasion as one of those referred to in the constitution.

In preparing this message I have been mindful of the fact that a tragic and unforeseen circumstance altered the ideas of a majority of the people of this state as to the manner in which they wished me to serve them during the coming two years. I suppose that seldom does a lieutenant-governor fail to indulge in the hope that some day his fellow citizens may select him as the governor of our beloved state, the highest honor which its people can confer. Believing as I do in Connecticut and in the principles of state sovereignty and state responsibility, it gave me the greatest possible satisfaction to receive the honor of an election as governor. I looked forward to being able to confer with you, for months to come, as to such measures and appointments as might best succeed in enabling our people to secure justice and enjoy freedom. Unfortunately, for these plans, a state convention of the same party which had given me a nomination to this office, unanimously asked me to accept a nomination for a post of less dignity though possibly of no less opportunity for public service. As one who has for many years believed in the Connecticut system of representative government wherein the people are accustomed to indicate their wishes through properly chosen representatives, I felt in duty bound to accept the decision of that convention. It is known to you that at a special election held December sixteenth I was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of the senior senator from Connecticut, the Honorable Frank B. Brandegee.

Although there is no law which prevents a citizen from holding simultaneously a federal and a state office, and although the governor of a great neighboring state at one time did hold the position of United States senator and that of governor for a period of nearly a year, it does not appear to be that such an act is in accordance with sound views of the proper relationship between the federal and state governments. Consequently it is my intention, before qualifying as a United States senator, to resign from the office of governor. Our constitution provides that "in case of the resignature of the governor the lieutenant-governor shall exercise the powers and authority pertaining to the office of governor. Consequently in the preparation of this message it has seemed to me proper to consult with the new lieutenant-governor and to refrain from making such suggestions or recommendations for your consideration as do not meet with his approval. Furthermore, I have omitted certain subjects in which he is particularly interested, in the belief that he will see fit at some later date to transmit to you his own personal recommendations in regard to these as well as other matters. He is known to all of you. He is thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the state. My knowledge of his ability and his character leads me to believe that when it is his pleasure to address you you will give careful and sympathetic attention to all of his recommendations and suggestions.

Law and Order

The lawmakers of Connecticut from the earliest times have tried to discover those true and right principles which ought to be embodied in the written law. In our republic the law is the real ruler. We do not believe in giving much power to any one man. We have learned to mistrust the weakness of human nature. We are proud of the fact that our republic is one of laws and not of men. We believe in a government based on just laws rather than on the wishes of well-meaning human beings. The desire to achieve results quickly, the desire for a smooth-running, efficient governmental machine sometimes leads our citizens to grant great powers to government bureaus. We forget that history teaches us that bureaucracy tends toward tyranny and works away from freedom. This nation was established in order to secure liberty and justice. For this purpose we try to discover those laws which are right and to correct those which are wrong. For this purpose we maintain law and order. Society rests on law. Orderly government cannot exist without obedience to law. It is our duty to do all in our power to see that the constitution of the United States, and that of our state, and all the laws regulating our republic be respected and enforced. Anything which leads to disrespect for law and disregard for its enforcement strikes at the roots of our institutions.

New Laws

It is frequently said that the states of the American Union make a prodigious number of laws in every biennial period. There is a tendency more and more to take over into the field of positive law spheres of human action which were formerly unhampered by legal restrictions. Zealous reformers, without giving much thought to the extent to which wise public policy may properly permit some phases of human activity to be left to self-control or community restraint, are anxious for the passage of new legislation. Let us remember there is a point beyond which legal restraint cannot be carried without placing too great a strain on the machinery and agencies of government. In our zeal for righteousness and justice we must not build up administrative and bureaucratic power at the expense of individual liberty and the proper, wholesale freedom of the citizen. The greatest force behind any truly creative and happy society is free individualism.

When a new law is proposed let us ask: Does it further curtail individual liberty? Is it required for the maintenance of public safety and order? Will it encourage self-reliance in the individual citizen or will it lead him to become more dependent on the government? Will it build up his respect for law and lead him to practice obedience to law or will it tend to make him despise the law and seek means for evading it? Will it tend to foster his loyalty to the principles of representative government, for which Connecticut has stood for so many years? The answers to these questions should enable you to determine the wisdom of proposed new legislation. President Coolidge was right when he said: "We do not need more laws." This is not to say that our laws are perfect or that they do not need to be improved, but it does point to the unwisdom of that indiscriminate recourse to legislation which needs to be checked.

The Treasurer

The very great misfortune which befell the state through the astonishing activities of a former state treasurer, led us to fear that the state might be among the many who were relatively heavy losers. Fortunately our bi-partisan audit system proved itself to be a splendid safeguard and our auditors of public accounts deserve praise for their success in protecting the state. It appears that the books and accounts of the state are well kept and the methods used to check up the different departments and institutions are such as to guard the state against loss. One loop-hole, however, has been discovered it is recommended that this be closed by the passage of a law which would relieve the state treasurer of being solely responsible for the selection of state depositaries and which would also make it improper for him to deposit state moneys in a bank with which he or any member of his department is actively connected. It is also recommended that an investment board be created, whose duties would be to have charge of the investment of state trust funds.

Commission of Sculpture

The commission of sculpture has during the past two years secured and placed upon the west front of the state capitol figures of Colonel Humphreys and General Wooster. These figures complete the decoration of that side of the capitol and satisfactorily aid in presenting the Revolutionary history of the state. It is the plan of the commission to proceed with the work on the south front by placing there statues of citizens who were distinguished in the history of the state during the nineteenth century. It is evident that the bronze statues of Nathan Hale and Governor Buckingham should be removed from the capitol and placed in proper locations on the state grounds.

State Library

Connecticut was most fortunate in the planning and erecting of the building for the state library and supreme court. Not only have these institutions been adequately provided for, but state and local public officials are here furnished with a safe and convenient depository for such files and papers as are not in current use. Under the direction of our efficient state librarian, important official archieves and records are already being arranged, rebaired, indexed and made accessible. Timely and intelligent assistance is given in methods of making and caring for current records. Here also are being assembled through the assistance of individuals and patriotic societies important historical collections setting forth Connecticut's part in the World war and the wars which preceded it.

State Departments

The constant growth of certain departments and the difficulty of persuading any of them to diminish or decrease their activities causes overcrowding in the capitol and the adjoining buildings. There is not at present sufficient room for the proper carrying on of the departments which have been authorized by previous general assemblies. Whether you will find that certain departments can be curtailed with advantage to the people of the state and an increase in the responsibilities and duties of town and county governments is an interesting speculation. In any case, it is important that the general assembly should give serious consideration to the present crowded condition of the capitol.

Department of Motor Vehicles

During the past two years the department of motor vehicles has made most satisfactory progress. It is now recognized throughout the country as a model of efficiency and serviceability. We all know of the extraordinary and phenomenal growth in the use of motor vehicles. The problems which are daily confronting this department are difficult and many of them absolutely new. The number of serious and fatal accidents which are happening to our citizens through the increase in the use of motor vehicles is not diminishing. The most brilliant minds of the scientific world have spent generations in studying disease, in order to prolong human life. It seems a cruel fate that in our fight for life, while we are gaining in one particular, we are losing in another. There is no greater field for far-sighted legislation than in the possibilities for so regulating motor vehicle traffic as to permit of its proper growth while at the same time protecting our citizens from injury and death.

Our railroad corporations long ago learned the lesson that no one who used intoxicating liquor should operate a train. Yet many trains do not go as fast as it is possible to operate a motor vehicle on our highways. A question for you to consider is whether the safety of our citizens would not be materially advanced by increasing the minimum penalities for those who operate automobiles without a proper license or when under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

There has been a natural feeling of resentment against the passage of any law which would require the holder of an operator's license to produce it whenever required to do so by a properly accredited officer of the law. It seems to me that the time has come for you to consider whether or not the promotion of public safety does not now require the passage of such a law. Surely we cannot permit the enormous number of injuries and the large number of fatalities to continue without making strenuous efforts to conserve the lives of our citizens. There is no question that individual liberty must be curtailed when this is demanded by the public safety.

Highway Department

Our highway department is in good hands and is being admirably conducted. The codification of highway laws is a matter which will be brought to your attention and should receive earnest consideration. The establishment along state highways of a building line is also recommended. This should provide room for parking outside of the highway limits and in case of future widening there would be no expensive buildings to be torn down. There is no question but that in the future state highways will have to be wider. Provisions should be made at this time for obtaining the necessary right of way. Where there is sufficient traffic to warrant it, provisions might well be made for future pavement widths which would provide four lanes, one each for slow and fast moving traffic going in either direction. It is recommended that in all cases the width of the right of way determined on should not only provide for estimated future highway traffic but should also provide for pedestrian traffic.

One of the most striking traffic problems arises from the steady growth in the use of public highways for commercial purposes. When our roads were first improved so as to enable stage coaches and expresses to use them, they were almost without exception toll roads. With the advent of the railroad the necessity for toll roads diminished and it was possible for a community to provide free roads for all who cared to use them. With the perfection of the commercial motor vehicle and the steadily increasing use of heavy motor trucks there again comes before us the question of how far it is right to tax the people of the state for the benefit of the motor transport interests who use the roads for purpose of gain. Our industrial prosperity and the success of cooperative farming depend in large measure on the ability of heavy duty motor trucks to use our roads. At the same time every one can see that it is the heavy motor trucks which do the greatest amount of damage to our roads and cause the heaviest expenditure for repairs. It may be necessary to give the highway department more power to limit the weight of vehicles on different classes of roads and to restrict their speed so as to preserve the highways for the use of the largest number and to safeguard travel. It is certainly impossible for the state to build all of its highways so that each can carry maximum loads This would be a tremendous waste of money.

Another serious question demanding your attention is whether the frequent use of our roads by the commercial vehicles of neighboring states is a proper burden for our citizens to bear. Every large city in the states north and east of us maintains daily truck services across Connecticut to New York City. It seems to me that permitting commercial vehicles to use our roads free of expense places an unnecessary burden on our taxpayers. The passage of legislation to remedy this situation is recommended.

Department of Labor

Our state department of labor has become increasingly useful and efficient in dealing with the diverse and perplexing questions that arise between employers and employes. In this age of machinery the safety of the public demands that adequate attention be paid to such matters. Our inspectors are recognized both by manufacturers and operatives as being of genuine service in promoting justice and happiness.

Workmen's Compensation Act

It appears that the workmen's compensation act passed by the general assembly some ten years ago has been of great benefit and has relieved much suffering and improved the conditions of employment very materially. During the past two years the insurance companies, and self-insurers, report having paid out to sufferers arranged, rehabred

WESTERLY

Westerly people won't have to guess any more how hard the wind blew or which way it was at any time during the day or night hereafter. The C. W. Campbell Co., off West Broad street, Pawcatuck, will solve the problem for them. Wednesday, workmen erected on the top of their huge grain elevator, 100 feet above the ground a self-recording automatic anemometer, which makes a 24-hour record in the company's office, the results of which Manager Harvey C. Perry states will answer the questions of inquirers. The nearest known instrument of the kind, with the possible exception of Wakefield, R. I., is located on Block Island. With the self recording certified thermometer of Dr. Edwin R. Lewis and the Campbell Co. anemometer, it will be practically impossible for anyone not to know just what the weather is and was. Then, too, perhaps, if records are kept as long and as accurately as have been those of the eclipses, it will be possible to predict just what the weather will be locally.

Westerly Painters' Union, Local No. 194, held a meeting at Caledonian hall Tuesday evening. The meeting was called to order by President Jere McMahon, with John Sisson secretary. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Frank Roche; vice president, Jere McMahon; recording secretary, John Sisson; financial secretary, John Foley; treasurer, William Higgins; business agent, Thomas Whalen; trustees, George Kemp, Joseph Lamb and William Kitchen. Following the election lunch was served and was followed by a smoker and social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kroener and daughter of Wakefield, left Wednesday night on the Everglades limited express for Daytona, Fla., to pass the winter months, being the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Clarke, before leaving town. Last year Mr. Kroener and family passed the winter at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Harvey C. Perry has returned to Westerly from Pennsylvania where he was in attendance at the funeral of a relative.

Miss Hattie S. Clark and Miss Florence Clark of Shannock were automobile visitors in Westerly Tuesday.

George O. Murphey of Pawcatuck left Tuesday evening for New York to attend the automobile show.

Dr. Frances A. Bliven of Woodville, was a Westerly business caller Tuesday evening.

Cav. Vito Fiamigiletta of Providence the grand master of the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island Sons of Italy, was in Westerly early in the week on official business connected with the order.

George E. Chapman, who has been ill for several days, was able to be out on Tuesday.

William J. Battey of New Rochelle, N. Y., arrived in Westerly on Tuesday evening for a visit to the Pawcatuck Woolen Mills plant in Potter Hill and his cottage at Watch Hill, before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Daley of New York have been guests of Joseph Dalay for several days.

A stalled freight train, east bound, Wednesday afternoon, caused the afternoon east-bound express to stop at the Westerly station on the westbound track.

David Novogrod, owner of the Westerly Opera House, which was burned to the ground Saturday morning, plans to build another bigger, modern theatre on the site of the old theatre, but evidently he is up against opposition in the amusement field. For on Tuesday, the United Theatres of America, an Eastern corporation that controls a chain of motion picture and vaudeville theatre in the East, announced that a theatre will be erected on the Nardone lot, corner of High and Canal streets, near Dr. Ruissi's home on High street. The theatre will be erected as soon as possible, and will be 58 feet wide and 155 feet in depth. It will be a three-story building in which a department store would be housed as well as some modern offices. The seating capacity of the theatre is announced at 1400 or 400 more than the theatre that Mr. Novogrod is to erect.

Mr. Novogrod has already started on plans for the construction of his new fire-proof theatre.

Louis H. Goddard of New York, a well known theatre architect, was in town Monday, and suggested to Mr. Novogrod the erection of a brick theatre of Colonial design which will have a total seating capacity of 1200. There will be between 700 and 800 seats on the orchestra floor, with about 400 seats in the mezzanine floor, which will be of horseshoe shape.

A definite decision as to the exact location of this new theatre has not been made. Representatives of the Worcester Realty Co., which owns the Potter-Langworthy building, were in town and offered Mr. Novogrod all the land at the rear of this building, with an entrance facing on High street.

In addition to this offer, Mr. Novogrod has been granted options on two other sites near the center of the town. He also has possession of the land where the Opera House stood.

Derived from the type of the architecture, Mr. Novogrod plans to name his new theatre The Colonial.

ORGANIZATION SESSION OF 1925 CONNECTICUT GENERAL ASSEMBLY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, Jan. 7—House was called to order by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson, speaker of the house in 1924, with but a few absentees. The roll was called by Deputy Secretary of State Lounsbury. All but one from New London county, Mrs. Raymond of Lyme responded. From Windham county all responded except E. L. Darbie of Killingly, who was in an adjoining room.

E. L. Averill of Branford and Mrs. Lewis of Stamford were named as temporary clerks. Rep. Procter of Bozrah was appointed one of the four tellers.

The vote for speaker resulted in 209 votes for Elbert L. Darbie of Killingly and 18 votes for James E. Bransfield of Portland. Mr. Darbie was declared elected.

He was escorted to the platform by the committee and his entrance was greeted with applause.

Mr. Darbie in his remarks to the house of representatives said: "While it is with a feeling of regret that I shall be unable to join in your debates and to have a vote upon the questions coming before you this session; yet, when considering the unanimity with which you have chosen me to preside over your deliberations, I would be ungrateful indeed if I failed to appreciate the honor conferred and to have a just feeling of pride in the confidence bestowed upon me. I therefore take this opportunity of thanking you one and all.

"You have before you a busy session. You will be called upon to either pass or reject measures upon almost every conceivable subject; some of which have merit but are impractical; any many of which have no merit at all. In voting upon these questions, you should of course use your own best judgment as to their advisibility; but when in doubt, you should remember that the committee which had them under consideration, has had a far better opportunity to judge their merits or defects, than you have had.

"You will be called upon to appropriate vast sums of money for various purposes, and to raise money by various forms of taxation. In considering these questions you will do well to follow the custom of the last five general assemblies in adopting a 'pay-as-you-go' policy and practice rigid economy. While, however, economy is to be our watch-word, it must not be confused with parsimony. Our officers and employes must have adequate salaries, and proper facilities, that they may efficiently perform their duties; our highways and institutions must be maintained; our unfortunates cared for; and our youth educated. Therefore, when appropriations for these purposes are asked, they should receive your careful consideration and the most necessary and meritorious, your support.

"We should remember that we have this morning taken an oath to support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Connecticut. In all our undertakings let these two grand old documents be our rule and guide, ever remembering the rights and liberties therein granted. Guard jealously these rights and liberties, and avoid any encroachment upon them, either by the scented bait of federal aid appropriations or by constitutional amendments tending toward a centralization of power in the federal government.

"Legislation will never make men perfect, and measures advanced by mere theorists which tend toward socialism, or a crossout to Utopia, should meet with your instant disapproval. Keep before you a mental picture of the American flag, with its red stripes symbolic of the heroes' blood that has been shed for it; with its lily-white stripes and stars emblematical of peace and purity; with its blue field signifying the liberties which we enjoy. And keep this triumvirate of colors distinct in the form in which they are now blended. We want no red flag of anarchy or bolshevism; no white flag of cowardice or weakness; never these alone, but always joined to the blue field of liberty. With this picture in mind during our deliberations, any measures which we may pass or reject, I am sure will meet the approval of our constituents."

Ballots were ordered for clerk and Daniel F. B. Hickey of Stamford received 325 votes, was declared elected. Alfred S. Bill of Hartford was by resolution appointed assistant clerk.

NEW LONDON POLICE COURT PENALIZES OFFENDING SAILORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 7.—

Judge Prince in the police court this morning handed out mere sentences to drunken sailors whose conduct was reprehensible in the extreme. The men penalized are Ove Falkenberg, Elmer J. Lawler and George Morgan, of the crew of the coast guard steamer Jouett. The gang was at the Salvation Army hotel where they made things so hot for Morris Agen, employed there as a manager that he could not submit to the treatment he received. He called the police department for assistance and the sailor toughs were hustled off to a cell in short order. In the police court today they had no excuse except the silly one that they had drank booze. That was not regarded as an excuse for disorderly conduct, nor was it considered any excuse for men in the uniform of the United States navy to conduct themselves so that force was necessary to check them. Judge Prince questioned the sailors, but they admitted that they were offenders against the laws of the land. They were fined $10 each. Morgan is a youth of but 18, so the payment of his fine was suspended. The older offenders had to settle and to do that they were compelled to draw on wages coming to them aboard ship. Morgan was given some good advice by the judge and then assurance was given that he would get aboard the Jouett and behave himself. The police complain of the annoyance that comes to them from the Salvation Army hotel because sailors who consort there are alleged to bring alcohol with them from the base and from the ships where the fluid is used in a legitimate way.

Late yesterday afternoon United States Coast Guard officer boarded the fishing schooner Aunt Edie, Capt. Rose of Block Island, while the craft was at moorage at the municipal pier, it being believed that a quantity of liquor was stored in the wells or other places of storage on the craft. A careful search of the schooner was made, but the only evidence of liquor revealed was a pint of whiskey, which was found among the effects of a member of the crew and of which the fisherman admitted ownership. No report of the search of the schooner has been made at the customs house.

Kenomac Hose Company is to have its annual banquet, the first at the Mohican hotel Thursday evening at 6 o'clock. Foreman Pollack will be toastmaster. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth will deliver the address, something the firemen and their guests are looking forward to with a good deal of pleasure for the clergyman always is interesting and instructive in what he says and he injects no little fun into his speeches on occasion where the proprieties favor that line of talk. There will be entertainers from outside the city and singing by a male quartette. The advent of the company into the second half century of its existence finds the membership united and the bonds of fellowship as strong as they were in the youthful days, when there were no gray hairs to denote the advance of time. The committee that has arranged for the banquet is composed of Foreman Pollack, Rudolph H. Sieber and Allen C. Richards.

Groton has removed the illumination from its Christmas tree that stood on the hills overlooking the Thames. The tree was admired at night from the New London side of the river.

John Carney, a boilermaker and a troublemaker, too, is to appear in the police court next Saturday and explain why he smashed a chair over the head of Annie Cuddy, formerly a Montville character and frequent patron of the police court both here and in Norwich. As might be expected, John smashed Annie's scalp when he broke the chair for her face and head resembled a lump of liver when she was taken to the hospital that she might receive treatment. Annie and John and a mutual friend, Tom Rayhould were at Annie's home on Douglass street where they are declared by the police to have imbibed whiskey till they became boisterous. Then it happened that Annie and John reached the parting of the ways and before he left her John hit her as though he was hitting a boiler rivet with a hammer. The neighborhood was aroused and the police received a hurry call to get down to Douglass street to prevent a slaughter. The Cuddy woman has been arrested many times for intoxication, but she had never fared so badly as she did last night in any spree in which she has participated. Her condition was such this morning that she could not come into court so there was no testimony against Carney that would assist in the placing of the responsibility for Annie's wounds in any satisfactory degree. A coincidence in connection with the case is that Carney obtained a savings bank book from his wife to put up as collateral to assure the surety on the bond that he would appear in court Saturday, the police made known.

James E. Barlow, former city manager here, today became a property owner of New London, for he acquired a building lot on Parkway, of Attorney John C. Geary.

Frank H. Bailey is confined to his home, 54 Maple avenue, by a severe attack of grip.

Mrs. Bertram Bruce and infant daughter of Golden street, and Timothy Riley, Willetts avenue extension, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The body of Alfred E. Rogers, formerly of Gales Ferry, whose death occurred Dec. 16th, last, at Ancon, Panama, has arrived in New London for burial in Comstock Cemetery, Montville.

As the truck started to move to the side of the road one of the East Lyme buses, operated by Walter Reynolds, came along and before Reynolds could bring the heavy bus to a stop, the machine crashed against the truck, breaking the headlights and springs of the bus. Officer Bubnick was assigned to investigate the accident and obtaining the facts ordered Longo to appear this evening at 7 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Frederick L. VERDICT FOR DEFENDENT IN DIVORCE SUIT

Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court here Wednesday morning gave a verdict for the defendant in the contested divorce suit of Stanton A. Burdick of Pawcatuck against Rhea Sisson Sauer Burdick, formerly of Stonington and now of Dorchester, Mass. They were married Nov. 13, 1922 and the suit was brought on two counts, the first alleging that the wife had compelled the marriage by fraudulent accusations as to the paternity of her child, and the second alleging adultery at Boston and other places between Jan. 1, 1923 and May 1, 1924. Annulment of the marriage and a divorce were sought.

Medical testimony by Dr. H. E. Higgins was given when the court session opened Wednesday morning and the arguments were made by Attorney H. W. Rathbun for the plaintiff and Attorney Hibbard R. Norman for the defendant. Judge Avery gave his verdict for Mrs. Burdick, stating that the evidence showed that her husband was the father of the child and there was no evidence to sustain the charge of adultery.

BIG PROMISES FOR CONNECTICUT EXPOSITION

With over 175 exhibition spaces contracted for to date the Connecticut Winter Exposition, to be held at Hartford, gives promise of being the most comprehensive and complete commercial, industrial and agricultural enterprise ever held in the state, if not New England. As one of the main purposes of the exposition is to create a public pride in the products of Connecticut, the enterprise is attracting the attention and eliciting the co-operation of practically every line of endeavor within the borders of the state. Leading manufacturers in several of the larger cities have contracted for one or more booths and will display their products in a most attractive manner. Retail merchants are large subscribers to spaces and the section of the exposition allotted to commercial lines will be one of great scope and interest. All the state departments are to make displays, as well as statewide organizations interested in agriculture, and the combined efforts of all lines will give the exposition a scope and magnitude never before attained since its inception some years ago.

MANGLED BODIES FOUND ALONG RAILROAD TRACKS

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 7.—The mangled bodies of three young men, all apparently about 18 years old, were found along the tracks of the Southern Railway near Skyland, seven miles south of here this afternoon. All were beheaded and the only identification mark was that of a Chinese firm on the cap of one victim.

The men are believed to have been struck by the Carolina special. C. O. Case, a Skyland merchant, reported that three young men had applied to him this morning for work, saying they were headed south. Officials are investigating.

SHE THREW AWAY CALOMEL AND TOOK BEECHAM'S PILLS

"I felt so miserable," said the young woman cashier in a fashionable New Jersey hotel. "A friend suggested calomel and I was about to take it.

"Another friend noticed the calomel on my desk and cautioned me against it. She said her sister took calomel and ate some fruit and the combination 'salivated' her, loosened some of her teeth and made her very sick.

"Fearing that my stomach might be in an acid condition, I bought a 25c box of Beecham's Pills and took a dose. The next day I felt fine and I haven't needed anything during the three weeks since.

"I wouldn't take anything but Beecham's now. Some of the other girls here take Beecham's and all say they are wonderful."

MARKET CLOSED REACTIONARY

New York, Jan. 7.—Stock prices turned reactionary towards the close of today's market after an early period of strength which more than two-score issues eclipsed their 1924 high prices. The reaction was widely construed as a further correction of an overbought condition.

The initial demand for stocks was based largely on the further relaxation of money rates and the suggestion in the weekly steel trade reviews of a transition from a buyers to a sellers' market for steel. Early gains ran from 1 to 7 1-2 points but these were materially reduced or cancelled before the close.

Raising of the Atchison dividend brought a flood of buying orders into other railroad stocks with promising dividend possibilities. Southern Pacific advanced 3 points to 107 3-4, the highest price since 1920, and then reacted about a point from the top. New York Central crossed 124, the best price in 15 years, but slipped back later to 122, where it was off one-half on the day. Atchison, Reading, Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line preferred and a few other rails closed a point or so lower. Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred touched 98 and then eased to 97, where it was up more than four points on the day. Western Maryland, Illinois Central and Union Pacific each closed more than a point higher.

United States Steel common declined from 123 to 121 1-2, closing just above its low price for a net loss of 1-8. American Can showed a small fractional loss at 164 3-8 after having sold as high as 166 7-8. Baldwin dropped from 133 1-8 to 130 1-4, closing 1-2 higher at 130 3-4. General Electric dropped from 312 1-2 to 307 and then rallied to 308, off 7-8. Radio Corporation closed 1 1-4 lower at 67 after having sold 3 points above that figure.

Public utilities developed several points of strength. Brooklyn Edison was run up 7 1-2 points to 133 and then fell back to 128 3-4. Federal Light and Traction closed nearly six points higher at 123 3-4. United Railways Investment common and preferred, Utah Securities, Detroit Edison, Adams Express and American & Foreign Power (25 per cent. paid) showed net gains of two to four and a half points.

Good buying also was noted in issues associated with the automobile industry. Fisher Body jumped more than 5 points to 258 1-4, Nash Motors showed a net gain of 4 1-2 at 199 3-4 and Mack Trucks common and second preferred and Goodyear Tire preferred moved up two to nearly 5 points.

Other individual strong spots included Sears Roebuck, Atlantic Refining, Beech Nut Packing, Brown Shoe, Burrows Adding Machine, The Commercial Solvents issues, Cushman and Sons, Fidelity-Phoenix International Business Machine, Iron Products, S. S. Kresge, R. H. Macy, National Supply and Westinghouse Air Brake, all up 3 to 7 points. Some of the heavy spots were American Bosch Magneto, Great Western Sugar, Manhattan Electrical Supply, United Fruit, West Penn Power and Worthington Pump, off from two to seven points.

Money was again in plentiful supply today, call loans dropping to 3 1-2 per cent., the lowest figure in weeks, after renewing at 3 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher above 4 76 1-2 and French francs were again quoted above 5.40 cents. Spanish and Norwegian currencies registered substantial gains, but the changes in the other European rates were largely nominal.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 7.—Lower money rates again stimulated bond trading today although convertible and other semi-speculative issues made a better showing than standard investment liens. Slightly higher prices for Liberty bonds reflected the ease of the money situation but other high grade obligations failed to attract much of the larger supply of available funds.

In response to a rise in the stock, Federal Light and Traction convertible sevens scored the widest gain of the day, soaring more than six points to a new high level at 123 and closing with a net advance of 4 3-4 points. Several other public utility issues, including Standard Gas 6 1-2 and North American Edison 6's improved in line with the stronger tone of utility shares.

Considerable interest was displayed in St. Paul bonds in the early trading but buying orders fell off later when the senate interstate commerce committee was informed that the road needed assistance from the government in the form of lower interest rates in view of its approaching maturities. The St. Paul Puget Sound 4's advanced 2 1-8 points.

Wilson and Company issues responded to reports that the company's re-organization plan would soon be ready and American Smelting 6's were aided by the increase in the common dividend to six per cent. Oil and sugar liens continued to work moderately higher.

Interest in new financing was increased by reports that another $50,000,000 loan for Belgium was being discussed and that Denmark might place an authorized $40,000,000 loan in this market. The Consolidated Gas Company was said to be considering the sale of $20,000,000 or more debentures. Offering of a $3,000,000 issue of Porto Rican 5 per cent. improvement bonds is being made by a local banking syndicate at prices to yield 4.30 to 5 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Active general buying carried wheat prices upward today until the May delivery commanded 1.80 per bushel but then selling to realize profits forced a reaction. The closing for wheat was unsettled at 1-8 net lower to 1 7-8 higher, May 1.79 5-8-1.79 3-4 and July 1.55 with corn 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 up, oats showing 7-8 to 1 1-2 gain and provisions at a rise varying from 17 cents to 30 cents.

Although wheat trading began with business well divided and of only moderate volume, several strong commission houses soon took an aggressive stand on the bull side of the market and were successful in attracting so many followers that prices went soaring.

Before the day's top level for future deliveries had been reached in the wheat market, cash wheat both at Kansas City and Minneapolis was commanding the highest prices yet this season and the Chicago May delivery was about 6 1-2 cents over yesterday's bottom figures. Despite the subsequent sharp reaction, a fresh upturn was in progress as the day approached an end.

Corn and oats were affected by the action of wheat. In addition, according to one authority, there is no prospect of much movement of corn to terminal markets this year.

Provisions were responsive to grain strength.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 7.—Stock prices bounded upward at the opening of today's curb market but considerable irregularity developed later as a result of heavy profit-taking in some of the popular public utility and radio issues.

Rumors of another early increase in Pennsylvania crude prices had a buoyant effect in oil shares, South Pennsylvania Oil advancing four points to 145; Prairie Oil and Gas 3 1-2 to 219 1-2, and some of the pipe line shares showing net gains of a point or more.

Chief interest in the industrial group centered in the brisk demand for Dug, which crossed 50 for a net gain of nearly 3 1-2 points, and the establishments of another new high record by Gillette Safety Razor at 67 1-2. Ward Baking B, "Nickel Plate" common, Continental Baking A and the preferred, Curtiss Aeroplane preferred, Ford Motor of Canada and Fisher Body closed from one to five points higher.

Further liquidation of the new electric Bond and Share Holding company stock sent that issue down 3 points to around $50 a share. Most of the other public utilities moved within narrow limits although good gains were recorded by American Gas and Electric, Lehigh Power securities, Western Power preferred and Adirondack Power prior preferred.

Why Druggists Recommend Swamp-Root

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.

JEWETT CITY

The unprecedentedly low water in the Jewett City reservoir is the most potent and convincing argument that could possibly be presented in favor of the purchase of a pumper for the fire company. A visit to the reservoir Wednesday showed the water almost 10 feet below normal full pond. The small body of water, practically only a stream, is covered with heavy ice. Moreover, the great watershed of 14,000 acres is bare of snow. At this season, thousands of tons of snow should have fallen over its long stretch of surrounding hills.

The need of many days of rain and snow is becoming acute; not that there is need of immediate anxiety about the supply of water to drink, or to be used for ordinary cooking or sanitary purposes. It was pointed out on Wednesday that in event of a fire, needing several streams, full or pay, for an hour, the borough hydrants, that have never failed, just haven't it to give, that's all. Superintendent A. A. Young, says the water is some feet lower today than at any time since the pressure was turned into the system, twenty years ago, and his gauges at the reservoir show the driest year here since 1900.

Jedoin's market telephone is 146-5. Directory shows wrong number.—adv.

E. M. Gray has completed the abstract of the taxable property of the Town of Griswold. The compile valuations have reached the highest figure in the town's history—$3,139,140, as against $3,125,183 for the year 1923.

The assessors' figures from which the tax list will be computed are as follows:

702 dwellings houses $779,175, 580 barns, sheds, ice houses and private garages $76,545, 744 house lots and building lots $162,690, 48 stores, shops, theatres, banks, hotels and public garages $112,125, 48 mills, manufactories, water power and dams, $1,367,675, 20,-103 acres of land $171,812, 266 horses $17,170, 964 neat cattle $33,065.

The value of sheep, swine, goats and poultry is $3,170, 161 dogs, value $1,045, carriages, wagons and bicycles $4,630, 513 automobiles and motor vehicles, valued at $186,355, furniture, libraries and musical instruments, valued at $27,140. Goods of merchants and traders $158,525, boats valued at $70, all other taxable property $29,-750.

The valuation of automobiles has increased $6,000 in one year, while that of horses owned in the town has fallen off $2,421. Six more dogs are owned with an increased value of $95 over last year. Irving O. Burdick, Edwin M. Gray and William M. McNicol, are the board of assessors, who have been able to advance the property valuation $13,964 over last year. The abstract prepared by Mr. Gray is a volume that will present its excellence to any who may study its itemized reports.

In consideration of the vital importance of immediate action, The Bulletin prints the following letter from the firemen to Jewett City taxpayers:

There will be a meeting of the large property holders, also the heads of the local industries in the fire engine house Thursday, the 9th, at 8 p. m. We think this meeting will be of interest to you; if, however you cannot be there, please have an authorized representative present, as the major object of this meeting is to start a drive for a new piece of fire apparatus. The company feles that with proper support they can raise the money necessary without any appropriation from the borough. This means that the company members are willing to give their time to raising the money in order that your taxes need not be raised. Are you with us? Trusting that you can see your way clear to be at the meeting Thursday, we remain,

Sincerely yours
A. A. Young, Jr., H. & L. Co.
L. G. Hyde, Secretary.

P. S.—There will be present some well known fire-fighters and others who will explain the present need of more adequate fire protection.

For the first time since, 46 years ago, the late Ira F. Lewis built an ice-house at Dorrville and filled it for commercial purposes, there is evidence of local competition in the ice trade. Andrew Bellivlance, has built a new ice house on Hawkins' cove about 35x50 capable fo housing close to 300 tons of ice.

Men acquainted with the Dorrville section of the Ashland reservoir, declare that the ice in Hawkins' cove will sometimes bear up a man, before the main pond is skimmed over. Shea Bros., cutting on the "Island" fields, have nearly completed housing the finest crop they have ever put in. There is not a trace of shale or snow ice, and 1500 tons are ready for the days when it's 90 degrees in the shade.

Walter Benjamin is a patient at Backus hospital, recovering from an operation performed Monday by Dr. J. J. Donohue. Mrs. Benjamin, a machinist at the Ashland mills, was injured a week ago, his hand becoming caught in a gear cutting machine. While he was laying off as a result of this injury some trouble developed in his side. Surgeons advised an immediate operation. It was learned at the hospital Tuesday that the trouble is not, neither does it resemble appendicitis.

Late Wednesday evening Mr. Benjamin's condition was reported normal.

Believing that the time has come to acquaint the municipal water consumers with conditions at the reservoir, and ask for reasonable conservation, Supt. A. A. Young issued the following statement Wednesday night.

You are aware that the past year has been an exceptionally dry one, which has greatly affected all sources of public water supply. We have always been blessed with an ample supply of good water in Jewett City, nevertheless, present conditions demand that care should be exercised on the part of all consumers in the use of water.

We have had the situation in Jewett City carefully gone over by a firm of expert engineers, who report to us that 200,000 gallons a day is a liberal allowance of water for Jewett City, whereas there is now being used 500,-000 gallons daily. This would indicate the existence of a great deal of waste in the use of water, which should be checked.

We have decided to have all our services inspected for the purpose of ascertaining the existence of any leaks and if he has not already done so, an inspector will shortly call upon each of you for this purpose. If leaks are found he will call your attention to the same and notify you to repair them within a certain length of time, at the expiration of which he will again make an inspection and if the same has not been remedied, drastic action will be called for. We trust that you will co-operate with us in seeing that any further waste of water ceases.

Mrs. George H. Prior, international president of The King's Daughters goes to Michigan early next week to be present at the district meetings. At Ann Arbor and at Mt. Clemens, she is scheduled for addresses before the Washtenaw county and the Macomb county circles. As a part of these state meetings, and incident to them, a program of social gatherings, and entertainments, has been arranged. These functions, planned to pleasantly supplement the routine of regular meetings, are to be held in the famous million dollar club house offered for this purpose by the University of Michigan.

A very large attendance was recorded at a regular meeting of Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, K. of C., held in Foresters' hall, Monday evening.

The attraction of the evening was three fast boxing bouts, staged by members of the order and featuring some of the leading ristic talen of the county. True science, especially in the so-called "sawed-off" class, occasionally gave way to real "go and get it" tactics.

The order will arrange for a series of whists and dances to be given during the remaining winter months.

An argument arose among several men Wednesday, regarding the low temperature at one time registered in this town. To settle the question, the Jewett City Bulletin records were consulted, as the correspondents have on file their daily news for 24 years; also Simon Brewster who has kept a diary for years was questioned. Mr. Brewster's records show 30 degrees below zero on January 5 and 6, 1904 and four below when the Jewett City hotel burned January 4, 1904. The Bulletin record is six below in Jewett City at the time of the hotel fire. Under the date and January 6, 1904, an item reads that on the Heights, and at Leonard's grain store, it was 36 below and on Main street it was 30 and 32 below. Before noon there was a rise of 50 degrees. February 17, 1904, the thermometer registered nine and ten degrees below. This year, Mr. Brewster says three below zero was registered at his farm December 23.

TAFTVILLE

The annual meeting of the Taftville Congregational church school was held Tuesday evening in the parlors of the church with Superintendent Victor H. Davis presiding. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read by the secretary, Miss Isabel Barritt, and the treasurer's report had been given by Miss Elizabeth Houston, there was a discussion on the adoption of a revised constitution and by-laws, which were submitted at the meeting by a committee appointed for that purpose. The new rules change the annual date of the meeting of the church school from January to June, and they provide for the monthly workers' conference which the old rules did not. The election of officers resulted as follows: Superintendent, Victor H. Davis; assistant superintendent, Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis; secretary, Miss Isabel Barritt; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Houston; secretary of the birthday fund, Lester Pinaree; librarian, Clayton Shamples; supervisor of the home department, Mrs. Fred Ince. A supervisor of the cradle roll department is to be elected later. After the business meeting, refreshments were served by several members of the O. J. S. under the direction of Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis.

Tuesday evening the members of Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, visited the home of late Brother Louis Wunderlich on Norwich avenue in a body to offer their sympathy to the bereaved family. The ritual of the dead was read by Chief Ranger William Smith.

Mrs. William Dole and son William, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Murphy on South Fifth avenue have returned to their home in Bridgeport.

Joseph Morin of Terrace avenue has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

Income tax blanks for the year 1924 are arriving in great volume at the local post office. Taxpayers are given until March 15th to file these returns. Those liable to file a return should assemble their information now, and not wait until March 14th, when the rush is on.

M.SS SCHWED CALLS CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT SOCIALIST TRICK

After listening to a talk on Enemies of the Constitution, by Miss Hermine Schwed, field secretary and lecturer of the National Association of Constitutional Government, at the Community House, Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, the members of Faith Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., went on record as opposed to the child labor amendment. The meeting had a very large attendance and was presided over by the regent, Mrs. George A. Ashbey. Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., delighted the audience with a vocal solo. She was accompanied by Mrs. Harry Stebbins. Miss Schwed was introduced by the regent, Mrs. Ashbey.

Miss Schwed's lecture was in the form of an exposure of socialism in this country and was a warning against the many forms of socialist propaganda. After speaking of the radical movement in general, Miss Schwed went on to explain how they get their ideas across to the public. She said that the radicals have studied crowd psychology and they go out for the emotions. "What I am here for more than anything else is to say, don't let them trick the people of the United States into passing laws to destroy our constitutional safeguards, said the speaker.

Explaining how the socialist movement gained headway in Russia, she said that in 1917 there was the first Russian revolution, a peaceful one. Russia was still fighting at that time. Germany had sent for Lenine in Switzerland and Trotzky in New York and others, and had them go to Berlin. Germany gave them a great deal of money and they went to Petrograd. They went onto the lecture platforms and talked to the people in the shops. Order No. 1 was issued stating that the soldiers were no longer required to salute their officers. The soldiers were soon murdering their officers. Then a movement for no more war and complete disarmament was started and Order No. 2 was given and the Russian army was declared demobilized.

Speaking of the socialist movement in this country Miss Schwed said that from 1914 to 1917 there was a great army of peace speakers. They said that if we were not prepared we wouldn't get into the war. But we did get into the war. I believe in peace, Miss Schwed said, but I don't believe in disarmament.

The "youth movement" in colleges in this country was touched upon. The speaker said that the youth movement is a destructive movement carefully camouflaged as liberalism, engineered by socialists. Why do college authorities encourage the youth movement? The answer is that some of the teachers and some of the college presidents are under the influence of socialism.

Miss Schwed said she is not a propagandist, characterizing herself as a "salesman for the Constitution of the United States." I am on the firing line, she said and very glad to be there.

The child labor amendment was styled a "socialist trick" by Miss Schwed. If the child labor law is ratified, it will take the power of the parents away, she said. At the close of her talk Miss Schwed answered a number of questions, some of which included questions as to how one could tell a radical, different kinds of radicals, the main opposition to the child labor amendment, and questions regarding membership in National Association of Constitutional Government.

At the close of Miss Schwed's talk the meeting adopted the following resolution: Whereas, the time for the final decision on the child labor amendment is near at hand and as practically all of the states have child labor laws.

Whereas, of course Faith Trumbull Chapter is heartily against the exploitation of all children, yet we are absolutely opposed to taking authority away from the parents and giving power to congress to actually prohibit healthy work for adolescents.

Resolved, that Faith Trumbull Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, shall go on record as opposed to the child labor amendment, and that the corresponding secretary shall write to our legislators, asking them to vote against ratification of that amendment.

The resolution was unanimously adopted. The meeting came to a close about 5 o'clock after which there was a social hour and tea was served.

The hostesses were Miss Nancy E. Lucas, Miss Mary C. Lucas, Mrs. Channing M Huntington, Miss Faith Bonfoey, Mrs. Eugene Saunders, Mrs. R. B. Tracy, Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, Miss Susan Gallup, Mrs. Channing Huntington and Mrs. Elisha Rogers poured.

During the business meeting that preceded the address by Miss Schwed, it was voted to send ten dollars to the Southern Industrial Institute, at Charlotte, N. C. Miss Barbara Allen, chairman of the Ways and Means committee reported plans were being made for a card party to be held this week at the home of Mrs. Charles L. Stewart.

Mrs. Stewart, chairman of the Patriotic Education committee reported a large box valued at from $70 to $60 had been packed and sent to Ellis Island.

NORWICH TOWN

H. Clay Preston, of Hartford, general manager of the Connecticut Humane society, has provided a new runabout for the work of the society in the Norwich-New London district. The car which has been placed in custody of the district agent, Frederic H. Wyant, was driven to Norwich the first of the year by Agent Churchill, and is being housed on the premises of Dr. Charles H. Lamb. Now that a car is available in this locality, Agent Wyant will be enabled to cover a larger territory than heretofore, in making investigations. Many cases reported from a number of miles out of Norwich, from complainants in all directions, in the interests of humanity, as well as of suffering and abused animals. Having a car in the Norwich district, will prove advantageous to the society in a number of ways, especially saving time, as calls will be answered more promptly than was possible up to this time. It also will lighten the labors of those agents connected with the Hartford office.

Until a district agent was appointed for this section, the Norwich agents forwarded all calls, or referred the complainant to the Hartford office, the head agents visiting Norwich and vicinity in due time to make investigation and clear up the trouble.

It is the aim of General Manager Preston to have his agents answer calls promptly, thoroughly and to the satisfaction of all concerned in relieving distressed conditions and restoring proper treatment where necessary.

Rev. J. Harlow Graham and choir of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church will have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

The January meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters is to be held Monday afternoon at Johnson Home.

BAR MITZVAH CELEBRATION FOR MORRIS TAYLOR

The Bar Mitzvah (confirmation) of Morris Taylor of 219 Broadway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Taylor, was celebrated last Saturday and Sunday.

To comply with the true Jewish custom, Morris was received as a good standing member in the Jewish community, on Saturday by being called upon to read the portion of the week in the "Torah"—Ezekiel, Chapter 37, in the United Brotherhood synagogue. After the services, refreshments were served in the vestry of the synagogue.

On Sunday evening a banquet was held in honor of the Bar Mitzvah in the beautiful home of his parents, where a dinner was served to forty-five couples.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Eleshewitz, Mr. and Mrs. S. Kaplan, Mr. and Mrs. S. Tendler, A. L. Taylor, Jules S. Taylor, Jack Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. George Kaplan, Mrs. L. Astor, all of New York; Mrs. C. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goldenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. I. Goldenberg, all of Hartford.

The local people were: Rabbi and Mrs. J. W. Rosenberg, Mr. and Mrs. I. Beckenstein, Mr. and Mrs. M. Levin, Dr. and Mrs. D. Sussler, Rabbi Max Stamm, Mr. and Mrs. S. Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lahn, Mr. and Mrs. A. Morin, R. C. Plaut, J. W. Cadden, M. J. Silverman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Reichman, E. Siff, Mr. and Mrs. A. Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. A. Pasnik, Mr. and Mrs. A. Strom, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Land, Dr. and Mrs. K. K. Markoff, Mr. and Mrs. J. Slosberg, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ableman, Mr. and Mrs. M. Rabinowitz, Mr. and Mrs. D. Nowick, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rotchick, E. Rutchick, H. Reardon, Miss E. Glassi, and Louis Beckenstein of New London.

At seven the guests were led into the dining room with its beautiful floral effects. The favors furnished a great deal of entertainment. The following menu was served: Fruit cocktail, salmon manart fish, lettuce, consomme vermicelli, hearts of celery, Olives, Dill pickles, salted almonds, roast tongue, kuishes, roast chicken, mashed potatoes, peas, ices in fancy forms, Romanian stroodle, demi tasse, seltzer water, cigars, soda water.

The toastmaster for the evening, Reuben Taylor, uncle of the young man called upon Morris, who delivered a speech in Hebrew, which he translated into English. The following was his English address:

"My dear Parents, Teacher, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"It would be a vain effort to express how happy I, as well as my parents, are with your presence here tonight.

"Although it is customary for every boy to pledge himself in his Bar Mitzvah speech to fulfill all the duties of a pious Jew, I will refrain from so doing. As a promise is always help and especially so on one's Bar Mitzvah day, I will not pledge myself definitely. Furthermore, I would not like to have the same opinion of myself as I have of those boys who made these promises, and have not held them.

"The following paragraphs of my "haftovah" which I read yesterday makes me confident that I shall be able to comply with all the obligations of a good Jew.

"Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the nations, whether they be gone, and will gather them on every side and bring them into their own land; and I will make them one nation in the land, upon the mountains of Israel. They shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes and do them."

"The holy prophet realized that the only place a Jew can betone to himself, his God, his nation, and religion in his own homeland. There one can keep his Sabbath, his holidays, and all that pertains to Judaism.

"Since I understand the chaotic life of the Goluth, all I can promise is to work with my heart and soul for the realization of the promise of Ezekiel the redemption and rebuilding of Evetz Yissrel.

"For there and only there we shall be able to live a natural Jewish life where we shall keep the Sabbath, and the holidays, speak our own language, of the prophets.

"Now, Ladies and Gentlemen, I thank you."

Samuel Taylor then welcomed the guests on behalf of himself and his family.

The toastmaster then called upon the following for short toasts: Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg, Rabbi Max Stamm, M. I. Silverman, A. Strom, H. M. Land, M. Levin, A. Gordon, Dr. K. K. Markoff, Dr. D. Sussler, R. C. Plaut, A. Morin, A. Schwartz, A. Pasnik and J. Goldenberg.

A vocal selection was given by Mrs. Reuben Taylor, and as an encore, Elli, Elli. There were selections by Henry Brayman, violinist and Miss Stockdale, pianist. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Punch was served throughout the evening. Everyone present pronounced the celebration an immense success.

PROPOSE $5,000,000 BOND ISSUE TO BUY PARKS

A bond issue of $5,000,000 for the purchase of additional park and forest lands is recommended by the state park and forest commission for legislative action in the annual report submitted to Governor Templeton. The commission recommends that the bonds be issued by the treasurer in such amounts and at such times as the board of control may determine and that maturity should be in 1945 or 1950 with provisions for their payment from the sinking fund.

The report says that the state now owns 10,000 acres of forest land and should own at least 200,000 to "protect the rights of its citizens and those of their children. The state should adopt a more adequate and efficient plan for financing the acquisition of the remaining park sites."

The report of Albert M. Turner, field secretary, shows that the state now owns 28 parks with a total area of 5,981 acres, the aggregate cost being $276,962. Of this land 2,483 was donated and 3,498 acres were purchased by the state.

Under the heading "Proposed Action," Mr. Turner says the first duty of the state is to protect the projects already begun, of which Sherwood Island and Hammonasset Beach head the list. "A careful estimate shows that the sums now needed for extensions amount to $1,600,000 and for new projects, essential to our future park system, $1,400,000.

State Forester Austin F. Hawes recommends the establishment of a state nursery which would provide for the distribution of nursery stock to all private owners at cost and to state departments and town forests free of charge. A biennial appropriation of $5,000 would finance such a nursery the report estimates.

Mr. Hawes also urges revision of forestry tax laws. He says that until conditions are so adjusted that capital can be interested in investments in timber growing, little progress in private forestry can be expected. The adjustment of taxation so that owners of forest land will be encouraged to allow trees full time for maturity rather than cutting them to escape taxation is an economic necessity, he says.

The acquisition of additional forests and adequate financial support for such projects is also urged by Mr. Hawes. He says that forestry has suffered in Connecticut because forests have been depleted longer than those of most sections of the country and that this should be corrected.

Arthur V. Parker, superintendent of state parks, reports that during the first ten months of the year the daily average of visitors at state parks and forests was 579,597 and that there was an average of 7,095 campers daily on state owned land.

Considerable space is devoted in the report to the Sherwood Island project which is described as having reached a critical stage. Analysis of purchases on the island shows that a shore frontage of 2,350 feet has been acquired for $9,978. Additional purchases are recommended to protect the project already started.

Additions to state parks during the year are listed as follows: Hurd park, 90 acres; Nathaniel Lyon Memorial, 151 acres; Sherwood Island, 18 acres; Mashamoquet Brook, 30 acres; Hammonasset Beach, 23 acres.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

JAIL SENTENCE WITH $500 FINE FOR WOMAN

Mrs. Annie Zalinski, who pleaded not guilty in the superior court here Tuesday to the charge of violation of the liquor law in selling liquor, changed her plea Wednesday morning to guilty on one count, the sale of a half pint of whiskey to Ephraim Derous on April 23, 1924. Judge Allyn L. Brown sentenced her to six months in jail with a fine of $500 and costs. Two other counts alleging actual sale were nolled. Judge Brown, in pronouncing sentence, said he hoped that after she got out of jail she would have had enough punishment to stop her from illegal traffic in liquor, as the 90 day sentence she had received once before did not seem to be enough to have done any good.

A panel of jurors had been summoned for the trial of the case, but when court opened there was a conference of an hour between Prosecuting Attorney Arthur M. Brown and Attorney Roderick M. Douglass, counsel for the accused woman, in consequence of which, the case was settled by Mrs. Zalinski's plea of guilty without trial.

The criminal court took an indefinite recess after the Zalinski case had been disposed of. The docket has lasted only one day and one hour, which is a record hardly known within the memory of any present member of the bar of this county.

PARLEYING ON WAR DAMAGE CLAIMS OF UNITED STATES

James A. Logan, Jr., and Winston Churchill Are Endeavoring to Fix a Lump Sum Covering the Costs of the American Army of Occupation and the Claim For Damages—American Delegation is Ready to Present at a Plenary Session of the Inter-Allied Conference Monday a Solution Satisfactory to All Parties.

Paris, Jan. 8.—(By the A. P.)—The fixing of a lump sum and joining together of the costs of the American army of occupation and the claim of the United States for war damages, were the subject of two conversations between James A. Logan, Jr., the American observer, and Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, today. It is this which is delaying the announcement that an agreement on the Anglo-American viewpoints, which was reached in principle last night, has been definitely settled as to details.

The American delegation, however, expresses optimism, and is declared to be ready to present at a plenary session of the inter-allied conference Monday morning, a solution satisfactory to all parties. M. Clementel, the French finance minister, also informed the correspondents this evening that he was convinced the British and American delegations would reach a compromise.

In the belief that private conversations would be more effective in reaching solutions than plenary sessions of the conference, the delegates had only a half hour meeting today, and the only official decision arrived at was to dispense with full meetings and devote the entire time to unofficial exchanges of views until Monday.

"Did you ever see any work done in plenary sessions?" M. Theunis, the veteran of inter-allied conference, asked the correspondents at the conclusion of today's session. Two plenary sessions have been held thus far, and the avowed purpose for which the conference was convened, namely, the distribution of the Ruhr proceeds and the Dawes annuities, has not yet even been broached.

M. Clementel, in the course of today's session, requested all the delegations to keep their private deliberations absolutely secret until final agreements were reached. He also ask that the experts' report be considered as a confidential document until acted upon.

The American claims, which are classed among the questions on which no agreement has been reached, are divided in the experts' report into two sections—(a) representing the costs of the American army of occupation, for which the amount is fixed at one billion marks; (b) war damages, which bears the notation that the amount will be definitely fixed by a commission later. The report carries the following explanation:

"The American have declared themselves ready, should the B claims be accepted, to lengthen the schedule of payments on the A payments in such a manner that A and B should not total up for each annuity heavier charges than would originally have been levied for A alone."

Thus the entire question between the British and American representatives is fixing the amount of the B claims. It is understood that the British have been informed that the American war damage claims, listed as B, would not exceed $350,000,000, thus bringing the total amount of reparations for the United States up to approximately $600,000,000.

Another item on the agenda presented by the experts is the question of "the future status of Belgium after her priority is paid in full." The report considers the reduction of the Belgian percentage under the Spa agreement, from eight per cent. to a lower figure, but this is left to the discussion of the conference. Belgium contends that there still remains the sum of about one hundred million francs due her on account of her priority, though some of the delegations aver that the entire amount provided for in the Spa agreement has been turned over to her.

M. Clementhel, Mr. Churchill and M. Theunis will meet tomorrow to discuss the question of Belgium's priority, the settlement of which has a direct effect upon the claim for reparations by all the allied powers.

"Our negotiations with the British are progressing along a normal course," Mr. Logan said this evening. "The British and our experts are now engaged in drawing up tentative solutions, the details of which are still in suspense. Both Mr. Churchill and myself will examine these tomorrow after I have conferred about them with Ambassadors Herrick and Kellogg. There is no reason to fear a deadlock; on the contrary, we hope to be able to reach an agreement before Monday.

The British delegation maintained complete silence on the subject.

UNDER COURT MARTIAL FOR LOW STUNT FLIGHT

New York, Jan. 8—A score of witnesses testified today at the general court martial of Lieutenant James T. Hutchinson on charges that he endangered the lives of Washington Heights residents last November 28 by dangerously low stunt flying.

The court martial in progress at Governor's Island, is expected to conclude tomorrow with the testimony of three more civilian witnesses.

Lieutenant Hutchinson, a crack pilot at Mitchel Field is alleged to have violated army air service regulations when he descended below 3,000 feet while maneuvering over the city. Complaints that he sailed right down into the streets, barely missing the heads of pedestrians and having also some miraculous escapes from collision with buildings, led to his summons for court martial.

Major William Hensley, Jr., commandant at Mitchell Field, testified that Hutchinson was one of the best pilots in the air service.

The major said that on November 28 he gave Hutchinson permission to make a farewell flight over New York City, before his impending transfer to Dayton, but he warned the pilot to refrain from stunt flying—"just to make his farewell calls and come back," he said.

Soldier mechanics testified they had set the red flag as a signal for Hutchinson to return, but that apparently he was out of sight and did not see the flag.

Civilian witnesses from Washington Heights described the stunts the pilot performed, but many of them expressed reluctance to testify. T. J. McCormick expressed his admiration for Hutchinson's flying and called him a "red-blooded he-man."

Major L. D. Bauer, of Mitchel Field, counsel for Hutchinson sought to show that great professional rivalry existed between his client and Lieutenant M. L. Elliott, who testified he also had warned Hutchinson against stunt flying that day. The court held there was insufficient evidence of such rivalry, and ordered stricken from the record the testimony that had been offered in that direction.

Lieutenant Hutchinson, grave and quiet throughout the proceedings, sat near his counsel. He is expected to take the stand tomorrow.

MYSTIC MAN ARRESTED IN HARTFORD FOR THEFT

Hartford, Jan. 8.—In a stirring chase along Union place and by streets, a policeman tonight arrested Raymond U. Hatfield, 18 years old, of Mystic, who it is alleged, stole $4 from a cash register in a pool room at 36 Union place. A crowd attracted to the scene by shouts, took part in the chase. Hatfield said, according to the police that he had taken money to buy food. He will be given a hearing in police court tomorrow.

A. T. & T. $125,000,000 BOND ISSUE OVERSUBSCRIBED

New York, Jan. 8—Prompt oversubscription of the $125,000,000 bond issue of the American Telephone and Telegraph company figured today's investment market. Despite the size of the offering and the fact that the rate was lower than for most corporation liens recently sold, the bonds were quickly snapped up and commanded a premium of as much as one-half point in stock exchange dealings.

Trading was marked by considerable irregularity. Brisk rallies took place in several individual rail and industrial bonds although the general price average showed little change. Active buying of Denver and Rio Grande General 5s, refunding 5s and certificates lifted these issues to new high levels. Burlington 4s and Wisconsin Central 4s moved up over two points each and Southern Pacific Collateral 4s gained a point.

Reports of progress in reorganization plans of several companies which have been in receivership were reflected in higher prices for their bonds. Wilson 7 1-2s jumped 4 points and the convertible 6s, 2. A four-point gain also was scored by Virginia Carolina Chemical 7s and a gain of 1 3-8 points by American Cotton Oil 5s.

New York Central convertible 6s, which have been exchanged in large numbers for the stock on its recent upswing, were active around 116, but closed slightly lower.

Chief interest in foreign obligations centered in the establishment of a record high price by United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 at 117 3-8 in sympathy with the rise in sterling to a new top

SEEKING EXPANSION OF BOLSHEVISM IN RUSS

Moscow, Jan. 8—(By the A. P.)—An important conference now in progress at the Kremlin between soviet officials and representatives of the peasantry, looking to a more complete sovietization of the villages, wider application of bolshevism and greater privileges and justice to peasants, it was decided to give the peasantry a more active part in Russian elections, permitting them to name their own candidates as opposed to purely communistic candidates.

Hereafter, it was decided, whenever thirty per cent. or less of the population participates in elections, such elections will be declared null and void. The peasants are also to be granted what the bolsheviks term "greater revolutionary justice," and the opportunity to exercise their free will and justice. They will be given an increasing share in the affairs of the country and an effort will be made to lighten their taxation and other burdens.

Political observers here see in this movement a tendency of the communist party and the government to swing to the right in order to win the active support of the rural population. Realizing that because of their illiteracy, lack of political consciousness and other reasons, the greater part of the peasantry remains indifferent to bolshevism, the government has from time to time sought various formulae for persuading the rural element to adopt the communistic doctrine.

The so-called new economic policy was a step in this direction, but today's action at the Kremlin conference is said to involve wider concessions to the Agrarian population than any heretofore granted.

It presages, many believe, a distinct departure of the government from the strict principles of the doctrine of bolshevism which have hitherto been in force.

The government has been obliged to heed the growing voice of dissatisfaction among the peasantry. These Agrarians insist they have not had a real part in the political life of the country. While no attempt at open revolt has been made by the village dwellers, the government is understood to be eager to strengthen its own position by unifying and placating the peasantry in every possible way.

AN ELECTION TALLY CLERK ADMITS FRAUDULENT COUNT

New York, Jan. 8.—George Rosken, a 26-year-old election tally clerk, confessed before a grand jury today that he had "counted out" Dr. William I. Sirovich, democrat, in favor of his employer, Nathan D. Perlman, republican, who was re-elected a member of congress from the 14th New York district last November. Rogken said Perlman's success was due solely to the fraudulent manipulation of ballots.

Rosken's sensational story, involving several men prominent in public life, caused the grand jury to adjourn before his recital was ended so that it might inspect the ballots Rosken said he had tampered with. District Attorney Banton refused to make public the names of the men involved by Rosken as "higher-up" until he has made further investigation.

According to Mr. Banton, Rosken's voluntary confession had its roots in a desire for revenge upon Perlman and others named in his sworn statement, because they failed to procure a government job for him after Perlman had been returned to congress. For this reason, the district attorney said, he would not disclose the names of the accused men unless investigation tended to bear out the truth of Rosken's charges.

FLEEING AUTO THIEF LOST CONTROL OF CAR

Meriden, Jan. 8.—Leading a Meriden policeman who had pursued him in another car from the center of the city, an automobile thief lost control of a machine, which had been reported stolen in New Britain tonight, and, leaving the highway in Yalesville, crashed into the side of a house and escaped.

The chase led out of Meriden at a fast rate of speed, the pursuing car following close behind. As the two cars were starting through the loop at the Yalesville culvert, the thief swerved to the right and headed over a country road. His car passed through a wide ditch before striking the house, which was badly damaged. The stolen car, which was the property of James Butler, a New Britain newspaperman, was badly wrecked.

Trumbull Sworn In as Governor

Bingham Will Today Take Office at the Bar of United States Senate.

Hartford, Jan. 8.—Hiram Bingham, Connecticut's governor for a day, tonight was on his way to Washington to take his seat in the United States senate, and John H. Trumbull, who yesterday took the oath of office as lieutenant-governor of the state today become the chief executive of the commonwealth.

Governor Bingham, who was elected at the November election and who was later, in a special election, named United States senator to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Senator Brandegee, became governor yesterday when he took the oath of office at elaborate inaugural exercises. Today he resigned from that office and immediately took the oath as United States senator. At the same time, Mr. Trumbull took the oath of office as governor.

Tomorrow Senator Bingham will take another oath of office at the bar of the United States senate, in the presence of that body and at the hands of an officer of it.

The ceremonies which took place here today will, like so many incidents of yesterday, be unprecedented. The gathering in the governor's office included members of the families of the governors, many close friends and several state officers. The time for the resignation had been set for 10 a. m. and shortly before that hour those who had been invited to be present appeared. Earlier than that seven very large baskets of red roses had been received at the executive offices addressed to Governor John H. Trumbull, and when the ceremonies were over these were placed in the governor's own office.

Five minutes before 10 o'clock those who had been exchanging greetings outside were asked to join Governor Bingham in his office. The members of the party ranged themselves about the office while Governor Bingham stood at his desk with a sheet of paper in his hand. As a preliminary, Governor Bingham had sent the following letter:

"To Honorable Francis A. Pallotti, Secretary of State, State Capitol, Hartford, Conn:

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your communication notifying me of my election as United States senator on December 16th, 1924. I shall resign as governor forthwith and will accept the office of United States senator.

Very truly yours,
"HIRAM BINGHAM."

Secretary Pallotti, standing near the governor's desk with a paper in his hand, said to Governor Bingham: "I have accepted your resignation as governor."

"No, you haven't," said the governor, "for I haven't signed it yet." As the audience laughed the governor jokingly said "Perhaps I may not."

Secretary Pallotti handed the paper to the governor who seated himself, read his resignation aloud and then signed it, and returned the document to the secretary.

BLIND WOMAN TO BECOME INSTRUCTOR OF GILPATRIC

Hartford, Jan. 8.—The state board of education of the blind has secured the services of Miss Marion Darrah, a blind woman of Atlanta, Ga., to teach the Braille system of reading, and typewriting to G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer of Connecticut, who is serving a fifteen years' sentence at Atlanta for embezzlement from the First National bank of Putnam.

The assistance of the state board, whose appropriation requests used to be passed upon by Mr. Gilpatric as a member of the state board of finance, was enlisted in his behalf by his mother, Raymond Gilpatric, of New Britain. The latter recently gave employment in a factory office at New Britain to a blind typist trained by the state board.

The former state treasurer aims to learn the touch system of typewriting in the hope of securing employment as a typist after his release and in that way earning money to help repay some of his defalcations.

AMATEUR BROADCASTER PROVING TROUBLESOME

New Britain, Jan. 8.—For the past four or five months owners of radio sets in New Britain and surrounding towns have been bothered by interference by an amateur broadcaster. It is said that this amateur, who has no license, has been broadcasting at all hours of the night, making it difficult to tune in on the licensed broadcasting stations. All efforts to discover the interfering broadcaster have failed.

Cyril J. Curtin, electrical inspector of the city of New Britain, it became known today, has developed an apparatus which she has installed in his automobile, with which he intends to cruise about the city and suburb and claims that in a short time he will be able to locate the amateur.

Senate Has Voted to Lease Muscle Shoals

Result of Ballot on the Underwood Bill Was 48 to 37—Party Lines Disregarded.

Washington, Jan. 8—Government operation of Muscle Shoals was disapproved today by the senate, 48 to 37, but the whole question of the final disposition of the great power and nitrate plant was left in the air.

The vote came on the question of substituting the Underwood leasing bill for the Norris government operation plan. The effect of the vote was to kill the Norris measure, but the Underwood bill still is before the senate and open to amendment. Several substitutes for it have been proposed. Consideration of these will be begun tomorrow with republican leaders hopeful of getting the subject off the senate calendar, temporarily, at least, by the end of this week or early next week.

Whatever the final form of the senate bill, it must go to conference for consideration there with the house measure accepting the offer of Henry Ford, despite that the offer has been withdrawn since the house acted at the last session.

The Underwood bill developed rather unexpected strength in the voting today, with most of the republican leaders supporting it. Chief support came from the majority side, 30 republicans voting for it as against 18 democrats. Twenty democrats and 16 republicans and one farmer-labor member opposed it. The roll call follows:

Republicans: Ball, Bursum, Butler, Cameron, Curtis, Dale, Edge, Fernald, Fess, Hale, Jones of Washington, Keyes, Ladd, McCormick, McLean, Means, Metcalf, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Reed of Pennsylvania, Shortridge, Smoot, Stanfield, Sterling, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson, Weller and Willis—30.

Total 48.

Against the Underwood bill

Republicans: Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Cummins, Ernst, Frazier, Gooding, Harreld, Howell, Johnston of California, LaFollette, McKinley, McNary, Norbeck and Norris—16.

Democrats: Amherst, Copeland, Dill, Ferris, Glass, Harris, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Ransdell, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Trammell, Walsh of Massachusetts, and Walsh of Montana—20.

Farmer-labor: Shipstead—1. Total 37.

Pairs were announced as follows:

Spencer, republican, Missouri, for with Ralston, democrat, Indiana, against; Moses, republican, New Hampshire, for, with Wheeler, democrat, against; Stephens, democrat, Mississippi, for, with Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota, against.

Senators absent and unpaired were Elkins, West Virginia; Lenroot, Wisconsin, and Greene, Vermont, republicans, and Reed, Missouri, democrat.

POLITICAL MALCONTENTS IN ITALY REMAIN OBDURATE

Rome, Jan. 8—(By the A. P.)—The line of demorcation between the Fascist government and the Aventine opposition became even more clearly defined today through the publication of a manifesto to the country, issued by the Aventine deputies, in which they renewed their decision not to participate in parliamentary work and violently attacked the Fascisti for usurping the power.

Thus, the two currents of political movement in Italy seem further than ever from converging into any semblance of a tranquil stream. There is considerable disquietude lest this apparent irreconcilability should bring about a more serious situation, although no immediate cause for alarm need be felt.

The ultimate object of the opposition's tactics furnishes a basis for much discussion tonight. Many conversant with conditions in opposition circles seem to think this may mean that the deputies will continue their policy of non-participation, even though general elections are held. In the event of elections they would appeal to the voters not to go to the polls on the ground that it would be impossible to make their will prevail so long as elections were conducted and controlled by the present authorities.

DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL LOCKED IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 8—Immediate consideration of the first deficiency appropriation bill was blocked in the senate today by Senator King, democrat, Utah, a member of the special committee investigating the internal revenue bureau, on the ground that further information was needed on the subject of tax funds.

The bill carries an item of $15,000,000 for repayment of illegally collected taxes. Senator King said facts adduced before the committee convinced him that "certain individuals and corporations," had been allowed excessive refunds and he desired to ascertain whether any of these were beneficiaries under the bill.

Chairman Warren, Wyoming, in charge of the measure, said the amount was based on recommendations of the treasury department, and his committee did not have details. He gave notice that he would call up the bill formally "at the first opportunity."

ASK INCREASE COMPENSATION FOR CARRYING THE MAILS

Washington, Jan. 8—Representatives of the leading railroads comprising the railway mail pay committee conferred with Postmaster General New today in an effort to obtain increased compensation for carrying the mails.

The railroads' representatives asked Mr. New to agree to a statement of fact to be made to the interstate commerce commission on which new rates could be based. No agreement was reached, but sub-committees were appointed to continue discussions.

The railroads claim their aggregate losses from mail carrying amount to hundreds of millions of dollars.

Postmaster General New, told the railroads' representatives he thought the question was one for the interstate commerce commission to determine, but was willing to see a conclusion expedite.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A resolution proposing entry of this nation into the world court was introduced today by Senator Willis, republican, Ohio. It carries a provision embodying the recommendation of President Coolidge that the United States shall not be bound by any advisory opinions of the court.

The resolution is in the nature of a substitute for that offered by Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, at the last session, and with other proposals, will come before the senate foreign relations committee Wednesday, when the whole world court subject is to be considered.

Besides embodying the recommendations made by President Coolidge in his annual message last month, the Willis proposal contains the reservations put forward by Secretary Hughes and approved by President Harding. Specifically they propose that:

The United States shall participate upon an equality with other states which are members, respectively, of the council and the assembly of the league.

MORE THAN 3,000 STILLS TAKEN IN RAIDS IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 8.—More than 3,000 stills were confiscated by the federal prohibition agents today in a series of raids covering the Maxwell Street market. Twenty-five hundred hydrometers were also taken and four persons were arrested. The stills and other devices were on open sale in six shops bordering the market.

The raids climaxed sixty days of investigation by the government in which nearly $6,000 was spent in procuring evidence. Articles used in the making of illicit liquor were purchased by the federal men upon which to base their warrants for the raids. One still the largest ever found in this district, cost them $1,000, while the prices of others ranged from $35 to $500.

Twenty prohibition agents swooped down upon the six shops almost simultaneously to prevent the possibility of a general tip-off. The market was thrown into confusion as news of the raids spread, and in one or two of the places visited the occupants threatened to give battle to the officers.

Teachers from the district schools of Chestnut Hill, The Ridges, Flanders, Eagleville and Coventry, met at the State Normal School Wednesday afternoon with the senior class of the school to hold a discussion on rural education problems. Present were Superintendents Levi T. Garrison, Wilson A. Greer and Mr. Fleetwood. The subject of the meeting was a survey recently conducted in the schools of Chestnut Hill, The Ridges, Flanders and Eagleville to establish a basis for an intelligent and educational test of the children in order to bring about the classification of the children according to their mental ability. The method used is based solely on the various subjects taught without regard to grades. This work is planned to bring about the elimination of a large number of classes which in the past have hampered the progress of more intelligent pupils in individual subjects. The teachers approved the plan and voted to carry it out as an experiment until next spring, when another meeting will be held and reports will show then whether or not the method used is practical.

An all-day teachers' meeting is to be held at Willimantic State Normal School Saturday, State Supervisor Wilson A. Greer announced Thursday that teachers would be present from Bozrahville, Coventry, Chaplin, Hampton, Scotland, Sprague, Lebanon, Columbia, Marlboro, Hebron, Willington, Ashford, Pomfret, Eastford and Woodstock. There will be a meeting session from 10 to 12 o'clock. The speakers will be Joseph Wasielfier, of Hartford, state supervisor of drawing and art, Frederick R. Noble, principal of the Model school and F. T. Harrington of Hartford. The gathering will be arranged in two groups. Teachers from the fifth to eighth grades will be addressed on Drawing and Art by Mr. Wiseltier in the morning. At the same time Principal Noble will speak on Arithmetic before the primary grade teachers from grades one to four, and his talk will be followed by one by Mr. Harrington. During the afternoon Principal Noble and Mr. Harrington will address the upper grade teachers and Mr. Wiseltier will speak before the primary grade teachers. The sessions are to be in charge of Supervisor Greer.

Avery and VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

Good weather and the large number of bricklayers made available through the general suspension of business activities are the combined forces serving to carry on at a rapid pace the construction of the new Capitol theatre, which was started about one year ago. The foundation to the building was laid several months ago, but a delay in the arrival of the steel girders for the framework halted operations for a considerable time. Before the last rivet had cooled on the steel skeleton the work of laying the bricks got under way. A shortage of help delayed the work for a time, but on Thursday the brickwork had been completed to the top of the third story at the front of the building and it is expected to finish the fourth story and have a roof placed before heavy storms hamper operations. The building is of massive proportions, four stories high, 92 feet frontage and 140 feet deep. Sixty-three men have been at work on the structure this week.

I gave it to my two children last winter, one of them had pneumonia, the other one had a very bad cough. I heard of Allen's Lung Healer. Only one bottle to try, I found it was helping them elegant. I would not be without it in my home in the winter for my children.

DANIELSON

The Killingly Woman's club is not in favor of the passage of the so-called child labor amendment to the national constitution. The club said so very definitely when the matter was up for consideration at Wednesday afternoon's meeting. Following a very lively and intensely interesting debate the club voted 17 to 2 against the organization going on record as favoring the proposed legislation. The president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs will be so notified, for women's clubs throughout Connecticut have been requested to either endorse or reject the proposal

In meeting the suggestion that congress already is vested with practically unlimited taxing privileges, one of the club members remarked that she was more or less willing that congress should take liberties with her pocketbook, but not with her children.

The club's decision on this interesting matter will find widespread endorsement in this town. The attitude of Killingly's people toward the proposed amendment is not at all favorable. Interviews with people will quickly establish that to the satisfaction of anyone.

From a facetious viewpoint, one might suggest that if there is to be any amendment limiting labor it might apply to those over 55, for instance. Incidentally, there are times when it would appear that there must be some amendment limiting the labor of people of various ages from 18 to 65. The situation is such as to recall the Biblical reference to the lilies of the field and as to their toiling not. But from an economic or social standpoint nothing appears to have been gained from this.

Then, again there is the danger in the proposed legislation that too many young people being restrained from work until well toward their majority might feel that injustice was being done them in not continuing the arrangement indefinitely—up to 55 years, for instance, when under the herein suggested amendment they would be all set until they reached 100 years or so.

This is the second edition of a story relative to a freight wreck that blocked the New Haven road's main line through here until the early hours of Thursday morning. The first edition appears to have gone the way of lost ships.

It was a south-bound freight that figured in the accident that resulted, at 10.30 Wednesday night, in two cars being derailed and a pair of wheels from a truck of one of the cars crashing through the planking between the tracks over Cottage street and hurtling down into that thoroughfare, a drop of 15 or 16 feet.

The freight was running at high speed when the accident occurred and when who observed it as it passed over the Main street crossing, a little more than 150 yards from where the wheels crashed through the Cottage street bridge, say that a journal was blazing fiercely.

There was a ripping and tearing as a truck tore loose from a car a considerable distance back from the head of the train, crashing through the bridge and carrying some splintered planking with it down into the street. The train continued on its suddenly bring up with a snap with the two derailed cars, from one of which the truck was torn off, about opposite St. James' school, near the Franklin street crossing. No one was injured in the accident, though an automobile passed under the Cottage street bridge while the head of the train was running over only seconds ahead of the time when the car wheels came crashing down.

A wrecking crew was ordered out from Midway and it was well toward Thursday morning when the line was open for traffic again. The train that figured in the accident was such a long one that it blocked both the Main and Franklin street crossings for a time. The Franklin street crossing was promptly opened by hauling the head of the train down a bit, but the long string of cars kept the Main street crossing blocked until midnight when a locomotive sent out of Putnam hauled the rear end of the train away.

The wreckage under the Cottage street bridge was cleared sufficiently within a few minutes to allow the passage of trolley cars tha were held up and other traffic waiting to move.

A considerable number of people perked up considerably upon reading the papers Thursday morning after having put in a worrisome Wednesday. Not a few people in this town thought seriously during Wednesday of going their physicians and telling them that their nerves systems were deranged—that they felt they were on the verge of a general breakdown. A few who were especially shaky renewed some quickly broken New Year's resolutions to be absolutely temperate.

All of this was due to the fact that Danielson was in the earthquake zone that gave sections of New England a bit of a shaking up just after 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. In some homes, especially in the Broad street section, dishes danced about on the shelves and windows rattled as though a giant hand were upon them. One heard suggestions during the day that these phenomena might have been caused by an earthquake, but that was not seriously credited until Thursday's papers confirmed the opinion.

So now everything is hunky dory again with the nervous people and those who felt they were in need of slowing down a bit. It was an earthquake. Probably nature is engaged in moving around the scenery for that total eclipse of the sun that is scheduled for the 24th. It must be a job to get everything ready for a show like that promises to be, especially if the help are careless in handling the props.

The press of the state but echoed on Thursday the congratulations that were showered upon Speaker Elbert L. Darbie of the house over his speech of acceptance, splendidly delivered. Members of the house crowded about him to tell him how well he had done and with them came scores of men not of the legislative body who were on hand for the occasion.

Speaker Darbie's advent into his important position was most auspicious. It probably points toward the still more important honors that are but a little distance farther on in his career.

Norman Reeves is ill at his home on North Main street.

Recently a horse owned by George E. Alvord of Dayville was stolen from his stable, but abandoned later on the road to Pomfret, probably because the animal developed lameness.

Those little conveyances that have replaced certain passenger trains through Danielson have been aptly dubbed the kiddie cars.

It was believed here Thursday that the chances of recovering Francis Herrington during the day were good. The boy was kidnapped on Morin avenue Wednesday forenoon.

The state motor vehicle department has not as yet met the demand for registration plates. Danielson has a long waiting list for the devices.

The survey for the new state highway to be built from Dayville Four Corner to East Killingly carries the route over the old rocky road coming out at the Center school and thence past the Warner and Foster farms into East Killingly.

Onlookers have noted that the surface of Quinebaug lake, where ice is being harvested, is by several feet at a lower level than any can recall having seen at this time of year.

PUTNAM

For not less than one year and for not more than two the abode of Daisy Champagne will be the state prison at Wethersfield. In the criminal side of the superior court, Thursday morning, she and Joseph Savage, charged with adultery, changed their pleas of not guilty, made Tuesday, to guilty and Judge Newell Jennings imposed the same sentences on each.

At the afternoon session Judge Jennings said he had learned that Savage was now serving a sentence in jail, and he reopened the judgment and sentenced him to serve six months in the county jail, the sentence to take effect at the end of his present term.

Daisy Mitchell Champagne has divided her time between Putnam and Pomfret for a great many years, during which she has been more or less in the public eye. She seemed today to enjoy the leading part she played for a short time before an audience that filled the court room. In a skirt of the shortest and a low-cut bodice she completely overshadowed her male companion, both in stature and bearing. She took the sentence as unemotionally as if the court were remarking on the beauty of the day. There are reasons for believing that she regretted that the case did not go to trial, even if it had resulted in a more severe penalty.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berzuch pleaded guilty to violating the liquor laws and asked for a jury trial. They are two of the fifteen persons presented in City court last week, who were adjudged guilty and who appealed from the decision. Others of the party of fifteen entered the same pleas Thursday morning and elected to be tried by jury are John Tyburski, Charles Bazwa, Joseph Kollat, Joseph Reille and Fred L'Herreux.

James T. Morrison of Killingly pleaded not guilty to the charge of being a common drunkard; his case will be heard by the court today (Friday).

Philip LeClair and Albert Ladue, jointly accused of statutory burglary, pleaded not guilty Tuesday. When arraigned Thursday morning, after a change was made in one of the counts fixing the value of the goods taken at $15 they changed their pleas to guilty. Attorney Samuel R. Harvey of Willimantic, told the court that an unoccupied house in the country in Windham had been entered and four or five old guns taken. These two men were arrested for the offense. Ladue admitted that he had been in the house but denied taking anything. Speaking of LeClair, Mr. Harvey said that he had served five years in the army, 18 months of the time in France. He was married, but did not live with his wife. He married her the day he was to sail, but on his return from abroad he found that a child had been born to her three months after his leaving, and he had never gone back to her.

By agreement of counsel, and on the recommendation of State's Attorney Searls, a sentence of thirty days in jail was imposed on each and execution of it suspended during three months' probation, George Tetreault being appointed probationary officer.

Before adjourning until Friday morning Judge Jennings directed that notices be sent to jurors to appear at 10.30 next Tuesday morning, Jan. 13th, when the trial of jury cases will begin.

The following officers of Israel Putnam Lodge, I. O. O. F. were installed Tuesday evening by District Deputy Grand Master James H. McCulloch and staff: N. G., Eldon S. Johnson; V. G., Carl E. About 100 couples took part in the ball given this week by the Headquarters Company, the first of what is planned to be an annual event. Captain and Mrs. J. J. McGarry led the grand march. Music by MacDonald's orchestra was exceptionally good and there were many out-of-town visitors.

At the State Armory the other night when there were two basket ball games played, the first between the 43rd. company and the Woodstock Alumni, Woodstock won, 44 to 22. The second game was between the second team of the 43rd company and the Hi-Y club. This proved a very close game, the Y. M. C. A. boys winning by the score of 16 to 15.

GEORGE S. RICHMOND IS PRESENTED GIFT BY CHURCH

At the meeting of the Union Baptist church Monday evening, the report of the treasurer, George S. Richmond, formerly of Norwich, showed that nearly eight thousand dollars had been received and disbursed during the year for church expenses and benevolences. Mr. Richmond was presented a gift of $50 as an expression of appreciation of his services in keeping the accounts of the church. One of the interesting features of the report was the announcement of a gift from the late E. D. Evans of $1,000, creating a fund to be known as the Mary Brown Evans fund, the income of which is to be used toward the support of the church. Another gift was from the late Miss Mary E. Coates in the amount of $3500, part of which is to be used for the benefit of the Sunday school, the income to go toward the support of the church. A fund of something over a thousand dollars was also received from the state of the late John G. Packer, the income from this sum also to be used for the support of the church. The reports of the various organizations connected with church work showed a vast amount of work accomplished, the Ladies' Aid society in particular having been very active and their treasury showing a repair fund in bank of about $1,400 and a balance of approximately $159 in the treasury. The reports showed that $950 had been spent for church music during the year. Plans have been drawn by architects for re-modeling the interior of the church and it is expected that estimates will soon be procured for doing this work.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ray have gone to Worcester, Mass., for a lengthy stay.

Evans Morgan has returned to his studies at Andover, after spending the vacation at his home.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

THE SIGNALLESS CROSSING.

Not all crossing accidents even in these days involve motor vehicles. The killing of a family of three at a Pennsylvania railroad crossing resulted when the horse drawn carriage in which they were going to school was struck by a train. Two others were injured.

From all indications it was one of the unprotected crossings of which there are too many. It is related by those who witnessed the accident that the train had whistled for the crossing but it had not been heard by the child who was driving or it received no attention. Had there been a bell or light signal at that particular point provided the placing of a flagman or the erection of gates there were not warranted by the amount of traffic, it seems reasonable to presume that the danger would have been recognized in time to avoid being struck.

It makes little difference where crossings are located, there is good and sufficient reason for the safeguarding of the users by the erection of signals of some kind indicating the approach of a train. Whistles are not enough. There are times when they are heard and there are times when they are not. The noise made by the highway vehicle or the direction of the wind may easily reduce the whistle warning to the point where it fails to accomplish its purpose, and this is particularly true if the crossing is a blind one and the highway user is a stranger and is unmindful of what is ahead.

Along with the need of the use of the greatest care on the part of the individuals negotiating a crossing, there should be an effective warning such as a bell, a bright light, a red semiphone signal, a flagman or gates. With proper care being used and adequate warnings provided there can be and should be a marked reduction in the number of fatalities at such points. The seriousness of the crossing which has no signal cannot be overestimated.

SENATOR LADD.

Senator Ladd of North Dakota shows that his expulsion from the republican party bothers him. He was the one senator of the group facing expulsion who attended the caucus when action was taken. He may have hoped then that in view of the expression of the people in the November election which was so thoroughly republican that he might be permitted to remain. This hope was futile.

When he took occasion to remind some of the senators who were urging support of the president in order to elect him, but who had refused to support him concerning legislation, that their attitudes were highly inconsistent in view of their action concerning him, he was of course on good ground.

When, however, he berated the republican party and indicated his venom because he had been virtually read out of it, he was far from what ought to have been expected of him.

Senator Ladd is excluded from the councils of the republican party along with others because of the opposition he displayed to the very party from which his expulsion has made him so sore. He denounced the party, opposed the election of its candidates and fought its return. He in fact was the cause of his own expulsion and yet now that what would have seemed to have been the very thing he sought has occurred he displays his resentment.

There are senators whose names do not look well lined up with such as Brookhart, La Follette, Frazier, Ladd, et al., but Senator Ladd is only where he had indicated that he wanted to be in respect to the republican party.

Perhaps his latest tirade is open to the interpretation that he wants to get back that he takes a different view of matters now that the election is over and he must give consideration to his future political fences. If that is the case he knows well enough what is required of him. When he is ready to meet such requirements there will be no question about his getting back.

COLORADO'S PRISON.

As might be expected exception is taken by the warden of the Colorado state prison to the investigation which was made of that institution by Thomas Mott Osborne and the report which he made concerning it.

That the warden should have objected to the particular investigator indicator that a difference of views existed as to what methods should be employed in a penal institution. That the governor of the state insisted upon Mr. Osborne indicated a determination to find out about the conditions whether it pleased the warden or not.

Opinions differ concerning the management of penal institutions. Mr. Osborne has specialized on the subject. He has some very decided opinions concerning it. He is disposed to lean strongly toward leniency, and this in spite of the fact that in the employment of his ideas he has not always had the satisfaction of being able to say that they were appreciated even by the prisoners themselves.

When Mr. Osborne criticises the Colorado state prison there are possessed no facts to show his charges and claims are unfounded. It is to be expected, however, that they are made in keeping with those views which he is known to hold regarding the conduct of such institutions, and those views differ with the ideas of many who have had long experience in penal institutions and who have made a study of the results of the different methods.

No state can be expected to tolerate harsh or unjustified methods, but when the warden of the Colorado prison takes exception to the Osborne investigation and the Osborne finding there seems to be disclosed a clash of opinions as to prison management. If the Colorado prison conditions are criticized because they differ from the Osborne methods, the situation may not be so bad as might otherwise be inferred, when consideration is given to the leniency of the Osborne policies. If there are conditions which deserve to be corrected, regardless of the standard by which they are judged Colorado most certainly has a job before it which calls for immediate attention.

ELEVATING THE GUNS.

Gun elevation is a subject that may continue to be kept before the country. There are certain American naval vessels on which it would be possible to make the changes involved in elevation of the guns. They could be made more efficient as battleships by the increased range that would be obtained. In the matter of such alterations it is the belief of Great Britain that they should be regarded as major changes and therefore against treaty provisions. Japan and this country regard them as minor alterations and therefore not against the agreement.

It is apparently a case where the carrying out of the change would result in the feeling that the treaty terms had been stretched if they had not been violated, and because of that would develop just such a competition in naval construction as the naval restrictions are intended to avoid.

Aside from that point there is reason to give thought to the fact that the ships on which the changes might be made can be expected to stay away from the discard for only a matter of a few years. Within ten or twelve years they will be declared obsolete in the ordinary course of events. To make the proposed changes will involve millions. Under the present policy of economy and the efforts and desires of the nations that there be peace and friendly relations, the wisdom of giving peaceful conditions a further boost and the retention of the funds that would be required for future naval replacements must at least get consideration. It is easy to point out how limitless expenditures might be made in many directions, but these are times when something beside the expenditure of money must be considered. In which way can continued peace be the better promoted?

A MOUNTAIN'S NAME.

For more than a generation there have been efforts made to bring about a change in the name of Mount Ranier in the state of Washington. The people of Tacoma, over which city this giant towers, have made persistent appeals for the abandonment of Ranier and the substitution of Tacoma. Campaign has followed campaign. One is on at the present time, or perhaps it is more accurate to consider it a continuance of those which have gone before.

The name Ranier is obtained from Admiral Ranier of the British navy, for whom the mountain was named back in 1792 by its discoverer, Captain George Vancouver, the geographer and explorer.

Tacoma people have carried their efforts to congress and are hopeful of success. They want the Indian name of Tacoma applied and are unwilling to desist even in the face of opposition by people of their own state who even urge that there has been a campaign of misrepresentation conducted.

The matter of a change comes before congress because Mt. Ranier is in the national park and forest bearing that name and therefore property of the federal government. Possibly persistency will win in the end, but whether the proponents or the opponents of the proposed change are the stronger and can present the better argument rests with congress.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: This was to be a tough winter. Has someone lost the order slip?

Every snow storm that is predicted and fails to arrive causes no disappointment except to those with new sleds.

William Jennings Bryan denies rumor that he has quit politics. For most people that was entirely unnecessary.

Every now and then there comes to the front those who would legislate and then try to find out afterward if they were right.

Yesterday it was Governor Bingham, today it is Governor Trumbull and no prospects of any change for two years or more.

Now that the traffic regulations have been in effect about a week how many times have you failed to respect them and gotten by unnoticed?

The heart breaking part of that statement by a British surgeon that men are becoming more handsome is that he couldn't see his way to add "rapidly."

The steady reduction in our national debt is a gratifying fact to the taxpayers. Lopping off nearly a billion in 1924 helps in paving the way for more tax reductions.

If there is life on Mars, as some claim, it would be interesting to know how long it would take to prepare a landing place for the rocket one professor planned on sending there.

QUICK RECOVERY

"Forever more!" breathed the hostess' pretty aunt when she rounded a tall hedge and came full on to the disconsolate flapper weeping her head off on a cold marble bench. "Has anything happened?"

The flapper uncovered a defiant eye and then—perceiving that her discoverer was merely somebody 35 and so quite beyond the pale of consideration—revealed her entire face, much swollen and unhappy, and indulged in the plain truth.

"I'll say it has!" she admitted. "Another girl has stolen my best beau! And I liked him!"

"Now, isn't that too bad!" sympathized the pretty aunt. "What are you going to do about it?"

"What can I do about it?" countered the young person, with great bitterness. "I wouldn't be bawling if there was a single solitary thing I could do! Of course there are heaps of things I could do to Annette, but that's so silly. It wouldn't get him back. He seemed just crazy about her the minute they met. And before that—"

"Uh huh," the pretty aunt agreed casually. "Most always they're just at their best and brightest before the Annettes come along. Well, cross him off the list and — er—sort of look around."

"O-o-oh!" protested the flapper in what was nearly a shocked voice. "You sound so perfectly heartless! I guess you don't know what it is to like a person who is—who is just marvelous and whose eyes—"

"I've done it once or twice," admitted the pretty aunt confidentially. "And without exception their eyes have been that way. It's very disturbing."

"D-d-did anybody ever turn you down, too?" inquired the young person wide-eyed at the thought. "I beg your pardon."

"Oh, that's all right," declared the pretty aunt smiling kindly at the girl beside her. "What's a secret between friends? Yes, it's happened to me several times."

"I don't see how you can be so gay and cheerful," objected the young person, dabbing her eyes. "Ev-every time I think about Harry I choke all up. It was just too perfect, and if Annette had stayed out of it—I expect you were awfully pretty when you were young, too—it shows now."

"Th—thank you!" said the pretty aunt with a startled gulp. "Well, don't think about him! Or if you'll try real hard and must consider him, consider his faults instead of his perfections and if you count up enough you'll be thanking your stars at losing him.

"There is also another balm that is a peach. It is soothing and immediately effective. It is this—you beat Annette to it. Before she tried the siren game on your loved one and snatched him away, you did it yourself! You took him away from the girl before you! Because always and always there is a girl before the present girl. The background is just full of immediate predecessors wringing their hands and hating you! You may not have known about her not stolen intentionally, but the fact remains that seeing you the young man gave some other girl the hasty farewell and took up your trail.

"It isn't so bad when you think about it that way. You can sort of yawn at Annette, pleasantly. Always pleasantly. It makes them wonder what nice thing has happened to you that you are thinking about so obliviously of them—and usually some nice thing does happen. Another charming young man for instance—"

"Oh," gloomed the flapper who had quite forgotten to dab her eyes for five minutes, such was her interest. "I'm through with men!"

"Isn't that a pity!" the pretty aunt mused, shaking her head. "I was going to ask if you didn't want to drive down to the station with me to meet Gordon Linseed, who arrives on the 4:10 to join the house party! He's a football hero and a golf champion and a hundred times handsomer than your lost young man—but, of course, if you feel that way—"

"Oh, I'd be glad to go or company to you!" said the flapper hastily, searching for her vanity case. "I wouldn't be so rude! Can you wait just a minute till I fix my face? It looks something awful! How tall is he? Say, I hope he has dark eyes!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Country Minister.

Mr. Editor: Recently in an address delivered before the ministry of New London county by Bishop Edward C. Acheson on the Life and Work of the Ministry, he stressed with great force and power the absolute need of making a life that works for the good of others was indeed worthy, but above everything the making of a life for others was the really great thing. He illustrates his address, drawing in a few bold outlines the life of a country pastor, who without any great encouragement has such an unassuming life, yet wrought so effectively that though death overtook him in early manhood, his friends and neighbors, many of them of lowly estate, have already built for him a monument of enduring fame.

As the world judged he was a "little man." He had not gained great wealth, he was not a man of great affairs, he did not show off, he did not appear to be a very pious man. Aside from his unusually beautiful spirit, and uncommon depth of spiritual genuineness, he was very like his brethren whose lot it is to serve their brethren in all the common walks of life.

There are few thrills and scarcely ever any romances in the common round of preaching to small congregations made up for the most part of common people with little vision and no response, with visitation of the sick, funerals, weddings, and endless routine. There are no high lights to relieve the drab realities of the ministry of the country and small village church. Indeed it looks as if the lane he traveled in and in which he wrought his task could end in nothing but defeat.

But how foolish the judgment of the world and how strangely inconsistent is the world when it comes to rating the life of the common minister.

Take this Connecticut country minister. His life was of the simplest order. He had not climbed many, if any, of the rounds of the ladder of fame. He had spent his life almost wholly among the common people. But he had entered into the lives of these common people in a very unusual way. They had sought his counsel in times of perplexity. They had shared his friendship in times of joy. They had found peace in his prayers, and guidance, and sympathy in their sorrow. It had come into and gone out of their homes as a precious friend, yea as more than a friend. He was indeed their light bearer, and they loved him with a deep unwonted love. He was first in their thought in times of sorrow and misfortune. He was the inspiration of their religious aspirations and service, the one great influence that turned their lives to God their lives were changed by the power of his life and ideals. And now his life has flowed out beyond the circle of his own home and church; and his fellow ministers, his diocese, his bishop and his entire denomination and all the brotherhood of Christ, are richer in mind and heart because he loved and served so well his Master Christ. Think how exceeding few there are who attain to such as our brother. We deceive ourselves when we think of the lot of the common minister as being a small life. There are many ministers who touch as many lives, who form as many friendships, who are loved and trusted, who yield as blessed influence as this unknown Connecticut pastor.

There was no banker, nor merchant, nor manufacturer in the community in which he moved, whose field in any way compared in extent with his. Their scope and influence were limited. His horizon is now bounded by the communities in which he was alike the servant of rich and poor. Can you not see how really great such a life is? There is literally no end to the friendships a minister may form nor to the processes of blessings he may set going and to the good which he can do.

"There is no other business or profession in all the world that can crowd into one's life so much that really satisfies the heart, and makes hard work so infinitely worth while as can the privilege of being a pastor who is loved and honored for his work sake."

WILLIAM J. REYNOLDS.

Coue, the Penniless Drug Clerk

Emile Coue, the railroad worker's son, achieved brilliantly in higher education, then had to serve in the army and be an apprentice without monetary return.

Born in Troyes, France, he was two months old when taken to Nogent-sur-Seine, population 400, where he was reared, and attended the little "college," and also studied Latin. At 15, Emile went to Troyes, where in 18 months he completed the three-year course at the lycee. A year later he received the degree of Bachelor of Science at Montmeday, where he had studied chemistry. Now 18, he had to give one year to military service.

At 19 he started to work in a pharmacy in Troyes, and faced three years indenture as an apprentice, the only pay being his board and lodging. Soon he was doing all the work of the other four employees and his employer decided to pay him $5 a month.

Dreaming of becoming an instructor of chemistry and pharmacy in some university, he finished his three years' apprenticeship and entered the University of Paris, won a competition for a government fellowship of $240 and later took the degree of pharmacy.

M. Chominot, a Troyes pharmacist, offered Coue an interest in his store and promised him all of it at his death. Before Coue could accept, Chominot died and the widow did not favor the idea.

Finally persuading her to carry out the verbal agreement, with some modifications, Coue conducted the place 14 years. Marrying wealth he improved the store, made more money and at 41 retired, but returned four years later and conducted the pharmacy ten more years.

As a pharmacist he became first a hypnotist, then a autosuggestionist, and then quit the drug business to specialize in drugless healing. Declaring that the patient could produce results without intervention of an operator, he treated vast numbers and at Nancy held as many as 40,000 consultations a year. Then came the world war, which shattered his plans.

After peace had been proclaimed he visited Paris, London and the United States. At first called a faker and a visionary, he won renown and his fame spread until today at 67 he is rich and has a world-wide clientele.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Etienne Clementel, whose name figures prominently in the public discussion concerning the payment of the war debts which France owes to the United States, holds the position of Minister of Finance in the French cabinet and is acknowledged to be one of France's leading authorities on economic questions. As a young man he first entered the public service in a minor post under the Minister of the Colonies. Here he showed such excellent administrative ability that not so many years afterward he became minister himself. Like many others, the war brought out his salient qualities. During the Clemenceau ministry he held many ministerial portfolios at the same time on account of his administrative genius. He has served as president of the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris and in spite of many other duties he has found time to write two volumes describing the work of the Carnegie Foundation during the war.

NEW BOOKS

The Talmadge Sisters. By their mother, Margaret L. Talmadge. Cloth, illustrated. 245 pages. Published by The J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

This volume tells the romantic story of the well known screen family, how the Talmadge sisters climbed the steps to stardom.

Like all good stories this begins at the beginning in those early days when the three small sisters, under the capable and merciless direction of Norma, gave plays in the Talmadge attic for which the admission was seven pins. When Constance by virtue of a natural inclination to hang by her toes starred as the circus queen is presented and then the first anxious tryout in the movies which convinced her that she was "hopeless, stupid, wooden, impossible and absurd."

The story tells of Constance's entrance into the pictures and their removal to Hollywood. Theirs is the Hollywood of hard work and the patient effort of the stars in the making and their informal comradeship in work and play with the leaders in the moving picture world.

Romance too, comes in California with the meeting of Natalie and Buster Keaton. It is all a very true story and it holds much wisdom for other girls who dream of a motion picture career. It discusses what makes a movie star, what are the requirements, whether nuli is necessary and how one may test quite simply for a camera face.

There is an untechnical description of how a picture is made from the first selection to the choice of location and actual "shooting" of the scenes. It is a well written and entertaining book about live and well known film stars.

The Subconscious Mind. How to Reach and Arouse. By Gertrude A. Bradford. Cloth, 163 pages. Published by The Elizabeth Towne Co., Holyoke, Mass.

Applied psychology has revealed the subconscious mind as an unlimited source of power. By learning how to use this power, Mrs. Bradford was healed in less than 30 days of tuberculosis, heart trouble, nervous prostration and other diseases which doctors had pronounced incurable.

The Subconscious Mind is a clear and simplified presentation of her method of using applied psychology for health, prosperity and happiness. It dwells on reaching the subconscious mind of another and healing at a distance, the cure of undesirable habits, and the worry and hurry habit.

The subject is interestingly presented and the volume of pocket size is attractively printed.

The World Almanac for 1925. Paper. 900 pages. Published by the New York World, New York. Price 50 cents.

America's standard annual is now in its fortieth year. It is an indispensable book of reference ready at your hand. Ask the question, here's the answer.

Essential facts that every one must have before him whereby he may form his judgment on the big problems of 1924-1925, are here—from reparations and the Dawes plan to the balance-sheet of the American farmer; from the air fleets of the great pokers to the enforcement of the prohibition law, from the immigration law to the income tax. The aim of the editor is accuracy in collection of these facts; terseness in handling them, and accessibility in presenting them.

As a hand-book of politics and public affairs it is unequaled. The record of the presidential year is given for all time in the forty-eight pages of election returns by states, the popular and the electoral votes in the last nine campaigns, and, further, in the reports of the national conventions, with the three party platforms in full. As many pages are needed also for the records of the great sporting events of the year.

Stories That Recall Others

He Should Worry.

The church society was practicing for amateur theatricals. One member, a young man, who lived in the country, was riding horseback to and from the rehearsals each evening. It was a splendid, moonlight night, with a soft, flower scented, June breeze when he started on one of his return trips. A mother of the cast looked at him wistfully as he jogged along down the street and then called to him:

"I envy you the ride; it is such a lovely night."

"Oh, I don't mind that," he called back as he urged his mount to a faster gait.

Which Proved It Right.

This teacher has a way of catching up his pupils after they have made recitations. A few days ago one of the class was as clever as he was. The usual procedure is for the teacher to ask a question, and after the pupil has answered it, the instruction says, "Now are you sure about that?" and adds, "Isn't it thus and so?" or, "don't you mean something entirely different from that?"

The pupil usually believes he is wrong and "hems and haws" and haws" trying to correct his first statement, when usually it is correct.

This time when the teacher asked, "Are you sure about that?" the pupil said "I don't know whether it is right or not but that is what it says in the book."

Many a man is unable to meet his expenses because he is headed the wrong way.

Leverett T. Pitcher.

After being in poor health for the past four years and seriously ill for the past five days, the death of Leverett T. Pitcher occurred Thursday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Herman Tubbs of 73 Division street.

Mr. Pitcher was born in Norwich, Thamesville section, May 10, 1856, the son of George W. and Nancy A. Pitcher. He received his early education in local grammar schools and then attended the Norwich Free Academy. For 54 years he had lived on Division street in this city, six years being spent in Bridgeport. At the time of his death he was the oldest continuous resident of Division street, a half century being spent on that street. He was a machinist by trade and as long as the C. B. Rogers plant was located in Norwich was employed there. Later, for 15 years, he was employed by his brother, George E. Pitcher, civil engineer. For the past 15 years he had lived a retired life.

In Norwich on November 28, 1883, he was united in marriage with Miss Laura A. Harrington of Greeneville, who passed away on December 21, 1891.

Mr. Pitcher was a member of Samuel H. Harris lodge, No. 99, I. O. O. F., of Bridgeport for 46 years, a member of the Veterans' Association, I. O. O. F. of the state, and a member of the Citizens' corps of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R.

He was a man who enjoyed the great out of doors, and nature was always an interesting study to him. He was a favorite with his neighbors on Division street, his ability to make and hold friends winning to him a wide circle of acquaintances throughout the city. News of his death will be received with sorrow and members of the family have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. Herman Tubbs, with whom he resided, two grandchildren, F. Mentor and LaVerne A. Tubbs; one brother, George E. Pitcher, of this city, and several nephews and nieces.

Market Conditions.

The following products show an increase in prices: celery, lettuce, onions, potatoes, cranberries and oranges. Cranberries are at present meeting a quiet demand at sustained prices. Potatoes are a little higher, supplies are, however, increasing. Beets and carrots remain unchanged, market holds steady. Box apples are meeting active demands, prices hold up well on this product.

Lambs remain firm, supplies still are unsatisfactory. Lard markets show a slight decline in their present prices.

Native eggs are lower, supplies are a little larger. Western egg markets are higher, storage eggs are in a little higher also. Butter remained steady, good supplies are available.

Pork products are decidedly higher. Pork loins are bringing around 20c to 22c per lb.

PUBLIC GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH NORWICH TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

The driving public as a whole are observing the new traffic rules to the letter and to date there have been but very few violations that have come to the attention of the city court. As usual, there are a few drivers who through carelessness or ignorance of the law violate some of the rules. This has been observed on Main street where occasionally a machine is seen parked on the wrong side of the street, this being on the one way section of Main street between Washington square and Broadway. Parking in that particular section of the street is allowed on the left hand side and not on the right and no east bound traffic is allowed on the street. However, in this section of Main street, automobiles draw up to either right or left curb to discharge passengers, but there is parking only along the left curb.

The question was brought up Thursday evening as to whether the five minute parking zone holds good 24 hours a day. According to an interpretation of Section 44 of the traffic rules the forty minute parking limit zones are replaced by a five hour parking limit between 8 o'clock at night and 8 o'clock in the morning. No mention is made of the five minute parking limit zone being included in this section. The general impression seems to be that the five minute parking limit goes off at 8 at night until 8 the next morning, but this is not so, for according to Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney the five minute parking limit is in force 24 hours a day. "No Parking" rules also apply 24 hours a day.

Local drivers and those from out of town have quickly learned about the no-parking regulation on the westerly side of Broadway hill so that no machines now line that side of the street at night or in the daytime, while their occupants are attending the theatre, as was formerly the case.

No parking signs were placed Thursday on the southerly side of Cliff street from the Chelsea bank corner to near the top of the hill. This section of the street had not previously had anything to show that it was a forbidden zone for parking although it was included in the new regulations.

"Safety zone" signs have been placed in Franklin square to shut off machines from going across the square between the beacons at any time. One Norwich man who stood on the curb and watched the operation of machines through the square Thursday declared that he felt it was a foolish regulation to shut off from travel for 24 hours a wide open space in order to provide a few minutes of protection every quarter of an hour for the trolley passengers. This critic pointed out that the cars themselves mark out a zone and furnish protection when they are in the square, while the effect of compelling automobiles at all times to go around the beacons is to contribute to congestion in Main street from Rose place to Ferry street and to hold-ups in traffic, particularly when a big truck is negotiating the turns at the two beacons. Another point which this critic claimed needed correction was the permission of parking for any time along the northerly curb on Main street just where the traveled portion is narrowed up by the Laurel Hill trolley track coming into the square. The instances are not uncommon where an automobile going westerly from Franklin square meets a Laurel Hill car coming into the square and has no place to get out of the way because the curb to the right is lined with parked machines.

COMPLETING NEW BUILDINGS AT MANSFIELD SCHOOL

The regular January meeting of the department of public welfare was held this week at its office in the capitol. Dr. George C. Williams of Hartford, president of the department, was in the chair. Reports were made by members and the secretary of visits to state institutions since the December meeting. Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of Norwich and Secretary Kellogg reported a quarterly visit to the Connecticut School for Boys at Meriden, where they examined the work of the boys in the various industrial departments and inspected one of the two new cottages which are approaching completion and will accommodate sixty boys each.

Mr. Kellogg reported, also, a visit to the Mansfield State Training School for the Feeble-Minded, where three new buildings are nearly completed for which appropriation was made by the general assembly of 1923. These buildings consist of a new cottage to accommodate 100 boys, a well-arranged hospital and a nurses' home which will provide room for 100 nurses and attendents.

GASOLINE CAR RESTORED TO WORCESTER BRANCH

Another chapter has been added to the history of the gasoline driven car, operating on the New London-Worcester branch of the New Haven on the Putnam to New London run. The first chapter dealt with inauguration of the service, the second told of the trials and tribulations of the gas car, how it broke down after one day's run and was taken off.

Now comes the third chapter. The gasoline car has been restored to the run of train 710, northbound, arriving at Putnam at 10 o'clock, and of train 719, southbound, leaving there for New London at 1.30 in the afternoon. From Putnam to Worcester and on the return trip a train runs, connected with the car at Putnam.

The car, modeled something after the style of a trolley, with a large engine at the front as on a heavy duty truck, has for the past two days met passenger and baggage requirement with ease, but from some of the villages to the south of Putnam has come a complaint that their express service is seriously cut. Train 710 carried an express car.

GRAND LODGE OFFICES WILL VISIT ODD FELLOWS

Members of Uncas lodge, No. 11, Shetucket lodge, No. 27, and Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, will meet in a joint session Monday evening at Odd Fellows' hall on Main street when the grand officers of the lodge will make their annual visitation. Grand Master James Cooper and staff of Mystic will visit the lodge that evening and Noble Grand Carleton Bowers of Uncas lodge will preside.

Following the meeting an entertainment will be provided, a special musical programme rendered and refreshments will be served. It is expected that the attendance will be the largest at any meeting of the year.

One week from Monday the newly elected officers of Uncas lodge are to be installed by District Deputy Grand Master Fred L. Avery and staff, of Willimantic. A fine programme has been arranged for that evening and refreshments will be served.

RADIO FANS EXPERIENCE UNUSUAL INTERFERENCE

Due to some unknown cause the radio bugs of the city have been experiencing considerable interference, one of the ardent supporters of the radio said Thursday night. He declared that if the interference continues to be prevalent, the radiolites in all probability will cast aside their sets for the time being as no enjoyment can be secured through the earmuffs with the present conditions. This fan explains that a leak in the high tension wires or some other source may be the cause of the interference but so far the fans have been unable to put their finger on the real trouble. He said the trouble, if remedied, would not only be helpful to the radio fans in getting better "service" but would undoubtedly save somebody a great deal of money.

ARCANUM CLUB HOUSE DESCRIBED IN OLD BULLETIN

In looking over some old papers recently Miss Louisa J. Brewer, of 92 Washington street, came across the following reference to the purchase of the Arcanum club's present property on Main street. Unfortunately the clipping fails to record the exact year; but from a bank statement advertisement it may have been 1887. The yellow clipping reads:

"WEBSTER HEIGHTS"

Historical Reminiscences of the Century-old Mansion Which Becomes the Arcanum Club House.

The rehabilitation and improvement of the so-called Webster mansion, which the Arcanum club has purchased and will occupy on Monday next, excites popular interest in one of the oldest residences in this part of the town. For the purpose of learning something of the history of this structure The Bulletin's representative called on our venerable fellow townsman, Col. George L. Perkins, who once was an occupant of the house. When newspaper files, histories and the recollection of younger generations fail, the searcher for ancient history turns to the bright and vivid memory of Col. Perkins like opening the printed pages of an historical encyclopaedia. After sitting in a chair over a hundred years old and enjoying an hour's delightful interview with this wonderful man, who is now ninety-nine years of age—a man who was born before George Washington was president, who has outlived all the presidents of the United States except Hayes and the incumbent, who knew President Cleveland's great grandfather, grandfather and father—one who feels as if he had been moving for a space in a past age; and to emerge again into the life of today and to mingle with the affairs of our contemporaries is like stepping out of a back number of old Father Time's ceaseless journal. From Col. Perkins and from some other authorities it was learned that the house in question was built in the year 1786 by Nathaniel Backus, for his son, Erastus Backus.

"That chair which you see there in the corner," said Col. Perkins, pointing to a substantial straight-backed arm chair made of oak, "was made by Nathaniel Backus and is over 100 years old, perhaps 150. It was originally unpainted, but I have had it finished up as you see it."

Nathaniel Backus was one of the earliest householders in this part of the town. At that time Rocky Point was becoming a flourishing hamlet and trading post and was called in common parlance the Landing; but it gradually acquired the name of New Chelsey, or Chelsea Society, by which it is still called by some of our older residents. The Backus house is believed to have been the first house erected upon the heights commanding the Landing. A century ago, that eminence, now so thickly inhabited, was a mass of rock and forest and almost inaccessible except to the snakes which formerly made their homes there. The territory now occupied by the residences of Broadway, Franklin and East Main street and Laurel Hill was a vast sheep walk which was just beginning to be improved. Standing on the heights and looking down, the beholder saw the group of buildings which constituted the thriving little mart. At the wharves lay the shipping in which the merchants imported goods directly from England, Holland, the West Indies and other foreign ports. East Chelsea or Swallow-all was noted as the hive of sea captains. East Main street was narrow and crooked. Wells, fences, gardens, shops and dwelling houses projected into the present street. The whole district was rugged with rocks and water courses.

Such was the scene in the midst of which this house was built five years after the close of the Revolutionary war. Erastus Backus, for whom the father built the residence, died in 1791, whereupon the property was purchased by Lynde McCurdy, an active merchant and esteemed citizen. Mr. McCurdy was a native of Lyme, Conn., being an uncle of Judge McCurdy, but he spent all of his mature years in this city, where, this historian says, he was distinguished for generosity and public spirit. He died in 1803, and for the next twenty years the house remained in possession of Mr. McCurdy's family.

In 1823 Col. George L. Perkins bought the premises. One of the first things he did was to substitute a pump for the bucket in the old well. Col. Perkins relates with considerable relish how he gave the pump-maker points. The well was forty feet deep (its bottom reaching considerable below the level of Main street) and the fabricator of pumps declared that water could be rained only the theoretical 32 feet; but Col. Perkins knew better. First he had the forty-foot tube put down, and into this was inserted a wooden spar sixteen feet long and so large around that it allowed only so much water to pass as would fill the spout. When this spar was worked up and down by the handle, Col. Perkins avers that it not only drew up water when it ascended, but it drove up water when it descended, keeping up a steady flow. The pump excited so much interest at the time that distinguished citizens called and pumped water just for the fun of seeing it work.

Colonel Perkins had the bow shaped additions made to the eastern and western ends of the house—which, Mrs. Perkins declared, made it look like a steamboat—and had the parlor doorways widened, making the compartments more capacious. The window glass, which was all in old-fashioned, small squares, he had removed and replaced with large plates of what was called "double-thickness" glass, which was imported. When this glass was removed a few weeks ago, it was found in a peculiar condition, as The Bulletin noted at the time. It looked dirty, but washing would not clean it; and upon close examination it was discovered that the surface was covered with minute cracks, running in every direction. The glass was given away to a man who, it was thought, might cut it into smaller sizes and use it in cellar windows or for some such purpose; but when the glazier, after drawing his diamond across it, attempted to break it it flew into millions of small fragments. The curious condition of this glass was probably attributable to a fire which threatened to destroy the mansion about the year 1830. The fire originated in the adjacent house of Colonel Perkins' brother, and Colonel Perkins' residence was saved only by profuse douching. The window glass was so hot that the hand could not bear it; and the intense heat and the water probably transformed the quality of the glass.

Up to the year 1836, the grounds extended to the Main street sidewalk where they ended with an offset wall 12 feet high. Over this wall hung a pear tree, the fruit of which would sometimes drop to the sidewalk like manna from heaven and minister to the comfort of the wayfarer. When the fruit didn't drop to the wayfarer, the wayfarer occasionally went up to the fruit. Colonel Perkins once collared a youth who was stealing his pears, and tied him up in his barn temporarily, and notified the lad's father that he would give him the privilege of flogging him. In 1836 the removal of this wall back from the street was begun. In that year Colonel Perkins made a trip to Chicago, which village was alleged to contain 900 inhabitants although Colonel Perkins considered the estimate somewhat exaggerated. Chicago's population now is about 600,000. Upon his return his idea about the business outlook had changed and the work of removing the wall was stopped. Upon Van Buren's inauguration in 1837, however, it was resumed, and when completed, Colonel Perkins had four stores, two stories high built there by James and Jedediah Spalding. The stores cost $1,600 and were immediately rented for $1,000 a year.

Colonel Perkins sold his place in 1843 to Capt. William W. Colt, a native of New London but who had moved to Norwich in 1819 and who, like his public spirited predecessors, had contributed to the business prosperity and improvement of the city.

Captain Colt's successor was our esteemed townsman, Dr. Claudius B. Webster. In this building he conducted a day and boarding school for young ladies, which was one of several educational institutions for which Norwich has been famous and in which many of the most cultivated women of this neighborhood were educated. The school was begun in 1845 and continued with undiminished favor for 15 years, when the growth of the Free Academy and other schools proved counter attractions. Then the war broke out, and during the whole dreadful period Dr. and Mrs. Webster gave their personal services to the sick and wounded Union soldiers, either being stationed at hospitals or following the rear of the marching army. In 1870 Dr. Webster was appointed consul at Sheffield, Eng., a position which he honorably filled for 16 years.

Since then the property has belonged to Dr. Webster but has been occupied by others. In 1871 his brother-in-law, A. H. Hakes took up his residence there, and for several years, until 1881 Mrs. Hakes kept an excellent day and boarding school in the mansion.

During the past six or seven years the house has been rented and used in turn by several families. In 1886 the house and land, which latter has an area of over 15,000 square feet, were purchased by the Arcanum club and the old mansion began the second century of its existence in possession of this thriving organization.

SLOW-WEAR that's why you need DUNLOP TRUCK TIRES

TRACTION is important—cushioning is very important,—and Dunlop has both of these. But Dunlop durability, or "slow-wear," is the first reason for buying Dunlop Truck Tires. Without durability—you have nothing. And it is due to more rubber in the compound.

MOSHIER STATION, WATERFORD, DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 8.—The Liberty Gasoline station conducted by L. E. Moshier, Station 14, Waterford, was entirely destroyed by fire late tonight. The structure is owned by Walter Creighton. The fire was discovered at 11.30 o'clock and at that time the building was all in flames. With the arrival of the Jordan Fire company it was believed that other buildings nearby would be ignited and a call to New London for assistance caused the Nameaug Engine Co. to respond. The fire was extinguished a half hour after discovered, but with the building and its contents a total loss.

JIMMY DE FORREST IS BARRED BY NEW YORK ATHLETIC COMMISSION

New York, Jan. 8.—Jimmy De Forrest, veteran trainer of boxers, tonight was barred from "seconding or handling any competitor at the ringside, and from taking any part whatsoever in boxing sanctioned by the amateur athletic union." This was announced by the registration committee of the metropolitan association.

The suspension of Dick Kenny, Joe Canamare and Mike McNally, boxers withdrawn from the New State Amateur tournament by De Forrest last night, when another of his stable, Jimmy Mendoza was disqualified, was also announced.

DeForrest's banishment was announced through Secretary Jacob W. Stumpf, of the boxing committee of the Metropolitan association of the A. A. U., which is conducting the tournament.

Officials explained that DeForrest appeared yesterday with his quartet of amateurs after the entrants in the 118-pound class, in which Mendoza had expected to compete, had been weighed in, and matched. According to the rules Mendoza was barred from the tournament and the trainer immediately withdrew his entire string, including two amateur champions, Canamare and Kenny.

DeForrest is the man under whom Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight has stated that he will train for future bouts in America.

NURMI HOPES TO BREAK MORE RECORDS

New York, Jan. 8.—(By The A. P.)—Paavo Nurmi will attempt to lower four world's records the next time he faces Joie Ray, Veteran American who gave the Finn a thrilling mile race in their first indoor struggle at Madison Square Garden last Tuesday.

Their second indoor contest will occur at the Illinois club games in Chicago January 16, when, according to officials here today, the pair will match strides for a mile and three-quarters instead of a shorter distance as previously announced. The "Phantom Finn" and the "Kanakee Flier" will be clocked at the mile, mile and a quarter and mile and a half marks on their way to the finish.

The Chicago track, measuring fourteen laps to the mile is the same one as which Ray established five years ago the mile record of 4:14 3-5 from which Nurmi clipped a full second Tuesday.

Nurmi will run at Chicago the night after he competes here in a special event at the Municipal A. A. games in Madison Square Garden. This will be his second American appearance and the Finn is scheduled to team up with his countryman, Willie Ritola, in a two-mile relay race in which each will run alternately two half-miles. Nurmi has run the half mile in close to record time outdoors.

The Finns will have strong opposition in this race, for invitations have been issued to such combinations as Alan Helfrich and Schuyler Enck, Penn State; Jimmy Connolly and George Marster, Georgetown; and Lloyd Hahn and Thomas Cavanaugh, Boston.

NURMI FULFILLED THE EXPECTATIONS OF FINLAND

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 8.—Commenting on the record-breaking performance of Paavo Nurmi in the recent Finnish - American games at Madison Square Garden, Helsingfors newspapers today pointed out that all the expectations entertained in Finland of their countryman's performance were splendidly fulfilled when the speedy Finn shattered three world's indoor records. This was accomplished, it was explained, notwithstanding Nurmi's unfamiliarity with indoor running tracks he had never raced on an indoor track previously—and the short training undergone in America.

Nurmi's competitors were at a considerable advantage, the newspapers remarked, as they were competing on the tracks of their native land.

NAMES COLT AFTER THE "PHANTOM FINN"

New York, Jan. 8.—If name and breeding mean anything, "Nurmi," a brown two-year-old colt in the Greentree stable owned by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, should sweep the juvenile thoroughbred field next season.

The colt is a half brother of Stinulus, one of the fastest two-year-olds of 1924 and was sired by the Finn, which also gave to the turf Zev, greatest money winner of all time.

Formal registry of the colt as a namesake of Paavo Nurmi, great Finish runner, has been made with the jockey club.

WILL ENACT HISTORIC SCENE ON ANNIVERSARY

New York, Jan. 8.—Emulating a scene enacted just 50 years ago at precisely the same day and hour, magnates of the National league will meet in the Grand Central Hotel in third avenue at noon, February 2, in their regular spring schedule meeting.

This meeting has been called by President John A. Heydler at this time and place in commemoration of the first National league meeting which was held in this ancient hostelry February 2, 1875. The meeting will be held in the same old-fashioned parlor in which their predecessors met 50 years ago after which adjournment will be taken to a luncheon to be served in the quaint dining room at the hotel.

This will be the first step of the National league in observance of its golden jubilee, which will continue throughout the year with various public ceremonies, terminating in February, 1926, with a dinner to end the year's celebration.

SISLER OPTIMISTIC OVER PROSPECTS OF BOWNS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 8.—Although the St. Louis Americans have parted with numerous good players in recent trades, Manager George Sisler believes the only man whose loss will be felt to any extent will be that of Urban Shocker, star right hander, who was sent to the New York Yankees in exchange for Joe Bush.

The pitching staff as a whole, Sisler declared, appears nearly as good as formerly while the catching staff has been considerably strengthened with the acquisition of Leo Dixon, of St. Paul ranked second in fielding in the American Association last year.

A good outfielder, batting right-handed, still was being sought by the Browns, it was said, and the next trade, if any probably would bring such a player to the Browns.

WIGHTMAN DECLINES TO HEAD TENNIS BODY AGAIN

New York, Jan. 8.—George W. Wightman, of Boston, president of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association for the past year, has declined renomination for another term and will be succeeded by Jones W. Merserean, of New York, according to announcement today of the new officers slated for election at the annual meeting here February 7.

Mr. Wightman notified J. C. Auchincloss, chairman of the 1925 nominating committee, that he regarded the invitation to serve another year in office as an endorsement of his administration but declared he could not accept because of business considerations which necessitated his retirement from active participation in tennis affairs.

Besides Mr. Merserean, who is now vice president of the U. S. L. T. A., the other officers named by the nominating committee and slated for election are: Vice-president, R. Clifford Black New York; secretary, Harry S. Knox of Chicago, to succeed Paul Williams, of Utica, N. Y., and treasurer, Louis B. Dailey, New York, to be re-elected.

Nominations for delegate-at-large include Samuel H. Collom, and R. Norris Williams, Philadelphia, and Walter L. Pate, New York. The 1925 nominating committee will be composed of Charles Garland, chairman, New York Walter T. Hayes, Chicago; and Alfred H. Chapin, Sr., Springfield, Mass.

The new amateur rule proposal, including revised player-writer features, recently approved by the executive committe of the U. S. L. T. A., after being drafted by a special committee headed by United States Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania, is among the most important issues on the program for the annual meeting, also made public today. Award of national championship for 1925 also will feature the sessions.

KILLINGLY AT CHAPMAN TECH THIS EVENING

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 8—After losing their last two contests, Chapman Tech is planning to stage a comeback at the expense of the Killingly quintet which invades this city on this (Friday) evening. Killingly having the distinction of winning twice from the Red and Black last year, will attempt to repeat her performance Friday. The opening whistle opening the festivities will blast at 8 o'clock, with a referee from the central board at Hartford being the eleventh man in the court.

Chapman Tech went through its final stages of preparation for this game, anticipating a strenuous struggle. The lineup will be the same that took care of Tech's fortunes on the court during the past two games. Being anxious to break into the winning column once again the Tech players promise to make things interesting for the visitors. With Hewitt leading in the offensive, Tech will be expected to hit her winning stride once again.

BULKELEY PLAYS AT SPRINGFIELD TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 8—The entire squad that constitutes Bulkeley High's hopes on the marked court, will make the trip to Springfield, Mass., this (Friday) afternoon at 4 o'clock in three automobiles. The party which will carry the Orange and Black invaders into the Bay state will be swelled by a party of twenty altogether, Coach William R. Canty and Manager Arthur J. Shugrue will also make the trip.

Bulkeley faces the inevitable on tomorrow night, meeting the fast and renowned all over the state basketball team representing the Springfield Commercial High five. Although the early games have been met with a success, a team of the calibre of the Commercial five was not encountered as yet. Bulkeley does not measure up to the standard of the more stronger fives in this state and out. This year is really a trial year in basketball, for it marks the reviving of a dead sport, and the inactivity of last season has caused the stock of the Bulkeley team in this athletic phase to go down.

FIRPO READY TO SIGN CONTRACT FOR BOUT WITH GIBBONS IN LONDON

London, Jan. 8.—(By The A. P.)—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine's "Wild Bull of the Pampas," broke into London's pugilistic Chinashop today. He wandered all over the place, sans companion, sans interpreter, and sans any set of plans. He halted his sightseeing tour, however, long enough to drop into the National Sporting club and confirm his acceptance of the club's offer for him to meet Tommy Gibbons, the American light-heavyweight, in London, March 30, for a purse of 20,000 pounds sterling with the winner taking sixty percent and the club's heavyweight belt.

Arthur F. Bettison, manager of the sporting club is seeking to get in touch with the American fighter. If the latter is favorable to meeting the Argentine, Firpo expects to sign his end of the deal tomorrow.

Luis had planned a long automobile tour of the continent, starting at the end of January, he told the Associated Press today, he said, however, he would cancel this trip and get down immediately to a hard two-months' training grind in order to be in the best possible condition when he meets the "tough man from Minnesota" who made Jack Dempsey go 15 rounds.

Firpo declared he was in good condition now and would not have much trouble in getting "into the pink." The Argentine does not speak English, but that did not hamper him in seeing London. He covered a remarkable amount of ground in a few hours. He stopped at the Argentine consulate and Embassy and visited a number of Argentine friends.

The "Wild Bull" said he planned a quiet week in London and, barring a scheduled appearance at the Sporting club Monday, when he will be introduced at the ringside, and an informal visit to the Royal club tomorrow, he has not made any engagements. He is traveling without a manager and is making his own arrangements throughout.

While the Argentine boxer's tour was one which he had long contemplated, and was mainly for the purpose of seeing Europe, he appeared delighted at the idea of a meeting with Gibbons and said he was anxious to get back into training. He said he probably would make his training quarters on the Riviera.

Four varsity crews worked under Head Coach Ed Leader, three freshmen eights under coach George Murphy and three varsity 150-pound eights under Coach Don Grant, captain of last year's University of Washington crew.

SPORTING NOTES

The Hoboken Model Yacht Club, the first in America, was organized in 1840.

Alabama and Tennessee will be the scene of many important field trials during the month of January.

Judging from plans already announced, the next few months will be the most active in the [illegible] career of Willie Hoppe, the 18.2 balkline billiard champion.

More than usual interest attaches to the annual midwinter meeting of the Grand Circuit stewards in Cleveland because of the probability of some important changes in the membership of that famous racing organization.

Judging from the interest displayed in the annual National Motor Boat show now on in New York, the water sport is booked for one of the greatest seasons in its history during the coming summer.

Oxford and Cambridge University oarsmen already have started their long practice season in preparation for the annual university boat race, which will be held over the historic Thames course in March.

The coming annual bench show of the Westminster Kennel Club in Madison Square Garden will be the last to be held in the historic structure which has been the home of the club's exhibitions for so many years.

"Kid" Goodman, who was one of the best of the New England lightweights in his day, is now holding down a position as a [illegible] attache in Boston, at the same time keeping in touch with the ring game by refereeing an occasional fight in the Hub.

The success of the soccer leagues in all sections of the country during the first half of the present championship season shows clearly that the game is now established on a firm foundation and that the future of the sport in America is assured.

That it is a difficult proposition to make a six-club baseball circuit a financial success is evidenced by the fact that practically all of the minor league athat went through on a six-club basis last year are preparing to expand to eight-club circuits for next season.

Manager John J. McGraw is busy in the preparation of an elaborate schedule of exhibition games for his team next spring. The program, it is expected, will take the Giants over a wide expanse of territory after they finish their unlimbering on the sun-kissed field at Sarasota, Fla.

GREAT BRITAIN TO ENTER AIR RACE TO NORTH POLE

London, Jan. 8.—It was learned that Great Britain intends to enter the air race to the North Pole with an expedition next May under the leadership of a young Icelander, Grettir Algarsson, and Captain Frank Worsley, who commanded the late Sir Ernest Shackleton's ships, the Endurance and the Quest, in their explorations of South Polar regions.

As planned, the expedition will proceed to Spitsbergen, then northwards as far as the ice will permit and establish a base somewhere in the neighborhood of 81 degrees north. The final six hundred mile air dash to the pole, which will be the most hazardous stage of the venture, will be undertaken by Algarsson and one companion in a special seaplane fitted with skiis and floats.

Algarsson's purpose will be to land at the pole and take observations. He will return with the expedition along the coast of Greenland, proceed to England via New York.

New York, Jan. 8—Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York announced today an anonymous gift of $100,000 to the building fund of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. MOTHER OF THREE CHILDREN SENTENCED TO COUNTY JAIL

Bridgeport, Jan. 8.—Mary Winckiewicz, of Fairfield, 45 years old, and mother of three children, was sentenced to the county jail for ten days and fined $200 when she pleaded guilty to selling liquor when arraigned before Judge John J. Walsh, in the criminal court of common pleas today.

Wealthy Indians

Though the Osage Indians are the wealthiest people in the world per capita, the country whose boundaries are co-extensive with those of the tribal properties has been poverty stricken. This is because the rich Indians have been largely exempt from taxation, leaving their poorer brethren to stand the expense of government. But a court of appeals has held that the Indians must pay the county taxes in the future and for 14 years back.

You never tasted such rich mellowness as Wellman's method puts in this tobacco

An almost forgotten old tobacco secret, "Wellman's Method," dating from about 1870 and now ours exclusively, is responsible for the delightful taste of Granger Rough Cut—its mildness and its appetizing fragrance. And notice also the coarser "Rough Cut"—slower-burning, and therefore cooler. Here truly is a pipe tobacco that IS pipe tobacco!

NEED IS FOR LESS PATERNALISM AND MORE COMMON SENSE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

It is not often that a really-truly farmer "takes his pen in hand" to write about farming. To tell the truth, the pen is apt to seem to him a somewhat awkward tool. He can do rather surprising things with a hoe or a pitchfork or a fence-stretcher and do them so easily that the city-bred looker-on comes to think they did themselves, and that "any old fool" could do as well—till he tries it, himself.

The average farmer does a fairly large amount of thinking in the course of a year. But it is generally about problems arising right on his own farm. He has about enough he can do to pay his taxes and make a living, without thinking out or writing out the terms on which he does it.

Still further, he is apt to be so engrossed with these purely personal problems that he finds difficulty in envisaging the big "farm problem" as a whole. He can't see the forest because the trees right around him are so thick.

And, finally, if he does break out, in some moment of exaltation, with a straightforward, up-from-the-soil delivery of the real facts, he finds great difficulty in getting an editor to print it. Editors are usually city men with cityfied ideas. They, like too many of their fellow civics, think of the farmer in terms of "Josh Witcomb" or some other Old Homestead actor, who resembles the real farmer about as much as a Barbary ape resembles Valentino.

Did you ever hear of an honest-to-goodness farmer say "By heck?" I never did. Yet the average city idea of a farmer is a roughly-clad, roughly speaking, roughly handed old "Rube" whose thoughts seldom soar much above the manure-heap, and whose conversation is interlarded with "By heck's" and "Gosh-darn-it's."

Therefore I was both a little surprised and a good deal gratified to find in a recent issue of The Atlantic Monthly an article in which A Farmer Speaks Up. The farmer is Glenn W. Burkitt of southern Wisconsin and it needs only the most cursory reading of his article to show that he is the real thing.

The very fact that this article is based on a vigorous repudiation of all paternalism and charity from the government would prove his authenticity, if nothing else did so. I quote two sentences:—

"There is no group of people who would benefit so much by the elimination of public servants, offices and paternalism in general as farmers. We are an industry in which it is impossible to add our taxes and other overhead to the prices of our products."

I commend the reading of the whole article to all farmers who can secure a copy of the December Atlantic.

One thing that makes it seem so sensible to me is that it confirms with sledge-hammer blows my persistent hammerings against the sloppy habit of appealing to government for help every time a hail-storm strips our corn or a clapboard blows off the house. One naturally welcomes an ally, whether he is fighting active and wide awake enemies, or just trying to rouse stolidity out of its somnolence. There is something quite comforting in the feel of a friendly shoulder next to yours and the knowledge that your flank is guarded, anyway.

Wherefore I'm encouraged to take another whack at the general subject.

Those of you who have done me the honor to read preceding "Talks" in this column are well aware, by this time, that the tax-rate which we farmers have to pay is rising, not on account of federal expenditures but because of local wastefulness in state, county, city, town, school district. We farmers pay very, very little directly in federal taxes. The strain comes when the local tax-collector sits and summons us to "pay or be sold up." Not one penny of that money which we pay him goes to support activity of the national government. It all goes to pay the cost of local administration.

Also, as some of you know, the taxes indirectly levied by the federal government are being steadily reduced. We are paying off the national debt at a simply incredible rate, —$800,000,000 or so a year. Every hundred dollars of this we pay cuts the annual interest bill by four dollars or so. Moreover, the federal government is reducing running expenses. It is abolishing sinecures and saving the salaries of sinecurists. It is merging bureaus which formerly did each others' work over again, and thus saving another set of salaries. It is planning all its expenditures down to the level set by a carefully thought out budget instead of letting them swell and bulge wherever a pettifogging congress is weak or greedy enough to permit.

In these and other ways federal expenses are being vastly reduced and federal taxes deeply cut. The big dailies are full of this sort of thing. But we farmers are only indirectly and distantly interested in federal expenser or federal taxation. The taxation we feel, the taxation that bleeds us white, is the taxation levied by our local governments. We can't dodge it. We can't pass it on to some one else. When the federal government lays a tariff or an internal revenue or an income tax on imports or manufactures or invested wealth, those who pay it invariably pass it along down the line. Whatever the tax they pay amounts to they recoup it from the people at large in one way or another. Really, they touch not the burden with so much as one little finger.

But when the farmer pays the taxes locally assessed on his freehold, he can no more pass them on than he can dodge them. He can't, while taking them from his right-hand breeches pocket, rake in an equal or greater amount to his left-hand pocket from the customers who buy his potatoes and cord-wood. He's "out" just that sum,—out of it for good and all. It is as finally gone as if it had been openly confiscated by some "hi-jacker." There is no "come-back" for the farmer. He must dig up his fine however he can, and then go back to the drudgery of scraping together, dollar by dollar, enough to pay the next year's demand,—which will in all probability be still greater.

For, while the federal government is reducing expenses and alleviating taxation, the local governments are racing each other to increase expenditures and swell taxation. That's the plain, provable truth about it. And that is why the farmer, every farmer everywhere, should set his face like flint against everything which savors of extravagance or wastefulness.

Of course, we all want better schools and better roads and better police and fire protection and 'steen other things. And there are from fourteen to forty-five organizations in every community, each one cock-surely certain that everybody ought to sneeze whenever its nose itches, and all demanding appropriations for handkerchiefs of some sort to cover the universal "Ah-choo-ing" demanded. To say nothing of the scores on scores of individual blood-suckers who are squirming thick in every pool, avid for the chance to absorb sustenance from any living being they can set their "saws" at work upon.

All these, with their multifarious and often contradictory isms and crankinesses and greeds, are forever plotting for new appropriations to make what they call "improvements," or satisfy what they describe as "popular needs," or just to create new offices with tempting salaries wherefrom they can cabbage an easy living.

The old rule of "pay as you do" seems to have been utterly discarded in local governments. If you and I, fellow farmer, want something but haven't the money to pay for it we go without. But if the city of Smithville or the village of Jonesboro wants something its income won't warrant, why, what's easier than to issue a new set of bonds? "Let posterity pay," is the idea.

That's just what posterity is doing, today. We've already paid, in interest, more than the money value of all the bonds our fathers emitted and still have most of the principal on our backs. We're the "posterity" of which the spenders of thirty years ago were thinking.

Meantime, we have our own expenses to meet and our own needs to fill and the strain is getting fierce. So we plan to shuck off the bigger portion of it on our posterity,—which will have its new needs and fresh aspirations, same as they did thirty years ago and same as we're having today. We're paying for too much "dead horse."

That's no excuse for attempting to fill up the pastures of the future with still more morfound horseflesh.

There are too many laws and it takes too many men out of the ranks of productive labor to enforce them. We've got too many local debts and it takes the money we need for present use to pay interest on them. We've got to go without what we want,—perhaps what we really need, because our weak-minded ancestors said "Let George pay it." by "George" meaning you and me.

There are just about twice as many officers, with office-holders drawing salaries and fees galore, as there is any need of. One half of them could do the work,—and not over-earn their salaries, at that. We've got a veritable galaxy of "boards" and "commissions" and things of that sort, practically all of them supposedly engaged in doing what we could do for ourselves much better and cheaper.

What we need is less "paternalism" and a durned sight more common sense in community affairs. Less depending on government and more reliance on ourselves. Less meddling with private business and more attention to public business on the part of those who pay public taxes.

We farmers are the worst sufferers under the present muddleheaded mismanagement of state and local affairs. We can't hide our farms from the assessors as many do their bonds and stocks. It would seem about time for us to shoulder our pitchforks and start a "cleanup" campaign.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Slater Hall Musical Course.

What the press has to say about Georges Enesco, the great Rumanian violinist, who will play here on Friday evening, Jan. 9th, in Slater Hall, under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy.

New York Symphony tour, Walter Damrosch, conducting: Washington heard one of the greatest violinists who have ever visited us, when Georges Enesco appeared as soloist with the New York Symphony. Enesco, master violinist, a giant in stature, seemed to scale the heights of romance in the most suave yet magnificent virtuosity that cadenced lyric beauty from his strings. The Beethoven Concerto was ethereal in loveliness. It does not seem extravagant to say that no one possesses the thrill of Enesco. His ability as a violinist was a revelation to those who had not heard him before.—Times, Philadelphia.

Enesco in the Beethoven Concerto will long remain a glorious memory to all who heard him. It is doubtful if playing of exactly that type is heard more than once or twice in a lifetime. He has the rare power of genius. His tone is of a penetrating, delicate quality, and beautiful as the tones of a fine singer. It is what he does with this exquisite tone that arouses enthusiasm. It was a wonderful treat, a great privilege to hear this remarkable artist.—Record.

New York recital: Mr. Enesco played with an incommensurable sincerity. His playing excels in its expressive capacity and thorough understanding of the music. The chanson number was interpreted in an essentially poetic manner. This violin recital of Rumania's foremost composer was a notable event.—Times.

Tickets for this recital are on sale at The Cranston Co., Broadway. Tickets $1.00, tax exempt.

BROADWAY THEATER

The old-fashioned saloon is gone, but in its place has come the modern roadhouse, where heavy-hinged youths steal in with wide-eyed, rosey-rouged girls.

One of the important episodes in Broken Laws the splendid photoplay of Mother Love and Law, produced by Mrs Wallace Reid, deals with such a roadhouse.

In Broken Laws, which comes to the Broadway theater on Sunday, Bobby Allen and Patsy Heath both just 18, attend a wild party in the Purple Mill. There is much drinking and dancing and hilarity and in the midst of it Bobby's mother and Patsy's father unexpectedly appears in search of their children. Patsy is hustled off home and Bobby pursuing his father's car crashes into a vegetable wagon, killing an aged woman.

Here dozens of young people are seen gaily dancing to the last strains of an orchestra. The interior of the place is finished to represent a barn. A horse peers from a stall—owls sit on the rafters and the lighting is obtained by electric globes hidden in hollow logs.

Mrs. Wallace Reid is seen as the mother of Bobby; Arthur Rankin plays the boy and Virginia Lee Corbin, the girl, whose father is played by Percy Marmont.

R. William Neil directed it and the picture is released by Film Booking Offices who released Mrs. Reid's former picture, Human Wreckage.

BREED THEATER

Tom Mix is coming to the Breed theater today and Saturday, in a new William Fox western production, A Heart Buster. This picture is the fiftieth in which Mr. Fox has featured Tom, and although the title sounds mushy you will find that the western star does not have to doff his spurs and chaps and become a gay Lothario to break the hearts of the girls.

In fact the hero has to throw caution to the winds and kidnap the Justice of the Peace and minister in order to prevent the girl he loves from marrying the villian. But the girls will sigh when Tom sets into action and finally lands in jail to be rescued by his wonderful little horse, Tony.

Despite the fact it is Tom's fiftieth it is no fifty-fifty picture, but a real 100 per cent sure fire Mix knockout. One of the kind that has made Mix the most popular western star of the silver sheet.

The seventh chapter of Days of 49, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

New Music of the Week

These diminutive entertainers have the "blues" this week. The first is over cross-word puzzles, and the necessity of dropping the search for higher learning to wash their necks. Cross-Word Blues is well enough named.

Mean Cicero Blues is a classic study of hues.

Meyer Davis' Le Paradis Band of Washington makes its first Victor records this week. This famous organization employs no brasses. Washington and Lee Swing is somewhat military, while Nobody Likes You Like I Do is a familiar Bohemian melody set into a fox-trot.

Jean Goldkette and His Orchestra make a nice slow record of Honest and Truly, a waltz that invites even the timid to essay an arabesque. You Should Have Told Me, a fox-trot by Ralph Williams and His Rainbow orchestra, steps on it in contrast with its more placid companion.

Palace Theatre

The greatest vaudeville bill ever shown on any stage is the claim of management and if applause counts for anything it is certainly the best program ever offered in this city.

The first act on the bill was the Sensational Samorys and his feats on the flying trapez had everybody gasping and the last trick he uses was the cause of many near fainting spells.

The Picadilly quartette the next on the program receive an outburst of applause at the end of their first number that was unusual for a Norwich audience and at the finish of their last number it seemed as though the rest of the acts wouldn't get a chance to go on.

The Frederick Sisters and Thomas presented an unusual offering that was received equally as well as the acts that preceded them and then a cyclone of laughter blew in with Delmas and Doll. Several in the audience became hysterical and if you can't get a laugh out of this pair your case is hopeless.

Then to finish the bill came the Gotham Roamers and from the opening curtain to the last curtain call which was lost count of after the 15th it left the audience gasping. How the management were ever able to bring such a costly aggregation in to Norwich is a mystery and if they come out on the right side of the ledger on this bill the Palace will have to be packed to the doors at every performance.

The picture The Lighthouse by the Sea, with the world famous dog Rin Tin Tin is really a marvelous production and it was either good luck or some might been showmanship on the part of the management to get together such a rare combination of perfect vaudeville and pictures.

Annual Meeting United Workers Jan. 14th.

In order to leave time for Owen R. Lovejoy, speaker of the evening, the report of the year's work of the United Workers will be condensed and presented in one report, prepared by Mrs. Robert W. Perkins. Full details will be given in the printed reports. Mr. Lovejoy will speak in part upon the proposed Child Labor Amendment, a subject of present day interest, and one which the people of Norwich should be glad to have expounded in a fair and straightforward manner Mr. Lovejoy is a man of wide experience in child welfare and a speaker of remarkable magnetism. Dr. Felix Adler says of him: "Owen R. Lovejoy is well known as the Children's Statesman. He is a platform speaker of exceptional distinction and power. He possesses qualifications not often united in a single personality, a very exact knowledge of his subject, a large outlook, humane feeling, a sense of humor that gives a welcome relief to his treatment of even the most sombre subjects."

Talking Machine Shop Radio.

And the earth is still moving: The above statement was made by Oriel Acosta, many centuries ago, when he was persecuted for his advanced philosophic views and it holds true today. The whole human existence centers upon progressive movement. If we don't go forward, we must go backward. This is the modern conception of the progressive business-man of today. "And the earth is still moving."

The Talking Machine Shop, of Norwich is thoroughly in sympathy with the above point of view and following the spirit of the time, they have made a jump forward in the equipment of the most up to date radio department, something that the city of Norwich needs urgently.

Messrs. Max Hanover and Abraham Curland, the owners, of the Talking Machine Shop, feel very enthusiastic in the manner in which their plans in equipping a very selective and complete radio establishment in our city have materialized.

The radio fans visiting this shop will get a real thrill. It is a thrill which is not only in the air, but it consists in the beautiful assortment of radio apparatus waiting on their choices for public inspection.

When asked whether the radio will eventually supplant the Victrola in public favor, Mr. Curland, who can be quoted as an authority on the subject said, "The radio and the victrola are two different entities as musical instruments. The victrola as a true reproducing instrument of recorded music is here to stay. The radio is one of the marvels of the present century scientific discoveries. Its great mystery and novelty appeals to those who want the music of the moment. The two instruments stand comparison as the library to the newspaper—the victrola and records bearing the similarity to the library and the radio to the newspaper giving the news of the hour."

It is gratifying to see the merchants of our town awake to the spirit of the time

The nearer a girl approaches the age of 30 the more anxious she is to lose her self-possession.

SAFEGUARDING THE HEALTH OF HOGS

Health of the hogs within the fattening pen must be safeguarded to insure against losses, A. E. Mendenhall, Cass county, Indiana, farmer, said.

Many farmers do not realize that within these pens is material that can be turned in a healthful tonic for the hogs.

Mendenhall says that by transferring the corncobs within his hogfattening pen into charcoal he obtains much better results than when the practice is neglected. The cobs are raked into a pile and a fire is started. After the cobs have burned sufficiently water is placed on them to quench the fire. Salt is added.

CONTEST TO INCREASE NUMBER OF PIGS

In an effort to increase the pigs in a litter in White county, Indiana, a White swine sanitation contest is to be started. This will be one of the features of next year's program of the White county Farm Bureau.

Figures show that this system of swine sanitation "has accomplished positive results, and if it is possible for a farmer to raise eight pigs where he before raised only four it is to his financial advantage to follow the plans whereby this may be accomplished.

The contest will be held between rival townships, the losers to entertain the winners at a barbacue. The contest consists of nominating 100 sows in each township, and the proposition is to see which township raises the most pigs up to weaning time. The contest is for pigs farrowed in February, March and April. A man entering the contest can do what he wishes to in regard to his own herd of swine, but in view of the results of the state ton litter contest for the last four years, the men who carry out those points doubtless will have the best opportunities of winning.

Grain Rations for Cows

Grain rations for dairy cows should vary with the type of roughage fed, say experts. Many people feed proprietary feeds and get good results, but it is always wise to know the ingredients of these mixtures so as to know how they will combine with the roughage fed. For instance, where hay alone is fed, the grain ration should be of more laxative nature than when silage is also fed with the hay.

A ration recommended for cows getting mixed hay and silage is: 200 pounds bran, 100 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds cotton seed meal, 100 pounds gluten and 100 pounds corn meal.

For cows getting hay only, a good ration is: 200 pounds bran, 100 pounds cotton seed meal, 200 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds ground oats, and 100 pounds oil meal.

To each 100 pounds of grain also should be added one pound of salt and half a pound of lime for mineral matter.

CLOVER AND ALFALFA CUT DOWN GRAIN BILL

By feeding some clover and alfalfa hay you sure do save money on your grain bill. Farm records kept by members of the Yung Farmers club of Middlesex County last year show that those who fed clover and alfalfa saved $13.62 per cow on their purchased grain feed, and at the same time produced as much milk.

In this club there were six farmers who were in the dairy business; three of them did not grow or feed anw clover or alfalfa; the other three had 24.3 Per cent of their hay land in either clover or alfalfa. In boths groups the average milk sales per cow was very close to $208. The three farmers who fed no clover or alfalfa purchased $54.90 worth of grain per cow, while the three farmers with only one quarter of their hay acreage in clover or alfalfa purchased $41.28 worth of grain per cow. To produce the same amount of milk the men in the clover and alfalfa group saved on their grain bill $13.62 per cow compared with those feeding no clover or alfalfa.

What would it his mean in dollars and cents to the 20-cow dairyman, who needs 40 acres of mixed hay to supply his herd, provided he put one quarter of his acreage in clover or alfalfa? He would save on his grain bill $272.40. By adding this clover or alfalfa he would increase his yield at least to tons, and if he kept the same acreage in hay land he would have 10 tons of hay to sell at $35 per ton, amounting to $250. His extra cash costs figuring lime and seed would be about $95. This would make a net gain of $427.40. Is this amount worth saving?—Paul J. Putnam, farm management department, extension service.

ROTATION OF CROPS IS VALUABLE TO SOIL

By crop rotation is meant the following of one crop after another on the same piece of land. It might be successive years, or successive periods as in the case of forest trees.

The major principles which govern the scheme of crop succession are: (1.) Plants place their roots differently in the soil. (2.) All plants exhaust the soil. (3.) Plants do not exhaust the soil in the same manner. (4.) All plants do not exhaust the soil equally. (5.) Some plants add nitrogen to the soil. (6.) Some plants act favorably on weed growth while others do not. (7.) Plants grown constantly on the same land favor the spread of insects and diseases.

It is wise to pay attention to these different root systems and different feeding habits if one wishes to keep up the fertility of his soil. Plants have tastes if you wish to put it that way the same as people. That is, some like nitrogen, some like phosphoric acid and some potash best, while others like them about the same. By studying the likes and dislikes it is possible to keep the soil fertile without too great an expense. For instance, all legumes take nitrogen from the air and store it in their roots. When these roots are plowed under this stored nitrogen is available for the potato crop that follows. Again potatoes need a light soil. Air is necessary for growing potatoes—hence when a clover crop precedes a potato crop and that second crop is plowed under the fall before, then the soil is much more ready for the potato crop.

A general recommendation to cover the county although not meeting the needs of the market gardeners might be the following.

Potatoes or some money crop: First year, with heavy application of fertilizer; second year, corn with application of barnyard dressing; third year, clover and hay; fourth year, hay and clover, plowing under the second crop in the fall for the money crop or potatoes the next year again.

Poultry Pointers

Pullet flocks that have been laying heavily during the past month should be watched very carefully to see that they hold up in body weight. A loss in body weight is usually followed by a partial moult and a consequent drop in egg production. To check up on body weight, a few birds in each flock should be handled at night at least once each week. To prevent the loss of weight, increase the amount of scratch grain fed.

At the present time, flocks in heavy production should be consuming 14 to 15 pounds of scratch grain per 100 birds per day, and from 8 to 10 pounds of dry mash per 100 birds per day.

The general tendency at this time of year is to close poultry houses too tightly. Poultry need a great deal of fresh air. In order to keep the houses dry and the birds healthy, houses with cloth fronts of the Connecticut 30x30 feet type should not be closed until the temperature approaches zero—with the exception of when there is a high wind blowing. Houses should be closed to prevent frost-bitten combs in extreme cold—but not with the idea of keeping the hens warm at all times.

MISS AVERY WRITES OF IMPRESSIONS OF INDIA

The following are extracts from a letter received here from Miss Gertrude Avery of Norwich Town on her way to a mission station in India:

On the Indian Ocean
S. S. California, Nov. 13

There are so many things to tell you that I have felt swamped before even beginning a letter. The many interruption on shipboard are not very conducive to much letter writing. Entering Bombay Harbor! Land! Our fine view of the land of our adoptive India! The sun is setting in the orange colored west, directly opposite the rear of the ship. A very delicate lavender and pink sky seem to encircle the sea on all sides excepting where the mountains rise in dim greyness out of the hazy distance. The sun goes down so quickly and is so very bright that we cannot look at it until it has almost disappeared. Darkness is already falling fast and the lights on deck are lit. We spend our first night on board ship, as it was too late to land. Early the next morning some of the Bombay missionaries came and helped us with our luggage. There were two autos waiting for us. Miss Millard and Bissell took three of the party to the missionary compound and a Mr. Brown husband of Miss Woods who was a teacher here to their home. Whatever we should have done without help I do not know. Everybody was kindness itself. After spending one day in Bombay we took the early train for Poma. On the train we had a good chance to see what India is like. We had heard so much about the country and seen pictures that everything seemed about as one would expect it to be. The Indian costumes, the hovels, the villages in the distance looking like a group of haystacks under a few trees, the brown fields, the mountains, the palm trees standing above the green brush and looking like feather dusters standing here and there on the landscape, all did not look as we expected yet at the same time everything was very new and strange.

The Indian woman with a ring in her nose, many jewels, rings on her toes, blackened eyes, flowers in her hair, sight colored saris and gaily dressed baby who sat on the bench in the train was not a picture, but a real person. The old Indian woman, a widow with shaved head, not a single ornament, coarse, dirty cheesecloth saris was another fellow passenger. A number of children came in with the Brahman woman, also an intelligent looking man with gaudy turban. The man let down a shelf above our heads and placed two children there. The little boy swung his toes over the edge and once in a while peeked down at us. All had their various caste marks painted on their foreheads. In Bombay we saw stands on the sidewalk where people went to be re-painted every day. We yet haven't gotten over the ridiculousness of some of the costumes. In Bombay it was not unusual to see a combination of native and European costumes. At Poma we were met by Ruby Phillips in a Ford ready to take us to Almednager. It was market day and we met many bullock carts full of people. The bullocks were scared of an auto but we saw no accidents. About 8.30 we arrived at Almednager. A man on horseback met us outside of our compound and told us to go slowly for all was not quite ready. Then we came through the gate and lining the road on each side were the school girls with their bright eyes. They threw flowers upon us. At the bungalow we were met by many of the mission station. The girls put large garlands made of little yellow chrysanthemums, roses green leaves and tinsel around our necks and arms. After the girls had sang two songs in Marathi we were ushered into our new home.

Oh I know I am going to love my life here. Already I am beginning to feel at home. I had my first lesson in Marathi this morning at 7.30.

The Indian school girls are so attractive in their clean saris. They have such bright star-like eyes and smiling faces. My English class was not so different than those in America. The girls gave their oral themes a bit slowly and in short sentences, but they were well done. To have us get acquainted with the missionaries and Indian staff of teachers we have had numerous invitations to tea and dinners. One hour the missionaries meet in the late afternoon for tennis and a social hour. Last evening we went to the mission prayer meeting and church on Sunday was all in Marathi. We could hear the sound of the minister's voice but not a word could we understand.

The days are full with study, teaching, taking our rest and the numerous meals with social times thrown in. I love the people and am very happy in my work.

BROKER LOSES SUIT FOR COMMISSION CLAIMED

Judgment for the defendant, Mrs. Mary W. Farley of New York, was given, by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court here Thursday morning in the suit brought against her by Ambrose Cassara of New London on a claim for a commission of $1,500 in making the sale of a piece of real estate in New London at Neptune and Pequot avenues.

When the plaintiff's testimony was concluded Wednesday afternoon, Attorney H. Gilman, counsel for Mrs. Farley, made a motion for non-suit, claiming that Cassara had not established his employment by Mrs. Farley to sell the property. Attorney Frank L. McGuire, counsel for the plaintiff, opposed the motion, and the two lawyers made their arguments. Attorney Gilman also handed a brief to Judge Avery, who announced when court opened Thursday morning that he felt as if he ought to grant the motion for the non-suit, but he did not want to exclude the plaintiff and he would overrule the motion.

Attorney Gilman rested his case without presenting any testimony and Judge Avery gave decision for the defendant.

This was the only case for the day and court adjourned.

LIONS DISCUSS PROPOSED G. & E. PLANT SALE

The weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan dining room with President C. Edward Carpenter presiding. J. B. Caron officiated as song leader and in the absence of Tyler Rogers George Madden was appointed acting tail twister for the meeting.

The resignation of Lion Rev. R. B. Day of Yantic was received and accepted. Rev. Mr. Day is soon to leave town and his resignation was accepted with regret. It was voted that Rev. Mr. Day be made an honorary member.

President Edward Carpenter spoke briefly on the club plans for the year 1925. Vocal selections were rendered by Warren Kane and William Mitchell. Just previous to adjournment there was a spirited discussion relative to the proposed sale of the gas and electrical plant. The usual club and group songs were rendered and the meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, followed by the salute to the flag.

With the purpose of giving relief and comfort in the hour of need, the Westerly Sanitary corps was organized Aug. 2, 1917, and at present has a membership of about forty-four men. With their equipment of beds, bedding, blankets, bandages, splints, salves and first aid necessities, they have about twenty stretchers, operating table, pulmoter, etc., and are able to care for any accident emergency or epidemic on the call of the moment. The corps owns and operates at reasonable charges, an ambulance, for which subscribers contributing the nominal fee of $2.50 annually, receive equal service for an entire family.

Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar, Arthur E. Thompson, commander held a regular conclave with full form opening in the asylum on High street Wednesday evening. The report of the Christmas observance committee was made and for the annual inspection of the commandery Wednesday, March 4th, the committee in charge was named, with P. E. Sir George E. Broughton as the chairman.

About 3:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon the Westerly Fire alarm bell sounded from Box No. 65, Tower St., near Vose pond, for a fire in the house near the corner of Joshua and Tower streets. The three pieces of fire apparatus responded from the Westerly fire station and on the arrival of the firefighters the blaze was found to be in a mattress in a house occupied by an Italian family. Application of chemical extinguisher soon put the blaze out, leaving merely a badly damaged mattress. The recall sounded within fifteen minutes from the time of ringing the alarm.

In the Rhode Island legislature Wednesday by a unanimous vote and after a conference that gave every [illegible] of having been attorney one, Senator Harry A. Sanderson was elected chairman of the senate republican steering committee, although the name of senator Arthur A. Sherman, republican floor leader and president pro tem of the senate, had been considered for the place, according to one member of the committee. But a single ballot was taken, it was stated after the meeting.

Election by grand committee of several officers, among them sheriff of Washington county and clerk of the First District court at Newport Tuesday, is provided for in a resolution passed by the house of representatives this week.

The resolution originally was drawn for tomorrow, but on the plea of Representative Francis B. Condon of Central Falls, democratic floor leader, that his party had no candidates selected, Republican Floor Leader Rawlings agreed to the postponement until Tuesday.

Sheriff Wilcox died September 1. The Newport court clerkship has been vacant since early last year, in spite of efforts made to have the democrats left their filibuster long enough to permit the installation of an official. It was said at the state house yesterday afternoon that the Newport county delegation will probably continue to favor Norman Sayer of Newport for the post.

Republicans between now and Tuesday will caucus to select their candidates for the offices. Democratic steering committees will select the men to run with that party's endorsement.

The officials to be chosen follow:

A commissioner of sinking funds, to hold office until the first day of February, 1927.

A clerk of the supreme court to hold office until the first day of February, 1927.

A clerk of the District Court of the First Judicial district, to hold office until the first day of Fberuary, 1922, vice George H. Kelly, deceased.

In Walked the Old Fox

"Please be careful where you go,
Leaving footprints in the snow.
Danny Fox is everywhere,
Little rabbit, have a care."

sang Bobbie Redvest from a sheltering bush. Maybe he had seen old Danny Fox open the front door of his little rocky house on the woody hillside to look at the weather. Pretty soon out trotted the old fox and sneaking along the old Rail Fence, half hidden by the snow drifts, he sniffed the wind to find the smell of a little rabbit.

"Dear me, I must get something for supper," sighed the old fox to himself, jumping quickly across an open space and behind a big tree. "Our cupboard is as bare as Old Mother Hubbard's. Shyboots and Bushy Tail and Mrs. Fox must have a good meal tonight," and on he crept until by and by, after a while, and a sharp-toothed smile, he reached the dear Old Bramble Patch, in the middle of which stood Little Jack Rabbit's Bungalow. Peering over the little gate in the white picket fence and up the winding path through the bushes, Danny Fox waited for a minute to make sure no one was about. Then, with a nimble leap, over he went trotting to the snow-covered path in his rubber boots tipped at the top with a red flannel band. Pulling his fur cap down over his eyes to keep out the whirling snowflakes, he tiptoed around to the kitchen door. He knew it was useless to try the knob for Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty bunny mother, always kept the door locked for fear that disagreeable cahers like Danny Fox or Old Man Weasel might forget their manners and come in without knocking. But, Oh, dear me! Somehow or other, dearie, the little lady bunny had forgotten to slide the wooden bar across the door and in walked the old fox.

"Good morning," he snarled, taking off his fur cap, most politely but dreadfully terrifying, "how is my pretty one this morning?

With a crash, Lady Love's best teapot fell to the floor and her cheeks grew pale as the old fox walked toward her. Then, with a hop-tee-idy, she jumped into the cup-board under the dresser and closed the door. There was little room among the pots and pans, just enough for the little frightened lady rabbit, who never said a word to just stand there trembling like a leaf.

"Ha, ha," laughed old Danny Fox, tapping on the cupboard door with the toe of his rubber boot. "Better come out or I'll take a stick and break in the door quickerty quick!"

"Please, don't," sobbed poor Lady Love. "Look in the cake box instead. There's a newly baked Angel Cake there. Take it home to Mrs. Fox and your little boys. Maybe there is a few cookies in the brown stone jar on the shelf. Please be kind, Danny Fox, and don't break the cupboard door."

"Very well," answered Danny Fox, picking up the cake box and the stone jar. "I'll let you go this time," and slipping out of the kitchen door, he hastened home to his little rock house on the woody hillside. And in the next story

The directors elected these officers: President Francis H. Dewey, Worcester; vice president, Edward C. Hammond, Waterford; secretary and treasurer, Justus A. Southard, New London.

Dr. Charles Osgood of New York succeeded his father, the late C. Henry Osgood of this city on the board of directors and Francis H. Dewey became president to fill the vacancy in that office left vacant by the death of Mr. Osgood.

C. V. LOCOMOTIVE REPAIRS TO BE MADE IN BRATTLEBORO, NOT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 8.—The Central Vermont railroad is to abandon its locomotive repair shops in New London and in the future the repair of the road's locomotives will take place at Brattleboro, Vt. Already much of the equipment that has been used in the repair of the engines here for many years, has been transferred to Brattleboro and this afternoon officials of the railroad were in New London for the purpose of completing the detail of the transfer.

There was no session of the special committee of the city council, Councilors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius E. Whiton, to determine the efficiency of the police department, the postponement of the sessions being occasioned by some of the council members attending the annual banquet of the Konemoc Hose company. The sessions will be resumed during the week when additional patrolman will be quizzed. Some of the questions put to the witnesses, Traffic Officers William Corcoran and William Graham and Patrolman John Hogan and George McCaskey, last night were whether a cheap automobile would not be better method of a patrol of the outskirts of the city; if liquor was not known to be sold on a certain beat; who issued the order calling for the wearing of the summer caps now used by the patrolmen and what officers visited the former Pequot Casino and caused a row to be quelled. In the instance of an automobile being used by an officer to patrol the outlying section, that suggestion is an aged one, for a year or two ago it was suggested as a means of reducing the personnel of the police force. In the case of the quelling of the disturbance at the Pequot Casino, it was revealed that the committed had been informed by one of the sergeants that that officer stopped the row while the officer interrogated last night denied it, declaring that he was the cause of the row being ended. In the case of the wearing of the summer caps at this season of the year it was shown that the order to do so was issued by Captain Charles A. Pinney following a vote of the officers revealing that fully two-thirds of the members of the department desired the privilege of wearing the lighter weight cap because of its lightness, declaring that the winter caps were so weighty that they frequently caused the wearer to suffer from headache, especially if the head gear became wet.

Frank Falcon, of Westerly; Miss Julia Main, Groton; Daniel Neil, U. S. Destroyer Cassin, and Joseph McPhee, Groton, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

A meeting of the Catholic Camp Fire Girls, Unalid camp, was held at the Diocesan bureau community house, 42 Jay street, this week, under direction of Miss Beatrice Smith, guardian. Plans were made for a ceremonial meeting next Tuesday evening. Those present were Alice Rix, Loretta Hanley, Mary Prendergrast, Mildred May, Marjorie Pimer, Savilla Kelly, Anna Cleary and Ethel Adams.

Over 100 men and women, including visitors from Norwich and surrounding towns, attended the first of the informal and public fireside talks at the Diocesan bureau community house this week.

Rear Admiral Clarence A. Carr, who spoke on Four Months in Panama and Miss M. Stella La France of the Williams Memorial Institute, who gave an illustrated travelogue on France, were presented by George E. Farrell, chairman of the library committee. The chairman explained the purpose of the committee to establish a community circulating and reference library to hold frequent public fireside talks and to foster the formation of study clubs. A number of the juniors have already expressed a lively interest in forming a community dramatic club for presenting plays and entertainments at the bureau. By the expedient of giving occasional bridge whists the committee hopes to carry on its community affairs entirely free of charge.

Admiral Carr gave an interesting talk on his first duty on a regular cruiser, the old Kearsage, and of his subsequent duty in the Panama region, then a region of thick tropical growth and rampant with the peril of yellow fever. His talk was informal and proved very enjoyable.

Miss La France gave a fascinating sketch of her travels illustrated by beautiful colored views.

Rev. Father George J. Donahue of Pomfret, journalist and author, is to give a talk at an early date on the works and genius of Cardinal Newman of England.

The $12,500 Seagrave fire apparatus, which was damaged New Year's Eve while responding to an alarm of fire by colliding with a Connecticut Company trolley car corner of Broad and Brainard streets, was given a test of the pumper this afternoon from the pier of the New London Fruit and Produce company, Bank street. The test proved satisfactorily that the apparatus is again in first class condition for fighting fires. The pumping was witnessed by a representative of the Seagrave company.

Trolley cars of the Groton & Stonington Traction company are now of the one man type, the conversion from the former motorman and conductor type, having been completed and today the cars were started in operation here.

It was ascertained a few days ago that the building in course of construction on Bank street, owned by Meyer H. Hollandersky, a three story structure, which is rapidly nearing completion, encrouched one inch upon the property of Mrs. Mary Smiddy, which adjoins the Hollandersky property. To avoid a legal action for damages, Mr. Hollandersky today acquired the land encrouched upon by paying Mrs. Smiddy $200.

The funeral of John Farina was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 54 Smith street. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Sheriff Sidney A. Brown today accompanied Americo Barbetti, of Norwich, to the state reformatory at Cheshire, Barbetti having been sentenced to the institution by Judge Allyn L. Brown at the term of the superior court this week, at Norwich, for statutory burglary.

William Boyland, 53, of 78 Smith street, employed for several years as a machinist by the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing Company, died this morning at Home Memorial hospital, at which institution he had been under treatment but a short time for intestinal trouble. He is survived by his mother, three sisters, Mrs. Edward Gresler, Mrs. Edward Brogan and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, all of Easton, Pa., and by a brother, Harry J. Boyland, of Wilmington, Del.

An automobile owned by the City Dye Works, 46 Bank street, and operated by Mortimer Nott, and a commercial truck owned by A. Schef, were in collision this afternoon on Bank street. Both cars were damaged.

Salvatore Damico, proprietor of a grocery store at 57 Shaw street, communicated with the police last night, stating that two men were attempting to burglarize the place. Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolmen George Laboue and Edward Daniels hastened to the place in the police speed car, but when the officers arrived there the crooks, who had been attempting to pry open a window, had fled.

Catherine Elwood, wife of Charles Patrick, and a former resident of New London, died last night at her late residence, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Patrick removed to Brooklyn several years ago. She is survived by a brother, Thomas Elwood and a sister, Miss Nellie Elwood, both of this city.

An automobile owned and operated by John O. Richman, of Clifton street, Waterford, struck and killed a dog owned by a man named Dalton on Howard street this morning.

Mrs. Seth Gross, wife of Capt. Gross, 533 Howard street, complained to the police this forenoon that while her automobile was parked in front of the residence of Capt. Edward Y. Haskell, 31 Bellevue place, last night, between 8 o'clock and midnight, some thief stole a distributor.

Floyd Mitchell, colored, proprietor of a pool room and club for negroes, 15 Atlantic street, was arrested late this afternoon upon complaint of Daniel DeLong, charged with conducting a gaming house. Mitchell was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. De Long was held as a witness.

DeLong, who has been arrested a number of times for various offenses, alleges that he went to the place conducted by Mitchell this afternoon and entered into a gambling game. When he was compelled to stop playing because he did not have further funds, De Long alleges that he had lost $12. He tried to get his money back, but it was refused him. De Long then went to the police station where he entered a complaint against Mitchell. De Long was placed in a cell to assure his appearance in police court in the morning that he might tell of what actually occurred at the club room. Sergeant Cavanaugh took Mitchell into custody.

Three drunks were arrested tonight, two of them being taken from the B. P. Learned mission, where they appeared in a state of intoxication and were complained against by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the mission. They will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

John C. Geary has filed with the probate court his account for allowance as administrator of the estate of Andrew J. Bentley and Julia A. Bentley, and as guardian of the estates of Abbie Bentley, Ruth Bentley, Dow Bentley, Andrew J. Bentley and Mary Bentley. A hearing on the account will be held Monday, Jan. 16.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the New London Northern Railroad was held this afternoon at the office of the railroad in the Union station, the election resulting in the following directors being chosen: Edward C. Smith, St. Albans, Vt.; Justus A. Southard, New London; Dr. Chas. Osgood, New York; Walter C. Noyes, New York; Francis H. Dewey, Worcester; Edward C. Hammond, Waterford; Arthur M. The Konemoc Hose company today rounded out the 51st year as its existence as a fire fighting organization of the city of New London. To fittingly celebrate the event the members of the hose company together with a score or more guests, including members of the city council and city officials, had a banquet at the Hotel Mohican. Foreman William R. Pollock was toastmaster. Among the speakers was Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, whose remarks were most fitting and timely and were such as to enthuse the large gathering assembled in the dining hall. Following the banquet a vaudeville performance was given.

Tony Longo, of Station 5, Waterford, who was ordered to appear in the Waterford town court last night and answer a charge of failure to give signal and who failed to appear and for whom a warrant was issued charging him with failure to obey the summons of an officer, was arrested this afternoon by State Police Officer J. J. Bobnick. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Frederick LeGoss in the town hall, but the second charge was nolled upon the court being convinced that Longo related the truth when he stated he was in New York delivering a load of fish. On the former charge a fine of $8 and costs was imposed. Longo was operating his truck near his home, last Sunday afternoon and drove it from the middle of the highway to the side of the road without giving a signal, with the result that an East Lyme bus, operated by Walter Reynolds crashed against the truck, the bus being damaged.

Tony Pilkus of Quaker Hill, was charged with failure to give right of way and was fined $8 and costs, the latter amounting to $12. Pilkus was operating his machine between New London and Quaker Hill this morning and was operating the car first to one side of the highway and then to the other, preventing other cars from passing. Used By Millions Of Mothers

For Croup and Colds

Over 32 million jars of Vicks have been used in the past five years. This means the unbroken confidence of a vast army of mothers. They like Vicks because it solves a great problem—how to treat croup and colds without that continual dosing, which is so harmful to delicate little stomachs.

Being applied externally Vicks does not disturb the digestion. It can be freely used without the slightest harmful effect.

Vicks brings prompt relief from croup and often checks even the worst cold overnight.

There is nothing to swallow. You just rub it on.

Thousands Of Women Are Now Taking This Easily Absorbed Iron

Worn-out Housewife Tells How She Quickly Regained Her Health and Strength

"Only a short two weeks ago I was so tired, nervous and worn-out from the drain on nerves and strength of household drudgery, that I thought I could not drag to another day.

A short two weeks' treatment of the newer form of easily absorbed iron has given me a marvelous increase in health, strength and energy. Now I can do my whole house without help, and do not have to sit at home in the evening all in, sick and nervous."

The above is a typical hypothetical case," said a well-known physician, formerly of Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, recently. "You cannot be well and strong and full of vigor, force and power unless your blood is rich in iron. It is your red blood that enables you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale and watery. Poor blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you may have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all 'run-down' and tired out."

When your blood lacks iron, do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron, which is like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples, and is in a form easily assimilated by your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks and if you have not, like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. Any druggist will sell you Nuxated Iron with this "satisfaction or money back" guarantee.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED STRONG.

New York, Jan. 8.—Stock prices developed an unexpected burst of strength toward the close of today's market after an earlier period of irregularity. United States common assumed the leadership of the late rally by advancing two points to 128 3-4, the highest price since 1917.

The sudden demand for the steel shares undoubtedly was influenced by trade reports that steel operations will be at 90 per cent. of capacity within a few weeks and that the monthly tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation on Saturday will show an increase of 500,000 or more tons in unfilled orders.

A further drop in call money to 2 per cent., the lowest figure in nearly two months, and establishment of the highest rate by sterling exchange since 1916, above $4.77 1-2, also influenced the buying of stocks. Revival of speculative activity in the oil shares followed publication of the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute showing only a slight increase in daily average gross crude oil production for the week ended January 3, despite the extensive drilling activity in the new Wortham field.

Declaration of an extra dividend of $2.50 on Nash Motors was not announced until after the market closed, but apparently the stock anticipated such action as it ended the day at the record high of 208 1-2, up 8 3-4 points. Good buying also was noted in several other automotive and allied issues, American Bosch Magneto, Mack Truck, the Gardner Motor, Goodrich Fire preferred and Goodyear Tire preferred showing net gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points.

Federal Light and Traction soared more than 9 points to a record high at 133 on rumors of a larger distribution to stockholders. S. S. Kresge jumped 7 1-4 points to a new top at 497 1-4 on one sale. Other outstanding strong spots in the industrial list, Baldwin, Associated Dry Goods, Burroughs Adding Machine, California Petroleum preferred, Certainteed Products, Famous Players preferred, Houston Oil, Invincible Oil, Louisiana Oil, R. H. Macy, National Lead, Republic Steel, Sinclair preferred, Sears Roebuck, Utah Securities and Wilson preferred, all up from 2 to 3 1-2 points.

Railroad shares held relatively firm throughout the session. Wall street apparently being pleased with the final statistics on 1924 car loadings showing 48,527,227 cars of revenue freight loaded during the year, a decrease of only 1,284,586 cars or 2.8 per cent. under the year before, when traffic reached the highest peak in history. The 1924 figures show an increase of 12.3 increase over the 1922 loadings and an increase of 31.5 per cent. over those of 1921.

Chief interest in today's trading in the rails centered in the brisk demand for Denver and Rio Grande preferred, which was bid up 4 1-2 points to 49. Good buying also took place in Lehigh Valley, which crossed 81, and then slipped back to 80 5-8, up 1 5-8, and in Chicago and Northwestern, Omaha preferred and Western Pacific which closed 1 to 2 points higher.

Call money renewed at 2 1-2 per cent. and then dropped to 2 per cent. which rate was on a level with the lowest figure reached last year. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady with no change in rates.

Demand sterling touched a new top at $4.77 5-8 and the cables were quoted as high as $4.78. Other European rates moved within narrow and irregular limits with the exception of Serbian exchange which advanced nearly ten points to 1.72 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Material setbacks in the price of wheat here resulted today from an unlooked for decline of values at Liverpool and from slowness of export demand for United States wheat. Argentine competition appeared to be increasing. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were weak, 1 3-4 to 2 1-8c net lower, May 177 5-8 to 177 3-4 and July 153 1-8 to 153 1-4. Corn finished 3-8 to 3-4 cents off, oats unchanged to 1-2c down, and provisions varying from 10c decline to 7c advance.

More attention than usual was given to the downward turn of Liverpool wheat prices, the decline having taken place despite advances yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. According to current reports here, the Liverpool weakness was due to increased pressure of Argentine offerings and to word of very large yields in the Santa Fe district of Argentina. Meanwhile, the only domestic wheat mentioned as having been worked for export was 50,000 bushels of durum. Some low grade Canadian wheat and flour was also said to have been purchased for shipment to Europe.

On the other hand, domestic milling calling for wheat as evidence of enlarging in the southwest and in the northwest as well. Rallying power which showed itself at times in the wheat market was also associated with the Washington advices that exports for the last six months, 187,000,000 bushels, were larger than had been indicated by unofficial estimates and were 116,000,000 bushels above a nine-year average and identical period.

Corn and oats were depressed early by wheat weakness but later were relatively firm owing to scarcity of rural offerings of corn to arrive, and because of better southern inquiry for oats. Shipping demand here for corn, however, was poor.

Provisions averaged lower, influenced by grain and hogs.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 8.—Alternate periods of weakness and strength characterized today's curb market, which turned sharply upward toward the close in sympathy with a similar movement on the "big board."

Prairie Oil & Gas advanced 4 1-2 points to 224 and gains of one to three points were recorded by Ohio Oil, Penn-Mex Fuel, Solar Refining, South Pennsylvania and Standard Oils of Kansas and Kentucky.

The new Electric Bond & Share Holding copany stock was in free supply throughout the session. After opening at 77 and then advancing to 78, it broke precipitately to 73 1-4, and then rallied to 74 5-8 for a net loss of nearly 5 points on the day. A reactionary trend also developed in some of the radio stocks, De Forest and Hazeltine each showing net losses of a point or more.

Goodyear Tire preferred was the outstanding strong spot in the industrial group, climbing 3 1-4 points to 28 1-2 on total transactions in excess of 20,000 shares. Continental Baking B also was active, closing a point higher at 24 1-2.

FARM LOAN MEETING TO BE BROADCASTED TUESDAY

Attendance in excess of 12,000 at a key meeting of national farm loan associations of the first district, will be made possible by enlisting the services of radio and its best known pieces of equipment, the transmitter and the receiving set. Arrangements completed by the Federal Land Bank of Springfield and the Westinghouse station WBZ will make such a mammoth attendance a reality. The annual meetings of the 1540 national farm loan associations in the eight northeastern states will be held in their various headquarters on Tuesday, Jan. 13th. The key meeting will be held at the Federal Land bank of Springfield, Mass., in that city and the plan is to have the chief addresses and other matters of importance occurring at this meeting broadcast by WBZ to the local associations.

The transmission will be made in daylight, the program opening with a greeting to the 140 Farm Loan associations by Erwin H. Forbush, secretary of the Springfield bank. E. H. Thomson, the bank president, has a message to impart ten minutes later, at 1.55 o'clock. The two chief addresses are scheduled for 2.05 o'clock when Herbert Myrick, director at large, will talk on "The Farm Loan System—its Birth and Growth," and at 2.15 o'clock when "The Agricultural Outlook for 1925" will be discussed by Dr. George F. Warren, professor of agricultural economics, College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

A new German cruiser was launched at Wilhelmshafen. She was christened by Admiral Zenker, the "Emden" after the famous war-time German raider which sank so many British merchantmen in the Indian ocean before she was sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney.

GRACE CHURCH AUXILIARY REPORTS ACTIVE YEAR

The president, Dr. Lillian M. Lynes delightfully entertained the Woman's Auxiliary of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, Tuesday evening, at her home on Elies Place. This also was the annual business meeting of the auxiliary when the reports of the year's activities were submitted by the officers and committees.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. John Hart, and that of the treasurer, Mrs. Charles Harvey, were followed by the report of Mrs. George Fraser, treasurer of the flower fund, which has accumulated from the penny collection at each meeting during 1924. The treasurer, Mrs. Hardenbrook reported for the Thank Offering boxes. During 1924 this auxiliary which has an active membership of 27, with several associate members has contributed about $180 to missions.

Besides the work for missions there have been socials, picnics, etc which has helped to make the year a pleasant one.

The following were the officers elected: President, Mrs. Charles Burbeck; vice president, Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown; secretary, Mrs. Charles Kimball; treasurer, Miss Annie Carpenter; Thank Offering treasurer, Mrs. Herman Gibbs. Dr. Lynes was appointed a committee to purchase medical and surgical supplies and Mrs. George Fraser and Mrs. Herbert Dow was the committee appointed to purchase material to make garments for the poor whites in the mountains of the south, this work to be carried on during the Lenten season. Mrs. Fraser was also appointed to take care of the penny collection for another year; also as press correspondent.

During the meeting Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace church, congratulated the auxiliary on being about the strongest of its kind in town. Many organizations after forming fall down, he said; but this one has grown stronger all the while. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Day, after which the hostess served sandwiches, cake and coffee.

This auxiliary is only about two years old and meets once each month and weekly during Lent.

WHEELS TORN FROM FREIGHT CRASH THROUGH BRIDGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, Jan. 8.—A south-bound freight train was wrecked here at 10.30 Wednesday night when a truck under a car considerably back from the head of the train tore off a pair of the wheels, crashing through the bridge over Cottage street and dropping into that thoroughfare. The train ran along about a 1000 feet before it came to a stop with the locomotive below the Franklin street crossing. Two cars of the train were derailed, blocking the line between Putnam and Plainfield until an early hour of the morning. A wrecking crew out of Midway put the two derailed cars back on the iron and opened the line for travel again. The train was running through Danielson at high speed when the accident occurred and observers say that a journal was blazing fiercely as the train went over the Main street crossing. The accident happened 100 yards further down the track. An automobile had passed under the Cottage street bridge as the train was running overhead, escaping only by seconds being struck by the pair of car wheels as they tore through from overhead, and dropped to the street.

BOSTON SPECIAL TRAIN COMING FOR ECLIPSE

Westerly, R. I. Jan. 8.—The Westerly Board of Trade through its secretary, Wells R. Fowler, is in correspondence with traffic officials of the New Haven railroad concerning a proposition ade by them to care for an eclipse special train of residents of Boston and vicinity. If the Westerly Trade body can find out the number of prospective guests to be cared for, plans for a luncheon, local transportation by automobiles and an accessible location for the successful observation of the terrestrial phenomenon will be provided. As the eclipse occurs Saturday morning Jan. 24, plans call for a special train to the Hub about 8 o'clock in the morning and returning to leave Westerly at 9:30. Action is to be taken at the regular meeting of the board of trade to be held at the Colonial club this (Tuesday) evening.

COLUMBIA

Erwin Collins was engaged Monday and Tuesday in filling his ice house. He had two motor trucks and several men employed in cutting and packing 600 cakes of fine, clear ice, which came from Columbia lake, two miles away.

The family of Howard Yeomans of Hartford, who have been occupying their home on the Green during the illness of one of the children returned to Hartford Tuesday.

During the Christmas holidays Mrs. Madelene Holmes, a teacher in one of the schools in Willimantic, became seriously ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis A. Holmes, at the lake. It was at first thought that she had an attack of appendicitis, but a consultation of physicians decided that it was something more serious, so she was taken to the Hartford hospital on Monday afternoon and underwent a thorough examination, followed by an operation Thursday. This disclosed that she was suffering from an internal abcess and peritonitis in the pelvic region necessitating skillful nursing for some time.

Whole World Contributes to Medicine

Ginger from India—Iodine from Chile—Olive Oil from Italy—Epsom Salts from England—Menthol from Japan and roots and herbs from almost every country in the world contribute their share towards alleviating the ills of the race. No other medicine, however, compounded from roots and herbs has ever attained such a marvelous record for success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For over fifty years it has been overcoming some of the most stubborn ailments of womanhood, and is constantly growing in popularity and favor.

Ricin, the chemical principle of castor beans, threatens to break all records for poison strength, according to Dr. P. In its present stage of purity, however, ricin will kill an animal 200,000,000 times the weight of the dose given. This relegates such poisons as arsenic and prussic acid into insignificance, says Science Service. Dr. Karrer and associates obtained more than four pounds of this terrific poison from castor bean oil-cake, a residue from castor oil factories.

SIGHIN'

Oh, to hear a bluebird a-whistlin' on a limb,
Or to see a fishworm wrigglin' from the ground;
Or be a plowin' of the mule, that dumb brute with a whim,
The ornerest of critters ever found.

Oh, to hear the robin chirp his merry roundelay,
An' see the first buds peepin' frum the trees,
Or watch the mule colts gamble o'er the pasture in their play,
Or the silly long-legged calves dance in the breeze.

Oh, to see the lazy creek beneath the spring sun's rays,
An' hook the little fish a-wigglin' there,
While the weepin' willow looks so graceful as it sways,
An' I can sit an' drowse so free from care.

Oh, to see the fence an' barn with posters bright again
Depictin' patent medicine galore,
Telling us what ails us anent every ache an' pain,
Till we've got things that we never had before.

Oh, to dig for sassafras like we used to long ago,
When grandma used to make it into tea;
Oh, for sulphur and molasses that we used to take, you know,
Good for spring disease and housemaid's knee.

Oh, I set here in the firelight an' I shake an' shiver, too,
An' I rail an' cuss ole winter's bite an' sting;
An' I wonder how I'll ever live the cold long winter through Until it's once again the balmy spring.

SENATE'S BLIND CHAPLAIN HAS OVERCOME SEVERE HANDICAPS

Rev. Edward P. Ayer, who has been appointed chaplain of the state senate, is a Congregational minister who is residing with his family in Branford. Mr. Ayer lost his sight while he was a student at Amherst but in spite of the handicap pushed on and completed the course at the Yale Divinity School. Since then he has had pastorates in Bethlehem, North Guilford, Mansfield, Montville and other places aside from serving as acting pastor in various localities. Mr. Ayer has also been identified with various campaigns for raising money and has been employed extensively in speaking for such enterprises. He is a man of fine presence and is highly esteemed by many people throughout the state. When notified of his appointment Mr. Ayer gave the following interview to a reporter:

At the age of 17, being ready to fit for college and my older brother entering college at that time, we established a home in Amherst. There I became acquainted with the professors and their families and the townspeople in a delightful way; also knowing many of the men in college at that time. I entered Amherst college in the class of '86—in fall of '82—and while making tours with the glee club my eyesight failed to respond and I gave up my college work, going to Boston for treatment. After my return, the new adjustment to life had to be made, which was a great struggle, after which I served the Connecticut Bible Society as colporter for one year. In the spring of '85 I went with my two brothers on a 400 acre farm in Massachusetts, lying between Brookfield and Sturbridge. Here through outdoor life I tried to build up a constitution which might bring some help to the eyesight. The eyes received no benefit, but good strength and vigor was secured which has helped us through many a tight place in succeeding years.

In the year '79 I was thrown in with a student of the Yale Divinity School who was supplying a Methodist church in Brookfield—a man of fine character and ability and most friendly to me. He urged me to consider the ministry and apply for admission to Yale Divinity School, which we did. This was at first denied—in the fall of '89—but afterwards granted through the intervention of President Seeley of Amherst College. Then came the great task of changing from eye to ear in the method of receiving knowledge. Then the question faced us also, if we had the knowledge could we preach? Many experiences of a striking sort were undergone and many helpful friends were made.

At the close of the first year a start was made in my father's pulpit at West Stafford, he going out into other pulpits and giving me the proceeds for my work the following year. This gave me $50 with which to return to Yale for the second year. For the first a dear old lady who learned of my plans gave me $50 in gold and a friend of my old mother promised $100 for two years. This was my only financial resource for the three years work. Yale, however, came to my rescue, giving me the same aid as the men who were taking the regular work. At Christmas of the second year I was asked to supply the pulpit in Three Rivers, Mass., as the minister had been taken sick, and for several weeks I went to Three Rivers for Sunday work. From that day to this I have been steadily on the job, being idle but few Sundays in the thirty-two years. I was able to finish the three years work at Yale, taking all the examinations on my typewriter, but not receiving a diploma as I was advised not to do the extra technical work necessary to secure it. The following year I returned to Yale, doing work in the Divinity School and also in the College. At the end of the fourth year I was settled in Bethlehem, Conn., as an ordained and installed pastor. My first real pastoral work, however, was done for three months in Bridgewater and one and two thirds years in Easton. At the end of two years, I realized that I had missed much in my college course and, as the eyesight was gradually failing, I asked the Bethlehem church for a leave of absence and, again with $50 in my pocket, I started for old Yale, there taking post graduate work in the Divinity School and College. I found it a struggle to maintain myself and was in debt $50 at the close of the year. This I paid off during the summer and was again ready for the second year's work. At the close of this second year, I remained with the little church at Easton after a little bringing my father and mother to live with us, while my sister was the housekeeper.

My father was now out of the active ministry and needed a home so I invited my parents and sister to come to Easton, where my salary was $600 and out of this must come house rent, $75, leaving $525. The question was how to support five persons in this way. We did it by putting 100 hens into a large henhouse and making them pay our rent, feed our horse the grain and furnish chickens and eggs for the home table. In this way we got by.

After one and a half years my brother found a home for my parents elsewhere. Soon after I was married and went to North Guilford for eight years' work. Here I was again in touch with New Haven and derived much benefit in many ways from the life of the city and university. Near the close of this pastorate my efficient and devoted wife was killed in a trolley accident in the city and again I must go on alone, the eyesight constantly failing more and more.

After leaving North Guilford, in the fall of 1911, I was recuperating and serving wherever the call came. For several Sundays around Christmas I preached in Brookfield, Mass., where I had served the people with milk, coal and wood and for a year had been junior deacon in the church, before going to Yale. The last Sunday in January, 1912, I went to Mansfield Center, Conn., my childhood home, where my father had served five years during the close of the Civil War, from 1863 to '68. Here I was to help them to secure a pastor. The second Sunday there some old friends asked me if I would take the job. I told them that we must go slowly, but in a few weeks they extended me a formal call and the last of March saw me there with my household goods ready for work. Here followed eight years of delightful work and association, not only in the town itself, where I had so many old friends, but also in Windham county and the region about Willimantic, extending over into Tolland and New London counties. Pleasant recognition and appreciation met me everywhere.

After nearly eight years of service in Mansfield Center, Rev. W. S. Beard, secretary of the National Congregational Home Missionary Society, was called to direct the Pilgrim Fund campaign in this state. He asked me to join the team, which I did, having a great experience in all the counties of the state and working with some twenty-five churches and ministers. I resigned my pastorate at Mansfield Center, to take effect January 1, 1920, and the following spring was asked to assist our director in the Inter-Church work, serving in Windham and Middlesex counties. I gave my whole time to this work during the spring months of April and May, again having a delightful time with churches and ministers in presenting a great cause. Since that time I have been supplying weak churches and ministering to the lonesome folk wherever duty called.

Six years ago last summer I wished to do my war bit with the rest, but how? I finally rented a large farm back of the church in Mansfield Center, put on five cows in one pasture, three yearlings in another, two pigs in a pen, fatted two calves on skimmed milk and raised ninety chickens. I raised some potatoes, corn, cutting a large crop of hay on the farm. Some of my friends said: "You are crazy—you will get sick, you will run in debt." I just kept busy on the job, preaching Sundays, milking my cows, separating the milk, selling cream, feeding the skimmed milk to the pigs, calves and chickens. At the end of the year, when we footed up, we were $100 to the good, wood for the year, potatoes for the year, a pig to eat, a quarter of beef and thirty roosters for the table. We finished our haying the first of anyone in the community, had not gone crazy, nor into debt and was much stronger physically than when we started.

After I had been twenty-five years in the ministry, Yale was kind enough to give the degree of bachelor of divinity in recognition of work done, which my classmates received at their regular graduation. For this I was grateful and my wife likes to look at it and know that 'tis round. For myself I have been greatly encouraged by the advice of an old minister who told me after I had been refused a license in two associations, "Never mind, just get to preaching and if the churches find that you can really do it, they won't ask you about your license or your diploma or anything else." I followed this advice and found it true. I can say in all truthfulness that with the passing years and mellowing experiences I am having a happier time from year to year than I ever anticipated, and expect to keep right on having the time of my life, knowing the folks and helping everybody, for we have not to depend ourselves but upon Him whom the soldier boys called "the only white man in all the world."

I have a little lad at home who is named for his two grandfathers (great grandfather, Joseph Ayer, who served the churches in Eastern Connecticut for fifty years and grandfather Charles Ayer, who served the churches forty-five years.) This daddy has been at it for thirty-six years and we sincerely hope the lad may see fit to go on with the job. Anyone can understand, therefore, that the old State of Connecticut, which gave birth to my ancestors for many generations, is most dear to me and I am glad to serve her in whatever capacity duty calls. It has only been my ambition to serve the country churches in a quiet way. If I can help the people who live in the dark to a larger vision of usefulness, and the public to understand their possibilities I shall be only too glad for the privilege.

FR. MAY'S ANNUAL DINNER TO HIS CHURCH WORKERS

At The Wauregan hotel Tuesday evening, the rector of St. Patrick's church, Rev. Michael H. May gave his annual complimentary banquet for the choir, ushers, collectors, trustees and sextons of the parish. All the members of the senior choir were in attendance, also the elder singers of the junior choir. Other guests in the company of 52 were the presidents of the various church societies—Rosary, Children of Mary, Catholic Women's Club, Holy Name and Altar Societies. The church trustees are John R. Tarrant and Alexander A. Kilroy.

The arrangements for the evening's pleasure were in general charge of John P. Corcoran, head usher and collector. Herb Smith's orchestra of six pieces furnished music during the feast, also for the dancing which followed. The table decorations were very attractive and every detail of the rector's annual testimonial to his faithful workers was on the customary liberal scale.

Following the dinner, Father May spoke briefly in appreciation of the valued services of the different volunteer workers throughout the year. He was followed by the senior assistant pastor, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who surprised the congenial assemblage by the reminder that their rector had quietly noted, on Dec. 20th, the fortieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. Father Galvin paid a fine tribute to his superior, as a man, a priest of God and a worthy citizen and force for good in the community, recalling also Father May's successful labors in other parishes. At the close of the dinner, the guests crowded about the rector, to congratulate him on having reached such an important anniversary in his career. The only public note taken of the anniversary was a mass of thanksgiving, at which the parish children received Holy Communion.

Dancing for the guests until 11.30 rounded out the highly enjoyable evening.

This being Holy Year at Rome Father May is to join the many thousands of Catholics who will make the pilgrimage to the Eternal city. He will sail on S. S. Lapland Jan. 17th, returning before Easter. He will be accompanied by Rt. Rev. Monsignor John W. Norris, of New Brunswick, N. J.

During Father May's absence the church will be in charge of Father Galvin, who during his nearly fifteen years in Norwich, has had valuable experience in administering the parish affairs.

COOLIDGE OPPOSED TO GUN ELEVATION ON U. S. SHIPS

Views Action Proposed in Congress as an Attempt to Resort Again to Competitive Armaments—The President is Prepared to Resist Abandonment of the Principle of Limitations of Armaments, Confident of the Support of American Public Opinion.

Washington, Jan. 9.—President Coolidge today sounded what Washington generally regards as the death knell for the move to bring about the elevation of guns on the capital ships of the American navy.

The views of the president on the proposal to raise the guns to increase their range were presented with unmistakable definiteness at the White House.

He holds that elevation of the guns would be a return to the old international competition in armaments and an abandonment of the new principle of limitation of armaments to which the United States with the other great powers committed herself at the Washington conference. Such an about-face in policy, he is prepared to resist with all the power at his command, confident of the support of American public opinion.

Interpretation of the naval treaty, a matter discussed in congress in connection with the elevation proposition, and economy, a point raised by by himself, are in the president's opinion minor factors in determining an answer to the question. The spirit rather than the letter of the treaty, Mr. Coolidge believes, should be America's guide, since technical construction of a treaty may be carried as far as to render inoperative any pact between nations.

With senate and house naval committees marking time on the elevation question, showing no disposition to push the matter if the administration disapproves it, the presentation of the president's views are generally accepted as meaning the end for the being of any legislation providing for the raising of the guns.

Following up this presentation, the president, in response to a senate resolution asking what nations had protested to the United States against American gun elevation, sent to that body a copy of the letter forwarded to the house naval committee yesterday by Secretary Hughes.

This letter, the president informed the senate, contained a complete answer to its inquiry. It declared that the administration agreed with Japan and differed with Great Britain, holding the view that gun evelation would not violate the terms of the naval treaty. It was added that President Coolidge was opposed to the work on grounds of economy and because he felt it would conflict with the well-established position of the United States.

The president's pronouncement as made today, pertained only to gun elevation. It is understood that definition of the administration's stand on the building programme advanced by naval officers may await another survey of the whole naval situation after completion of the report now being drafted by the navy general board. This report is expected to be in the president's hands before the end of next week.

Regardless of the nature of this report, however, it was indicated, the president's views of gun elevation would stand. He is unable to understand the constant agitation for elevating the guns unless it is an attempt to break down the adherence of the United States to the principle of limitation of armaments. This might come about eventually, he fears through a change in public sentiment, which he feels would make the naval treaty useless since its strength lies in the public's attitude toward its provision.

Mr. Coolidge's feeling is that it is much more important to promote sentiment in favor of arms limitation, for if the policy is abandoned, he holds that the world will drift back, so far as armament is concerned, to the point where it was when civilization began. He has indicated he does not regard the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon by Great Britain, the United States and Japan, as a yardstick to be constantly used. But interest was generally manifested today among those who have been following the naval discussions, in a statement by Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations, before the senate committee in charge of the naval appropriation bill, that while the United States is behind the ratio on capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers, her navy is substantially ahead in destroyers and submarines.

DENVER MAN ON TRIAL FOR ALLEGED FORGED MARRIAGE

Denver, Colo., Jan. 9.—Dr. John Galen Locke, grand dragon of the Colorado realm of the Ku Klux Klan, will face Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Denver's nationally known juvenile judge, Saturday morning, to plead to charges of conspiracy and kidnaping in connection with an alleged forced marriage in his office last Tuesday night.

The dragon was arrested today on a complaint sworn to by Keith Boehm, 15-year-old Denver high school student, who alleges that he was forcibly removed from a downtown hotel the home of his parents, taken to Locke's office and there compelled to go through a marriage ceremony with Miss Mae Nash.

Locke was released shortly after his arrest on bond of $1,000, furnished by Clarence J. Morley, governor-elect of Colorado, who had the endorsement of the Klan in his race for the governorship last fall.

Other persons, who participated in the alleged abduction, including several whose names are not known, are being sought on warrants issued by Judge Lindsey today, following charges made in his court by District Attorney Vancise.

One feature of the sixth anniversary is the receipt of letters from some friends of the league in the United States sorrowfully lamenting the failure of the league to do something in matters like Egypt and opium, and voicing the fear that some aspects of the Geneva peace protocol may increase opposition to the league in the United States.

DIVORCE SUIT WON BY IDA ESTELLA TAYLOR PEACOCK

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—A decree of divorce was granted by common pleas court today to Ida Estella Taylor Peacock, moving picture actress, whose reported engagement to Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, has several times been denied. The grounds for the divorce were cruel and barbarous treatment.

The suit was started Sept. 29 last.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—When informed that Philadelphia press dispatches told of the granting to her of a divorce from Kenneth Malcolm Peacock, Estelle Taylor, film actress, who has been reported several times engaged to Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight pugilist, refused to discuss future matrimonial plans.

"Let's put off making any announcement for a while," she said.

Dempsey could not be reached, but his manager, Jack Kearns, was emphatic in the statement that the fighter did not intend to marry until he was through with the ring.

"And," Kearns added, "Jack is still a long way from retiring from the ring."

COTTON MANUFACTURERS VOTE TO REDUCE WAGES

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 9—The New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association, at a meeting this afternoon, voted to reduce wages in the cotton mills 10 per cent., the cut to come effective January 19.

The reduction will affect approximately 40,000 operatives in this city alone. Following the announcement of the pending cut, a union official stated that the various labor organizations will call meetings of their members within the next few days to vote upon the question. Each union will report the result of its meeting to the textile council, the governing body of the labor organization, which in turn will report the final outcome to the Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

At the present time the mills are operating on a scale that is 80 per cent. normal. This is said to be 100 per cent. better than the scale on which they were operating last year.

FOR DEVELOPMENT OF THE AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE

Washington, Jan. 9.—Recommendations for the development of the American Merchant Marine, with an outline of comprehensive policies for the maintenance and upbuilding of the fleet are contained in the report of a special committee of high government officials to the president made public today at the White House.

The report recommends complete separation of the shipping board and emergency fleet corporation along lines suggested by the president in his message to congress, with the board controlling questions of policy and the corporation controlling operation of the fleet.

The committee which made the report was appointed by the president last March, with T. V. O'Connor, head of the shipping board, as chairman, and Secretaries Mellon, Weeks, Wilbur and Hoover and President Palmer of the fleet corporation as members.

SETTLEMENT OF MUSCLE SHOALS PROJECT FORESEEN

Washington, Jan. 9.—Early termination of the senate struggle over disposition of the Muscle Shoals project was foreseen tonight by senate leaders as likely to come with adoption of either the Underwood bill or the Jones amendment referring the problem to a commission.

A vigorous effort will be made tomorrow to get a final vote which will send some Muscle Shoals bill to conference with the house, which passed a bill accepting the Ford offer before it was withdrawn, and thus make way for other legislation, which practically has been blocked in the senate by the Shoals question since congress convened. Some of the leaders, however, were of the opinion today that a decision could not be reached in one day and that the problem would have to go over until next week. A close vote, between the Underwood and Jones proposals is generally predicted.

WARREN MENTIONED AS SUCCESSOR OF STONE

Washington, Jan. 9.—Developments at the White House today served to bring to the forefront Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, as a possible successor of Harlan F. Stone, as attorney general.

Mr. Warren, whose name has been mentioned persistently in connection with the portfolio soon to be laid down by Mr. Stone, saw President Coolidge during the day, and the president later conferred with Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, and afterward with Mr. Stone, himself.

Whether Mr. Warren would accept the place if offered to him always has been a question arising in connection with the mention of his name. His friends in Washington declare he retired as ambassador to Mexico hopeful that he might be undisturbed in his practice of law in Detroit.

Bridgeport, Jan. 9.—Nine years old Frank Kahamanidis, of this city was killed at five o'clock this afternoon when a sled on which he was coasting collided with an automobile driven by Herbert W. Britain Contesting American Claim British Chancellor Churchill is Endeavoring to Drive a Hard Bargain With James A. Logan, Jr.

Paris, Jan. 9—(By the A. P.)—Great Britain and the United States are getting together slowly "but normally," on the American reparation claims which are to finally come before the conference of allied finance ministers in session here.

At the end of today's informal discussions and conferences it was apparent that the representatives of both English-speaking countries were trying to drive a hard bargain. Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, wishes to economize, and the American estimate of war damage claims, tentatively fixed at $550,000,000, is likely to be whittled down before the Anglo-Saxons finally reach the expected accord.

American Ambassadors Herrick and Kellogg, with James A. Logan, Jr., United States representative with the reparation commission, are standing their ground, but the negotiations for the time being, are up to the respective government of England and American.

The continental delegations are watching the apparent deadlock between the two principal countries with ill-suppressed chuckles.

Belgium's assent to the reduction of her 52 allotment of reparations from eight to five and one-half, and perhaps five per cent., if necessary, appears to have been the only forward step made today. Complete accord also has not been reached on the Belgian position, as the latter contends she still has about 250,000,000 gold francs due her on her priority claims.

The British aver that Belgium has already received 2,500,000,000 francs in reparations, and that three per cent. of her priority, if abandoned by that country, should be subtracted from her receipts beginning immediately. Experts will go over a mass of figures and report to the delegates before Monday just exactly what Belgium has actually received.

The American war damage claims settlement however, remains the most important matter before the conference. Three full days have elapsed since the conference convened and the days, except for two very brief plenary sessions, have been almost entirely occupied by unofficial and private conversations between the members of the American and British delegations in an effort to reach a compromise.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL TO ADDRESS STATE GRANGE

Hartford, Jan. 9.—Governor John H. Trumbull, will make his first public address since his succession to the office of chief executive, at the opening session of the annual convention of the State Grange Tuesday evening. He intends to limit his speaking engagements to prevent their interfering with his official duties, especially during the legislative session. The only other engagement he has made for a public address is in connection with the annual banquet of the McKinley Association of Connecticut to be held at New Haven the latter part of this month. United States Senator Hiram Bingham, as president of the association, will return from Washington to be a speaker at that time also.

The governor will be the guest of honor at a ball to be given Wednesday evening at the new armory in Waterbury. Members of his staff have been ordered to report to Adjutant General George M. Cole at the armory at 8:45 p. m. that evening.

RUMORS OF RETIREMENT OF JUSTICE O. W. HOLMES

Washington, Jan. 9.—Persistent reports that Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes would retire within a few weeks from the supreme court were circulated today at the capitol. The justice himself made no comment on them.

Justice Holmes will be 84 years old March 3. If he should decide to retire soon he probably will do so in time for appointment and confirmation of his successor before congress adjourns March 4.

Should Justice Holmes retire, his resignation will be the second in the supreme court since President Coolidge entered the White House, his colleague of many years, Justice McKenna, having retired last Monday.

Appointed from Massachusetts by President Roosevelt in 1902, Justice Holmes was eligible for retirement in 1921.

A gift of $50,000 from Ogden Mills of New York to aid in the construction of Wentworth Hall, a new dormitory of Phillips-Exeter Academy, was announced.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON MAY WORK FOR PRISON REFORM

New York, Jan. 9.—William H. Anderson, former superintendent of the State Anti-Saloon League, recently released from Sing Sing after serving a term for perjury issued a statement today intimating strongly that he might work for prison reform, if he could get assurances that he would not be re-arrested as a parole violator.

"The public," Mr. Anderson said, "ought to know the gross injustice of the operation of the parole law in matters that are entirely beyond the control of the parole board because of the provisions of the law itself."

James M. Long, one of the three members of the parole board, said at Ossining today:

"As far as the parole board is concerned Mr. Anderson can say anything he likes about the parole law, the parole system, and, if he wants to, about the parole board members. The only stipulation put upon Anderson on his parole was that he could make no criticism of the courts."

WOMAN 102 DECLINED TO CRITICIZE MODERN CLOTHES

Biddefordport, Me., Jan. 9.—Although she admits she does not like bobbed hair, Mrs. Elizabeth Rich, who observed her 102nd birthday today, declined to criticize modern fashions in clothes. Bingham Inducted As U. S. Senator

Prior to Taking Oath Bingham Called at White House to Pay His Respects to President Coolidge.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, Jan. 9.—Senator Bingham took oath of office at noon today, escorted to the rostrum by Senator McLean. After the ceremony Mr. Bingham was introduced to many of his colleagues who greeted him with great cordiality. Prior to taking his oath Senator Bingham called at the White House to pay his respects to President Coolidge who expressed gratification that Connecticut gave such a rousing victory at the recent special election.

Senator Bingham has retained as secretary, Henry M. Barry of New Haven, former secretary to the late Senator Colt of Rhode Island and has been assigned the offices occupied by the late Senator Brandegee. Senator Bingham laughingly admitted he was not fully versed in the practices of the senate when he took oath of office in Connecticut. He explained that as he had taken oath of military appointments wherever he had been at the time of promotion and as the president of the United States could take oath elsewhere than Washington he had inferred the same would hold good in the senate. Senator Bingham remarked he should study the rules and practices of senate, and hoped soon to be familiar with them.

An unprecedented discourtesy on the part of Senator Norris of Nebraska delayed Senator Bingham in taking his oath. Norris was in the midst of a long tirade against certain democratic campaign documents and declined to yield the floor on request of McLean long enough to induct Senator Bingham into office although the ceremony would have consumed but three minutes.

NAME OF MADISON SQUARE GARDEN TO BE PERPETUATED

New Structure Will Be the Largest Covered Amphitheatre in the World—$5,500,000 Building Will Be Located on the West Side of Eighth Avenue, From 49th to 50th Streets—Will Contain Equipment Suitable to Conduct Sporting Events, Social Functions, Industrial Displays and Conventions.

New York, Jan. 9.—The name of Madison Square Garden, historic arena and famous as the scene of many spectacular sporting events over the past two generations, will be perpetuated in a $5,500,000 memorial building, a complete amusement and exhibition plant which will be the largest covered amphitheatre in the world.

Work on the new structure, located on the west side of Eighth avenue, from 49th to 50th street, already has begun and it will be opened to the public on October 15th of this year, probably with the annual horse show, according to the announcement today of George L. (Tex) Rickard, noted promoter and president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation sponsoring the undertaking.

The project has been in the making for the past two years but it was not until today, Rickard disclosed, that the last obstacles were removed, plans completed, contracts let and financing definitely arranged. This was done by a group headed by Rickard and John Ringling, the circus man, and also including General T. Coleman Dupont, Kermit Roosevelt, P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, and Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International corporation.

The new building is designed to replace the old Madison Square Garden, located on the block bounded by Madison and Fourth avenue, 26th and 27th street, which is to be razed next spring and replaced by an office sky scraper. Right to use the name "Madison Square Garden" has been conveyed to the new corporation by owners of the old building. The site of the new corporation by owners of the building. The site of the new building is now occupied by old street car barns, demolishment of which was started last Monday.

As revealed by Rickard, plans for the building call for construction and equipment suitable to conduct sporting event of all kinds, social functions, industrial displays and conventions. A prospect of getting the 1928 republican national convention figured largely in preliminary arrangements, he added.

The building will be divided into two levels, making it possible for separate activities to be conducted at the same time. Seating accommodations, arranged somewhat after the tiers in the old garden, will be provided for 23,000 spectators, which excell by 8,000 the capacity of the Olympia arena in London, at present the largest amphitheatre.

Modern ice hockey equipment will be feature of the new building and garden officials, who have obtained a franchise in the National Hockey league, plan a revival of the ice sport here next season. The National league is a Canadian organization and has an American member in Boston this year.

TESTIMONY IN OPPOSITION TO CONFIRMATION OF STONE

Washington, Jan. 9—Unexpected opposition to the confirmation of Attorney General Stone to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court arose today with a result that a senate judiciary sub-committee deferred action pending examination of the court records laid before it by James A. Ownbey, of Boulder, Colo.

These records deal with a suit brought against Ownbey by the executors of the estate of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, for whom Mr. Stone appearee as counsel before the supreme court. Ownbey lost the action, which came up from the Delaware state courts.

Ownbey was heard by the sub-committee behind closed doors. Immediately afterwards Chairman Sterling began a study of the record presented, but he said he did not think the sub-committee could report the nomination to the entire committee during the regular meeting next Monday as had been the program.

The general railroad average was elevated to the highest level in eight years.

Continuance of easy money rates, a further rise in sterling exchange and reports of steady improvement in several specialties, which were given added impetus by the growing investment demand for high grade issues. Net gains of one to three points were common, with nearly a score issues showing advances of 3 to 7 points at the close.

CAPTAIN OF TUG BOAT WAS HELD IN BONDS OF $1,500

Bridgeport, Jan. 9—George Sweedning, captain of the tugboat "Lorraine Rita", informed against before United States Commissioner Hugh J. Lavery this afternoon as having disobeyed the orders of Captain John A. Heikel, of the United States coast guard patrol and with failing to have required license papers, was bound over to the next term of the United States court in bonds of $1500.

His counsel, Attorney Louis Halley of New York, argued that Captain Heikel, in examining the boat's papers, acted outside of the prescribed authority of the coast patrol, usurping a right vested exclusively with the steamship inspectors of the bureau of navigation.

District Attorney John Buckley, representing the federal authorities, held that coast patrol officers had the right of license inspection, that power being delegated in them by the treasury department and various other sources.

Over-ruled by Commissioner Lavery on his interpretation of the the federal laws concerning inspection, Attorney Halley asked for a trial of the facts. It was agreed such evidence should be placed before the higher court.

Captain Sweeding did not go on the stand.

GERMAN PARLIAMENTARY LEADERSHIP CONTEST IS HOPELESSLY DEADLOCKED

Berlin, Jan. 9 (By the A. P.)—Chancellor Marx tonight lost his battle with Foreign Minister Stresemann for parliamentary leadership. The contest was a bitter one. It was fought by Dr. Stresemann with all the weapons of ruthless German party politics and only ended with the failure of Dr. Marx to construct a government which would not be dominated by the nationalists and Stresemann's German people's party.

The undying antagonism of both parties to any coalition government which would comprise the socialists was born of a severity and bitterness, which blocked all the efforts Chancellor Marx has put forth during the past five weeks to evolve a competent cabinet, which would have a clear majority out of the negative results of the elections of December 7.

Chancellor Marx tonight returned to President Ebert his commission to form a cabinet. Previously he had apprised the president of the utter futility of attempting to seek a solution of the stubborn deadlock, in which the clerical, democratic and socialist parties were broadly united against the German nationalists and the German people's party in an impasse which Mark's conciliatory diplomacy had failed to break up.

President Ebert immediately called in Foreign Minister Stresemann, Hermann Mueller, the socialist leader, and Martin Schiele, floor leader of the nationalists in the reichstag. He will canvass the situation with them once more, and, in the event there is no prospect of effecting a parliamentary truce, will request some non-partisan government, leader to undertake the formation of a cabinet which would comprise only experts not attached politically to any party and who would risk their tenure of office on the reichstag's neutrality. For the time being Dr. Stresemann appears to hold the key to the situation.

It is reported that President Ebert will request Finance Minister Luther, who officially is a non-party man but who nevertheless stands in close relations with the German nationalists, to form a cabinet. If Luther accepts his government certainly would have strong tendencies towards the right and consequently encounter bitter opposition from the socialists and the democrats. What the attitude of the center party would be in such an event has not been defined.

For the second time in Willimantic Protestant churches, the symbolic service of lights will be held at St. Paul's church Sunday evening. The service is one not in common use in Connecticut, although it has been carried out in Norwich in past years. On entering the nave, each member of the congregation is to be presented an unlighted candle, which he takes to his seat. Scripture and sermon by the rector, Rev. Frederick C. Williams will be on Light as the Symbol of Christ. As part of the service twelve men representing the twelve apostles come to one huge candle burning beneath the altar with a great star above it and light from it the wicks of the candles they hold. From their lights, candles in the hands of three others representing the bishops, priests and deacons, are lighted, and these, coming down the aisles, light in turn the candles in the hands of the first person in each seat. These in turn like those of their neighbors, and led by the choir the whole assembly moves in procession through the aisles to the music of the recessional hymn. Then the lighted candles are carried through the streets until the people reach their homes.

New London, Jan. 9.—At last New London lodge of Elks is to pursue the thief who robbed the safe in the club house a fortnight ago of some $360. Indignation has grown since the robbery was announced in the newspapers and the members of the lodge are now determined to hunt down the thief if that can be done. Outside assistance will be engaged if necessary and legal assistance will be sought to bring punishment to some one who robbed an association that has given more than any other in the city for charity. That the job was an inside one is the opinion of those members who express an opinion. The safe was not scratched in any way by the fellow who opened it, nor was there any evidence whatever that the thief had any difficulty in getting into the safe and strong box it contained. The thief made a clean break and left not a thing to show that he was not familiar with the safe. It will be hard going for that fellow if his identity becomes known for a certainty. There are several members of the lodge who through circumstances have been placed under suspicion. The thief knew this so he was cunning enough to work as he did.

The will of the late Bindloss H. Hilliar, who died about a week ago, was offered for probate today and will be admitted as soon as the executors file their bonds and they are accepted by the court. Mr. Hilliar was a plumber for many years in this city, acquiring the business of the late Charles Douglass many years ago. He carried on the business a number of years but finally disposed of it and devoted himself in recent years largely to the development of land in the northern part of the city and to the acquisition of new tracts which he could develop. He had erected some 30 houses during the time he was thus engaged and rarely if ever did he dispose of a building he had constructed. Some of his designs are among the most attractive in the northern part of the city, along the highway to Norwich. His will bequeaths all his possessions to his four children, Charles, Luella, Florence and Raymond. From them the property reverts to their children. Mr. Hilliar was past 76 years of age and had been a most active man all his life. He, in his youth, intended to enter the ministry of the Episcopal church and to equip himself was educated at Cheshire academy, the recognised school then of the Episcopal church in this state. He changed his plans and instead went into business when the opportunity offered.

Judge Prince put the "gad" to three drunks who came before him in the police court this morning. All were men who sought the Learned mission for shelter and for food, but who appeared there under the influence of liquor last evening, when the superintendent was where he could observe their conduct. He immediately asked for their arrest. The men today were sent to jail for 10 days each and there will be less imitation of their conduct in the future because of the penalty imposed. The drunks do not like to go to jail. That is severe punishment for them. The men who were sent up are Frank Spencer, who said his home is in Norwich; John Bowler, who declared that he had been at work at Mystic, and could go back there, but who got tired and quit labor for a change, and Patrick Brady, a New Londoner by adoption of a residence in Golden street.

Daniel De Long, who has a court record, was also accused, but he denied the main accusation, because he believed that was the way to get out of his trouble. He was arrested last night when he declared that he had been in a place on Atlantic street and there gambling was carried out to the extent of a business. The police officer who made the arrest on the complaint of De Long said the fellow was drunk when he complained, and others who were in the place claimed that De Long appeared there and wanted to take part in a game of cards that was in progress. He was told to move along and when he did not start he was assisted. They claim that was the reason De Long made his complaint. The prosecutor asked for the adjournment of the case today that he might further investigate and ascertain whether there was any gambling done in the place.

Mortimer Nott was charged with reckless operation of an automobile, but the case was not ready for trial. The arrest was made by a member of the state police.

Prentice, Robert H. Byles and Lloyd and Clyde Beebe. Burial was at Jordan.

Kelly this forenoon so that the body could be forwarded at 11.23. Mrs. Geisler, a sister of Boylan, accompanied the body.

The order of Railway Conductors is to have its meeting in Odd Fellows' hall Sunday, and there will be a feast of turkey.

Annie Carney will come from Lawrence hospital tomorrow, it is expected to appear against Thomas Carney, who is to go on trial in the police court for assault. The woman has been under treatment for a slashed head, which the officers who took her into custody a few nights ago feared would disclose a fractured skull. The Cuddy woman has a bad police record She came to New London from Montville some years ago and since then her name has frequently appeared on the police blotter.

It looked like old times to see workmen laying up the sidewalks of the foundation for the proposed Klinck building on bank street, by electric lights. The pillars in the cellar are now in place so that work will be rushed along on the structure as the weather permits. The Hollandersky building, a block north of the Klinck structure has so far advanced that the front is well nigh completed. It will be a handsome three story structure and will be ready for occupancy in about a month. The Woolworth building, which is the former Garfield building reconstructed, will be ready for occupancy within a fortnight. It is directly opposite the Main street and carries a front that is a duplicate in formation of the other Woolworth store.

John Walters, formerly employed by George Fisher, has undergone an operation for the removal of a growth in the nose. He complained of indigestion, but the doctors decided that his distress was not caused by the improper digestion of food so an operation was decided on. That relieved him and he is expected to recover speedily. He is a son of the late Policeman Joseph Walters and a nephew of the former postmaster at Niantic.

Members of Konomoc Hose Company are unanimous in declaring the 51st annual banquet in celebration of the company's organization, held at the Hotel Mohican last evening, one of the most enjoyable the organization has ever had. The entertainment pleased many of those who listened to the men and the women who furnished it. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth was the speaker of the evening and he delighted and entertained all who heard him. He was given the heartiest of applause. Foreman Pollock presented him an umbrella in appreciation of his services to the company on any occasion when called upon. The clergyman had a word to say in praise of the Konomocs as "neighbors" for their station adjoins the church of which Dr. Danforth is pastor. He remembered that he had officiated at the marriages of members and that he had served them in the death of friends as well. Foreman Pollock in his review of the history of the company in its social and charitable life disclosed that in the 23 years he had been at its head it had collected and expended $250,000. He told of the trips the company had made and showed that the first outing cost the company $1,200 and the last thus far was at the expense of $7,000. The company has been a willing contributor to all good projects and public benevolences. The committee which arranged last evening's entertainment was Foreman Pollock, Rudolph H. Siebler and A. C. Richards.

There were but three members of these now who were enrolled in it when Mr. Pollock became foreman, Messrs. Siebler, Fred Chittenden and Jacob Linicus.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and that was the best confinement I had. Whenever I feel run down I always take the Vegetable Compound as a tonic. We have just removed from Brockville (Canada) so I was pleased when the store ordered the medicine for me and I got it today. A rare opportunity is offered both men and women tomorrow at the local Y. M. C. When his brothers who had ill treated him came to want he finally fed them and demonstrated a brother's love that is unsurpassed in the annals of history. The whole story of his life is thrilling, and to follow such an example will lead to the highest ideals in life. Admission is free to all men and women, and boys and girls will be admitted if accompanied by adults. The doors will be opened at 3.30 o'clock.

Breed Theater

Mae Murray is so far the only actress on stage or screen who ever interested Vicente Blasco Ibanez, famous Spanish writer, sufficiently to have him write a special story for her. The story is Circe the Enchantress, the photoplay version of which is coming to the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. Ibanez saw two of Miss Murray's Metro pictures in Paris more than a year ago. He was so impressed by Miss Murray's acting and vivacity that he would like to write a story for her.

Several months ago this friend came to the United States and happened to be on somewhere what Ibanez had done. The word was passed along until it reached Miss Murray.

Immediately she cabled the famous Spanish author with the result that he wrote a story dealing with the adventures of a modern siren who power over men was as compelling that of Circe of Greek mythology.

Circe the Enchantress is a Goldwyn picture presented by Robert Z. Leonard and produced by Tiffany productions of which Mr. Leonard is director general and M. H. Hoffman is general manager.

Included in the excellent cast appearing in support of Miss Murray are James Kirkwood, William Haines, Charles Gerard, Thomas Ricketts, Gene Cameron and Lillian Langdon.

Broadway Theatre

Remember, they're only children.

But when an eighteen year old boy takes a girl of the same age into the country in his high-powered roadster are they?

This is one of the tense situations in Broken Laws, Mrs. Wallace Reid's new powerful photodrama of Mother Love and the Law which comes to the Broadway theater tomorrow.

Mrs. Reid's portrayal of Joan, the indulgent mother, surpasses by far, anything this talented artist has done in the past.

Believing that her son Bobby is still a "baby" she humors him, but he soon demonstrates that he is no longer a "child" and with serious results that lead to some of the most dramatic scenes of the play.

Bobby and Patsy, his little sweetheart, dash off in Bobby's new runabout. Their first trip leads to others, and finally to a notorious roadhouse.

Here Patsy's father finds her and takes her home. Angry at having lost his "girl" Bobby dashes off after them. In the darkness, on a lonely country road he crashes into a vegetable wagon, killing the aged wife of the vegetable peddler.

Bobby is tried for manslaughter and found guilty. His mother learns, too late, that he is not any longer a "child."

Remember Marty Depree and her Musical Follies come to the Broadway theater your favorite in an entirely new show.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Out of Brooklyn comes the story that a deadly poison that need not be mentioned here is being spread along fox runs with a view to killing the foxes and without regard for the lives of foxhounds and other dogs that are being killed with as great frequency as the quarry.

The poison distributors are not kin of those who pursue Reynard for the pure sport of the chase. Theirs is merely a sordid business proposition. The fox carries a valuable pelt and it is the money this pelt will bring that lures the poison hunters to resort to the despicable and illegal method they have adopted for killing the foxes without regard to whether dogs are killed or not.

One of the most respected citizens of Brooklyn told Friday of the poison being distributed. This is an advanced step over the barbarous plan of setting snares, which has been practiced against foxes in territory hereabouts for years. A determined effort is to be made to fix the responsibility for the poison distribution with a view to bringing prosecutions in the courts.

It is not unlikely that bills will be introduced at the present session of the legislature providing for increases in the salary of the judge and the prosecuting attorney of the town court of Killingly. At present the judge receives $800 per year. For this sum he must not only perform the duties of the judgeship, but also that of clerk of the court for which he receives no compensation. The prosecuting attorney receives only $600 per year. By those familiar with all the detail of the work imposed upon the court officials mentioned the present salaries are considered inadequate. There were 188 cases before the town court during 1924. All of these entailed considerable preparatory work upon the prosecuting attorney. The hearings in court are usually the least burdensome feature of the disposition of cases. The keeping of the court record, the duty of a clerk and for which there is no compensation, involves really a great amount of clerical work and of an exacting kind. In recent years the town court has shown a profit each year. No burden would be imposed upon the town by granting a legitimate increase in salary to the active court officers. These officers are earning more than they receive and the feeling has been expressed on many sides that they should have more money. Their compensation as court officers is the same now as it was long before the World war brought a readjustment of values and in the purchasing power of money. Of interest here is that Putnam also is giving consideration to the matter of increasing the salary of its court officers.

The coming total eclipse of the sun, on the morning of Jan. 24, is being awaited with varying emotions by the people of this community. The general state of mind is one of curiosity and expectancy, but there are those who feel a bit timid about the solar phenomena and do not at all relish passing through the experience that is scheduled for them.

Sidelights on the coming eclipse are the anxiety of great numbers to get a good view of it. This will be impossible for thousands of inside workers in this territory, especially those employed in manufacturing plants, unless the managements declare a brief recess from duty and allow the employes a few minutes outside for a look at such an eclipse as most of them will never have an opportunity to see again, not upless during the course of their life they are in some distant part of the world. It so happens that the eclipse comes two weeks from today (Saturday) so the children of the schools will have full and free opportunity to watch every phase of the eclipse.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

The eclipse of the sun, Saturday, January 24, is of more than ordinary interest in this section as it is the first time that the sun has been totally hidden by an eclipse to the people of New England for more than a century, the date of the last time having been June 11, 1806, and it will not happen again for another century, or 2024. About eight years ago there was a partial eclipse visible here, but on the morning of June 24, of the day is clear, between 9 and 10 o'clock the people of Putnam and vicinity can observe the entire disk of the sun, obscured by the moon.

The totality of the eclipse in Putnam will begin about fourteen minutes after nine o'clock and will last for about 20 seconds. New Haven is almost directly in the center of the shadow and there the totality will continue for two minutes. The duration of time when the shadow is first seen until it disappears will be about 40 minutes.

The diameter of the shadow is about 150 miles and the northern edge of it will be about six miles south of Springfield, passing through Roger Williams park at Providence and running near the border line between the town of Putnam and Thompson. Astronomers have been able to determine the exact boundaries of the shadows of an eclipse on the earth's surface only to within two miles. They welcome all the aid and data that can be obtained from amateur observers on this point.

Whitman Danielson, who has an academic, not to say active, interest in the subject will try to locate as closely as he can the boundary of the shadow a few miles north of Putnam. With the co-operation of a number of boys of the Hi-Y club, provided weather conditions are favorable, he hopes to contribute in a little way to the general fund of information.

JEWETT CITY GIRL ALLEGES ASSAULT AT MOOSUP LAKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Jan. 9.—The entire time of the superior court Friday was taken in hearing the testimony in the case of state against Ernest Valiquette. He is charged with the breach of the peace, intoxication and assault with intent to commit rape. His home is at Central Falls, R. I., he is married, and has one child, a boy born two weeks ago. For the past four months he has been in jail at Brooklyn awaiting trial.

The complaining witness is Bertha Seagal, of Jewett City. The offense is alleged to have been committed on the night of August 30, 1924, at a dance hall at Moosup lake. Miss Seagal's testimony is that after dancing once or twice she felt ill either from the effects of a glass of wine she had taken at her home or from other causes and went out and sat in a Ford coupe parked about 15 feet away from the hall in company with James McCelley. She was told he had some wine in the car but he had none and after about ten minutes' wait he got out and left her in the car. According to her story just as she was stepping out she was seized by defendant and another man and forced against her will, almost dragged into the woods back of the hall. The defendant tried to assault her and in her struggles someone stole her wrist watch, a ring from her finger and two dollars in money. Her underclothing was torn from her, her neck was bruised from choking and both eyes were blackened. She stated further that after fighting with her assailant or assailants for several minutes, possibly half an hour, she became unconscious. When she awakened some man helped her up and back to the car in which she came from Jewett City. Four girl friends and as many young men rode home with her and all testified to her condition or being as she said, beaten up.

On the evening of the next day she told some of her girl friends about it and an hour afterwards officers called at the house to get her story of the affair. At the police station in Central Falls she identified Valiquette as her chief assailant.

The defendant admitted that he had been at the dance and had danced once with Miss Seagal. He denied all the charges that she made. With the exception of a few minutes he said he spent the entire evening in the pavilion. In this he was borne out by Owen McCelley and James McCelley with whom he had driven to the dance and with whom he had returned to his home. Also by Miss Rose Lymber, of Danielson. She said she had known the defendant for more than a year, had danced one dance with him early in the evening of the night when the assault is alleged to have been committed and with the exception of fifteen or twenty minutes had seen him in the hall for the remainder of the evening and had danced with him several more times. He showed no signs of intoxication, his clothing was in no way disarranged and nothing in his manner indicated that he had been engaged in any struggle.

The testimony of the complaining witness and the defendant were flatly contradictory. Charles E. Searles, state's attorney and Howard C. Bradford prosecuted for the state and Charles L. Torrey represented the defendant.

Judge Newell Jennings said that in view of the importance of the case both to the state and defendant he would avail himself of the same privilege that a jury would if the case had been tried before 12 men, and would take time to consider the verdict, which he added, would be announced next Tuesday morning.

Court was adjourned until 10.30 a. m. of that day, when jury cases will be tried.

CHARLESTOWN COTTAGE LOOT PERHAPS PICKED BY MOMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., Jan. 9.—Deputy Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Washington county, R. I., was notified at the district court in Westerly Friday morning that cottages at Arnold, a summer colony section of the town of Charlestown, R. I., had been entered, furnishings taken and the houses generally ransacked.

Sheriff Mitchell visited the summer cottage of F. W. Dauchy, of Brooklyn, N. Y., where the thieves had gained entrance through a cellar window. The break was made after January 6 for a caretaker visited the place at that time finding everything all right. In going over the house tallow candles were used by the thieves and these were left behind. There were taken from this house woolen blankets, quilts, pillow slips and bath towels.

The summer cottage of Russell E. Bailey, Greenwich, Conn., in charge of Caretaker Gavitt had been entered since Sunday night when $1.10 was taken off a table top. Checking up, there were found to be missing three clocks, dice for a mah jongg set, an electric sewing machine, slippers, boys' clothing, several pairs of curtains, dresses, blankets, sheets, and the contents of a jug which the thieves dumped out. Cotton material was passed by and only the best linen was stolen. The garage was entered, a key being used, but nothing was taken.

The Scoville cottage was also gone over but there was not much taken away.

At all the cottages, burnt cigarettes were found lying about and outside of one of the cottages a hammer and a cheap chisel were found. There is a possibility that there was a woman in the party indicated by the care taken in picking out the materials carried away.

ACTION ON MUSCLE SHOALS.

Disposition of Muscle Shoals still hangs fire. The action of the senate, however, shows the preference of that body for the leasing of the plant rather than its operation by the government.

What the senate may do further in the way of amendments to the Underwood bill, which it has substituted for the Norris measure, or what action it will take later relative to further developments there should be known within a short time. If it carries out the plan indicated by its action on Thursday it will not be long before the problem will be placed in the hands of a conference committee to iron out those differences that exist between the action taken in the senate and that in the house. The latter, it will be remembered, declared at the last session for the bill accepting the Ford offer. Even though that offer has been withdrawn the house hasn't changed its decision. Such differences between the two branches of congress ought to be ironed out without great difficulty in view of the fact that the Ford plan no longer exists.

The fact that the senate showed a larger republican support for a democratic measure, and thereby defeated a bill sponsored by a republican, sets forth the feeling, regardless of party lines, against government operation and the putting to use of the plant, on which so many millions have been spent, without unwarranted delay.

By the Underwood plan something would be undertaken right away with this costly plant. There would be no abnormal depreciation through idleness such as would be inevitable if nothing was done and there was delay waiting until it might be found out what experts would advocate concerning it with no certainty that the experts' advice would be accepted.

The senate hasn't had its final say on the bill. It has made good progress, however, and by its vote thus far it has shown its hand.

NEW JERSEY CRIME.

When conditions in a state get to the point that individual and organization efforts are made to improve them it is bad enough, but when a governor finds them so bad as to deplore the situation publicly and urges the people to assert themselves against the criminal violence that makes life unsafe, there can be little questions to the need for action.

Governor Silzer of New Jersey is the chief executive who has found this step to be necessary. He points out the number of holdups that are taking place, the freedom with which firearms are being used and increasing volume of crime that is developing. He has had a conference with the justices of the supreme court of the state and he is to call a meeting of authorities for the purpose of getting better cooperation in the fighting of such crime.

As might be expected he does not overlook the important effect that is sound to result from speedy trials and adequate sentences. He doesn't say so but he intimates that leniency has played its part in developing the conditions which exist in that state today. Instead of giving encouragement to crime and the criminally disposed he recognizes the importance of and calls out for the aid of the courts in doing their part to change the situation.

When there is a lack of enforcement of the laws, when laws are winked at and when the courts fail to send home the fact that laws are intended to be obeyed instead of played with, the inevitable result is more crime. When the impression gets a hold upon those who are easily led or influenced that little or no punishment can be expected, that penalties can be laughed at, there's no very serious obstacles raised against crimes of violence or any other kind.

The governor of New Jersey appears to be aroused over the situation that exists in his commonwealth. His activity is being displayed none too soon, according to his picture of conditions, and if the desired results are obtainable he ought to get them. It is time for the much talked of Jersey justice.

HORSES AND CARRIAGES.

When the possessor of a score or so carriages of American and French make is selling them what he can and giving others away, it must be regarded as inevitable. What else is there for him to do?

Like others he has been watching the change from the horse drawn vehicle to the motors. He understands and appreciates that while there is much to admire and enjoy in horse drawn vehicles of not so many years ago, yet such a sight is rare today. Few are the stables that are maintained as they were a quarter of a century ago and those who do maintain them do not do so for the purpose of going about in their carriages as formerly. You see a business wagon, an occasional phaeton, but the barryall and the victorias are gone. Well does this owner realize that it is time to sell, or to put such as he has and are worthy of it in a museum. The skeletons of what was once the height of fashion and the emblem of wealth may occasionally be seen about some farm house. On the street they are about as strange as an ox-team. They hold about the same position as do those costly sleighs in which there is so little interest these days, even when there is much snow on the ground.

The selling or giving away of carriages recognizes the same condition that is indicated by the exclusion of horses from the business center of Los Angeles. They belong to that slow, out of date period which does not fit into the present day situation. The horse hasn't gone but is fast being replaced by motor vehicles. The horse hasn't the speed to keep up with the requirements today. It impedes traffic in the view of the city of Los Angeles, and it is to be realized that there is not only a volume of traffic in excess of all previous years but it is increasing by leaps and bounds.

The day of the horse hasn't entirely gone, but it is going. The day of the carriage is virtually over but it is well that certain models should be preserved for the lovers of antiques.

THE HIGHWAY DANGERS.

Another of the tragedies of the highway is revealed by the little boy of four in Waterbury who rushed in front of a bus just as it was starting and was crushed beneath it. It was a case where the youngster pulled away from his sister's grasp and dodged into the street just in time to go under the wheels of the bus which was instantly stopped, but too late to prevent crushing him.

It cannot fail to be observed that the dangers of the highway are multiplied these days by those who fail to properly look out for themselves, as well as by those who operate vehicles in violation of the regulations and good judgment as to speed.

It is a regrettable fact in connection with highway fatalities that children figure in them in such large numbers. Where the streets were once a comparatively safe playground in certain sections they are today highly dangerous places. The utmost care is needed in crossing them, and certainly safety and the prevention of accidents call for the keeping of the youngsters who are unable to protect themselves away from the possibility of being killed or injured.

Whether one likes to or not, it is impossible to overlook the situation which is created by the increased traffic and by the presence in the streets of vehicles which are much more speedily operated than in other days. The need on the part of adults to exercise greater care is displayed every day, and the importance of keeping children where they are not subjected to such dangers and of teaching the lessons of self protection cannot be too strongly emphasized.

CROSSING NEW YORK BY WATER

Whenever the idea of developing the St. Lawrence as a waterway for ocean going vessels has been brought up attention has been turned to the availability of the service of the barge canal across New York state, capable of handling much more traffic than it does.

That use is not being made of it in keeping with the advantages afforded has been pointed out from time to time. This stands out prominently when it si urged that it is capable of caring for much more traffic than it does. The present legislature of the Empire state is told by Commissioner of Public Works Green that something like $5,000,000 will have to be spent upon the canal this year and three times that amount in the not distant future, and instead of doing so he advises offering the canal to the federal government for development as a ship canal by way of Oswego, Syracuse, Albany and the Hudson, which of course involves the deepening of the Hudson.

That of course sounds good, but what will the federal government think of having such a proposition wished on it? It takes two to make a bargain, and while there may be federal opposition there is not unlikely to be opposition in New York state to the abandonment of that portion of the canal from Syracuse to Buffalo.

It is one of those propositions, however, which invariably arise before definite action in any direction is decided upon. It permits an additional view of the possibilities as well as the problemas. It also bucks the St. Lawrence plan.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Since the present century began most of our colleges and universities have added the department of sociology to the curriculum. Columbia and some of the state universities started in earlier. This department of learning was practically unknown fifty years ago. The Scotch universities made much of the humanities which was the forerunner of sociology that is now taught in every first-class institution of learning. To us it seems strange that the department was not made much of long before. It has always been recognized that man is a social being, and, as such, forms an organic part of society. In view of his manifest relations to others he cannot be understood as a complete unit in himself. The person who lives for himself only, selfishly turns down his innate relationship to others. There are duties which he owes to his family and these he must not ignore. He is likewise closely related to the community and the world.

Can this, or any other country, claim to be highly civilized when divorces are so scandously prevalent? To assassinate family ties leads to social degeneration. The attempt has been made in so many instances to build our family life upon the basis of self-interest that many homes have been a failure. In the last ten years in the United States divorces have grown by leaps and bounds until at present we are having on the average about 120,000 a year. Think what this means to the unfortunate children that are born in such homes! Bereft of the salutary influence of a real home the innocent little child does not get that start in life that the little ones have a right to demand by every law of God and man. We cannot estimate the pernicious influence of broken homes upon the social life of any community. Let us do more to protect helpless children!

Too much emphasis cannot be put on maintaining healthy sports for the young folks. Outdoor recreation is most decidedly to be preferred. Baseball and football are excellent but they are seasonable and the season for both are past. Basket ball is now in vogue but it is an indoor sport. Let there be healthy exercise in the open when there is a keen zing in the air. Our up-to-date and progressive citizens of the West Side have done a fine thing in turning a meadow into a skating pond. When the healthy glow was seen on the cheeks of the skaters on the opening day it was felt that the West Siders were building better than they knew. In many places play grounds that are on level spots are turned into skating rinks in winter, thus putting these places to double purpose. They have a great advantage of safety over deep ponds and especially rivers. The young folks should be very cautious how they venture on ice that covers moving water no matter how cold it is.

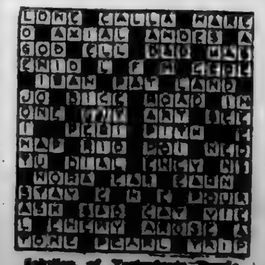
This is the seasonable period for taking an inventory of one's stock in trade, whether he belongs to the trades or the professions. While all capital is not the same capital, still everybody has some and should know how much and just what he is realising from it. By taking inventory of his stock in trade the business man knows pretty nearly just where he is at. It is quite important to know, not merely that he has made money since the last inventory was taken, but how much. Of course he must know on which side of the ledger he stands: is it the profit side or the loss side? There are times when there is a money value in retrenching, as at other times it is wise to advance and expend. But whatever be one's occupation in life it is a part of prudence to know just where one stands. And is there a better or more seasonable time than New Year's.

Isn't it generally for us to find out, at the New Year's season, just where we stand with ourselves and others? Are we for the most part ahead of the game, or is the game quite a way ahead of us? The budgetary system is becoming more and more a workable business system to go by. And it is recommended for household use as well as governmental use. If the United States government can save millions of dollars every year by allowing a certain amount for each necessary expenditure, why cannot the same system be applied in a smaller way to household affairs? If there is a steady income it is not difficult to allow so much for each expense. After one has had some experience in housekeeping he can approximate how much ought to be set apart for each expenditure. Of course the system is open for modification, but it will regulate ordinary expenses.

May we not define the New Year's as an important waymark in time and space? Did you ever think that it bears a close relation to the latitude and longitude? Did you ever see the parallels of latitude or feel the meridians of longitude? One cannot stand on any square foot of earth and say that this is latitude and this is longitude to the exclusion of any other square foot of earth. Imaginary though such lines may be how important they are especially in navigation. Fearlessly the ocean liner ploughs through the waves from midnight till dawn because the captain knows where he is—so far north or south of the equator; so far east or west of Washington or Greenwich. Like this New Year's is important if it is not related to history. It is in this sense that it differs from all the other notable days we celebrate. It has its place as well as the Fourth or July.

What a wonderful season this is for work, and it matters little what sort of work it is, mental or manual. We ought all of us to be busying in our heaviest line now, as there is so little outside to attract our attention. The majority of us workers are just a little beyond the skating and coasting age. Heavy lumps on the ice are not quite so attractive as they were once, and we have more serious responsibilities than when we were of the skating age. The cold weather as we have it now gives us vigor. Let us go at it and do it before those balmy days come when the fishing god has dominion over us. A good many of us have not quite arrived at that age where we can honestly say in regard to some of these sports, "we have no pleasure in them." These long evenings will not last very much longer. Let us do some heavy reading before the vernal equinox!

Don't be grouchy if your chances of becoming president of the United States are rather slim! And to be perfectly frank with you, gentle reader, they are exceedingly slim, and the slimmer they are the more devoutly ought you to thank an overruling Providence. Just think for a moment what you escape! Gee whiz, only think of shaking hands with 4000 people at a single reception! Not only men who stand high in congressional and diplomatic positions, but their attractive wives who are decked out in the latest imported gowns and bedecked with jewels some of which are paid for! But to add to the president's agony they come with their babies almost as infinitum! Think of the chief magistrate saying just the most beautiful things to those little ones, some of whom are so homely that they would curdle milk at a single glance! Think of this and be happy with your $3 a day job!



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

SOLVING THE PROBLEM AT MUSCLE SHOALS

The United States is at the mercy of a foreign combination for its supply of nitrates, and it was to free this country from that grip that some $150,000,000 has been invested in the plants at Muscle Shoals.

One of the biggest needs of the United States today, as seen by such men as Secretary Hoover, is to find some way of making nitrates at a price that can defy this foreign combination.

Don't forget that background in considering what's to be done with the big government-owned plant at Muscle Shoals writes Will P. Kennedy in the Washington Star.

Here's what President Coolidge and his advisers believe will soon be done:

The power properties and the nitrate properties will be disposed of separately. There should be a ready buyer of the power property, with at least two large utility corporations bidding for it. This power would be sold under contract, with the right to recall.

The nitrate plants will be turned over on very reasonable terms—possibly under a subsidy—to private enterprise that may be willing to engage in intensive study of a method of cheaper production; or—which is much more probable—it will be used by the government itself to work out on a commercial scale at prices that can meet competition and price-cutting from the Chilean field.

Power and nitrate manufacture are two very different types of enterprise, and to sell both to one person would mean that whether he was a power expert or a nitrate expert he would still have to gamble or take a big risk he would want to have his safeguards. If the government disposes of each separately, it will avoid having to put up a big guarantee on one side or the other.

Department of commerce reports have shown how this country is now at the mercy of a Chilean combine, backed by British capital, for its supply of nitrate. The price is fixed, as was shown recently when more nitrate lands in Chile were sold and a condition of sale was that the nitrates must be sold at a price fixed by the combination.

Cheap Process Vital

For manufacture of munitions for war times and for manufacture of fertilizers in times of peace, we must have a cheap process of making nitrates. One deplorable feature of the whole Muscle Shoals problem is that the farmers have been lead to believe that they are going to get an abundance and even a superabundance of cheap fertilizers at only a fraction of the present costs. This is a pitiable hoax. Cheaper fertilizers still are far off.

Chilean nitrates are now selling in the United States for something like $48 a ton. The Chilean producers can take a drop of $30 to $35 a ton, reports received by the department of commerce show. The American manufacturer must be prepared to meet such a drop—must find a process that will make it possible for him to manufacture at something like $18 a ton, because to drive an American manufacturer out of business the Chilean crowd is ready to make that tremendous cut. The best the American manufacturer can do now, by the present processes, is to produce nitrates at $65 and $70 a ton. So the need for earnest work to develop a cheap process is obvious.

President Sees Need

President Coolidge, after conferences with his cabinet, is wide awake to this situation. It is thoroughly agreed that the government must go vigorously after the development of synthetic nitrates. It might subsidize some one to work out this process on a commercial scale — if it had any guarantee that the necessary $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 or $40,000,000 would actually be spent in the attempt. It is pretty certain, the president's advisers say, that private capital will not make the gamble, so the government itself must do that.

Now the best the government can do is to demonstrate on a commercial scale that cheap manufacture of nitrates is possible, and then private capital will be only too glad to take up the new manufacturing process. But this demonstration cannot be made in a laboratory. It must be done on a large scale operation to demonstrate the commercial practicability. Private industry is unwilling to put $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 into such an experimental plant.

Has Expert on Subject

But the government has the plant at Muscle Shoals and has a laboratory now doing fixed nitrogen experimentation and research under this subject. Dr. Frank G. Cottrell. What could be more logical than to turn the Muscle Shoals plant over to Dr. Cottrell to work out a cheap nitrate process—using the income from the Muscle Shoals power finance the scientific search?

White house conferences have shown that the administration has been for some time leaning strongly in this direction.

The situation in the senate has come to such a pass that it is quite evident that the only proposal that can get through is to turn the problem over to an executive commission with power to act in disposing of the Muscle Shoals property.

The Jones bill, introduced on December 16, recognized this chance for action. It proposes a commission of three, including the Secretary of War, the secretary of agriculture, and a third expert not in the government employ, to be appointed by the president, who would make recommendations to congress on the best dispositions of these properties.

There are many who hope that congress will authorize the president to appoint a commission of experts with authority to make disposition of the Muscle Shoals properties without coming back to congress to thrash out the terms. It is argued that this would be the wisest course because the intricate problem could then be handled by a group of men who could give consideration to the economic phases of the situation—which are the controlling factor—free from any political pressure. This is something that congress cannot do.

If congress carries out this plan, which has the administration's support, it is believed that the course of procedure—which has already been considered favorably by the president's advisers in general terms—will be something like this:

The properties at Muscle Shoals useful in the production of power to be segregated from those useful in the production of power, to include Wilson dam and power houses, the land upon which they are constructed, the lands within the reservoir site, sufficient additional land for auxiliary structures such as switching substations, the 60,000 kva. steam plant connected with nitrate plant No. 2, adequate land in connection therewith, and the right to use the waters of the Tennessee river for power development at Wilson dam and for operation of the steam plant.

United States May Hold Title

The hydro properties to be licensed for a period not exceeding 50 years under the provisions of the federal water power act, in the same manner as other "government dams." The title to properties built or acquired by the United States to remain in the United States.

The steam plant either to be leased or to be sold, preferably the latter, to the licensee of the hydro properties, in order that the energy which it can produce may be employed in building up the primary power for the hydro plant.

The nitrate properties to be leased for operation if a reasonable offer is presented containing adequate guarantees of continuous operation in the production of nitrates or other products and for the maintenance of the properties in adequate condition for the production of nitrates in time of war; otherwise the nitrate plants to be maintained in a standby condition, or otherwise disposed of as conditions may warrant.

In order to insure distribution of power generally throughout the South, the hydro properties would preferably be leased to a corporation jointly financed and owned by the southern utilities companies.

In order that an adequate supply of power may be available for the operation of the nitrate properties, the license issued for the hydro properties should contain a reservation for purposes of such operation of 500,000,000 kwt hours of electric energy per annum, such energy to be delivered in blocks on reasonable notice, and at a price not greater than that at which similar amounts are sold to any other purchaser, appropriate adjustment being made for load factor, power factor, and distance of transmission.

Annual Payments

In order to cover interest on investment of the United States and depreciation on the dam, the corporation to make annual payments to the United States of 4 per cent on the cost of the dam and appurtenant lands and flowage rights, power house and appurtenances (but not including locks or dam No. 1); also to pay the ministrative charge prescribed under the federal water power act. To the extent that the above rate makes possible production of power more cheaply than elsewhere, such saving to be reflected in rates to licensees under strict regulation, either state or federal.

In accordance with the terms of the federal water power act, the corporation would be liable for all ordinary maintenance, repairs and renewals, and to establish and maintain adequate reserves for such purposes. The risk of destruction of the properties would be assumed by the United States.

Finding to be Binding

In case of any dispute or disagreement between the corporation and any purchaser or prospective purchaser of power, whether for operation of the nitrate properties or for distribution and sale to consumers, respecting the allocation of power to such purchasers, and in case of any dispute or disagreement respecting the allocation of power is transmitted and sold to consumers by the corporation or by a purchaser of power therefrom, the allocation of such power, upon application to the federal power commission by any party in interest, to be heard and determined by the commission, and such determination to be binding upon the corporation and upon such purchaser.

Provision would be made that neither the corporation nor the purchaser would be required to make delivery of power in any specified territory except upon a finding by the commission that the revenues to be received appear sufficient to afford to the corporation or to the purchaser, as the case may be, a reasonable reimbursement of the cost of delivery, including a reasonable return upon the investment in plant or properties used and useful in making such delivery.

Except as may be specifically provided to the contrary, it is the intention of the administration that all the provision of the federal water power act shall be applicable to the disposition of the hydro properties.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Hallowed Name.

In all our praying as well as in our living, the first desire of our heart should be for the hallowing of God's name. And not only is prayer to be offered as a specific petition at the very gate, as we enter the temple, but in all our prayers, to the very close, the first object should be, not the obtaining of our requests for ourselves but the honoring of God. You want something very much. It seems to you to be essential to your happiness. Yet do you know that the granting of this thing so dear would glorify God? You are not sure. Instead, therefore, of pressing your requests for things you would like to have, you would better refer the matter to God, saying: "I dare not decide. I would rather leave it to God asking that he would grant my request, if to do so would most honor his name." If we had learned this effacement of self in all our desires, whether in our work or in our praying, if God were always first in our desire, it would lift up our commonest life into a splendor radiant as that in which the angels live; and if we but lived thus altogether for the glory of God, we should have the divine companionship and help in all that we do.

There is a beautiful legend from the story of the later days of Greece which illustrates this lesson. The religious spirit had waned among the people and the old enthusiastic belief in the gods had almost died out. A prize was offered to the sculptors of the land for the best marble statue of a certain god. A country lad heard the offer of the prize. He believed in this god with all his heart and in his passionate love desired to make the statue. Choosing a block of marble he hewed away manfully. He had in his mind a noble ideal of the grace, majesty, and strength of the god he loved, and wrought with great ardor and earnestness. But he lacked the artist's skill and experience, and though he did his best, his statue, when finished, was crude, lacking beauty and grace.

Then the legend relates that this good, secing the lad's endeavor to honor him and worthily represent him before men, helped him, turning his poor failure into perfect success. When the day of trial came and the different statues were passed upon, while other competitors were laughing at the crude thing which the boy had shaped with unskilled hand, but believing heart, the god himself entered into that pathetic marble failure, glorifying it with his own beauty. Instantly the harsh, uncomely lines fused into faultless symmetry, the awkward head was lifted in regal dignity, and the whole form of the rudely cut stone glowed with the matchless grace of life.

It is only a heathen legend. No deity of human fancy ever had power to work such a miracle for any of his devotees. But the legend interprets and illustrates what the true God does for all who live for him and with loyal heart and diligent hand faithfully seek to glorify him.

"Them that honor me will I honor," is his promise. Poor indeed may be the work we do, with no beauty in men's eyes; but if it is wrought in pure love and with a sincere desire to honor our Lord, He will take the endeavor of our clumsy hands and give it the grace it lacks, transforming it into a loveliness which will really honor Him who we so earnestly sought to glorify.

In our praying, too, the same is true. To make only those requests which honor God, rather than ourselves is to choose the higher good. To leave out the thought of God in anything we seek is to draw our life in the dust when it ought to soar away into the clear blue of heaven.

Prayer, beautiful only in thought and form, must, like the most beautiful flower severed from the vine, fall to the earth and perish. But, if love for the God of love be the spirit of prayer then shall its fragrance ascend as an incense unto the "Giver of every good and perfect gift," blessing the petitioner and pleasing unto God.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Conditions in Florida

Mr. Editor: It was with interest that I read W's letter of the Dec. 23, 1924, in your columns from Florida. Now, here's an answer from a Connecticut raised woman, whose home in Florida is now over a year and a half duration. First, he or she, advises all "northerners" to come to Florida with enough money for a few weeks and a return ticket.

How does anyone, either northerner or westerner or southerner ever expect to live either in Florida or anywhere else without money? It cannot be done. And as for room rates, why just try any northern city, New York, Boston and even Norwich, to find room rates from $4 a week and up. You would certainly not get much.

As for the Y. W. C. A. giving several girls meals. Any girl who is foolish enough to come to Florida, with only her ticket and one or two week's expenses, is very foolish.

Let any one right in Norwich or any New England resort get stranded with out money and they will sure have a hard time of it in the north. In the winter the prices naturally go up in Florida, while the tourists season is on. Why? Because most people come to Florida and are convinced that Florida is going to be as all year round home state, for thousands of more people.

When the manufactories and foundries, as well as boat builders, come in greater numbers, naturally their help will follow.

Herbert Lucas told how rough the roads were. Naturally they ought to be, there are no rock beds to them as in Connecticut. The state is gradually making brick and cement roads, as fast as the money goes into the treasury. But let a rain of 7 days and nights hit New England like it did Florida in August and I'll guarantee that the state will have a mighty big budget to cover the expenses for new roads.

Here's hoping that Jacksonville or any other resort city in Florida will treat W. better in the future.

Another reason why the chamber of commerce puts on notices is, because tourists come down here and get stranded, then offer their services at half wages, therefore, forcing the resident's to either accept half of the wages he is already getting, or be out of a job, for the winter. Then when Mr. Tourist has his gasoline money to go back north, the proprietor expects his resident employe to come back to work in the summer for half wages.

This year for their own protection the laborers have organized. The results are now, that any tourist who comes and offers his services at half wages is black-listed by the regular laborers. But if he goes to work at standard wages then he is welcomed by his fellow workers.

Judge Allen's Independence Involved Hardships

Although her parents had helped her acquire a good education and made it possible for her to study music in Europe, Florence E. Allen decided that she ought to be independent, and she had to overcome many obstacles while making her way.

Daughter of an instructor temporarily in Salt Lake City, she began the study of Greek and Latin when seven, attended public school and entered Salt Lake college at 13.

Seven years later she entered the Western Reserve University at Cleveland, Ohio, and announced that she was going to support herself after graduation, but her father insisted that she study music in Berlin. During her two years of study abroad she corresponded for musical papers, and was eager to get home.

Back in Cleveland she began to carry out her plan of supporting herself, and made preparations to be a lawyer. By teaching in a private school and acting as musical editor for a Cleveland newspaper she earned her way while acquiring a degree in the Western Reserve University. Women were not allowed to study in the law school there, and she attended the University of Chicago Law School a year, standing at the head of her class.

Needing funds to continue, she became investigator in New York for the League for Protection of Immigrants, and studied at the New York University Law School. But the double task was too difficult and she had to earn her way by giving lectures on music in schools and before clubs.

Graduated at 29, Miss Allen opened a small office in Cleveland and her first year's income as a lawyer was $374. She worked for the Legal Aid Society gratuitously to gain experience. She took an active part in suffrage organizations was chosen by employees of the Cleveland Railway Company to be arbitrator in a case, won the right of women to vote in Columbus, East Cleveland and Lakewood and was the first woman in Ohio to act as assistant county prosecutor.

The next year as an independent candidate she was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and in 1923 was chosen Judge of the Ohio Supreme Court, the first woman in the country to be elected to a Supreme bench.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Edmund Gosse, who has been honored with knighthood, is a well-known figure in English literary life. Nor is his reputation as a critic and writer confined to his own country, for France, Denmark, Norway and Sweden have all recognized his services to current literature by conferring orders upon him. Both prose and verse have claimed his attention, and, among his published prose works, his biographies of Gray and Congreve, and his history of Eighteenth Century literature are well known. His other works include a history of modern English literature and a work on Henrik Ibsen. Dr. Gosse was librarian to the House of Lords for ten years, and was Clark lecturer in English literature at Trinity College, Cambridge, for six years. It is, however, as editor of the literary classics, as a translator and as a critic that he achieved the distinction that he now enjoys.

Stories That Recall Others

The crossword puzzle is sometime a problem in the life of the child as well as in that of the older members of the family, was made clear by an incident that developed recently. Harry, age five, had listened with interest while his parents discussed the advisability of spending the evening with a family of relatives nearby, of which Harry is very fond. The conversation waned for a time, and Harry, with an understanding look on his face got into action. Observing that he seemed to be "up to something" the parents quietly watched him. With great caution he took the family dictionary from its place on the table, hid it in a corner of an adjoining room, then folded the morning paper containing the crossword puzzle, placed it furtively in the bottom of his little chair and sat on it while he waited for his parents to make their decision as to how to spend the evening.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE HAD ART EXHIBITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 9.—A very interesting art exhibition was held at the Connecticut college library in the faculty room on Thursday and Friday. On Thursday a tea was held for the members of the faculty and on Friday afternoon the exhibit was open to the students and the public. Many interesting things were on display, showing the general weaving done in the colonies during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The embroideries represented showed the condition of the colonies. The stitches oftimes stood for the period between barbarism and civilization. Samplers, knotted bedspreads, strips of Crewel work, Crewel curtains, quilts, hooked rugs, and the twisted woolens proved to be some of the most interesting things on display.

The college by the sea was again livened by the sound of many voices when the students returned from their three week recess last Wednesday to the prospect of college again with the much dreaded mid-year exams looming in the near future. Upon the posting of the schedule, the excitement was greatly increased and thoughts of week-end trips were indefinitely postponed "until after exams."

However, other things beside the mid-semesters occupy some of the time of the students. A special meeting of press board was called to discover the progress made by the new reporters in their interview with the editors of the papers assigned to them, while some new papers were given out.

A twelfth night program is also being planned.

Swans Not Songsters

Swans have been favorites of people since ancient times. Greeks called them the birds of Apollo. There are two fine species of swans in America—the Trumpeter and the Whistler. They build their nests along the shores of lakes and on islands, from the Dakotas north to the Arctic regions. People used to believe that a swan sang but once, and that was when it was dying. This is not true. The swans are great trumpeters, but they never sing.

Betrayed by Mercury

Guilty secrets are said to be bared unerringly by an apparatus invented by Dr. Albert Schneider, of the University of California. Through one tube runs a fine thread of mercury, fluctuations of which are said to betray the suspect.—London Answers.

JOHN TROLAND HEARS FROM YOUNG FRENCH HERO

During the World war, John Troland, of Norwich did his bit to help entertain and amuse the soldiers at the front, among other ways sending them letters, and volumes of his own poems. He became especially interested through the correspondence which arose, in one young soldier, Jean B. Claverie.

Dr. Claverie came back to America against the advice of physicians, after forty-four months' service. He was considered 65 per cent. disabled, from wounds received in 1918, which included a broken back, the loss of the sight of one eye, and a disfigured face. He is a native of France, but returned to Chicago to complete his studies as an osteopath and is practicing in that city. Now he writes Mr. Troland that he has decided to go back to his native land to practice.

Because Claverie did not wait he did not get his decoration of the Cross of the Legion of Honor until Sept. 6th, last. The Cross was bestowed through the French consul at Chicago, it is, of course, the highest military award of France. It made the fourth medal to decorate his breast, since Claverie had received three citations, including th ecroix de guerre with palms.

He was courtmartialed early in the war for protecting his Red Cross patients from German gunfire by carrying German prisoners with him on his trips to and from "No Man's Land." After transfer to the British forces, he re-transferred to a French aviation corps. He purposes to go back to practice his profession in his homeland, hoping to help other sufferers.

550 MAKES OF AUTOS REGISTERED IN STATE

Five hundred and fifty different makes of automobiles have been registered for use in Connecticut during the year 1925, according to an announcement from the state motor vehicle department. Of this number there are 304 different makes of pleasure automobiles and 246 of commercial motor vehicles. However, only sixty-five of the pleasure car makes are represented by more than 100 cars in the state and the products of only twenty-two manufacturers are here in excess of 1,000. Of only thirty makes are there more than 100 motor trucks registered for use in Connecticut.

The rush for motor vehicle registrations for the new year having subsided, the department is preparing for the issuance of operators' licenses. The department will receive applications for 1925 licenses, effective March 1, beginning next Thursday. Most present holders of licenses are expected to apply by mail and receive their licenses by the same medium, making a personal visit to the department or any of its branches unnecessary except in cases where changed circumstances make an examination necessary.

SPORTSMEN TAKE STEPS FOR BETTER CONDITIONS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Torrington, Jan. 9.—The fourth annual convention of the State Association of Fish and Game Clubs was held here today with the largest attendance in its history. Thirty-five delegates were present from clubs in all parts of the state. Among those present from Norwich and vicinity were W. W. Ives of Norwich, Mr. Drescher and Mr. Rood of Baltic, Robert B. Chappell and E. T. Thomas of New London, H. H. Robinson of Pawcatuck. A lunch was served at the Elks club by the Torrington Fish and Game club, under the direction of Dr. J. H. Conrun, of the local association, presided. Various matters of special interest to the sportsmen of the state were considered that will come before the general assembly this winter.

John H. Wadhams, chairman of the state board of finance, urged the necessity of more interest in the reforestation of the wild lands of the state. He also emphasized the fact that to increase the fish production of the state attention must be given to the pollution of the streams. These two questions are closely linked together. Ex-Senator Brooks said that while he did not agree with all of the plans of the fish and game interests, on the whole he felt they would gain what they were after, the work being done was commendable.

Reports were made by the secretary and treasurer, showing the financial condition to be excellent. W. W. Ives reported for the legislative committee on proposed legislation.

Letters of regret at not being able to attend were received from Governor John H. Trumbull and Frederick C. Walcott, chairman of the state fish and game board. It was voted that a telegram of appreciation of the work of the commission be sent to Chairman Walcott.

The following officers were elected: President, Robert B. Chappell, New London; vice president, Dr. J. J. Conran, Torrington; secretary-treasurer, A. Joseph Williamson, Bridgeport; legislative committee, W. W. Ives, Norwich; Carl Kulle, Suffield; W. W. House, Glastonbury; Oscar L. Dossin, Meriden; Edward Bailey, Danbury.

It was voted to hold the next meeting in Bridgeport.

It was ordered that a communication be sent to Senator Hiram Bingham requesting his support of the refuge bill now before congress.

Supt. John H. Titcomb of the state board addressed the convention reviewing the work that is being done and outlined what they desired to do in the future.

The taking of fish from the municipal protected reserves and placing them where they might be caught has proven beneficial in many ways. He also spoke of the cooperation that existed between the state board of fisheries and game and the state forest commission.

Speaking of the game sanctuaries in the state he referred to the fact that in many instances of private parties leasing the lands adjoining these refuges and capturing the game that leaves refuge before it can reach the general public. He also outlined a plan that the committee had for a trespass act, that would permit the sportsmen of the state to benefit by from expenditures made by the state. The work of the breeding station was described and he stated that the success there was far beyond all expectations.

The passage of the non-resident angling license had increased the number taken from about six hundred to over forty five hundred.

He advocated a more efficient game warden service whereby a number of wardens be employed all the time for detection of violators of law by snaring. The trouble from this source has been greatly restricted, but there is still much to be done. A vote of confidence in the state board of fisheries and game was passed and support in their work was pledged.

Amos E. Wheeler who has been a leader in the pollution bill which has been before the assembly for several years, spoke in the interest of that bill. A bill that was generally accepted by all was passed by the assembly of 1923, but failed to receive the signature of Gov. Templeton. A similar bill will be introduced and it is hoped that it will be placed in the statutes of the state. He urged the attendance of members of the clubs throughout the state, at hearings at the capitol, on two measures. Endorsement was given to the sportsman's News that is published in Bridgeport. The state commission has endorsed the publication and have made it the official organ of the board.

LEGISLATURE MEMBERSHIP SHOWS INTERESTING STATISTICS

The state legislature which began its session on Wednesday is made up of a senate of thirty-five members and a house of 262. Both houses are controlled by the republicans. In the senate there are only two democrats and in the house the democracy is represented by twenty-three members. There are only two political parties represented in either house and these will be the two leading parties. The membership of the general assembly includes seventeen women. One of these women is a member of the senate and the others is in the house.

The patriarch of the senate will be Senator Eugene P. Golden, of Meriden who, for the fourth successive session, will represent the Thirteenth district in the senate. His seventy-two years entitles him to the patriarchial dignity. Senator Golden, though a republican, does not train with the republican organization and the antagonism to his political aspirations, which his relations to the leaders of his party has engendered, has been shown, but without avail, in hostility to his nomination for the senate. A few sessions since Senator Golden, from his seat in the senate, bitterly complained of the treatment which he had received from the leaders of his party. There was a note of defiance in what he said and it has not yet been silenced. He still prefers, while continuing loyal to his party, to maintain his personal independence even at the risk of partisan ostracism.

The distinction of being the youngest member of the senate belongs to Joseph B. Griffin, of the Third district, who is in his twenty-ninth year. Senator-elect Griffin fills the important position of corporation clerk in the office of the secretary of state and his knowledge of state affairs, which his official connection with the state has enabled him to acquire, will more than make up for his inexperience in legislative matters.

The only woman member of the senate, Mrs. Alice P. Merritt, will represent the Second district.

All the members of the senate are native-born Americans except one who is a native of Canada. Twenty-eight senators are natives of Connecticut. The only bachelor in the senate is Daniel M. Cronin, of New London, who will represent the Eighteenth district and who, if rumors are reliable, will be the chairman of the committee on the judiciary and leader of the senate. There are two widowers and the other thirty-two senators are married. In addition to Senator-elect Griffin there is another senator-elect, Frederick C. Walcott of Norfolk, elected to represent the Thirty-first district, who is in the civil service of the state. Mr. Walcott is the chairman of the commission on fisheries and game. There will be four lawyers in the senate, ten farmers, four engaged in insurance and the others are in various other lines of business and occupation.

The patriarch of the house is Levi Reed, one of the representatives of the town of Union, and whose seventy-seven years entitle him to the honor. The next oldest member of the house is Dr. Joseph A. Coogan, of Windsor Locks, who is seventy-five years old and who will sit on the democratic side of the house. Dr. Coogan is one of five brothers each of whom has represented that town in the legislature. There is an uncertainty as to who will be the youngest member of the house. Benjamin Erickson, who represented the town of Burlington and Frederick O. Rackliffe, one of the representatives of New Britain, are each entered as being 26 years old. There is no younger member of the house.

Of the 262 members of the house, 241 are native born Americans and of these 193 were born in Connecticut. Two first saw the light of day in Ireland and the infant prattle of two was first heard under the smiling skies of Italy. One is a native of Norway. The land o' cakes, Bonnie Scotland, is the native country of a member and three were born in England. Three are Germans by birth. France is the native country of one and Canada of another. Of the 262 members of the house 225 are married. There are sixty-two members who are farmers by occupation, but there are a number of others who, while in other lines of business take a practical interest in agriculture. The membership of the house will include thirteen lawyers and about ten insurance men. One representative describes his occupation as "farm advisor." Miss Mary B. Weaver one of the representatives of the town of Naugatuck, is included in the list of farmers by her own designation of her business.

There is nothing in the preliminary roll to indicate that and of the members of the weaker sex have been reluctant to divulge their ages. The youngest of the seventeen women members of the Legislature is Miss Helen M. Bacon, a school ma'am of Granby.

All but three of the women members are married, and one is a widow. Miss Marjorie Cheney of Manchester adds a unique touch to the preliminary roll, by giving her occupation as that of a student and editor. She edits a publication of the Connecticut League of Women Voters and up to recently was following prescribed courses of study in various subjects. One of the unmarried women members gives her occupation as that of a farmer and one of the married women members is listed as a "c'n'y investigator."

BROADWAY BARN AND AUTOMOBILES BURNED

A two story frame garage in the rear of the residence of William F. Habekotte at 231 Broadway, together with two automobiles, and furniture and paintings stored in the garage, was practically destroyed by fire which was discovered shortly before 1.45 o'clock this (Saturday) morning. Someone passing in the vicinity of the garage discovered the fire and notified Mr. Habekotte. A telephone call was sent in to fire headquarters and Squad A, Central station, Engine Co. No. 3 from the fire station on the Joseph Perkins road and the West Side company were sent out on the call.

As soon as the firemen arrived box No. 38 was pulled in, calling out additional apparatus. The fire had a good start and the interior of the frame building was a mass of flames with dense clouds of smoke rolling up from the building. Three streams of water were used in extinguishing the blaze.

Low water pressure handicapped the fire department as the streams barely reached the top of the burning building. The flames broke out through the roof in a number of places and within a short time the roof was but a shell. There were two machines in the garage, a Franklin touring car and a Ford truck, but the fire had such a start and made such headway that it was impossible to save either.

There was also a quantity of furniture stored on the ground floor and on the second floor of the garage was a small studio owned by Mr. Habekotte. The recall was pulled in about 2.15 o'clock.

Mr. Habekotte said that he had driven the Ford truck into the garage about 11 o'clock Friday night. There was no fire kept in the garage he said. The cause of the fire is unknown.

While the fire was burning a short circuit on one of the machines because of water getting on the wires started the automobile horn blowing and it continued for some time to sound what seemed like a call for help.

YOUNG VIOLINIST THRILLS SLATER HALL AUDIENCE

Anticipation of hearing Georges Enesco, the young Roumanian violinist, brought an audience that filled Slater hall Friday evening when he appeared in the Slater hall musical course and thrilled his hearers with the breadth and power of his performance. Prolonged applause greeted him from the first number to which he obligingly responded by giving three encores during the evening.

The following was the programme:

Concerto—E Minor	Mendelssohn
Poeme	Chausson
Folies d'Espagne	Corelli
Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso	Saint-Saens
Zigeunerweisen	Sarasate

The Mendelssohn number that opened the programme was given with amazing and flawless technique that surmounted its difficulties with apparent ease, to which tribute was given in insistent applause that brought the violinist back to give as an encore the Air from G String (Bach) which was played with a sincerity and loveliness of tone that accentuated the quiet beauty of the flowing lines.

The Saint-Saens Rondo was given with equal charm and drew forth the extra number, Dvorak's Humoresque, played with a delicacy of feeling and the merest gossamer thread of tone conceivable. A masterly interpretation of the mood and measures of the Sarasate selection concluded the assigned programme, but the audience would not be satisfied until the artist had appeared again to dismiss them by playing the Bach Chaconne for violin alone.

"Rime" and "Rhyme"

"Rime" is now the generally preferred spelling of this word. The spelling "rhyme" does not seem to have occurred until about the middle of the Sixteenth century. It probably arose from the false analogy between "rime" and "rhythm." The tendency now is to return to the original and correct form of the word—"rime."—The Pathfinder.

MUNN, THE UNKNOWN, BREAKS UP THE WRESTLING "TRUST" HEADED BY LEWIS

New York, Jan. 9—(By the A. P.)—The sensational victory of Wayne (Big) Munn, former Nebraska football star, over Ed (Strangler) Lewis at Kansas City last night, in a dramatic struggle for the world's wrestling championship may mark the final breaking up of the so-called 'wrestling trust", which has ruled the mat game since its post-war revival.

Munn, a 260-pound giant, had been familiar to football fans as a former star on the University of Nebraska eleven, but outside of the Middle West his wrestling activities were unknown. His match with Lewis was unheralded, in fact, and the way in which this youthful novice toyed with the veteran strangler, handling him so roughly that he was sent to a hospital after the match, startled wrestling circles everywhere today.

The "trust," which Lewis has dominated for the past few years, also included Joe Stecher, Earl Caddock and Stanislaus Zbyszko, all of whom at various times have held the world's catch-as-catch-can crown. They have stood out head and shoulders over most rivals in the mat sport since the retirement of Frank Gotch as titleholder in 1911. Wladek Zbyszko also has often been included in this list, and now is recognized as world's champion at the Graeco-Roman style.

Caddock, "the man of a thousand holds," and Stecher both have retired from active competition but Lewis has kept up a busy schedule. Stanislaus Zbyszko, veteran Polish grappler who was a star in the days of Gotch and Hackenschmidt, the famous "Russian bear", recently returned to this country to attempt a come-back.

Stecher won the title in a tournament here in 1916 in which Caddock, Lewis and Wladek Zbyszko were the other entrants. He beat it in December, 1920, however to Lewis, who has retained ever since except for a ten months interval during which Stanislaus Zbyszko wrested the top. Zbyszko dethroned Lewis on May 6, 1921 but lost to the Strangler in a return title match on March 3, 1922. Since then most of Lewis' matches have been of the barnstorming type, where little known opponents have been comparatively easy victims for his famous headlock until Munn's amazing exhibition of strength proved the champion's undoing.

NEW CHAMP MAY DRAW SUSPENSION FROM COMMISSION

New York, Jan. 9—(By the A. P.)—Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, recently world's bantamweight champion, faces possible suspension by the New York state athletic commission as a result of his unsatisfactory match with Angie Pisano in Brooklyn Wednesday night.

The referee's report of the match received by the commission today, declared the match was halted in the third round because the men were not trying and officially declared it "no contest."

The purses of the two boxers have been held up and Martin's status remains in doubt until the boxing solons meet Tuesday to pass upon his case.

In the event he draws a suspension at the hands of the commission, Martin's journey to California, where it is reported he has signed to participate in at least two title matches, likely will be postponed owing to a working agreement understood to exist between the new California Boxing Commission and the New York state solons, whereby rulings made by either commission will be recognized by the other.

Dan Skilling, secretary of the commission, refused today to make public the referee's official report of the fight other than to say it was officially declared "no contest". Skilling said the report would be brought before the commission at its regular meeting on Tuesday.

While it is known the members of the boxing commission are invariably strongly opposed to the practice of stalling in matches and almost invariably hand out long suspensions to boxers involved in such proceedings, it was felt in boxing circles that Martin may escape with a reprimand or mild disciplining in view of his good record in the past.

REFUSES LOAN OF PLAYER TO BOLSTER UP TEAM

Boston, Jan. 9—President Charles F. Adams of the Boston professional hockey club, announced today that he had refused the offer of the Ottawa club to loan his club Lionel Hitchman, substitute defense player, for the remainder of the season.

"I do not wish to depreciate Ottawa's sportsmanship, but we would rather lose with our own men than win with borrowed players."

The Boston team is at the foot of the National Hockey League standings with eleven defeats and one victory.

BERNSTEIN OUTPOINTS O'BRIEN IN SLOW FIGHT

New York, Jan. 9.—Jack Bernstein, New York lightweight, outpointed Tommy O'Brien of Milwaukee in the feature ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

O'Brien, talked of as one of the men in line for a meeting with champion Benny Leonard, appeared awkward and his powerful swinging right landed on Bernstein's back continually. His opponent smiled throughout and pecked away with lefts and rights but was unable to reach a vulnerable spot, although O'Brien was weary at the end.

O'Brien weighed 134 1-2 and Bernstein 131 1-2.

Harold Smith, Chicago bantamweight, tonight outpointed Jackie Snyder of New York in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden, preliminary to the Bernstein-O'Brien contest. Smith weighed 119, Snyder 121.

Mickey Garcia, Utica, N. Y., bantamweight, better known as Bushy Graham, scored a technical knockout over Nat Pincus of Brooklyn. Pincus went down five times during the ten-rounds.

SPRINGFIELD HANDS BULKELEY BAD BEATING ON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Springfield, Jan. 9.—Springfield Commercial High had an easy time with Bulkeley High school of New London here tonight easily defeating the visitors in a rather one sided contest by the score of 57 to 23. The Whalers were never in it, being left behind from the opening whistle, when the offensive of the locals carried all before it, not even the four man defense of the Bulkeley team being able to stop the scoring.

Bulkeley will have another tough proposition in the Rhode Island State College freshmen, when they travel to South Kingston to oppose the yearling quintet on this (Saturday) afternoon. Having an advantage over the High school quintets which play at the home court of the state institution, the frosh will be far superior in all ways to the Orange and Black five which will make an honest attempt to bring home a victory. The game will be played at 7.30 and will be a preliminary to the game between the Rhode Island State College and Yale varsity.

Tonight's game saw a brilliant Tech team in action, which returned hopes of another championship to the enthusiasts present at the school auditorium. The management of the Phillies announced they had purchased O'Neil for $10,000 and eight players. The White Sox claim to have had an agreement with Beaumont calling for a choice of any of its players in 1924 and 1925.

O'Neil is a big right hander, and was sought by four major league clubs.

PLAINFIELD ARMY-NAVY TEAM BEATS SUB BASE IN ROUGH AND TUMBLE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

Plainfield, Jan. 9.—About 800 fans who jammed the Plainfield Community house here tonight saw one of the roughest of rough and tumble basketball games ever played in Plainfield, in which the fast ArmyNavy team swamped the tars from the Sub Base, 33 to 19. From the first sound of the whistle the gobs were out for blood but were bewildered by the fast attack of the home team. Normandin showed real ability by hooping seven field goals. He had the sailors helpless although two gobs played him the entire game, but were unable to hold him down. Dessinger, the cleanest and cleverest center that ever played with Plainfield, was also a star, and Murphey of the Sub Base had more than he could handle. Nolan played his own little game with Lewis, who displayed anything but clean basketball tactics. The crowd booed Lewis continually for his playing.

Belair, one eye closed, played his usual fast and hard game. Jimmy Murphy played a read hard game until put out of commission in the last few minutes of play in a mix up in one corner of the court. The first half ended 21 to 6 in favor of the locals. The second half was more of a football game than basketball, the Army-Navy men playing a waiting game by passing the ball and keeping clear of the gobs and their bull like attack. The final score was 33 to 19. The summary.

The first half ended 19 to 15, in favor of the Buddies. With two minutes to play the score a tie the Taftville boys rallied and looped two field goals. St. Germain was the star of the Seconds.

JOCKEYS MUST WEAR THEIR SAFETY HELMETS

New York, Jan. 9.—Steeplechase jockey riding under the jurisdiction of the National steeplechase and hunt association during the coming season will be compelled to wear the safety fibre helmets which were introduced in this country a little over a year ago from Australia, if a rule proposed at the annual meeting of the association Thursday is adopted.

These helmets, worn under the regular jockey's cap, are light but very tough, and where used here have proved successful in preventing serious injuries, it was claimed. The rule making their use compulsory was proposed as being for the best interests of the jockeys, its sponsors said.

CITY CHARTER REVISION AN URGENT ISSUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 9.—Fifteen spectators attended the meeting of the joint committee on city charter revision, held in charge of Acting Mayor George W. Hickey in the common council chamber Friday evening. Recommendations were asked for regarding changes in the charter. Valentine L. Murphy offered three recommendations to re-write and make more concise the city charter; to remedy the present difficulties pertaining to the succession to mayoralty of the president of the board; and to increase the board of aldermen by naming additional aldermen-at-large, thereby relieving the members of considerable committee work.

Captain Frank P. Fenton representing the public works committee of the chamber of commerce, stated that his committee felt that the present management as per charter of the city was generally satisfactory, with the excertion of a few details, principally those regarding the position and the compensation of an acting mayor, the present standing of the fire department and the establishment of a fire department pension fund. He agreed that the present charter was alarmingly voluminous and to such an extent that the ordinary laymen could not grasp its contents.

Dr. Louis I. Mason, representing the Willimantic Medical society, brought out a point which had been exciting much interest locally. He asked that some definite form of conducting the city health department be established. He pointed out various reasons why was not being operated on a so-al basis at present and contended that a salaried physician not having private practice was about the only solution of the problem. Town Clerk Fenton said that under the double government of town and city there were at least five health officer positions: the town health officer, the town physician, the city health officer, the town school physician, the examiner of children seeking employment certificates and tester of the sight of town school children. These various offices represented an outlay which would annually amount to considerably over half of a salary paid to one efficient physician who might devote his entire time to this type of work.

Alderman William E. Jackson asked for the elimination of the board of fire engineers and fire police. The money saved, he stated, could be used to appoint an additional permanent fireman to Engine No. 1. The extra fireman is in keeping with a project fostered by Alderman P. J. Larramee, chairman of the fire committee, to centralize the fire department with headquarters at the Bank street engine house and to purchase suitable equipment and apparatus for efficient work. Several of those present, including ex-Alderman Louis J. Flynn, voiced their approval of this recommendation.

According to Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley the centralizing and equipping of the fire department would have a tendency to raise the city into a higher class with the fire underwriters, in this manner lowering the insurance rates. The department is now high up in Class C.

The main issue of the evening was a resolution read by Attorney Kelley, which he plans to present before the legislature, providing for the payment by the city of the sum of $750 to Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, who succeeded to the mayoralty upon the death of Mayor Hormisdas Dion and will go the place until the expiration of the two-year term, next December. According to Section 18 of the city charter, the acting mayor remains president of the board, accordingly cannot receive compensation, as stated in a section of the charter relative to members of the board of aldermen. Another resolution drawn up by Attorney Kelley to be presented to the legislature calls for the striking out of the president Section 18 of the city charter, in order to remedy defects in that section which refers to the provision of the president of the board of alderman, in the event that he becomes acting mayor in the absence of the mayor. As in the past, according to this resolution, the board will elect each year a president of the board. On the temporary absence of the mayor the president becomes acting mayor, with full powers until he has returned; but should the mayor die, resign, or remove from the city the president remains acting mayor throughout the unexpired term. A vacancy is declared and the board appoints another president through regular methods. The clause also provides that when the president becomes the acting mayor for the remainder of the term he will receive a like salary as that granted the mayor. This salary at present is $600 a year.

The recommendation proposed some time ago to annex part of the town's properties along Windham road to the city by the extension of the city limits in that section, was definitely rejected, when eight property owners who would be affected by the change appeared, with C. H. Kegler as the spokesman, and voted absolutely against the proposition. They were reinforced with a petition signed by a score of others and gave as the reason the lack of desire to have to pay a city tax.

Adjournment was taken at 9.30 o'clock.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Danny Fox's Visit

"Gee willikens," exclaimed the Big Brown Bear, looking out of the little window in his cosy cave house, "what a storm. Why, if it keeps on the snow will be above the treetops. Mighty, glad I'm so comfortable and warm. Hope the Lollypop Tree won't catch cold. Guess not; the snow will keep it warm till spring comes," and with a sigh, the nice old bear curled up on his bed of dry leaves and fell asleep. That's what bears do, Little Reader, during the winter. They go to sleep to dream of honey and molasses, peppermint sticks and lollypops, ice cream cones and lollypops. Dear me, maybe you don't know what lollypops are like. Well, I'll tell you. They are little lollypop buds, like apple blossoms, sweet and pink, that fall off the Lollypop Tree in the springtime.

All of a sudden the telephone bell began to ring.

"Tinkle tinkle, tinkle, tink,
You can't sleep another wink.
Hold me to your furry ear,
I know something you must hear."

"What is it?" asked the Big Brown Bear ambling over to the little table on which stood the telephone.

"I'm so sleepy I can't sneeze,
Who is calling, if you please?"

My, he was a polite old bear and so dreamy lulla'by-sleepy, too!

"Mother has lost her two red roses," cried a sad little voice. "They faded right out of her cheeks."

"How did that happen?" asked the kind old bear, rubbing his eyes with his furry right paw.

"Danny Fox found the door unlocked and came right in when Mother was in the kitchen," replied the sad little voice of the bunny boy. Now you know Little Reader, who was calling on the 'phone. Little Jack Rabbit, of course.

"Has he gone?" asked the Big Brown Bear, with a growl, loud enough to have frightened away that old fox had he still been calling at the little white house in the dear Old Bramble Patch, but, thank goodness, he had already left, as you will remember if you read the story before this.

"Oh, he's gone," answered the little rabbit. So has the angel cake and three cookies. Dear, Oh Dear. Mother says she's too frightened to bake another until tomorrow."

"Don't wonder," answered the Big Brown Bear. "I wish he had called on me. I would have stuffed a snowbank down his back and rolled him down the hillside. I'd have stuffed two snowbanks down his back come to think it over. Yes, I would."

"Have you any lollypops?" asked the little rabbit all of a sudden. "I gave my last one to Tiny Miss Cricket and she and the Three Little Grasshoppers in the woodbox are having a feast."

"Come on up," laughed the Big Brown Bear now wide awake.

"There's a barrel full out in the shed,
Blue and yellow purple and red,
Come up to see me quickety quick,
Perhaps I can find a Peppermint Stick.

And in the next story.

Finns Trained to Work

Finns are good athletes by force of circumstances. They get their training from the day they are born. When the child is old enough to go to school gymnastics is a part of his education and when he or she has graduated from the school there is strenuous work ahead, work for existence. Women must work as well as men. They are not afraid or ashamed to do hard work, attend the cattle, milk the cows and work in the fields.—Buffalo Express.

The Duty of Forgetting

A new year dawns serene and fine,
And o'er its open door
I read inscribed a single line,
"Forget what went before."

Forget the dreary hours of pain
Through illness suffered long,
Think of today's good health and gain,
And fill the hours with song.

Forget each loss, let it not sway
Thy noble, earnest soul;
And set thy vision far away
Where shows the shining goal.

Forget it all, and welcome give
To hope and purpose new,
Through coming days more rich ive
In fealty to the true.

The New Year beckons, heed the call
With undismayed content;
Disguised, an angel summons all
On heavenly mission sent.
—Samuel Winchester Adriance in the Boston Transcript.

A Day of Mist

This is the day the Lord hath made
Out of [illegible]
This is the day he hides his face—
Heaven [illegible] and track.
Shall it not quicken thee to seek,
Murmurous spirit, slow and weak?
Shall it not spur the empty hand
Beauty to bring at thy command?

Stand to thy task: from vale to hill
Fling the enchantment of thy will.
Silken and pink the thistle-hedge
Plant by the old blue pasture ledge:
Crimson and bronze the seeded dock
Paint where the motley sparrows flock;
Build the grey walls that fondly keep
Orchard and hive and nibbling sheep
And a moss-grit tub with dripping brink
Where a goldfinch zigzags down to drink.

Never can day of shade or mist
Charm of the willing heart resist.
—Francis B. Damon in Nautilus.

KALEIDOSCOPE

A combination automobile and airship has been invented.

In a firemen's parade held at Philadelphia, Pa., William H. Hinkle of Mt. Holly, won the prize for being the oldest uniformed fireman, member of an organized company. Hinkle is ninety-five years old and has been a member of the Good Intent Company Mt. Holly, for eighty years. He is reputed to be the oldest fireman in America.

Some exceptional new types of dahlias produced in 1924 in Great Britain and Ireland were on exhibition at the recent national dahlia show in London. A number of these were vivid golden yellows, a color which has been regarded as rather difficult to produce in dahlias whose basic colors are white and red. The most notable, it is reported, was the Scarlet Queen, a vivid scarlet with a ring of yellow petals in the center.

Sir Frank Dyson, astronomer royal, while testing the big telescope at Greenwich observatory turned it on London. He observed a menacing crack at the base of a church steeple. He measured the crack with the instruments used to determine lunar distances and was difficult to find where the church was because the magnification was so great only the steeple showed in the telescope's field. But with the aid of a large scale map and instruments Dyson placed the church.

A novel exhibit in predatory animal control was given at the last Missouri state fair at Sedelia. A space in the Boys' and Girls' club building was used. On one side were hung wolf skins, steel traps and charts. Half of the floor of the booth was covered with earth to represent an old trail such as would be used by wolves. Grasses and other vegetation were placed about to imitate real conditions where it would be suitable to set traps. The remaining half of the floor space was occupied by a live wolf and three live coyotes. Trapping demonstrations given by representatives of the federal biological survey were attended by about 10,000 persons.

BOTHERED WITH BREAKING OUT

"I was bothered with a breaking out of pimples all over my body. The pimples itched badly causing me to scratch, and the scratching caused eruptions. I could not sleep at night on account of the irritation. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so I purchased more and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) James B. Which Shall It Be?

"Which shall it be? Which shall it be?"
I looked at John, John looked at me.
(Dear patient John, who loves me yet
As well as though my looks were jet.)
And when I found that I must speak,
My voice seemed strangely low and weak;
"Tell me again what Robert said,"
And then I listening bent my head.
"This is his letter:
"'I will give
A house and land while you shall live,
If, in returnd from out your seven,
One child to me for ave is given.'"

I looked at John's old garments worn,
I thought of all that John had borne
Of poverty and work and care.
Which I, though willing, could not share.
Of seven little children's need.
Of seven hungry mouths to feed.
And then of this.
"Come, John," said I,
"We'll choose among them as they lie
Asleep;" so walking hand in hand,
Dear John and I surveyed our band.

First to the cradle lightly stepped,
Where Lillian, the baby slept;
Her damp curls lay like gold alight,
A glory 'gainst the pillow white.

Softly her father stooped to lay
His rough hand down in loving way
When dream or whisper made her stir,
And huskily he said, "Not her."
We stooped beside the trundle bed,
And one long ray of lamplight shed
Athwart the bowish faces there,
In sleep so pitiful and fair.
I saw on Jamie's tough red cheek
A tear undried; ere John could speak,
"He's but a baby, too," said I,
And kissed him as we hurried by.
Pale, patient Robbie's angel face
Still in his sleep bore suffering's trace;
"No, for a thousand crowns not him."
He whispered while our eyes were dim.

Poor Dick, sad Dick! our wayward son,
Turbulent, reckless, idle one—
Could he be spared? He who gave
Bids us befriend him to the grave;
Only a mother heart can be Patient enough for such as he;
"And so," said John, "I would not dare
To send him from her bedside prayer."
Then stole we softly up above
And knelt by Mary, child of love;
"Perhaps for her 'twould better be,"
I said to John. Quite silently
He lifted up a curl that lay,
And shook his head, "Nay, love not thee."

The while my heart beat audibly.
Only one more, our oldest lad,
Trusty and truthful, good and glad—
So like his father: "No, John, no;
I cannot, will not let him go."

And so we wrote in courteous way.
We could not give one child away;
And afterward toil lighter seemed,
Thinking of that of which we dreamed;
Happy in truth, that not one face
We missed from its accustomed place;
Thankful to work for all the seven,
Trusting them to One in heaven.

The Country Road

'Twas just the other day my lad
While driving down the road;
I noticed here and there a kind,
A butterfly and toad,
And then I changed to look ahead,
For quite rough was the ride,
And oh, how smooth it seemed to be
Upon the other side.

I turned the wheel and went across
To see how it would be
And don't you know it jerked me so
I said, "how rough, dear me,"
The grass was dead, the weeds were high,
The ditch was deep and wide,
But green the grass and smooth the road,
Upon the other side.

Sometimes I think our lives must be
Quite like the country road;
Some are like the birds and bees
And others like the toad.
We see when looking just beyond
How smooth some people slide,
But when we cross, we always say
"How smooth the other side."

Touch O' Gold

We get the sweetest comfort
When we move the oldest shoe.
We love the old friends, better,
Than we'll ever love the new.

The old songs are more appealing
To the wearied heart, and so
We find the sweetest music
In the tunes of long ago.
For there's a kind of mellow sweetness
In a good thing growing old
Each year that rolls around it
Leaves an added touch O'Gold.

HINTS ON VARIOUS THINGS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: Such nice helpful things one reads and learns from the Social Corner page. As I am always eager to find out any new hints on saving time and labor, or new recipes, each time I write I'll try and send a recipe or a few helpful hints.

Uncle Sam's Daughter: Your recipes are fine—those that I have tried.

Saturday Eve: The story of that beautiful carol, was very interesting. Isn't it strange how we use things that originated years and sometimes centuries ago, with never a thought of their origin or author.

Triple E: I think those laundry hints are fine and especially about the spring clothes pins. I am glad to know about them and use them a great deal.

Here are a few hints on various things.

To prevent sleeplessness after drinking coffee at night, eat a pickle or lemon to counteract the effect.

If onions are sliced and kept in a sick room they will absorb all the atmospheric poison. They should be changed every hour.

For a dry, hacking cough, two or three times a day take a little pinch of salt, let it dissolve slowly on the tongue and swallow.

To remove ink stains, soak in sour milk. If a dark stain remains, rinse in a weak solution of chloride of lime. Blood stains soak in cold salt water; then wash in warm water with plenty of soap, afterwards boil.

Grass stains, saturate the spot thoroughly with kerosene, then put them in the wash tub.

Iodine stains, wash with alcohol, then rinse in soapy water.

Hot tea and coffee stains, soak the stained fabric in cold water, wring out and pour a few drops of glycerine on each spot. Let it stand several hours, then wash with cold water and soap.

Scorch stains, wet the scorched place, rub with soap and bleach in the sun.

And now may God bless the sick and afflicted, hasten help to the needy, and send His blessing on all Corner members and let the corner editor live to a good old age.

GOOD RECIPES

Dear Corner Sisters: I hope you can use some of these recipes:

Devil's Food Cake— (without eggs) 2 cups brown sugar, 1-2 cup of cocoa with enough hot water to make a paste, 1 tablespoon of lard, 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 cup sour milk, 1 scant teaspoon soda in the milk, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon of baking powder in the flour. Bake in layers and ice with white frosting.

Apple Salad—Peel sixht apples, take out cores (be sure cores are all out) rub over with orange juice. Make a syrup, 1 cup of sugar, 1 cup water, juice in orange. Boiling before put on to apples. Turn apples from time to time, remove and set aside to cool. Stick pecan nuts almonds or English walnuts in the sides of the apples. Fill core with nice apple, crystalized cherries and marshmallows. Serve as a salad with boiled dressing.

Mock Oyster Stew: Take 1 can of corn and 1 cup of cut up celery, or 3 tablespoons of dried celery. Put corn and celery through food chopper and then put on to boil in 3 cups of water. Boil ten minutes add 3 cups of milk, salt and pepper to taste and a small piece of butter. Eat with oyster or milk crackers or hard bread. Set crackers in oven and heat.

Sometime I fix croutons to eat with mock oyster stew. Cut stale bread into slices 1-2 inch in thickness. Remove crusts and butter lightly. Cut into strips an inch wide and then cut into cubes. Put into a pan and bake moderately till a light brown.

L. G.—Charleston, S. C.: Please make us a friendly visit by mail and talk over the plant problem. Your knowledge concerning flowers would be more than welcome—to the readers of the Corner. If the editor could see your immense garden with its Connecticut flower and your roses and I don't know how many hundred of those narcissus you have, he would say come and join us.

You know an editor is very much like a housekeeper even though he sits in his busy office instead of bustling about a big sunny kitchen. And he takes just as warm an interest in the taste of his family or readers as the housemother does in those of Aunt Emily or May or John.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER

To Editor and Every Member of the Social Corner: I send New Year's greetings. It has been so long since the roll was called that I feel most ashamed to answer at all, but better late than never. As I look over the Corner page I see so few of the old writers that I hardly feel at home. Where are you?

Auntie No. 1: I know you although it has been years since I saw you and was glad to see your letter in last week's paper. You saw you had been informed that I had passed on to the great beyond.

Well it surely was a mistake. While I had a very narrow escape a few years ago the dear Lord saw fit for some reason to spare me for a while longer. So here I am and at present very much alive, for which I praise Him. Will write you later.

Grace: Have thought much of you of late and wish I could run in and see you. Much I would like to say.

Ellen Jane: It has been a long time since I saw you. Have been very busy of late and visiting seems to be quite out of the question.

I. J. B.: It was my privilege to spend a few hours on Christmas day with some who were very near to you and the time went only too quickly. All seemed to have a fine time. There came the parting again. Wish you could have seen Fashion eat turkey. She came all rigged out in her new blanket which Santa had brought her and looked real cute.

Arrawana: We missed you on Christmas day. Wish you could have been with us, but know it is hard to be in two places at once. Would like to have stopped across country and seen you on the way home but time was too short. Hope to see you later. Will want to come again, so must not wear my welcome out this time.

As ever,

HOPEFUL.

NEW YEAR'S REMEMBRANCES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank all sending me cards for the New Year, Eeregta, True Blue, Red Clover and Cally Lily.

Also the Social Corner members sending me the pretty calendar.

Effie M: Why do you never come down to one of our meetings? We have pleasant times, and you know so many of us. Be sure and come the first Wednesday in March as it is our anniversary.

Marigold: Hope your sick ones are on the gain. E is getting along slowly.

Guess when warm weather comes we shall all feel better.

Scottie: Can you keep warm?

With best wishes for the Corner for the comming year.

NECIA. (May 1.)

GREATLY ENJOYED PUTNAM MEETING

Dear Cornerites: Happy New Year Everybody.

Social Corner Member: Accept thanks for the darling calendar. I adore rag rugs, and there is one in the picture. It was lovely of you to give it to me.

I attended the Putnam meeting Dec. 31 and had a most enjoyable time. I received so hearty a welcome it repaid me for going and then the delicious dinner, consisting of baked beans, meat loaf, escalloped potatoes all kinds of cakes and pies and relishes, cheese and coffee. Then such a fine program! I received a lovely basket of candy, marked "Beauty prize." Why it was awarded me is still a mystery.

We had music and reading and games and a general good time.

I wish I could express myself better, so you could have an idea of the gathering. I tried to get some others to go with me, but all had perfectly good reasons for not going.

So I boarded the train at Willimantic all by my lonesome. A very pleasant lady made room for me to sit with her and we had a nice little talk. At Pomfret, Last Rose of Summer headed the train. So I knew I should find the place of meeting. Primrose and another sister whose name I did not get met us at the hall and seen others came until there were about 40. Such a lot of pleasant people, made me feel right at home.

Viola had charge of the program with all the others helping.

A very sweet young girl shared the seat with me coming home so all in all I must say it was a perfect day.

Red Rose: I want to thank you for that lovely handkerchief with its lovely yellow border. It was a great deal of work for you and I know it was freighted with love and I appreciate it. I carried it to the Putnam meeting. You are always making some one happy.

Also will take this opportunity to thank all who remembered me with lovely cards and booklets. Received about 60 so will not attempt to name them. Surely with all those good wishes one must strive to do well in the coming year.

Aunt Lucy: The sentiment personally written was beautiful and am going to try and measure up to it. I am not sure I have you placed properly.

Crimson Rambler: Get a good radio and you will never regret it. I heard John McCormack the other evening and other celebrated artists in both vocal and instrumental numbers. We can all enjoy the music as our loud speaker is so clear and loud we can hear it in the dining room while at dinner. One night I heard The Parish Priest—the complete play.

The music is wonderful. And you can change as often as you wish by simply turning the dials.

Time to retire. Good night.

OLGA.

SOME EVERYDAY HELPS

Dear Editor and Members: First, I want to thank someone for the very pretty calendar the post man brought me tonight, from a Social Corner Member. I wish I might know the real name of that member. I was unable to attend the meeting in Putnam, Dec. 31st but they told me that they had a good time. Maybe next time I can go. I have planned to write for weeks, but the time goes so fast. Here are a few hints I want to pass along, maybe they will help someone as they have me.

Did you ever steam cold dressing when you did not have any gravy to warm it in? I had some I did not want to throw away, so steamed it and it was soft and not soggy. We like it very much. I slice it before steaming. The other night I had some clothes frozen to the line, and could not seem to get them off. I thought of a flat I kept on the back of the stove, and came in and got that. It was good and warm, (not hot, or it would have burned me with steam) and I held it on the hard places until it softened them enough so I could take the clothes off. It saved my fingers and the clothes too.

I was turning the hem on a petticoat one day, and a friend who saw me was interested because I turned the hem over on the right side. She said, "Where did you get that idea, from the Social Corner?" I told her no, but maybe it would be a good thing to send to the Corner. I do it that way, so I won't catch my rubber heels in the hem.

Saturday Eve: I was much interested in your account of the origin of Silent Night. I have always been fond of it, and I thank you for making it more interesting.

Roseland: I was surprised and pleased when they told me you are a member. We will have to wear our "yellow bow" when we go up street on the car, so we will know each other.

I wish the editor and all members a whole happy year.

ROBERTA.

WHERE NEIGHBOR EVEREADY HAS BEEN

My dear Social Corner Folks: By card, phone and person has come the call where is Neighbor Eveready? So once again, I'll repeat present, and try to live up to the name.

Five weeks in a pleasant school, with dear children was a pleasure, and we closed with Christmas tree and entertainment.

Christmas day found me going to Worcester, as my husband was very ill there, and after a week there returned home here. Am glad to say the good man is gaining steadily.

I didn't have time to have the grip, but it grabbed me with out asking about it. Father is fine, to one who inquired recently. Think above will answer your inquiries as to my whereabouts.

To all the sisters who sent me cards at Christmas, also on my birthday, Jan. 2, please accept my sincere thanks.

Last Rose of Summer: You will know now why a little bird saw me in Putnam depot. Birdie has changed so much, I never recognize them at first sight. As to Dec. 31st, too tired. No train service only in p. m. which you know about. Visit us again.

Club No. 4: Congratulations on your success, am real glad I spoke my piece a year ago, even though Last Rose of Summer did rather where I'd hold it. Ha! Ha! Know she's doing her bit. Ask her about our visit?

Pedestrian: I am a nature lover too. Have bayberries and red berries also bitter sweet for winter bouquets. Took a walk in the woods today. Saw many interesting animal tracks. A Social Corner Member: Again your New Year's greeting comes to be with your calendar, and I see you've discovered my love of music and art. Thank you for remembering me at this time.

Hope to be present at our next meeting at Franklin hall, as these next meetings recall your celebrations for me.

The double boiler recalls often your delightful wedding reception.

Long distance call, so I'll ring off, by sending you all good New Year Wishes.

Your interested sister

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I enjoy reading the Social Corner letters every week and know several of the members so thought I would like to join. I'll take as my pen name,

SAVING AND DOING

Dear Social Corner Pals: We all (including the ed.) have said, A Happy New Year. Now let's have it so.

ESMARALDA.

GIVING A "LOOK" TO GARMENTS

Dear Sisters of the Corner I am just sending a few hints which I hope will help. "I know how to sew nicely, and I understand using patterns and fitting, but some how my finished garments never have that look that the dressmaker seems able to give them," a friend of mine complained the other day. "What is the matter with them?"

A glance at the dress told the whole story. The stitching was fine and even, the fit was perfect, there were a few tucks that should have been pressed before putting together, but that was not the main dificulty. The placket of the skirt, loosely held together by a single hook and eye was obviously trying to display its location, the shoulder was closed by big homely end of the shoulder to the other closing reinforced by baby pins put in askew. There were homemade looking button holes accompanying large inappropriate button holes down the side of the dress.

"It seems to me," I ventured, "that by the time you were ready to finish the dress you are wearing, you were so tired of it that you just put on the fastening haphazard. Is that it? The fastenings make all the difference in the world, as you can easily see on well made garments."

The result of our conversation was a visit to several notion counters in the local store to explore the possibilities in hooks and eyes and other dress fastenings. A casual inspection revealed 12 distinct sorts of hooks and eyes, six kinds of snaps or clasps, and any number of little devices, which the professional sewer employes regularly, and which contribute to the "look" my friend was so anxious to achieve.

Three styles of absolutely flat hooks with out humps are especially suitable for garments that must be laundered. The feature of one is extreme simplicity of shape; it was not literally a hook looks more like a fish-hook than a dress fastening and intended to be sewed on flat on its side, with just sufficient turned up to catch in the eye. The second is a flat hook resembling the letter E, the middle prong fitting compacly under a new sort of stright eye. The third kind to be used with edges barely meeting. They have hooks and eyes on twilled tape, which come by the yard. They are put on with metal eyelets and seldom come off. They save many valuable minutes in the home sewer's day.

Spring snaps such as come on gloves come in many makes—and in colors to harmonize with materials.

For the actual sewing, a stout single thread is best, and if you look at eyes or hooks put on by a good seamstress you will see the part that sews on is spread out a little—it seems to give the hook and eye more of a chance to hold. They are evenly buttonholed over each loop of the eye and the two holes of the hooks which has a few bar-stitches under its bill securly fastened off underneath.

Hooks on the front of a coat should have all but the bill hidden underneath the lining—the bill coming just at the edge or through an eyelet a little inside. The stitches should never show on the outside of the coat nor on the lining. In sewing on clasp fasteners, one should be careful to go under the metal in sewing from one to the other of the four holes.

Any long stitch left on the top will interfere with the fastening and sooner or later the thread will break causing the fastenine to fall off. You can buy strips of buttonholes in any size, strong and serviceable for the boy's knickers.

You can buy snapping bachelor's buttons that go on without sewing at all—just the thing for boy's garment plackets.

COVERING JELL WITH PARAFFIN

Dear Social Corner Friends: Christmas has come and gone and now we stand on the threshold of another year. We are all of use making new resolutions and one of them is to keep the Social Corner filled with kindly letters to one another. I do not do my duty in that respect as I have so little to write about that would be at all interesting to others. Quite a while ago I saw how one of the writers covered her jell by melting paraffin then pouring on top after putting into tumblers. Here is a way which is very easy. Shave the paraffin in bottom of glasses, then pour the hot jell over it. On melting it will rise to the top and so form a tight cover. I never have had any spoil doing it this way.

Uncle Sam's Daughter: Tried your fruit cocktail Christmas day and think it fine. We all said it tasted like more.

Daisy Dean: If you ever hear of the friend we were speaking of at the last social please let me know?

Many thanks to the Social Corner member who sent me the lovely calendar.

Happy New Year to all.

PUTNAM SISTERS ENTERTAINED ROYALLY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I want to tell you what a splendid time we had at Putnam. We had a jolly time and a fine lunch. I am sure we all thank the Putnam sisters for the good time they gave us. I see each week that No. 4 is increasing its membership. Wish we all could get together once so as to see who is who.

Olga: Hope you arrived home safely with the beauty prize. Glad you could come.

Cenzi: Thanks for inviting me to go with you.

Aurelia: If you are the one I am thinking of you had some roses from our garden last summer, and you know something about fishing in E. K. Let me know if I am right?

Penny Alder: I tried your recipe for cocoanut cookies. They were O. K.

Fudge Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-2 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 cup butter, 1-4 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons cocoa, pinch salt, 1 1-2 cups flour. If made like the directions it will be good. Wish to thank those who sent me Christmas cards, and wish the editor and members a happy new year.

LILAC LADY.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Corner Members: Here I come for a little chat as I have not written since last year. I hope you all had as nice a Christmas as I did and I wish to thank all those who so kindly remembered me with cards, etc. Had 35 letters, cards and booklets outside the Corner and I will thank all in the Corner: Mr. and Mrs. Balsam Fir, U. C. E., True Blue, Foxglove, Wurdy Bell, Maple Leaf, Calla Lily, Queen Elizabeth, Theoda, Marigold, Saville, Savilla's Daughter, Kitty Lou, Practical Polly, Aunty No. 1, J. E. T., Joan, Ormandine, Wandering Jew, The Unknown, Merry Widow, Rural Delivery, Gadabout, Lorna, Interested Reader, Primrose, Anastasia, Whirlwind and Sarepta. Really I was much surprised each day with my mail, I had a regular shower and presents galore. I was very much pleased to receive so many from many of the first members—some I had not seen or heard from for a long time. Glad they were all well and very much alive. It is nice to be remembered by so many.

Gadabout and Queen Elizabeth: You both gave me surprises very glad to hear from you.

Aunt E: Your letter and card also at hand. Thank you. I hope by now your head is feeling much better. Was sorry to hear you had met with an accident.

Lorna: You gave me a big surprise last Saturday. Have you seen Polly White since?

U. C. E.: I had a good laugh when I received your card and I am told you can buy three tokens now for a quarter. Don't you want to invest a quarter? I am doing as you requested I am savin' my tokens.

Neesa: If I had had your full name and address I should have sent you a card during the holidays.

Maple Leaf: What a good time we had at your house! I hope your neighbor Mrs. R. E. P. had as good a time as I did. We certainly had a good laugh over W. L. said he really enjoyed being there. I hope to see you again soon. Hope all the Corner members have a bright New Years is the wish of CRIMSON RAMBLER.

MUSIC

Dear Social Corner Members: Who is so bold as to assert that there ever was a time when there was no music? Nature's music has always cheered the heart of man softening the youth with thoughts of love, taught the maidens how to dance, and helped the mother to croon over her babes. The ancient myths of Orpheus and Arion, by ascribing supernatural power to music, merely embody the fact as to how greatly the art was prized from the remotest ages.

We do know how good it is to lie under heaven's blue vault among the trees on a hot summer's day and listen drowsily to nature's concert, the murmuring stream and rustling leaves, the song of the birds and the hum of the myriad of insects. To those sweet sounds must be added those which were first noticed and imitated by the savages—the mighty rolling thunder, the roaming of the wind—the splashing of the rain, the bellowing of terrified wild beasts. Primitive man had not far to seek for the materials he needed for making his musical instruments. Hollow trunks of trees, with the skin of some reptile or the hide of some animal stretched over the opening, made a drum; a bone—human bone most often, for there was sort of added delight in turning the enemy's bones to account—with the marrow picked out, and a hole bored for the mouth piece, made a good whistle or even a flute; gourds hollowed out, and with a few pebbles dropped in, served as the rattle that jarred the sound of rain, horns of animals, gut, horse hair, reeds, etc, were all lying at hand ready for use. The result of the labors of the early musical instrument makers are exceedingly curious and often grotesque, and are characterized by a wealth of ornament.

It is a curious fact that among the savages whose manners and customs are little better than beasts of prey, who can neither read nor write, there are always some few rude musical instruments—the noiser the better—which they use to beat time with in their dances.

Some of the mysterious tribes of Central Africa, the Nyam—Nyams for instance an inveterate race of cannibals, whose very name was given to them on account of their continual gnawing at human limbs have, it appears an instinctive love of music which thrills their very souls. They can go on playing for a number of hours without even stopping to eat or drink. To us the music would not seem worthy of the name, nor should we distinguish any melody in it, more particularly if we happened to be lying bound hand and foot, ready for their next meal, with a beautiful pattern on our naked body, made with a point of a knife, marking out each man's portion chosen beforehand in order of precedence.

The Nyam—Nyams however are exceptionally fond of sweet music and their favorite instrument is a sort of harp. It is astonishing what a variety of drums there are among the savage tribes—and the use they put them to is blood curdling. The most cruel race I am told is the Ashantis. Human sacrifices take place at fixed times, and the rites are accompanied by hideous music.

"Proud as a peacock," we say. This particular bird must have been the proudest of all his tribe, for the sparrows and robins can no longer twit him with being a bird and not being able to sing. This peacock's body forms the sound box for the guitar, and was endowed by his Burmese master with a voice of surpassing loveliness, which has whispered love ditties to many dusky beauties.

RECIPES BY PAULA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I hope you will like this recipe:

Checkerboard Cake: 5 eggs, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup water, 1 cup butter, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 4 cups flour, 4 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 small cake chocolate, 10 cent size. Beat butter and sugar very light and creamy, add well beaten yolks of eggs. Add to half of the batter the chocolate which has been standing over hot water, put in layer cake pans alternating a strip of chocolate and strip of white. Bake in moderate oven. This makes 4 layers.

For the Filling: One large cake chocolate; 4 cups sugar, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 2 eggs whites, 1-2 cup milk. Put sugar, chocolate and water in sauce pan over fire, stir well until it starts to boil then let boil till soft ball will form in water. Pour over well beaten whites of eggs. Beat till right consistency to spread.

Rosy Posy: Did you get package I sent you? Let me know how you like it.

PAULA.

Silent Partner: Did you get card?

Boine: Your birthday anniversary is on January 13 which is also my 43rd wedding anniversary.

LITTLE THINGS MAY MEAN MUCH

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I've received a very pretty calendar with blue birds for happiness they say, and it reminds me of having a bird house at home. After being put up on a tall post where it could be seen plainly from our kitchen window we soon saw a pair of blue birds looking it over and we imagined they were wondering if it was to let, and talking the subject over as to size and arrangement of rooms. They must have been favorably impressed as they came in a day or two and began gathering necessary material for a nest, seemed so happy with their work and in due time their family was increased by two baby birds. They seemed like devoted parents—then the mother bird was gone, caught by something we concluded. The male bird did not forsake his children but with courage just worked hard and cared for them until able to care for themselves. Then he came home one day with a broken leg, caused by one it bravely though, kept on a small area and then to our surprise he came home with another mate. The house continued to be crowded with blue birds until next and house was beyond repair and our home occupied by others.

Well! Just accept my thanks for the useful as well as ornamental calendar.

Now sisters if your garage door is open and you decide it better be shut, especially if some other person's car is in there, and if you find it hard to slide—let it alone. Do not be determined to close it at all hazards—for by so doing you may cause an innocent looking little bunch to come on your wrist the one you use in writing, that will be at times annoying and painful—my experience many months ago. Profit by experience of others and let the door remain open until fixed to yield readily. A little work and small sum of money would have saved the inconvenience I shall ever have with me.

I know of a man who was going to drive from Ellington to Rockville and invited his wife and a friend of hers to ride with them. They accepted and occupied the back seat but had not gone far when out went seat and ladies. The friend was uninjured but his wife's spine was injured by the fall and had to be put in plaster cast. Then this had to be sawed off and a new one put on once in so often, and th man said fifty cents spent for a hook would have saved it all. We've heard "For the want of a nail the shoe was lost, for the want of a shoe the horse was lost." Little things amount to much sometimes.

E. B.: When in Rochester last summer I went to Marshall street to see where Susan B. Anthony once lived. Went into the cemetery to the Anthony burial lot with square monument. In center on each side was one word as follows: Equality, Liberty, Humanity, Justice. Any one would know by this their mission in life. There were seven children in the family. Susan was the second child. Mary the last one left at Susan's death—lived not quite one year after Susan passed away. Went to Highland park to see the lilacs in bloom, said to be thirty five kinds—and never saw a more beautiful sight in my life. As we walked among them I noticed a small one with tag on it, reading: Susan B. Anthony, and I was so pleased to see her memory was being kept green. Met me in Hartford at Isabella Beecher Hooker's. She spoke in Unity hall or church before we had equal rights and in her talk said, "Some women don't consider it lady like to go to the polls and deposit a ballot but I consider it just as much of a lady to do that as to wear a dress too short at the top and too long at the bottom." What would she say now?

Now sisters,

"The year brings just one Christmas
And just one New Year too.
But every day brings just a score
Of happy thoughts of you."

KEEPING UP INTEREST IN CLUB 4

Dear Social Corner Friends: A happy New Year! It ought to be for here is where we get another chance. I don't know how the rest of you feel about it but for myself I'm glad this year is here just because I do want to clamp the lid down hard on last year's worries, and see if 1925 don't bring something brighter.

I was so glad to get that chance to ride home with Pep. And the plate that was forgotten was brought to the home of Avon, where I got out and left those things.

Was sorry Butterfly lost her napkin 1492: Am glad you like my brown bread recipe. Was sorry not to see you and Caro at the picnic. How nice it is you have something to remember your childhood days by.

I want to thank Keziah Doolittle for my beautiful New Year's card, and do you live in Norwich now?

I would like very much to attend a Social Corner picnic at B. M. The sisters up this way are doing their best to have more social times, to keep the interest of club No. 4 alive. So many new names have been added, what a big family we are getting to be!

Was glad to see Fan Tan's letter Hope she will write some newsy ones.

Trixy: How are you these days? Bee True's honey is fine. The best I ever tasted.

Te Teuphen: Glassware: Ordinary glassware is easily broken and chipped. To toughen it cover with cold water bring slyowly to the boiling point and cool in the same water.

January, the first month of the year, is named after Janus, an ancient deity the God of all beginnings of the agricultural year and over gateways and openings.

A POEM WANTED

Dear Social Corner Friends: I thought of writing last week, but have been entertaining and being entertained by a small granddaughter, and enjoyed it so much, I put off the letter. She sang her little school songs to me, and I taught her some, and altogether we had a pleasant week, and the house seems rather quiet without her.

I noticed in the poem of The Blackberry Girl, printed lately that something seemed missing in that, so hunted it up up my scrap book, and found what was left out. It is the twentieth, or next to the last verse, and is this:

So take it, for you don't fear
Offending her, god see,
I have another, too, at home,
And one's enough for me.

Can anyone send the poem Mother O' Mine?

Santa remembered me generously and I had cards from Providence to Los Angeles.

Paula: Thanks for pretty card. I would like to know who is who. What town do you hail from? Best wishes to all the Corner from

SILENT PARTNER. (Dec. 25.)

GREETINGS FROM LORNA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As I saw that my name is added to the list, I thought that I would write the Corner. I wonder how many can learn to knit. I like to do it very much. As I am a new member I do not know very many.

Balsam Fir: How are you feeling? I saw the feather that you sent to Crimson Rambler, I am glad that you had good luck with them.

Crimson Rambler: How are you feeling? I haven't got my knitting done yet.

Paula: Why don't you ever come to see us? With greetings from

LORNA.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: Having attended several of the Corner meetings at the Buckingham I would like to become a member. I will take as my penname

LAHLEET.

GROWING THIN WITHOUT SACRIFICING THE "EATS"

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As I am not an old member of this page I gather all I know of its history from the letters of other members. I read somewhere on the page that it was started seven years ago. Fourteen years ago, the editor made it or else it was my mistake in writing. I concluded the editor knew more about it than the writer whom I had copied.

I have never written a helpful or profitable letter, but a chatty letter is so natural and easy to me that I have to put a curb on them or, like Tennyson's brook, they run on forever.

You all have the advantage of knowing each other and can really chat but my letters are full of I's which I hope to eliminate after we meet in Rose park where I hope I will meet a lot of members whose letters, as one sister wrote, are photographs of the writers.

I guess while the page continues to be full to overflowing I will sit back and give others a chance to get their letters on the page.

I am writing a letter now for a very stout woman I met recently who is now in Detroit, Michigan looking for an automobile.

The letter is entitled: How to eat and get all the pleasure of eating and grow thin.

This stout woman, a new boarder for a few days, was the largest woman I ever met. She had at least three double chins (I don't mean six). After dinner I had a chat with her and finding her good natured I ventured to warn her she would die young. She told me with a laugh that she would not mind that if to live long meant giving up the pleasure of eating. If you or anyone can tell me, she continued, how to keep that pleasure and grow thin you may save my life and at the some time make me more comfortable while I live. I told her I would give her a formula that would do it. Seems as though lots of stout people would like to be slender and not give up the pleasure of eating. So I went up to my room and I have been trying to work out that formula ever since but I do not find it easy. When I have made it out I will send it to this page and I guess you will see how hard I worked on it to make it measure up to my promise.

ALOISE JANET.

USES FOR SALT

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Have any of you sisters ever stopped to think of how much use salt has in the world? I will try to tell you a few of them.

A little salt rubbed on cups will take off tea stains.

But in white wash will make it stick better. Use salt water to clean willow furniture; apply with a brush and rub dry.

Prints rinsed in salt water will hold their color and look brighter.

Silk handkerchiefs and ribbons should be washed in salt water and ironed wet for the best results. Food would be flat and insipid and tasteless without salt. Salt water is a good gargle for sore throat.

Warm salt water snuffed up the nose clears the head wonderfully clear when one has a cold. Rubbed on mosquito bites it relieves the irritation almost immediately. Salt rubbed on flat irons makes the iron smooth and helps make the work easier.

Salt put in sink cuts ice in frozen pipes, sprinkled on icy walks cuts the ice. Salt is also used to clean one's teeth as it strengthens the gums. Cattle should have salt frequently and as a fertilizer it is valuable. A weak solution of salt water makes a good eye wash.

Salt is good for hives rubbed on parts affected.

Salt is out in trolley switches to cut the ice. So you see salt is good for more than salting pork and beef. I might go on but think this will do for this time. I might add a hot salt pack is good for ear ache.

I want to think all the sisters who sent me cards during the Christmas season. Did not think so many would think of me especially at such a busy time. They are: Mary France, Busy B, True Blue, Jack's Wife, Mayflyre, Airy, Polly, Eliz., Jane Betsy Bobbett, Paula, Crimson Rambler, Palmleaf, Sis Hopkins Aunty No. 1, Beatrix, Bachelor Maid, Anna Mell, Twice Twenty, I. J. B., Olga, Aunt Alice, Black Eyed Susie, Blue Baby, Cretia, and others.

Balsam Fir: I thank you for your nice long letter and will answer soon. Am very busy sewing just at present.

Diana: Will answer your letter also.

CORNER MEMBERS INVITED TO FLORIDA

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am once more in the land of sunshine and flowers, and in Lakeland, Fla., the same as last winter. Two cousins from Willimantic, with brother and I, motored to Philadelphia where we took the boat to Jacksonville. Our first stop was at Peekskill and the scenery all the way was lovely.

We drove over Bear mountain on a new road, bordering the Hudson river, and across the new bridge into the Catskill mountains. I wish all could take that part of the trip for the scenery is grand, and beats the Mohawk Trail.

Then we went to Trenton, and from there to Philadelphia. The four day trip on the boat was not so pleasant, as it was rainy and cold and somewhat rough. But the boat was full of people and as some were good musicians, we were well entertained. We were two days on our motor trip to Lakeland from Jacksonville, and we four are very comfortably established in a pretty bungalow and have real oranges growing in our yard and roses in bloom.

All come down and we will have a Social Corner picnic.

Greeting and best wishes to all for a happy New Year.

HULDY.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: I have read many of the interesting letters written by the members, and have heard so much about your good times, that I should like very much to be a member. I know two or three of the members personally, and probably would know more if I only knew their real names. I know Blue Bird very well, for she comes to the house every week to drum music into my head.

I hope you will allow me to become one of your members.

Wishing you all much love and good luck for the coming year, I would like my Social Corner name to be

KRAZY KAT.

BIG SUCCESS AT PUTNAM

Dear Social Corner Members: The Social Corner gathering held by Club No. 4 at Putnam was a very success indeed. We missed the other members from East Killingly very much. We were much disappointed not to see their familiar faces in the gathering.

I want to thank Care and the one with the unpronounceable name for cards sent me at Christmas time. I want to express to Mary 'Gusta my best wishes for a long life of happi-

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

There was plenty of rainfall in Norwich a half century ago for figures indicated a fall of over four inches during the month. This rainfall would have been a blessing to Norwich in the year 1924.

Sleighing was fine in Norwich the first week in January 1875 and horse racing on Washington street was a most popular sport.

Other items of interest taken from the Bulletin of that year are published as follows:

Monday, January 4, 1875—A letter addressed to a Greeneville resident was held up at the postoffice Saturday because there was only a one cent stamp on it, and a three cent stamp is necessary for delivery. It costs but one cent for delivery in the city but as the Greeneville office is separate from the Norwich office it required a three cent stamp for delivery, just as much as though the letter was being sent to California. Another place situated like Greeneville is the office at Mystic Bridge, only a stones throw from Mystic river where there is another office.

Thomas H. Kinney of Wellsville, Kansas, arrived in town Sunday after driving from Kansas to Norwich in a top buggy drawn by one horse. He left Kansas on October 5th making the 1,523 miles in just 52 days. He is visiting with his brother-in-law, George N. Carr of Laurel Hill.

The Shetucket has received its first installment of salmon. They were put in by Dr. Hudson and Mr. Chickering. The fish, numbering 50,000, were put in the Natchaug and other tributaries to the Shetucket.

There was a rainfall of 4.24 inches in Norwich during the month of December, and the thermometer showed a high mark of 52 and a low mark of 5 degrees above zero.

Tuesday, January 5, 1875—The senate committee on naval affairs will meet Tuesday (today) to hear Gov. Ingersoll and Senator Buckingham of Connecticut, in opposition to the extinction of the New London navy yard. Connecticut people are determined to keep the navy yard now located in this state.

The Jewett City Savings bank shows a steady gain during the year, and though but eighteen months old has investments to the amount of $58,-791.25. It has paid three dividends, one of seven and two of six per cent, and proposes to do in the future, all the law will allow.

William H. Downs, bow oar of the Wesleyan crew at Saratoga, has been inspecting the course on the Thames river.

At the meeting of the common council last evening, at the suggestion of Mayor J. Lloyd Greene, the question as to removing the clock in the Central Baptist church to the West Side, was referred to the committee on fire department.

Wednesday, January 6, 1875 — John Penniman Black well known in metropolitan literary circles, who has been spending a few days in town, the guest of H. V Edmund, left for Boston by the noon train yesterday to fulfil his professional engagements in that city.

The officers elect of Mount Vernon Lodge No. 75, F. & A. M., of Jewett City were publically installed in their lodge room Tuesday evening by Past Master Joseph J. Wait of St. James Lodge No. 23 of this city, W. M. Guilford H. Rogers of Somerset Lodge, No. 34 acting as grand marshall. Over 75 of the fraternity from this city attended the installation.

In New London at the council meeting the fire committee has been instructed to see that all fire houses are closed at 10 o'clock each night, except on fire or monthly meeting nights; also that the houses be kept closed Sundays.

Cotton mills in Norwich are open now, though it is against their better judgment. The owners state they are keeping open for self defense.

Thursday, January 7, 1875—Crocker the artist is painting some scene in the way of bright, lively landscapes, a change in style over his older paintings which were more sedate. The last of his pictures is a view of the Rialto, which has just been sold.

The board of underwriters of Boston at their recent meeting elected Henry E. Bowers of the firm of Sears and Bowers, president of the board. Mr. Bowers at one time served as editor of the Norwich Morning Bulletin.

A party of three disciples of Walton, all of this city, caught seventy pounds of pickerel in Natchaug pond, Tuesday.

Some New London men who have seen the Comstock silver lode confirm the accounts about it. They say there is fully $100,000,000 in the ore of the California lode alone. The Ophir company is extracting 340 tons of ore a day, worth $100 per ton and some of the rock deposited by old as high as $1,000 a ton.

Friday, January 8, 1875—At a meeting of the Hughes Tow Boat association last week, at the office of Chapman & Co., the following officers were chosen: John Mitchell, president; Enoch F. Chapman, secretary and treasurer; David H. Seamon, general agent. Edward Chappel and Jedidiah Huntington were chosen directors.

The river is full of ice as far down as Allyn's point. The sides of the boats coming up the river are fringed by the jagged pieces of ice indicating heavy pieces.

Merchants in Norwich in general made money last evening. Their profit was not through the customer route, but was gained by turning down the gas early.

The city and town bonds to be issued in payment of the court house debt have been received by our authorities. They are for $1,000 each the city having 160 of them and the town as many more. Sixty coupons are attached to each one, the bonds having 30 years to run. The Orient Fire Insurance company of Hartford has purchased the entire lot of bonds.

The new coal cars being built at the Norwich & Worcester railroad shops in this city are the best in the country. Master Carpenter Bentley has several new inventions on these cars and railroad men agree that they will save money in the handling of coal. Dumping is entirely automatic and the car is more substantially built than the old makes. It is believed these cars will soon be put into use on other roads.

Saturday, January 9, 1875—Sleighing was fine in the city yesterday and many parties were out. Older people enjoyed speeding, especially on Washington street and all the fast horses of the city were out in force. Mr. Sydleman's horse showed all others a clean pair of heels.

The cutting of stone for the new railroad bridge abutments has begun. It will be August before the iron superstructure of the bridge will be ready for erection.

Gen. Sheridan who is now in New Orleans is soon to write about the number of murders in the state of Louisiana which have gone by apparently unnoticed. He says that they will run into several thousands.

Although the school enumeration now going on, is not expected to show an increase in the number of children in the city of school age, it is expected that it will show an increase in the number of the children attending school this year, over a year ago. This has been noticeable in recent years and is a good thing for the community.

GINGERBREAD RECIPE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: It is a little more than a year ago that I wrote my first letter to the Corner and I had the pleasure of attending my first meeting in Putnam December 31st.

Ino kindly invited me to go with her. I enjoyed the meeting very much and hope to be able to attend more such gatherings before another year goes by.

I will now answer present to the roll call if it is not too late. I enjoy reading the letters every week and like to try new recipes. Perhaps someone would like my recipe for Gingerbread: 1 cup molasses, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup sweet milk, 3 cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon of soda, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon of cinnamon. We like it hot with whipped cream on it.

Best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year to all

WORKING UP A BEEF SHANK

Dear Cornerites: This is what I did with one of my dollar prizes. I purchased seven pounds of shank, at 14 cents a pound and I make with two pounds what I call

Farmer's Stew: Pound flour into both sides of steak, (cut from the tender part of shank-as this is lovely and juicy) using as much as the steak will take up. You can do this with a meat pounder or the edge of a heavy plate. Fry this in butter, then add water enough to cover it. Cover the dish very tightly so that the steam will not escape and allow the meat to simmer two hours. When done if gravy is not thick enough blend with a little flour, salt and pepper.

Delicious if cooked slowly as directed.

Meat Loaf: Take about two pounds more of the shank, cut out the bone and cut the meat in small pieces, then rub in lemon juice (this makes it very tender and improves the flavor.) Put them in a kettle and cover with boiling water, salt and pepper with two cloves.

Let it boil until your meat is tender and put it through your meat grinder. Let the stock boil until there is about 1 1-2 cups, then mix with the meat and let it cool. Then you have a good meat loaf. This is my standby for luncheon.

The bones you put over with 1 quart of water and let boil down to 1 pint, then this you can put in jars and use when you need it. Take out the marrow, place on the stove in a small pan and try out. Take marrow when tried out and strain. Let it get almost cool, beat with a fork and with three tablespoons of marrow add 1-2 teaspoon oxide of zinc, 1 tablespoon of vaseline. This makes an ointment for burns, sores, and will allay itching of eczema when all else fails.

The first thing I do when I get a shank it to remove all the outside skin. This I boil and give to the hens. The water it is boiled in I let cool, remove the fat—(give fat to hens) and make a soup for Monday with the stock. With the remainder of the meat which is about two pounds, I trim all portions not edible from this portion and with a pound of lean fresh pork, or if you haven't that or any kind of fresh meat you can make it with the beef you have on hand. I put these with one onion peeled and a little red pepper pod through the grinder. Add one teaspoon salt, 1 cup sifted bread crumbs (soft not dry crumbs) and a beaten egg: mix all together thoroughly, then shape into a roll of meat in an agate pan, strain about 1 quart of stewed tomatoes around the meat, put two selives of bacon above and let cook about 40 minutes basting several times with the tomato. If preferred the tomato may be omitted and the meat may be basted with drippings. Cook the parboiled potatoes with the meat and serve the dish with a brown tomato sauce.

How I made my clam chowder. Steamed clams after washing thoroughly. Fry two ordinary slices of salt pork until all free from grease and fat, remove pork and cut up a small onion, fry in the fat, but watch so it will not get too brown; then add two tablespoons butter; chop six potatoes about like dice, put over to boil in about one quart of water and 1 tablespoon of sugar and 1-4 teaspoon of pepper. After boiling 20 minutes add clams, after eliminating the necks remove outer skin and empty the bellies, put necks through the food chopper and add them to the potato with 2 cups of the clam liquor. Boil 10 minutes more, then add about one pint of warm milk. Serve with hot crackers.

You can make chili con carne and with the stock you can make a very nice brown gravy.

I think split pea soup made of the stock is excellent.

In a kettle put 1 cup of dried split peas, carefully picked over and add 6 cups of stock and 2 cups of water, add 1 teaspoon salt, one or 2 small onions (cut very fine) and 1-2 cup of rather finely sliced celery and two carrots sliced. Bring to a boil then stand where it will just simmer until the peas and onions are done or mushed and celery is perfectly clear and very tender. Let it come to a boil again, add 3 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons flour rubbed to a smooth cream. Let it cook in smoothly and well, then add pepper to taste a little more salt and 1 pint of milk. Serve with crackers or croutons.

I also make a stuffed meat by taking about two pounds of the steak cut out from the shank and put through grinder, add two eggs, piece of butter, 2 large onions, chopped fine, add bread crumbs (about 2 slices broken up fine (1 tablespoon of milk poured on the crumbs) 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning, salt and pepper. Add 1 can of tomato soup. Smooth over top at intervals and on top place a few pieces of salt pork or butter as preferred. This will serve seven persons.

STAR OF BETHLEHEM SEEN

To the Social Corner Friends: Frank Babbridge of Gotts, Island, Maine, is the first person to report having succeeded in locating the star Mira, sometimes believed to have been the original Star of Bethlehem, on its present visit to our sky.

A few weeks ago it was invisible to the naked eye. Now it is very faint. By the end of January it is expected to be of considerable brilliance.

Mr. Babbridge writes me, "You requested any one who found the star to write you. I have found it and as I have not yet seen the fact of its visibility mentioned in your column, I thought I would write you.

"First find the constellation Cetus in the south at about seven in the evening. It looks like a dipper upside down.

"From that you get your direction of the star Mira.

A diagram drawn by Mr. Babbidge shows the Star of Bethlehem" midway between this inverted dipper and a triangle of stars further east and higher up from the horizon.

PRESTON CITY

The meeting of the Preston City Congregational church has been set for the coming Tuesday, the 13th.

A budget amounting to approximately $13,000,000 will be recommended to the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at New Orleans, this summer.

PENDLETON HILL

Forty guests responded to Miss Hattie White's invitation for Saturday evening. Cards and dancing furnished amusement. Sandwiches, cake, coffee, doughnuts and cheese were served. All agree that Miss White's was one of the pleasantest parties of the season.

Mrs. Simeon O. White and daughter Hattie entertained Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson and daughter Mildred, Mrs. Susie Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frink of Jewett City at a New Year's dinner.

Mrs. Clifford Thompson spent Monday night caring for Mrs. Welthea Sisson of Westerly, who has been very ill for many weeks.

The Society dinner was held Wednesday. The menu consisted of roast beef, salmon loaf, escalloped cabbage, mashed potato, creamed turnip, relishes, apple tapioca, apple pie, cake and coffee.

The members of the society were working on a handsome kaleidoscope quilt, the blocks for which had been cut and partly finished by Mrs. Fidelia Gallup, whose last thought was for her church. Henry Johnson is to have this quilt.

Clarence Johnson, who has been spending a vacation, with his brother Albert, has returned to his work in New Haven.

Mrs. Joseph Beard and daughter of Canonchet, R. I., were guests at the Society dinner.

Charles Henry Wight, father of Mrs. George Palmer and his brother, Lowell Swan are spending the winter with their sister at Palm Beach, Florida.

"There is a man in our town and he is wondrous wise," in that he believes in getting the joy which goes with giving away his fortune long before the infirmities of age even overtake him.

This gentleman has worked marvelous cures in a much dreaded disease, and is too well known locally and throughout Eastern Connecticut to need mention here.

To show his appreciation for past kindnesses rendered this gentleman has presented Mrs. Charles Roode, a new sedan.

This same gentleman recently presented to a resident of the town one of the beautiful old local homes.

EAST HADDAM

Mrs. Edward Bartman has been entertaining her sister, Mrs. Damaris Warner.

Joseph Tracy was in Hartford recently on business.

Funeral services for Almira Cone Sweet were held at the South Church in Middletown last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Rev. Herbert B. Robinson, pastor of the church officiated. Burial was in Moodus Cemetery, where Rev. Christryman read the committal service.

Herbert E. Watrous of East Haddam was a business caller in town recently.

Miss Sarah Grollman has returned to New York after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grollman.

Mrs. Maize B. Clark of Hopeman, who was a delegate to the World's Sunday school convention, which met in Scotland last June, gave a very interesting lecture at the Methodist church Sunday evening.

Louis Wippert attended the funeral of an aunt, Mrs. Edgar Palmer, in East Haven, Friday.

Mrs. George B. Hall has been making a visit with relatives in Hartford.

Of course, it's the proper thing for a man to have a backbone, but he should remember that it is jointed.

Mothers everywhere demand a reliable cough remedy free from injurious narcotics. Supplying this demand for fifty years made Foley's Honey and Tar Compound one of the largest selling cough medicines in the world. Children like it. The UNWANTED

G. B. SAMUELSON'S GIGANTIC PRODUCTION

WANTED or UNWANTED we are drawn into this World by the potent influence of LOVE or HATE

A MOTION PICTURE AS BIG AS LIFE ITSELF
A PHOTOPLAY STEEPED IN THE TURMOIL OF NATIONS

LIFE

That's what you will see in G. B. Samuelson's gigantic production, "The Unwanted." Venice, Switzerland, Berlin, Vienna and France will reveal to you the mysteries of love, passion and romance.

WAR

That is what you will see in "The Unwanted." Men killing their brothers with cold steel and smashing rifle butts in hand-to-hand conflict. The most colossal representation of the world's war that has ever been in motion pictures. Scenes staged at a fabulous cost intermixed with scenes actually taken by a German cameraman during a battle, and now coming to light for the first time.

VIENNA 1914

The shot was fired, the echo of which rang around the world. They heard it in the farthest of the universe. They heard it in a beer garden in Vienna, where life was lived as the Europeans think the Good Lord meant that it should be lived. Where blood red wine and cherry lips go to one's brain and send one groping blindly through the nebulous mists of passion with the conviction that heaven is to be found on this earth and nowhere else.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Jan. 9.—With a marked increase in public participation, stock prices today continued to move to higher ground under the leadership of the standard industrial and railroad shares. The demand for stocks, which was spread over a broad list, was predicated upon the continuance of easy money rates and reports of further improvement in the steel, oil and other important industries.

United States Steel common touched 124 1-8, the highest price since 1917, and Baldwin closed 2 3-8 points higher at 135 3-4, after selling at 136 1-2, the highest price in over a year. American Can touched 166 and then slipped back to 164 5-8 for a small fractional gain on the day. Studebaker, the other member of the so-called "big four" moved within a narrow range and closed fractionally lower at 45.

Higher grade rails were in good demand throughout the session. Southern Pacific crossed 108 to the highest price since 1920, closing at a net gain of two points. Union Pacific touched 153, the highest price in nearly two years. Further accumulation of Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred sent that stock up five points to a record top at 81.

Other strong spots in the railroad group included "Nickel Plate" common, which closed 5 points higher at 129 1-2 and Buffalo and Susquehanna Corp-Pesake and Ohio common and preferred, Rock Island, "Big Four" Delaware and Hudson, Lehigh Valley, "Soo" common and preferred, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Baltimore and Ohio preferred, Norfolk and Western, Pullard Air Line preferred, Texas and Western Pacific issues, the net gains in which ranged from 1 to 4 1-2 points.

The show-ing in several specialties, more than a dozen of which advanced 5 to 10 1-2 points, was directly traceable to optimistic influences. R. H. Macy moved up 4 points on a new low at 86 5-8 on the improved dividend outlook for the stock. Savage Arms touched a record price at 90 in response to reports of increased sales of its electric refrigerating apparatus. Adams Express, Brown Shoe, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Montgomery Ward, General American Tank Car, Loose Wiles Biscuit and United States Cast Iron Pipe were among the miscellaneous issues to show net gains of 3 points or more.

Revival of activity and strength in Certain-Teed Products, which closed a point higher at the record top of 45 3-4 followed reports of higher earnings. Famous Players crossed par for the first time in two years, a further reflection of the improved financial condition of the company.

Heavy liquidation of the motor and rubber stocks was apparent in the late dealings. Nash Motors broke from a high of 210 to 208 and Chandler cracked 3 points to 30 1-4 and then rallied a point from the low. Mention also was noted in United States Rubber common, 1st Rubber 1st preferred, Pierce-Arrow preferred and a few others.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money rates showed a tendency to ease when offerings increased, plenty of sixty day funds being available at 3 1-2 per cent, with borrowers indisposed to bid more than 3 1-4. The longer maturities ruled 3 1-4 to 3 1-2 per cent.

Establishment of another new high by sterling exchange around $4.79 and a sharp rise in the Norwegian and Danish and Serbian currencies was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Other European rates moved within narrow and fractional limits.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 9.—Bond prices today responded to a further drop in money rates, a factor which also was reflected in a marked expansion of trading. The influence of the usual January reinvestment demand contributed to the improvement of high grade liens while various rail and public utility issues rallied on new speculative possibilities.

Denver & Rio Grande obligations led the railroad list in strength and activity, coming up to new high levels on prospects of bitter earnings and restoration of the road to a sound financial footing. Gains of one to three points were scored by Chesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s, Norfolk and Western convertible 4s, New Haven 7s and France 7s. International Great Northern adjustment 6s, Seaboard adjustment 5s and Missouri Pacific 4s.

Outstanding strong spots in the public utility group were Standard Gas 6 1-2s, which jumped 7 1-4 points to 116 1-2, and Federal Light 7s, which extended their gain two points to a new high at 122.

Favorable trade developments, which aided the oil and copper shares, also brought gains of one to three points in Marland Oil 8s with warrants, Sinclair 6 1-2s, Magma 7s, Anaconda 6s and American Smelting 5s. Wilson issues continued to rally.

In view of the unusually heavy volume of Frong offerings this week, new financing absorbed much of the interest in investment circles. Subscriptions for the $125,000,000 American Telephone bonds issue, offered yesterday, it was indicated ran close to $400,000,000 and a $12,000,000 issue for the August Thyssen Steel Works was promptly over-subscribed. Other issues aggregating more than $100,000,000 which are scheduled for early offering, include $50,000,000 for the Consolidated Gas Company; $30,000,000 for the Boston Edison Electric Illuminating Co.; $25,000,000 for the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, and $5,000,000 for the Pacific Steamship Company.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Upturns in the price of wheat today accompanied indications of lively foreign demand for flour. A bulge in wheat quotations at Liverpool helped to stimulate wheat buying here. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 5-8 to 1 7-8c net higher, 1-4 to 1-2c up, oats showing 1-4 to 5-8c gain, and provisions unchanged to 27c lower.

Persistent assertions that buying of flour for Russia was in programme on a large scale and that Japan was also figuring on making liberal purchases of flour gave the wheat market a tendency to climb throughout the day. At the same time, the effect of the Liverpool wheat advance was heightened owing to notable strength in sterling exchange and because the Liverpool advance came in the face of enlarged shipments of wheat from Australia and Argentina. Signs of improved domestic milling business were likewise apparent.

Corn and oats owed their gains chiefly to wheat strength. Demand for corn and oats was slow, with corn receipts liberal.

Provisions averaged lower. Sustained support was lacking.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 9.—Constructive forces were at work in today's curb market and the general list moved to higher ground under the leadership of the oil shares. South Pennsylvania jumped 3 1-2 points and gains of one to two points were recorded by Prairie Oil & Gas, Illinois Pipe and Magnolia Petroleum.

MOOSE.

Regular Sunday morning religious services from the First Presbyterian church at Aurora, WJZ will be broadcast through the Loyal Order of Moose station WJZD (278 meters) on Sunday morning, January 11, at 10 o'clock. On Christmas eve, the religious service at the Episcopal church at Aurora was broadcast, and arrangements are now being made so that services may be broadcast from churches of all denominations in the Mooseheart valley.

The service at the Aurora Presbyterian church will be augmented with a special musical programme by a mixed choir of 35 voices, and the pipe organ will be played by Miss Edna Cota, a musician of more than local renown.

The Rev. William Blake Hindman, pastor of the church, announces his radio sermon subject as "The Meaning of Worship."

On every Sunday morning both the Roman Catholic and Protestant services are broadcast from Station WJZD. It is not known that any other station broadcasts the services of the two sets of churches. It happens that the Loyal Order of Moose is non-partisan, and at Mooseheart, the city of childhood for dependent children of deceased members of the Moose order, one of the paramount features is that every child is given a religious training in the faith of his or her parents. The adherents of every religious faith are here and all live in peace and harmony, granting to the other the right to worship God according to their understanding of His divine will.

TAFTVILLE

The annual meeting of the Taftville Congregational Church, Inc., was held Thursday evening in the vestry of the church with the pastor, Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, presiding. After the opening of the meeting and the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting and two or three special meetings during the year by the clerk, Allan Bogle, the treasurer's report was read by George N. Beardow. This showed the church in good financial condition; the money borrowed to pay for the new organ has been repaid; there is a good cash balance on hand and the church has invested funds. The benevolences for the past year have been large. Mrs. Walter S. Sharples reported for Mrs. Walter Drew, secretary of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the church. This organization has been active during the past year and has made a large donation to the organ fund of the church. The report of the C. J. S., one of the organized classes of the church school, was read by Miss Isabel Barrett. This society has as its aim the raising of money for the missionary purposes of the church and the report showed that a neat sum as well as several boxes of articles had been sent to foreign countries where the Congregational church supports missions. Miss Mary Taggart gave a review of the Ocowasin Camp Fire Girls. The report of the church school was read by Superintendent Victor H. Davis. Mr. Davis described the school as being in a healthy condition. He made a report of the progress made during the year, told of the type of lessons adopted by the school, and the monthly meetings of the Workers' conference. The financial report of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor was made by Miss Mary Greenhalgh. The activities of Castle Perilous, K. O. K. A., which is made up of two organized classes were reported by Earle M. Wood. The order has 36 members and is steadily growing. Their financial condition is good. The report of the pastor, which is submitted annually at this meeting showed the year to be a profitable one. Rev. Mr. Crowdis described his work among the young people of the parish, and made a brief review of the year.

When the reports of the various organizations had been completed, the election of officers took place, and resulted as follows: Deacons, Allan Bogle and Nathan S. Bushnell; clerk, Allan Bogle; treasurer, George N. Beardow; collector, Miss Hazel Heap; standing committee, George J. Meyer, John W. Brierly, Herbert P. Hoyle, Earle M. Wood, George H. Young and Albert J. Aberg; music committee, Miss Gertrude M. Young, Mrs. William McNally and Miss Nellie S. Howie.

At the close of the meeting refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by a committee from the Ladies' Benevolent society, including Mrs. James Graham, Mrs. Allan Bogle, Mrs. Charles R. Adams, Mrs. Edmund Hindle and Mrs. John Volkman, assisted by Miss Selena Adams. Copies of the church constitution and the year book of the Congregational church were distributed by Rev. Mr. Crowdis, who took the opportunity to thank all those who had aided in the work of the church during the past year, especially those who aided him in preparing the supplies for the holy communion.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Airey of North Second avenue have returned from a few days' stay in Pawtucket, R. I.

John Mercik has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

It was alleged that the marriage took place on April 29, 1919, and on Feb. 8, 1921, the plaintiff's husband deserted her. She was given the custody of their two children.

Bertha Belcher Horner of New London was granted a divorce from James A. Horner, also of New London on grounds of desertion. They were married on July 17, 1915, and three years later he deserted her, she alleged. She was given the custody of their child.

After months of suffering

Baby's skin trouble healed in one week

South Hills, Pittsburg, Pa., March 22.—"I certainly bless the day I started to use Resinol Soap and Ointment. I tried for four or five months to cure my baby of a skin and scalp trouble—tried nearly everything—but nothing did any good. Finally, a neighbor recommended Resinol and after using the soap and ointment on baby for three days, all the scabs fell off and in one week's time the trouble was entirely cured. NORWICH TOWN

The last in the series of union prayer services for this week of prayer, the First Congregational and First Methodist Episcopal churches uniting, was held Friday evening at the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich leading.

Fighting For Our Faith, was the theme of the sermon by the visiting pastor Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, who spoke from the sixth chapter of 1st Timothy.

At the Congregational chapel Thursday evening, Rev. James B. Aldrich spoke on the Greater and Lesser, Love Filled With Joy; and Joy Filled With Sorrow. The text referred to was John 15:34. A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. The very interesting meetings had a good attendance on all four evenings.

Mrs. Edward G. Rawson, of Hartford, while in town to install the officers of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps No. 16 of Norwich, was the guest for a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Dean, of Town street.

A surprise birthday dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gillette, of Dayville, New Year's Day in recognition of the 69th birthday of Mr. Gillett's mother, Mrs. Emily Gillette who resides with her son and daughter-in-law. There is another son, Frank Gillette who resides in Colchester.

The elder Mrs. Gillette was born in Colchester January 1st, 1826, having the distinction of being born on the first day of the year, the first day of the month and the first day of the week.

The celebration was planned by Mrs. George S. Beebe, of Scotland road, a sister of Mrs. Samuel Gillette. Attending with Mrs. Beebe was her husband, their daughter Miss Gladys Belle Beebe, R. N., of Hartford, who was visiting her parents, also Mrs. Beebe's sister, Miss Lucy Standish who resides at the Beebe home, and Frederick Millard, of Philadelphia, who was their guest. In all there were nine present at the dinner. Two delicious birthday cakes with candles were on the table, one made by Mrs. Beebe.

Mrs. Gillette received beautiful flowers and plants. During the day friends and neighbors called

Although bodily helpless Mrs. Gillette retains her faculties and takes much interest in daily affairs, and it is prophesied that she will round out the century mark.

Before coming to her son's home about a year and a half ago, at which time she was stricken helpless, Mrs. Gillette had for a number of years resided at the home of her grandson, Isaac Gillette, of Colchester.

From the devoted care she is receiving, Mrs. Gillette is enabled to sit up each day. When in the early nineties, for about six weeks Mrs. Gillette was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Beebe and although so far advanced in years at that time, she was alert, entering into lifes pleasures, piecing quilts, and in every way seeming to enjoy herself.

KELLOGG WILL SUCCEED HUGHES AS SEC'Y OF STATE

American Ambassador to the Court of St. James Will Accept Portfolio Upon the Resignation of Charles Evans Hughes—President Coolidge is Giving Attention to Filling Vacancies in the Diplomatic Corps Resulting From Changes in His Cabinet On March 4.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Having accepted the resignation of Secretary of State Hughes and selected Ambassador Kellogg at London as his successor, President Coolidge will give attention now to the taks of filling the vacancies in the diplomatic corps resulting from these changes in his cabinet on March 4.

Meanwhile the senate will give consideration to two appointments by the White executive of equal importance, those of Harlan F. Stone of New York to be an associate justice of the supreme court, and of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to succeed him as attorney general. Favorable action on both is expected.

In line with the promotion of Ambassador Kellogg, the president is understood to have in mind the advancement of Ambassador Houghton at Berlin to the Court of St. James. With such a policy carried to a logical conclusion, there would be a general advancement of those in the diplomatic service.

Although Ambassador Herrick at Paris might be considered next in line for the London post, the understanding here is that he prefers to remain at the French capital, where he has had many years of service. Moreover, his desire for early retirement from the diplomatic corps has been reported.

Besides Ambassador Houghton, others whose names are mentioned in connection with ambassadorship to Great Britain are Ambassador Fletcher, at Rome; Under Secretary of State Grew; Solicitor General James M. Beck, and Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, who retires from the senate on March 4.

Before that date, other changes in the cabinet are in prospect. Secretary of Agriculture Gore must retire on or before March 4, to become governor of West Virginia, to which office he was elected last November, and Secretary of Labor Davis has asked to be retired at that time, although he may accede to the executive's request that he remain.

With the retirement of Secretary Hughes, there will remain only four of the ten cabinet officers who began service in the Harding administration. Will H. Hays retired as postmaster general and Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior, before the death of President Harding, and since Mr. Coolidge succeeded to the presidency Edwin Denby has resigned as secretary of the navy; Harry M. Daugherty was forced to resign as attorney general, and Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, died in office.

Mr. Stone, whose nomination as a supreme court justice is now before the senate, succeeded Mr. Daugherty. While confirmation of his new appointment is held up pending examination by a senate judiciary subcommittee of court records submitted by James A. Ownbey of Boulder, Colo., favorable action within a short time is forecast.

Since Mr. Warren is named to the office which Mr. Stone is to vacate, senate consideration of his nomination is expected to await final action on that of the present attorney general. The nomination has been referred to the judiciary committee, at least, but, so far as administration leaders have been advised, there will be no serious opposition to it, although Mr. Warren was selected over Governor Grosbeck of Michigan, who had the endorsement of Senator Couzens, republican, of that state, and the Michigan delegation in the house.

Whether the senate will be asked to pass upon the appointment of former Senator Kellogg to be secretary of state, remains to be determined. Since he does not take office until the expiration of the present congress, it may be that the president will submit his nomination to the new senate, giving him a recess appointment in the meantime.

Senator Kellogg was appointed ambassador to London two years ago, and at that time there was a fight in the senate on his confirmation, led by the republican insurgent bloc, which ended in a vote of 75 to 9. Those opposing him were Brookhart, Iowa; Frazier, North Dakota, and Norris, Nebraska, republicans, and Copeland New York, Dill, Washington, Ferris, Michigan, and Wheeler, Montana, democrats, and Shipstead and Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota. With the known exception of Senator Johnson, and the possible exception of Senator Brookhart, all of these will serve in the new congress.

AMBASSADOR KELLOGG APPRECIATES APPOINTMENT

Paris, Jan. 11—(By the A. P.)—Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador to the court of St. James, will accept the post of secretary of state tendered him by President Coolidge on the resignation of Charles Evans Hughes.

"I read the news in the morning papers announcing that the president had decided to appoint me secretary of state, which I accept and appreciate very deeply as a great honor," said Ambassador Kellogg, who is here attending the international financial conference, today.

"I am not unmindful of the difficulties and responsibilities of this great office," Mr. Kellogg continued, "especially following such a distinguished and eminent lawyer and statesman as Mr. Hughes. There is nothing more than I can say at this time."

Mr. Kellogg, tired from his four days of arduous work as chief delegate to the conference of the allied finance ministers, retired at 12 o'clock Saturday night without being officially aware that he would awake as president Coolidge's appointee to be the next secretary of state of the United States. Mr. Kellogg and Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador to France, had been dining at the British embassy in company with other heads of the financial delegations and reached Mr. Herrick's private home, where Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg are guests, before the news of his appointment became known in Paris. Mr. Herrick's home was subjected to a night long siege by American newspaper correspondents, but after conferring with Mrs. Kellogg, Ambassador Kellogg was abroad early. He went for a long walk and then was joined by James A. Logan of the American delegation, and they proceeded to Mr. Logan's office in the Rue Tilsit, about two miles distant, afoot. In Mr. Logan's office Mr. Kellogg, as American delegate to the Paris conference, drafted a long cable dispatch for the department of state in Washington containing the solutions of questions reached between the British and Americans on war damage claims, which he probably will be called to pass upon as secretary of state when the protocol comes up for approval by the Washington government some months hence.

The French government was prompt in realizing the importance of having the future American secretary of state "in their midst." Finance Minister Clementel and Minister of Commerce Raynaldy called at Ambassador Herrick's home and left cards for Mr. Kellogg, while Premier Herriot sent M. Sercery, his chief of cabinet, to congratulate the new appointee. None of them saw Mr. Kellogg, however, as he was most engaged with Mr. Logan in preparing the cablegram to Secretary Hughes.

The announcement of the elevation of Mr. Kellogg to such an influential position made a great impression among the other delegations attending the conference. The feeling was expressed that had the news reached Paris yesterday the compromises consented to by the countries whose viewpoints were opposed to the ideas of the United States might have been more readily forthcoming.

Most of the evening newspapers print sketches of Mr. Kellogg. In their articles they introduce a paragraph to the effect that "he is a partisan for ratification by the United States of the league of nations pact with reservations, it is true, but less radical reservations proposed by the late Senator Lodge.

"The government organ remarks: 'The nomination of Mr. Kellogg will facilitate discussion between France and the United States.'

"A weighty piece of news," declared the Journal Des Debats, which then speculates on the reasons for Mr. Hughes' resignation. It concluded by expressing the belief that it was due to Mr. Hughes finding his personal fortune endangered by the expense arising from the holding of public office.

This newspaper recalls the fact that Mr. Hughes presided for and presided over the armament conference in Washington and the sensation produced by his speech at the opening of the conference. Concerning Mr. Hughes' successor, the newspaper sums up his chief characteristics in three words "Legality, traditionalism and prudence."

EUROPEAN DELEGATES SATISFIED WITH U. S.

Paris, Jan. 11.—(By the A. P.)—General satisfaction that the United States through the agreement reached at the conference of allied ministers has become "one of the contracting parties to the Dawes plan and the general reparations question," was expressed by all the European delegations in the informal conversations among the representatives of the powers today. The European statesmen convened here hold that from mere unofficial observers the Americans have become "interested actors" in the solution of the reparation problem.

The experts' committee spent the entire day unravelling the mass of figures bearing on the Ruhr occupation, the Belgian priority payments and the total German deliveries in kind. The committee must prepared resolutions which will be presented for ratification by the plenary session of the conference Tuesday.

Despite the screen of secrecy behind which the delegates are working, details of the terms of the terms of the agreement are gradually leaking out from sources worthy of credence. The delegates find it difficult to smother their exultation or hide their disappointment, according to the success or failure of their efforts to have their point of view accepted by their colleagues. Thus from British sources it was learned today that by the Anglo-American agreement the army cost payments will spread out over a period of 20 years, dating from the Wadsworth agreement of May, 1923.

THREE STORES PARTLY BURNED IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Jan. 11.—The loss in last night's fire that partly destroyed three Main street stores, was estimated by Chief Daniel E. Johnson, of the fire department to be thetween $7,000 and $8,009. None of the ten firemen that were affected by smoke are in serious condition, all of them excepting one, Sidney Tomlin, ladderman of Truck Company 3, having reported back on duty. Tomlin was released from St. Vincent's hospital this evening and taken to his home.

The source of the fire is believed to have been a leaking gas stove with a pilot light attached. An investigation will be conducted tomorrow by the fire chief to determine the cause.

PROGRESS OF GERMANY'S REPARATION PAYMENTS

Berlin, Jan. 11.—(By the A. P.)—German reparations payments during the four months the Dawes plan has been in operation reached the cumulative total of 286,263,447 gold marks, of which Great Britain received 95,800,000 and France 113,600,800.

INVESTIGATING CONDITIONS IN GENERAL CUSTOMS OFFICE

Washington, Jan. 11—Indications were given at the treasury today that an investigation into conditions in general customs offices in different sections of the country is under way as a result of disclosures in the secret inquiry into conditions among the agents in the Hawaiian customs office. One agent has been convicted there and four others indicted on charges of conspiracy, and the treasury's advices indicated that the government had been defrauded of thousands of dollars in duties.

Officials declined to discuss the new inquiry, but it was said in some quarters that information received in the Hawaiian investigation had furnished reasons for the belief that evidence gathered there may lead back to the continental United States, inasmuch as most of the big importing firms have their home offices and executive officials back in this country.

Information at the treasury was to the effect that the Hawaiian conspiracy had been proving highly profitable to importing firms and that the practices employed, in some instances at least, had amounted almost to smuggling because of the connivance alleged to have taken place between some of the agents and the importers. It was declared that all of the "leads" obtained in Hawaii would be followed, and, if necessary would be turned over to the state department for transmission to foreign governments whose nationals may be found to be involved.

The statement that the cases would be taken up with foreign governments was made by high officials showing that they had no intention of letting up until all persons involved have been traced down. It was explained, however, that the treasury at this time is not fully advised as to the number of persons involved by the Honolulu investigation, which went on secretly for nearly three months. But customs officials are making plans to carry on a complete house cleaning wherever the service is found to require it.

DECREASE IN COST OF GOV'T PRINTING OFFICE

Washington, Jan. 11.—The cost of operating the government printing office during the last four years has been $2,873,683 less than was expended during the preceding four years, George H. Carter, public printer, stated in his annual report, made public today, while in the period 1921-1924 unexpected balances amounting to $4,-659,218 were returned to the treasury. In addition, he reported receipts amounting to $1,083,857 from sale of waste paper and useless equipment.

Governmental printing requirements last year were heavier than ever before, it is asserted, congress especially breaking all records for the "volume of annual oratory" with investigations, also adding greatly to the work.

The Daugherty investigation record covered 3,418 pages and the thousand copies ordered cost the government $12,765. The Teapot Dome investigation took up 3,579 pages and the 1,700 copies printed cost $14,151.

Besides requiring about 1,253,000,000 postal cards, the post office department endorsed approximately 682,000,000 sundry forms and blanks. The war department required within 30 days 40,240,000 blanks for the operation of the veterans' bonus act.

Discontinuance of the practice of the free distribution of government publications, except the congressional Record and Directory, is recommended in the report, it being pointed out that during the last four years $1,461,328 was received from the sale of some of these publications.

TO MAKE SCIENTIFIC INVESTIGATIONS AT SEA

Washington, Jan. 11.—Plans for fitting out the navy tender Rainbow to make scientific investigations at sea recommended by the recent conference here on oceanography were announced today by the navy department, Secretary Wilbur having already submitted estimates to the budget for the necessary funds. The name, Maury U. S. Naval Oceanographic Research, suggested by the conference, has been approved and the first work undertaken will be in the Gulf of Mexico, to be followed by explorations in the North Pacific and North Atlantic.

Explaining the project in his letter to the budget bureau, Secretary Wilbur said the research work contemplated was for the definite object of discovering and utilizing resources of the sea, facilitating navigation by sea or air, fostering radio and cable communication, safeguarding human life.

PRISONER FAILED IN HIS SECOND ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Anthony Boscadara, wanted by the Boston police after escaping from that city and recently rearrested in Memphis, Tenn., failed today in a second attempt to escape. He was captured in a chase through the streets here, surrendering after three shots from a patrolman's revolver had brought him to a stop.

Boscadara was in custody of William A. Robinson, a detective, attached to the Boston district attorney's office and was bound for the eastern city. One clasp of a handcuff was about Boscadara's wrist, and Robinson was talking with a patrolman in the Albany station, when Boescandara suddenly jerked away and ran from the building. He was pursued by Robinson, the patrolman and many of the people in the station. The chase came to an end several blocks down the street when the bullets whizzed past the fugitive.

FOUR MEN CAPTURED WITH TWO RUMBOATS

Plymouth, Mass., Jan. 11.—Four men who were captured last night in the lower harbor with two motor boats, said to have contained $7,000 worth of whiskey and alcohol, were released on $2,000 bonds each today for their appearance in the federal court on charges of smuggling. Coast guardsmen fired two shots to halt one boat, said to have been carrying 28 barrels of whiskey. The other prize was loaded with 318 cases of alcohol.

Charges Against Governor of Kansas

Accused of Soliciting and Accepting a Bribe For Pardon of Fred W. Pollman.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 11 (By the A. P.).—Warrants will be sworn out in the court of Topeka tomorrow charging Governor Jonathan M. Davis and his son, Russell G. Davis, 28, with soliciting and accepting a bribe of $1,250 in payment for a pardon issued Fred W. Pollman, it was announced late today by Tinkham Veale, county attorney of Shawnee county.

Agreement was reached at a conference of county and state officers this afternoon that charges will be preferred and a warrant served on the governor and his son before the inauguration exercises tomorrow, when Governor Davis yields his chair as executive.

The conference was held in the office of Attorney General C. B. Griffith.

The accusations will be based, Mr. Veale said, on an alleged payment of $1,250 to the younger Davis by Pollman, convicted forger, who formerly was president of the Linn County bank at La Cygne, Kansas.

The money was said to have been exchanged last Friday in a Topeka hotel, when Russell delivered a pardon, signed by his father, to Pollman, later returning the money when he was confronted by witnesses who had "listened in" on the transaction by a telephonic arrangement.

Mr. Veale said that the county sheriff would serve the warrants immediately, the governor and his son would be given a preliminary hearing and placed under bond. The prosecution would then fall to Paul Heinz, county attorney-elect.

No witnesses were consulted or testimony taken today. The charges were based on accounts of the episode published in the newspapers, but Mr. Veale said that Pollman would return to testify for the state.

Pollman is now in Missouri, he said.

The filing of formal charges will be the first step looking toward prosecution of the governor or his son since Friday's expose of the alleged pardon sale.

Friday afternoon young Davis, according to his own story yesterday, took the money to his room in the executive mansion and returned to the hotel with the pardon, which his father declared he had already decided to sign. Confronted there by Pollman and a group of newspapermen and officials of the state and federal government, he handed back the money, went back to his home and related the affair to his father.

The governor and Russell have asserted that the elder Davis knew nothing whatever of the alleged illicit transaction until told of it by his son. Russell declared last night that he regretted, for his parents' sake, letting himself "be caught in a trap," but emphasized that his father was not involved. The governor, too, professed innocence and declared that Pollman and "political enemies" had taken advantage of "friendship and the unsophisticated nature of my son" to inveigle him "into accepting money for a pardon."

FUNERAL OF ARCHBISHOP MOELLER IN CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 11.—(By The A. P.)—Amid a swirling snowstorm, the bronze casket bearing the body of the late Archbishop Henry Moeller was brought from his residence today to the seat of his former archepiscopal authority in St. Peter's Cathedral, where it will lie in state until the funeral Tuesday.

The ancient pomp and dignity of the Roman Catholic church was adhered to in the ceremony which brought about a crowd of mourners larger than any seen on such an occasion in Cincinnati since the death of Archbishop Elder years ago.

The automobile carrying the casket was preceded by the Knights of St. John, cross bearers and seminarians. During the entire line of march prayers for the repose of the soul of the dead were recited by the seminarians and echoed from the sidewalks by those of Catholic faith.

The body was received into the Cathedral by Mgr. Louis J. Nau apostolic administrator of the Cincinnati province pending the appointment of a new archbishop by the Holy See.

After the casket had been carried to the catafalque and the head slightly raised, seminary choirs chanted the office of the dead.

At the termination of the singing, Monsignor Nau, vested in a gold inlaid cope, gave absolution for the dead.

The body of the archbishop was vested in the robes of his office. His head was covered by the white mitre, while around the neck rested the pallium, the insignia of metropolitan. His hands, folded and encased in embroidered red gloves rested on his chest. His feet were exposed in high heel sandals, and the gucherto, or red skull cap, rested at the foot of the casket, an indication that his office had ended.

The cathedral, which is nearly a century old, was draped in mourning black and purple. This manifestation of mourning will remain for thirty days after the funeral.

PUBLICITY HELPS IDENTIFY CHICAGO'S MYSTERY GIRL

Radio and Newspapers the Means of Restoring Charlotte Maguire to Her Relatives in St. Louis—The Girl Has Left Her Home in St. Louis November 19 to Attend Class at a Teachers' College—Physicans Had Administered the "Truth" Serum Without Results.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Radio and newspaper publicity today brought knowledge of her name and home to Charlotte "Norris," the mystery girl in the county hospital, who has been unable to remember anything about herself since she was found in a faint, two months ago, in the Union station here.

She was identified as Charlotte Maguire, 20, 5545 Wells avenue, St. Louis, by Mrs. George Griffiths, an aunt, and Miss Genevieve Sullivan, a cousin. She left with her for St. Louis at once.

When it was learned the hospital this morning that those description has been widely circulated and who appealed for aid in learning her name over the radio through station WEBH of the Edgewater Beach hotel-Chicago Evening Post Friday night, looked at them blankly for a moment.

"Auntie! Cousin!" She cried and embraced them.

They told Warden Zimmer of the hospital that the girl disappeared from St. Louis November 19, after she had left the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Maguire, to attend class at a teachers' college. How she got here was not explained.

"I remember leaving home on my way to the university," Miss Maguire said after her relatives told their story. "I was walking on one of the streets that is leading to the campus. The next thing I remember was that I was in the hospital here."

She said she could recall nothing more.

Through an item in a St. Louis newspaper about Chicago's "mystery girl," the relatives were led to come to Chicago. Miss Sullivan said. The description of the girl seemed to tally with that of her cousin.

Because Mrs. Francis Maguire has been very ill since her daughter disappeared and for fear that clue might prove false, she was not informed of their trip here, Mrs. Griffiths said.

Charlotte had always been a home girl, the aunt said, and there was no reason that she knew of for her to run away from home. Mrs. Griffiths would give no idea of what might have happened to bring her here.

Since the girl was found in the Union station on the evening of Nov. 19, numerous attempts have been made to identify her. Persons from various parts of the country have come to visit her and more than 5000 letters and telegrams have been received at the hospital giving "tips" on who she might be and asking for additional information.

Numerous descriptions have been published and motion pictures of the girl have been shown in various parts of the country.

Upon receiving a complaint about four o'clock, Thursday afternoon Officer Bombria arrested Rose while he was driving his car. He claimed that Rose smelled strongly of liquor and used vile language when apprehended. A quart of Old Mule Blend whiskey, partly empty was found in the car at the time, but Rose denied that he knew anything about its presence.

AMERICANS MORE READY TO TAKE A CHANCE

The average American is more ready to take a chance than his British brother according to a comparison of the numbers of accidents, which happen to Americans and to the average Britisher.

The accident statistics committee of the National Safety Council has published a study of fatal accidents which gives the death rate for Americans as 698 for each million in England and Wales.

The greater number of automobiles in this country may account for the difference in part, but the figures for accidents of other types show a similar unfavorable comparison. Out of groups of equal number in both countries 64 were drowned in this country where 40 were drowned in England. In America 121 died of falls as compared with 71 in England.

The greatest difference has to do with deaths by firearms where the ratio is 37 for America against 2 for England.

"Reflection on this disparaging comparison should lead every citizen interested in the welfare of his country to support vigorously every movement for the prevention of accidents," according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and chairman of the committee. He attributes the high accident rate to "carelessness, apathy and deficient knowledge."

Of the 84,000 persons killed in this country accidentally last year, automobile accidents lead the list with 16,714 deaths. This means a death toll of 1,462 a week or 209 a day. Accidents by falls accounted for 15,382 deaths. Railroad accidents, accidental burns and drownings follow in order, each accounting for about half as many deaths as the first two causes. Traumatism by machines with 2324 accidental deaths and 1771 deaths resulting from street car accidents, complete the list.

Erie, Pa., takes the lead with a death rate of 36.4 per 100,000 population. Erie is also in second place in the number of deaths for each 1,000 automobiles with a record of 3.26. Fall River, Mass., leads the list with a rate of 3.5 deaths for each 1,000 automobiles. Trenton, N. J., is another city fairly high up on both lists. Trenton has 3.39 deaths for each 1,000 cars and she is ninth on the list with a death rate of 25.1 for each 100,000 of population.

New York city has a high death rate of 2.6 for each 1,000 cars. The death rate of 15.9 for each 100,000 population in New York, however is below the average of all cities of more than 100,000 population. Chicago's rate of 20.2 is slightly higher. Chicago's deathrate for each 1,000 cars is 2.3.

Los Angeles, Cal., is second only to Erie, Pa., with a death rate of 3.2 per 1,000 of population. On the other hand, she is 29th on the list of the number of deaths per automobiles with a record of 0.9 for each 1,000 cars. This is accounted for by the fact of the large number of automobiles owned in the western city.

TO REQUEST $400,000 FOR WORK AMONG CATTLE

Hartford, Jan. 11.—An appropriation of $400,000 is to be requested of the state general assembly for tuberculosis eradication work among cattle by the state commission on domestic animals for the biennial period 1925-1927. This amount is double the appropriation for the last biennial period but will be necessary, Commissioner James M. Whittlesey announced today because of the increase in eradication work and also because former appropriations have been inadequate.

Practically all tuberculin test work in the state is at a standstill at the present time because of lack of funds, Commissioner Whittlesey said. All but about $1,000 of the 1923 appropriation for herd tuberculin test remuneration with $40,000 additional secured from the board of control and by transfers from other departmental funds has been used in the work. Further work cannot be done until additional funds are appropriated by the legislature.

The seriousness of the situation is emphasized, he said, by the fact that many cities and towns have ordinances requiring milk from tuberculin tested cows or pasturized milk. Many of the dealers who have requested tests are in the position of being willing to comply with the law but are unable to do so because the department cannot give them the service necessary.

Dairymen are liberally besieging the office with applications for tests which are necessary before they can sell milk at retail, the commissioner said.

TWO SISTERS ARRESTED FOR BEATING THEIR WAY

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Two sister, residents of Grantham, N. H., "beating their way" from Chatham, N. Y., to Buffalo, just for the fun of it, were arrested at the New York central station this morning after they had elected to take their chances of riding "blind baggage," on the tender of a west bound passenger train.

Appearance of the knicker-clad girls excited the suspicion of a railroad employe and at his suggestion a fellow worker notified the police.

The girls gave their names as Margaret Turner and Brs. Gertrude Turner Hudson.

They were permitted to go after their parents wired $25 for them.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Sparkling with musical gems, bubbling with comedy of lighter and refined type that we have come to associate only with big musical productions. It carries prettier scenery than ever, a happy chorus of youthful, vivacious and accomplished maidens, and the same funny comedians in all new comedy.

Today sees the second performances of Mrs. Wallace Reid's biggest and greatest production, Broken Laws, at the Broadway theatre. Yesterday's capacity audiences were thrilled an inspired by the magnificent drama is today, dealing with motherhood and the law. The last chance to enjoy Mrs Reid's fine photoplay is Wednesday night.

Broken Laws has not only proved one of the most vital and needed messages brought to this city in years, but it is entertaining and interesting throughout. It tells a story without seeming to; it instructs and entertains at the same time and accomplishes the double purpose of making better citizens while carrying them away from the humdrum of their daily existence. With a splendid cast, magnificent settings and action from the start, Broken Laws is one of the finest photodramas of the year.

Breed Theater

Mae Murray believes in doing things differently. She designs her own clothes, creates all her dances and, with the aid of her director-husband, Robert Z. Leonard, selects her own stories.

Her most recently completed picture, Circe the Enchantress, written especially for her by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and tomorrow and according to all reports is in keeping with Miss Murray's policy of originality.

Miss Murray's part is unusual. As Circe, she appears as the mythical goddess of Greece who transformed men into swine, and her modern prototype, a siren of New Orleans and New York. In the latter role, she is given an opportunity of wearing more than thirty complete changes of gowns and dresses. She performs two dances in the picture which are different from anything she has previously done before the camera.

Circe the Enchantress is a Tiffany production released by Metro-Goldwyn.

The Pathe news and an Imperial will make up the remainder of the bill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Sunday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Talbot, on the West Side, funeral services were conducted for William Orrin Tewgood, 63, who died Thursday at the home of his son, Dr. Arthur S. Tewgood, at Memphis, Tenn.

The service was conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church. Music at the service was by a quartet of the Baptist church—Earl Winslow, George Clisbee, George Gunther and Gordon Gale. Their numbers were One Sweetly Solemn Thought and Jesus, Saviour of My Soul. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Joseph W. Burton, George Robertson, Walter Allen and Samuel Boyd. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Mr. Tewgood leaves his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Sheldon Mayo, both residents in Worcester; a daughter, Mrs. G. H. Johnson, of Philadelphia; a son, Scott Tewgood, of Chicago; a son, Dr. Merton Tewgood, of Washington, D. C.; a sister, Mrs. Thomas O. Talbot, and a brother, Henry Tewgood, both of Danielson.

At Goodyear electricians are at work with the installation of equipment required to provide for operation of the plant on a 100 per cent. electrified basis. Transformers have been put in place. Other equipment is being put in. When the work now under way is completed the mill will be deriving all but about 300 horsepower of the 1,400 to 1,500 horsepower required to operate the mill from high tension lines of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company. About 300 of the required horsepower of the plant is derived from the concern's water privilege on the Quinebaug, but for the past year the low water, due to an abnormally small rainfall, has not been of as much value as usual.

Machines of the Goodyear plant are equipped with motors and under the new arrangement the plant, insofar as power is concerned, will be as modern as any in this section of eastern Connecticut.

Under the new arrangement the power plant of the Goodyear mills that stands opposite the main plant will remain idle excepting as to furnishing heat and light.

It is likely that the mill will require no much as 2,000 horsepower in the not distant future, for additional twisters are to be installed in the plant to meet the production needs as they are developing at the present time.

The Goodyear mills are operating on a full time schedule and indications are that 1925 will be a very prosperous year with the concern. This concern manufactures exclusively for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., fabrics for automobile and motorcycle tires. This great corporation also is operating at the present time another plant, the Passaic mills, in New Bedford, in the manufacture of the fabric for the great plants at Akron.

This is the railroad company's day in court—the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad. It has been said in print recently that happens not in The Bulletin—that the passenger station here is closed Sunday evenings and that thereby a hardship has been visited upon patrons of the road who happened to be waiting to take trains for their destinations. They have been required, as left to stand out in nearness thereof and to suffer the consequences thereof.

It so happens that this is not true. The passenger station is open every Sunday evening from 20 to 25 minutes before the advertised time of arrival of the northbound train, due here at 6:01 p. m. The station is closed after the departure of this train, but is reopened from 20 to 25 minutes before the southbound boat train, due here at 8:06, is expected to arrive, and is kept open until after the departure of this train. These are the facts.

Railroad officials expressed on Sunday some concern that statements to the effect that the station is closed Sunday evenings at train time should be published and, as a consequence, now generally believed. Much more truth than has may be desired as to railroad service by Danielson, but, at least, its passenger station is open on Sunday evenings at train time, and there is nothing to indicate that there is any intention to alter this arrangement.

Up at the Hygeia reservoir, near East Killingly, where much of the ice supply of Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly is harvested each year, ice was approximately 15 inches thick on Sunday and all ready for harvesting. Like practically all of the ice cut in this territory to date this winter, the ice up there is crystal clear and free from snow. Consumers of the ice supply that will be offered to the trade in Danielson this year are assured of about the best ice they have purchased in years. The winter up to now has been cold enough, but free from thawing and snowy periods such as usually come when the ice crop is in the making. The result is an A-1 ice crop.

Excavators claim that there is nearly two and a half feet of frost in the ground, an incident to be mentioned in connection with the fact that ice on some ponds is as heavy as 15 inches.

Maybe there isn't any advantage in it, but Moosup pond is about the only watering resort that is getting into the news in January excepting Atlantic City—and Moosup pond is doing it with a flivver and a patch of woods, whereas Atlantic City has that famous boardwalk.

GILPATRIC'S FATHER SUES FOR STOCK WORTH $6,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 11.—In the bankruptcy court at Hartford, of which Edward M. Yeomans of that city is trustee, George W. Gilpatric has filed a petition asking to have returned to him 449 shares of the stock of the Whipple & Gilpatric Coal and Wood Company, now in the name of his son, G. Harold Gilpatric, and which were turned in as part of the bankrupt estate of the latter.

The petition recites that George W. Gilpatric and H. S. Whipple, both of Putnam, were, prior to August 13, 1921, engaged as equal partners in the coal and lumber business. On that date the concern was organized as a corporation with 900 shares of stock of the par value of $100 each. When the shares were issued 449 were made out to Mr. Whipple, 449 to G. Harold Gilpatric, one to George W. Gilpatric, and one to Mrs. Whipple.

The elder Gilpatric deposes that these shares were really his property and that he had full confidence that his son would control the stock for his, the elder Gilpatric's benefit.

But the shares were hypothecated by G. Harold Gilpatric with City Bank and Trust Co., of Hartford as security for a loan on a promissory note of $6,000. It is further set forth in the petition that after Agust 1, 1924, the note, with the stock as security, was bought by the First National Bank of Putnam, and it is further asserted that it is the belief and understanding of the petitioner that there is an agreement between the trustees of the estate and the receiver of the First National bank that the stock is to be turned over to the trustees upon payment of the loan of $6,000.

Mr. Gilpatric says that he is ready to pay what liens there may be against the stock and asks that it be turned over to him as it is his own property.

Holden and Peck, of Hartford, are the attorneys for George W. Gilpatric. The hearing on the petition is set for January 21.

Another suit resulting from the misappropriations of G. Harold Gilpatric is that of the heirs and trustee of the estate of Joseph W. Cutler, of Putnam, of which Gilpatric was executor and trustee, which has been brought in the Hartford County Superior court against the United Indemnity Company of New York to recover $40,000 which Gilpatric is alleged to have converted to his own use. These companies furnished his bond.

The heirs are Mary Josephine Cutler, of Taunton, Mass., and Annie G. Cutler of Putnam. The trustees, which has succeeded Mr. Gilpatric is the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company, and it is a party to the suit.

It is alleged in the petition that the amount misused by Gilpatric is $34,-765.06, with interest. John W. Joy is the attorney for the plaintiff.

SCHOOL PHYSICIAN REPORTS MOST THOROUGH WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 11.—The following report by Dr. George T. Lamarche, school physician, for the term ending Dec. 31, 1924, has been presented to the town school committee:

To the School Committee of the Town of Putnam:

In presenting this report to you personally I am departing from the custom of former years, but I thought you might like to hear directly from your school physician and perhaps would like to ask for additional information relative to the work being done by the health staff in the schools of Putnam.

The physical records brought to your attention are those of the first four months of the present term and include the work done at the parochial schools. Though these schools are not under your jurisdiction, at the same time it was through the action of this committee that all the children of this locality had the great privilege of this medical inspection, and I feel sure you will be interested in the health condition of that half of our young generation. It will also permit you to compare with the other half, of which I will give you the report at the end of the year.

I have examined 772 pupils from the first of December to the middle of December. Every child has been measured, weighed, the lungs and hearts examined as well as the teeth and throats and ears; physical defects looked for, and a careful examination made of the eyes. Everything was recorded and is on file in this office.

Here is the result of this inspection: Only 74 pupils were found in perfect health. By "perfect health" I mean that every question on the record was answered satisfactorily. Nutrition, pulse, vision, hearing, tonsils, heart and lungs were found in perfect condition. Regarding nutrition, I found 398 children of normal weight; 198 fair (those who were not more than 5 per cent. under weight); 135 with poor nutrition. There are in this school 16 per cent. of the children not properly nourished.

Regarding teeth, 184 children have teeth in first class condition, including quite a few who had the help of the school dentist; 334 had teeth in fair condition, those who had not more than one or two teeth affected; 238 were really bad, an average of 32 per cent. This average is a great deal lower than when these examinations were begun, due to dental treatment.

Regarding tonsils and adenoids, I found 168 children affected with enlarged tonsils and adenoids, or 21 per cent. I am glad to tell you that I have succeeded in having a clinic established at the Day Kimball hospital. Every Saturday afternoon Dr. Payne is willing to treat children with affected tonsils at a fee commensurate with the means of the parents, and the authorities of the hospital have consented to the arrangement.

As to sight, there are 106 children in the school with defective vision. Many of them have already consulted Dr. Burroughs, who holds a clinic at the Day Kimball hospital every Thursday forenoon. He works on the same principle as Dr. Payne.

I found 26 with disturbances of the lungs. They were advised to consult Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich, who holds a clinic at the Day Kimball hospital once a month. Of those who have seen him he has not found a case of active tuberculosis.

There are 23 orthopedic cases, some of them permanent. The others have been advised to follow some system of physical culture suited to their ailments.

There are 14 cases of heart disease; 34 of defective hearing.

During the period that this report covers we have vaccinated 32 children, and I am glad to announce that every child has now been vaccinated, excepting those who had certificates from their family physician. The state commissioner of health has given his felicitations to Putnam as being the only town in the state where this work has been done so thoroughly.

Scarlet fever made its appearance here Oct. 7th, and Oct. 15th 29 children at Israel Putnam school were found to be lightly affected, and 26 children were excluded because they lived in houses where the disease was. On Oct. 23d I directed the school nurse to examine every child in this school every day for symptoms of the disease and report to me any suspects. We kept up that daily inspection until the 1st of December, when your committee decided to close this school. It was kept closed for five days.

In my judgment the situation could have been better controlled and the health of the children more closely safeguarded by keeping the school open. But the parents of the children were frightened, taking their children out of school, causing a loss in studies to all the pupils; so the committee, in its wisdom, deemed it best to close the school entirely for this time.

There has been one case of diphtheria at the high school. The pupils at the school were all examined, and the nurse was sent to the patient to see that all due precautions were observed.

I desire to offer a suggestion relative to poor nutrition among the children. We have a clinic for tonsils and adenoids, for defective vision and for the tubercular. What we need now is to give all the help possible where undernutrition is indicated. The forenoon hours at school are long, and we have found that many children arrive in the morning who have not had sufficient nourishment. Unless this condition can be corrected, I fear that we will have to keep Dr. Campbell with us for a long time, for the bacillus of consumption likes an empty stomach. It seems to me that at the 10 o'clock recess there ought to be a lunch for every child, at least a glass of milk. Would it not be possible to establish at our town farm a dairy which would be able to furnish a glass of milk daily to every undernourished child in our schools?

Respectfully submitted.

G. T. LAMARCHE,
School Physician.

UNCLE SAM'S RESPONSIBILITY.

... a big responsibility on ... shoulders, but it would involve nothing ... new, for this country has ... desire than the continuation ... establishment of friendship with ... nations. Thus it is quite evident that it desires a general spirit of friendship among all nations.

Just at this time, though not with the Paris statement in mind, the administration at Washington has taken a stand in behalf of continued peace through its opposition to the elevation of guns on a dozen of the battleships. It is not to be regarded as meaning that gun elevation will not get proper consideration when the time comes for the building of new vessels, but gun elevation on the warships of the various nations varies. It is the belief of this government that gun elevation could be carried out without violating the treaty, but it realizes that just the moment it reverts to such navy strengthening it will simply be a signal to the other nations to proceed to do likewise, and the outcome will be a general return to that competition in naval construction under treaty interpretations that ... soon got us back to that situation ... prevailed before the Washington conference was held.

BLOCKING RENT GOUGERS.

... in Washington is a question which ... bothered for a considerable ... Getting to a point where ... complaints were coming more rapidly ... and realizing that the situation ... for a remedy the president has ... to the situation to the extent ... having the department of justice ... an investigation, of having the department of commerce look ... the matter of vacant houses and ... apartments here and of having the ... chairman of the rent commission of the District of Columbia draw up a ... bill to establish a fair system of rents ... and put an end to the injustices that ... prevail.

The result of these efforts has been ... to produce facts upon which to bring ... about a much needed regulation of the rent situation. It has thrown ... light upon the practices of pyramiding mortgages, making false sales to increase values and other acts which have been detrimental to the rent payers.

Whatever is done in the way of legislation rests with congress. The proposed bill for meeting the situation has been turned over to congress. The president has no authority to do other than he has done, but he has paved the way for what seems to be a needed reform.

That it doesn't please the realtors may seem natural. It could hardly be expected to satisfy those who have been gouging the public, but the situation has gotten to the point where those who are going to be brought into line by the proposed legislation must convince congress that they have done nothing wrong. If they can do that all well and good. If they are entitled to all that they claim they must face and overpower some strong departmental facts.

When there is a studied effort to take advantage of others, it is the lesson of experience that those responsible for it can be expected to be brought to task sooner or later. That seems to be the situation in Washington now with the realtors. Not being willing to do the right thing as the investigators claim they must now deal with congress. When rent gouging can be shown little sympathy can be expected.

FIREPROOF BUILDINGS.

When the wooden building which shelters 53 children at Hartford was threatened by fire the youngsters, ranging in age from 5 to 16, walked out in the fire drill without harm. This was a home maintained for Hebrew children and the fire did little damage, being caused by the chimney, but being a wooden structure it displayed the menace which exists in such a building when used for such a purpose.

While this is not a state institution it serves nevertheless to give emphasis to the recommendation made last week by Governor Bingham in his inaugural address for the adoption of a definite plan of reorganization and reconstruction so that in the course of time the fire hazard in state institutions which are not fireproof could be largely eliminated. And with the same thing in mind he urged sufficient appropriations in the future so that new structures may be of fireproof construction.

This gives due recognition to the responsibility of the state in safeguarding its wards quite the same as helping them mentally, physically and morally. It doesn't mean that present buildings should be abandoned, but that safeguards be established, and due attention given to the matter of fireproofing when new work is undertaken.

It is a policy which is being followed in connection with certain of the state institutions, and the desire is an excellent one that it should become a fixed policy before the state finds its hands forced through some frightful affair involving its unfortunates.

CONGESTION, YESTERDAY AND TODAY.

Some idea of what the demands for highway purposes in the future may be is to be gained from the plan to build a new cement road east out of New York that will serve to relieve the vast amount of travel that is now encountered on the Boston post road. Estimates running to $10,000,000 are made as to the expense of such construction.

For the past several years attention has been attracted by the great volume of traffic between Bridgeport and New York over this very road which New York is making plans to relieve. The idea of a new highway that would parallel the present one has even been advocated in this state. When New York makes its start it can be expected that pressure will be placed upon Connecticut to do its part and complete the job.

In the past when transportation agencies have been unable to meet requirements, or when existing lines have been unable to avoid congestion, it has been a case of railroad companies widening their roadbed, laying more rails and providing more equipment, or routing business over other and less used lines.

The automobile has congested the highways and when it comes to relieving that situation the demand is for public funds with which to do it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Now it is Senator Hiram Bingham and Connecticut is satisfied.

A shortage of rain is said to menace Maine mills, but then Maine always claimed to be dry.

There's no disposition to complain because the weatherman has refused to follow prognostications.

The man on the corner says: Only one guess is needed these days as to what makes the ice man smile.

Care should be taken to interpret traffic regulations by the way they read and not by the way you think they should be.

If the advice to eliminate all but the needed legislation is heeded the 1925 general assembly ought to be able to quit early.

Scientists now declare there's no immediate danger of an ice age. That will be disappointing to the possessors of new skates.

When Mexico cuts its army by more than a fifth it is taking a daring step in behalf of peace and may hope to relieve a labor shortage.

Because the silver dollars are as large and cumbersome as ever there is complaint. If they were as thin as tin there would also be criticism.

Has it brought any special happiness to you to learn that the new income tax blanks are ready and that they are more complicated than last year?

Senator Dial has withdrawn his speech regarding the democratic senators, of which he is one, but he probably got a lot of satisfaction in getting it out of his system.

Ten days have been enough to bring out some of the absurdities in our new traffic regulations, and absurdities neither relieve congestion nor serve public convenience.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Don't accumulate rubbish.

Wipe out the bathtub with kerosene and make it shine.

Old nightgowns are splendid covers to protect one's best frocks while hanging in the closet.

Never allow clothes to become so out of press that the first creases are gone. They will never look new again, even after pressing.

Close the piano on a damp day.

A stone jar is an excellent cookie holder.

Washable dresses are the only sensible kind for kitchen wear.

Try giving the under-nourished child weak cocoa, if he does not care for milk.

Use cheesecloth for dusting. It will absorb the dirt and is very readily washed out.

Soak the lamp wick in strong vinegar and dry it well before using. This will prevent the lamp from smoking.

The albumen in eggs when hardened is rendered indigestible. Soft-boiled eggs are more easily digested than hard-boiled ones.

Hunger often keeps one awake. A glass of warm milk or well-made cocoa taken at bedtime will often send one off to sleep almost at once.

Never beat or stir cereals or rice with a spoon. It makes them pasty. Use a silver plated fork.

The unpleasant odor which arises from the boiling of cabbage or cauliflower may be entirely prevented by placing a slice of bread over them while cooking.

When making yourself a cup of cocoa or chocolate try the experiment of adding a tiny piece of cinnamon. The flavor is greatly improved and the drink seems richer even though you may have been sparing with the milk.

Add half a cupful of vinegar to half a pint of water, wring a large, clean cloth out of this and go over your carpet with wide strokes. You will be greatly pleased with the improvement in the color.

CHEESECLOTH FOR DISHCLOTH

One of the best kind of dishcloths are made of cheesecloth. The material should be doubled, raw edges turned in and stitched on the machine. This will wear, and because it cleans so easily is most sanitary. Rinsing soap and water will be all that is necessary for cleansing.

BED LAMPS

When making the attractive reading lamps that clamp on the headboard of the bed, it is wise to make the inner-most lining of either white or cream-colored silk. It will create a much brighter light for reading than when a vivid color is used. The light lining may then be covered with the shade desired.

A BOTTLE FOR BLUING

Cover the hair tonic bottle which has a device for permitting only a few drops to fall at a time, into a bottle for bluing. The amount of bluing may then be easily controlled and the fingers will not be stained after the operations as with the ordinary bottle of blue.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Don't eat heavily when very tired.

Lemon juice or peel will remove many stains from the hands.

Don't give patent medicines to the baby unless indorsed by the family physician.

If eye and mouth wrinkles have already appeared paint the places with white of egg before retiring for the night. Next morning wash off the egg plasters with tepid water.

Decay is frequent in children's teeth. It should not be neglected. The pulp of the tooth may die and infection set in around the tooth, giving pain and often causing the permanent teeth to come out crooked.

Never clean the finger nails with a sharp-pointed instrument, and never cut them without first soaking the hands in warm water at least five minutes. If the finger nails are stained, try dipping them in a cup of warm, soft water, to which a teaspoon of lemon juice has been added.

VARIABLE COIFFURE

One can have either a bob or a formal coiffure today, if not for the asking, at least for the paying. One hairdresser here makes a special of transformations. Each is fitted to the shape of the head and is the exact tone of the customer's hair. One braid, which encircles the back of the head, changes an afternoon bob to an evening coiffure.

A SAFETY DEVICE

A piece fo cardboard cut with a circle in the middle to fit around the door bell or speaking tube when cleaning or polishing will prove a great protection to the surrounding woodwork.

TARNISHED SILVERWARE

When cleaning silver put two quarts of water in an old aluminum kettle. Add two tablespoons salt and one of soda, letting it come to a boil. Then put the silver in this for a few minutes. It will not harm the silver but will remove the tarnish.

NEW APRON EFFECTS

Aprons have never been more popular than now. The latest apron effects on evening frocks are smocked on to the skirt just below the waistline and consist of transparent tissues painted or stenciled in the gayest of colors. Another apron conceit is composed entirely of bead fringe.

USE ELECTRIC FAN TO WARM A COLD ROOM

If when winter really sets in, which it is bound to do before so very long, and you find, if you have steam or hot water heat in your home, that one of the radiators is not keeping the room in which it is located as warm as it should, don't get excited and send a hurry call for your steamfitter. Instead, all you need to do is get out your electric fan. Place it about a foot from the radiator, facing it so that the breeze will blow directly at the radiator, and having connected the fan to a convenient outlet, turn it on. If the room is cold, let the fan run at high speed until the temperature of the room is that of the rest of the house. Then turn the switch in the base of the fan to low speed and the fan will keep the room as warm as you could ask. If the room is only just cool, start the electric fan and keep it running at low speed.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Don't wear a long tunic blouse if you are very big above the waist.

Don't wear a blouse of contrasting color unless you are slim.

Don't forget that a beautiful overblouse is the better half of a smart afternoon costume.

Cunning little coats of soft red wool trimmed with beaver or opposum have tiny close-fitting hats to match.

Frocks for the girl of 2 are of bright red crepe and chiffon.

Handkerchief points of chiffon that hang below the hem of a frock are a favorite trimming for dance frocks.

The vogue of leopard skin and chipmunk prints is realized in ribbons as well as in fabrics. Chenille cords give the furry effect.

Nearly all the walking dresses popular today are decorated with buttons in more or less elaborate designs at front and hip.

Undercoats are worn under many of the new type of coats, giving the warmth that is necessary without the use of heavy, bulky materials.

The newest fur collars are almost exact reproductions of a narrow pillow muff in alternate bands of contrasting fur.

There's a suggestion of the drop shoulder about the new sleeve line that is much more flattering than the hollowed-out line, which leaves the shoulder exposed.

The smartest overblouses to wear with sport suits are of flannel in fine stripes. They are made like a man's shirt and are exceptionally good looking.

The woman who travels will welcome a kimono of china silk inclosed in its monogrammed silk case. It folds up perfectly flat and altogether does not take up more than five inches.

Fine feathers make fine birds and plenty of them are being used on spring garment models. One coat of black satin is heavily adorned with large flower designs formed by pasting small feathers in their natural colorings on the material.

The latest coat sleeve design can have been inspired by nothing else than a funnel. From elbow to wrist it flares widely, but at the elbow it joins the tightest of tight sleeves which extend without a wrinkle to the shoulder.

STYLES FOR SPRING

Spring suits already are worrying the designers. A sketch just completed in one of the ateliers for such a costume shows a three-quarter coat of gray duvetyn, closed with frogs down the front placed closely together and with a high standing collar and cuffs of gray squirrel. The pockets are concealed by huge double tabs of gray fur.

SMART STREET GLOVES

The heavier and looser the glove for walking costumes, the smarter at present, provided the hand within the glove be small. Chamois slip-in gloves with a center gusset in the cuff and gathered at the wrist by an invisible elastic band are very popular especially in white instead of the natural chamois color.

PEAKED CROWN HATS

There is undeniable piquancy about these small high-crowned hats, especially when they are topped by an amusing little bird, a nosegay or a pert little bow. Very new are hats of white felt trimmed with a tiny parrot.

SEWING HINTS

Every woman who has mending or sewing to do will appreciate gifts in the way of sewing equipment that will save her time, strength and nerves. When the homemaker must be cook, nurse, seamstress, janitress and a dozen other persons combined she will appreciate all the more the thoughtfulness that prompts the selection of gifts which help toward fitting out a well-ordered workshop where her implements can be kept in some sort of system, and thus keep the rest of the house free from the confusion of sewing and mending.

Among the things needed to make a sewing room ideal are a lap board, a skirt marker, shears scissors, buttonhole scissors, emerys, a yard stick, a tape measure, tracing wheel, tailors' chalk.

Many of these handy or essential little contrivances that help save time, strength and money in sewing, one can pick up at the notion counters, and cost so little as to be a positive inspiration to the Christmas shopper, but which the economical woman often feels that she must not buy for herself.

When the needle of your sewing machine becomes dull, stitch for several minutes through a piece of fine sandpaper.

SCARF EASILY COPIED

From Paris comes a scarf that may be copied without much difficulty. It is a long strip of white chiffon which has a square of gold lace set into each end and below the lace a band of ermine or white fox. A similar scarf is of black chiffon bordered with chinchilla and with silver instead of gold lace.

PORK AND APPLES

Pork and apples go so well together that it is rather unusual for pork to be served without applesauce. But the art of preparing them together, their flavors intermingled by far surpass the old method of cooking them individually. The new way of combining them is a simple one and worth while knowing and trying.

Select chops from the loin or ribs. Dip each in egg, which has been beaten with one tablespoonful of milk, then dip in fine dry bread crumbs and brown quickly in a pan with plenty of hot fat. Remove the chops and place in a baking dish. Dust the chops with salt, pepper and a little thyme. Place on each chop half a red apple cut crosswise and cored, but not pared. Pour over all half a cupful of boiling water and set in a hot oven to bake until the apples and pork are tender, adding more water if necessary. Garnish with parsely when serving.

SILVERFISH

These rather pretty pearl-gray insects are decided pests and steps should be taken to get rid of them. They feed on starched clothing, linens, book bindings and many other like things. Mix one half ounce of white arsenic with one pint of flour and add water to make a thin paste. Spread on pieces of cardboard and place in their haunts. You will recognize silverfish immediately just by their name, as that exactly describes them. Remember that arsenic is poisonous and care should be taken where it is placed.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Out of every 50,000 girls in England, 6,819 are named Mary.

Mrs. Leila Black Arnstein of Knoxville is Tennessee's first woman magistrate.

Queen Mary always makes Christmas presents of dresses to the women servants employed in the royal household.

Mrs. James A. Patton, wife of the one-time Chicago Wheat King, is one of the most successful goat-farmers in America.

Among the women of the United States, 187,863 are registered as farm owners, 770 as farm managers and 72,801 as tenant farmers.

Miss Millicent Woodward, an English girl who holds the typewriting championship of Europe has her fingers insured for $25,000.

British girls carried off the high speed typewriting and "perfect correspondence" prizes at an all-Europe contest recently held in Paris.

A coveted position in the British medical profession has been won by a woman doctor, who is still under 30, Dr. S. G. Overton. The post to which she has been appointed is that of Medical Inspector of Factories to the Home Office.

A LOOSE CASTOR

A narrow strip of adhesive tape wound tightly around the stem of the loose castor until it fits the casing will keep it from continually slipping out.

GOOD PLANNING

Do you picture your dinner as well as combine it satisfactorily as to taste? A combination of colors in vegetables makes the dinner more appetizing just because it pleases the eye.

RECIPES

Chocolate Jumbles— 1-3 cup melted butter or other fat, one cup sugar, 2 squares chocolate, grated; two eggs, two cups pastry flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon milk, flour to roll out, colored granulated sugar. Cream butter and sugar, add beaten eggs, chocolate, milk and flour sifted twice with baking powder. Toss mass onto baking board and roll to one-inch thick; cut with doughnut cutter. Before placing on cookie sheet dust each one with colored sugar and bake 10 minutes. These jumbles are attractive for stringing on the tree.

Pecan Pralines—Two pounds brown sugar, one cup water or condensed milk, two tablespoons butter or other fat, one pound shelled pecans. Pecans should be very clean, some cut into fine pieces, some in halves and some in quarters. Place in saucepan and stir until it begins to boil; then allow it to reach the soft-ball stage (240 degrees Fahrenheit) without stirring. Remove from the fire and as soon as it becomes cool add the nuts, stirring fast until the sugar granulates around the nuts. With large spoon drop in small cakes on waxed paper. Almonds, brazils or peanuts may be used, but the distinctive "Creole" praline is always made with pecans.

Enrollment of Aliens

Mr. Editor: Upon my return from South America, where I examined immigration conditions, my attention has been called to the editorial entitled "The Illegal Entrants" in your issue of December 9th. I wish to express my appreciation of the clarity and logic, appreciation of the clarity and logic of your editorial, for it sets forth clearly the problem with which we have to deal.

For several years we have been committed to a policy of restriction in our immigration laws, under the so-called quota limitation enactments. But it is significant that last year some 3,500,000 immigrants entered this country through out seaports and over our land borders, a number which approximates the largest immigration in the years when we did not attempt to restrict immigration. Those who came under quota limitation were less than 360,000. To a large extent this wide margin is explained by the fact that no quota limitations apply to Canada, Mexico or the countries of Central and South America. Immigration from Canada and Mexico has increased tremendously in recent years, and the exemption of our land borders from the quota law makes those countries a logical base for the smugglers of aliens who, coming from abroad, would be unable to enter at a seaport. We have locked the front gate and left the back door open.

The number of aliens entering the country illegally cannot of course be ascertained, but competent authorities estimate it at about 175,000 a year. It is plain that we cannot expect good citizenship from aliens whose first contact with the United States is through violation of her laws, and defiance of her authority.

I believe we should extend our quota limitations to apply to Canada and Mexico, and I am confident that we would have the cooperation of both of those countries in enforcing it. Thus we would remove a part at least of the temptation which lies before the smuggler of aliens. But there is one practical, feasible method of putting a stop to this constant influx of illegal immigrants. That is through the annual enrollment of our alien population.

While not primarily designed for this purpose, my proposal for enrollment would accomplish it. The plan is put forward to provide means for the education of every alien in this country in American customs, our language, our ideals and our institutions. Today the alien, unfamiliar with American customs and usually unable to speak our language, is left wholly upon his own resources immediately upon his admission to our country. It is small wonder that in some cases he may fall an easy victim to those who would exploit him or to those who preach economic, political and social heresies subversive of our whole system of government. Unrest and dissatisfaction are bred of ignorance and we owe to America and to the alien the duty of eliminating that ignorance.

This enrollment plan would enable us to show the alien who is here in violation of our laws, who has been smuggled into the country, and the alien who is here to preach the downfall of all law and order.

Yours truly,
JAMES J. DAVIS
Secretary Dept. of Labor
Washington, Jan. 8, 1925.

Hecksher Hit Hard By a Panic

Having pledged everything he had made in his struggle from boyhood August Hecksher fought valiently to save his fortune—then came a panic that wrecked the bank, in which was all his money.

Born in Hamburg, Germany, he attended public school there. Desiring to be a merchant, he quit high school at 13, was sent to a school in Switzerland and afterward was apprenticed to an importing concern at Hamburg. After three years of hard work he ... decided this ... wanted to come to America.

... his parents' consent by promising ... to never send for more money, he started at 19 with $500 and landed in New York during the depression following the Civil war, a stranger unable to speak English.

Within three months he had mastered the tongue, then went to work in the office of his cousin's coal mine at Shenandoah, Pa. Two weeks after his arrival his cousin was taken sick and Hecksher, without previous mining experience, had to take charge for two years during times when mining was rough and hazardous. He acquired an interest and continued until the mine was sold 13 years later.

Having organized the Lehigh Zinc & Iron Company, he put his share of the proceeds of the mine sale into it. Just averting a failure, the company bought land in New Jersey and found the richest zinc deposit in the country.

The New Jersey Zinc Company claimed the land and won its fight in the lower courts. Hecksher pledged all his money in the suit and went to Belgium, where he ... covered evidence that promised to bring victory. Then came the panic that swept away his funds. Now at 42 his future looked dark.

Borrowing from a banker whom he knew only slightly, he fought the suit and won after a ten-year battle. This made him and his partners rich, the two zinc companies were merged and Hecksher was made manager of the enlarged New Jersey Zinc Company. He invested in real estate, became interested in many other concerns, and resigned from the company at 56.

Today, at 76, he is one of New York's richest men and is highly respected for his business and charitable activities.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Viscount Lee of Fareham, who has been created a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India, is well known on this side of the Atlantic. During the Spanish-American war, when he was Sir Arthur Lee, he was an official observer with the ... and tactics at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ontario. He was a close personal friend of the late President Roosevelt and he has a further tie with America by his marriage to an American woman. In addition to his long military record, including active service in the World war, Viscount Lee has been a member of parliament for over 20 years and has filled several important cabinet positions. But perhaps his best claim to remembrance by the English nation lies in the fact that in 1917 he presented Chequers, his magnificent country estate to the nation to provide a suitable residence for the prime ministers.

Stories That Recall Others

Owed Much to His State

He was admiring the soldiers monument as many a stranger does, when a Civil war veteran happened to pass. "That certainly is a fine monument," said the visitor, "beautiful, artistic, inspiring."

"Yes," replied the Civil war vetejan, "we are proud of it and we veterans of the Civil war love and cherish it."

"Yes, that's fine," said the stranger, "But do you know if it had not been for my state you would not now have such a grand monument."

"Indeed, sah; I'm from South Carolina."

RETIRES AFTER TERM OF 10 YEARS AS SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

The election of officers at the Central Baptist Sunday school at its noon session Sunday brought sincere regret to the membership when it was learned that James L. Case, superintendent for the last ten years, had definitely declined to be considered for re-election. Mr. Case has filled the office with singular fidelity and ability for a decade, during which each year has been marked by steady progress in various lines under his leadership which has enlisted whole-hearted support and cooperation from officers, teachers and the membership.

This feature was emphasized in the annual report which Mr. Case read before the school, which he made a review of the ten years of his administration, mentioning the significant points of progress which have marked each year. The school enrollment in the past year was 824 and the total attendance 16,752, an average of 322, which is the largest in the history of the school. Fifty five from the school have joined the church by baptism, the largest number for any year in the ten year period.

In making mention of the fact that 16 members had been present every session during the past year, Mr. Case spoke particularly of the remarkable record of Horace F. Church who for twenty five consecutive years has maintained a perfect attendance record at the school, not having missed a session in that time.

Annual reports were presented by the secretary, Miss Bessie A. Grimes, and the treasurer, N. Eugene Smith, and were accepted and approved.

The nominating committee, C. Edward Smith, A. F. Wyman and Miss Helen B. Moore, presented the following list of names for officers, who were unanimously elected:

Superintendent, Harold S. Burt; assistant superintendent, C. Edward Smith; assistant superintendent, Richard Young; assistant superintendent, Edward Y. Messinger; secretary, Willis P. Hill; assistant secretary, William M. Wyman; treasurer, N. Eugene Smith; assistant treasurer, Ledlie Pitt; chorister, Frederick J. Maples; auditor, Gilbert S. Raymond.

Following the election, Mr. Case was called before the school by Deacon C. Edward Smith, who surprised the retiring superintendent by presenting him a purse of $25 in gold from members of the school. Deacon Smith accompanied the purse with a sincere expression of the gratitude which the school membership felt towards Mr. Case for his leadership and Mr. Case responded feelingly with words of appreciation for the spirit expressed by the gift and assured the school that his interest in it would not be withdrawn because he was not holding an official position but would be continued through the coming years.

PONEMAH MILL EMPLOYES RETURNING UNDER PROTEST

At a meeting of the Taftville Mule Spinners association, held Sunday night in the village it was voted to return to work at the Ponemah Mills this (Monday) morning under protest with future action subject to the action taken by New Bedford textile operatives.

The action of the Taftville Mule Spinners association followed the posting of notices in the Ponemah mills, that beginning January 12th a wage cut would be made and that the mills would endeavor to operate on full time. No mention of the amount of the cut was made in the notice posted in the mills, but it was stated that the mill would endeavor to operate on a full time schedule.

Vice President Thomas Addison of the National Mule Spinners association of America, who recently returned from Fall River, Mass., where he had been attending a national meeting stated Sunday night that the operatives at the mill were returning under protest, subject to action taken this week by New Bedford textile operatives. The cut proposed by the Ponemah company he said was approximately 11 per cent and would affect about 1695 operatives at the mills.

Action taken Sunday night at the meeting would indicate the same action as is taken in New Bedford and another meeting some time this week.

The Ponemah Mills have been working on part time for the winter months and on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock closed down for the day because of low water. This shut-down was taken, it is said, to conserve water and enable the mills to reopen today (Monday) and continue on full time. The shutting down of mills in Occum and Baltic it is claimed, prevents water coming through for use by the Ponemah mills.

Notice of a cut in wages probably the same as those to be made in the Ponemah company was posted at the plant of the Baltic Mills company in Baltic last week and will affect about 560 employes of the plant. No notice of action taken by the operatives of this mill has been made public but it is believed likely that they are following the lead of the Taftville operatives and are waiting action by this body.

RETURNS FROM VISIT TO HIS HOME TOWN

During his long stay in Italy where he visited with relatives, James D'Atri of 33 Main street, visited several places of note. Mr. D'Atri left Norwich on June 15, 1924, and sailed for Italy on the 17th on the S. S. Duilio, arriving in Naples on June 27th.

From there he went to his home town, Caramanico, and on the 28th was given a big welcome home celebration by townspeople. After staying with relatives for several weeks he visited places of interest in Milan, Bologno and Rome, visiting St. Peter's cathedral while in Rome.

Returning to the native city of Caramanico, noted for its sulphur baths and hotels, he witnessed one of the hardest snow storms he had ever seen. In some places nearly 10 feet of snow fell, covering vineyards and small buildings. The snow quickly disappeared in a few days doing little damage to property or crops.

Mr. D'Atri left for home on the S. S. Duilio on December 15th and arrived in Norwich on Dec. 25—Christmas—where he was tendered a homecoming party.

Mr. D'Atri came to this city about 35 years ago and has made two trips to his home city to visit with relatives. He is prominent among the Italian residents of Norwich and has many friends among citizens of other nationalities.

NORWICH ICEMEN ARE GETTING THEIR CROP

Ice men of Norwich are smiling now for they have harvested a good portion of their ice crop with which they will supply local housekeepers and stores next summer.

By Sunday night Ford's ice pond at East Great Plain had been more than half cut and the ice piled into the houses. Similar action has been taking place at ponds owned by Bates, Kramer and other icemen of the city.

The ice cutting as in past years has attracted many people to the several ponds being cut and the weather has been ideal for several days past for this work.

United Workers Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the United Workers will be held on Wednesday evening of this week at the Community House as advertised and should be largely attended. It is the only public meeting of this organization and opportunity is given those interested to hear of the work of the five departments, their growth and their needs. The United Workers has grown to fill a large place in the life of Norwich and its work should command interest. Reports of the work, however, will be condensed in order to give the distinguished speaker of the evening, Owen R. Lovejoy, time to talk on the subjects of Child Welfare and the Child Labor Amendment. Mr. Lovejoy has devoted his life to the interests of children and no-one is better qualified to speak for them. A large audience should be present to greet him.

The trouble with the man who knows nothing is that he is always the last to find it out.

NOLLES ARE ENTERED IN THEATRE CASES

For violation of the law on minors attending the theatre unaccompanied by parents or guardians, Edward L. McEvoy, manager of the Palace theater, and Joseph Nejime, manager of the Breed theatre, were before the city court Saturday morning, their cases having been continued from a previous presentation. The evidence presented against the Palace was secured on Monday, Dec. 29 and that against the Breed on Saturday, Jan. 3. In each case the police secured the names of several children who had been allowed to attend the theater in violation of the statutes.

According to the state law no child under 14 years old, unaccompanied by parent or guardian, may attend any theatre or moving picture performance at any hour of the day up to 6 p. m. After 6 p. m. the age limit for boys remains the same, but for girls the age limit is under 16.

In the cases against the two Norwich theatres, most of the children on whom charges were based were around 10 and 11 years old, but one child was only 7, and one was 13.

City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins stated to the court that the theatres had had repeated warnings from him, but there had been repeated violations.

Demurrers were entered by counsel for the theatre managers, Attorney Edwin L. Higgins appearing for Mr. McEvoy and Attorney T. J. Kelly for Mr. Nejime. After the arguments by the attorneys, Judge A. F. Libby overruled the demurrers and warned the theatre managers that substantial fines would be given if there were violations in the future. He said he wanted the managers of all three theatres in the city to understand that the law must be obeyed regarding the attendance of children. With this warning he nolled the cases against the two managers.

The complaints gave the names of four minor children in each case who had been allowed to attend the theatres unaccompanied by adults.

Hartford, Jan. 11—John S. Winiarski, of this city, was re-elected president of the Connecticut Polish-American political organization at the annual meeting here today. MRS. GEORGE A. FINN'S CAR RUN INTO AT MONTVILLE

Passengers coming up from New London on the 5.15 trolley car Saturday afternoon were obliged to transfer, just before reaching Uncasville, because of an automobile collision, which blocked the track.

The car of Mrs. Pauline Finn of this city, wife of George A. Finn, was run down by Adolph Francini, of 84 Winthrop street, New London, when Mrs. Finn was operating her car on the Norwich turnpike and had reached a point just north of Jerome's Corners. Francini was running a car in the same direction that Mrs. Finn was traveling. The woman was accompanied by four small children. The Francini car was driven so close to the Finn car that the latter was sideswiped and badly damaged. The Francini car did not escape without damage though it did not suffer the damage the Finn car sustained.

State Policeman J. J. Bobnick was called in the case and he investigated with the result that he arrested Francini who was presented before Justice Fred L. Goss Sunday in Waterford. Francini was found guilty and was fined $25 and, costs went with the fine and they amount to more than $15, which Francini paid.

PONSELLE SISTERS SANG TOGETHER IN OPERA

New York, Jan. 11—A dream came true tonight for the Ponselle sisters, Rosa and Carmela. They sang together in the Metropolitan Opera house to a great audience which acclaimed the younger, Rosa, as a favorite prima donna, and the elder, Carmela, as the sister whose self sacrifice had made possible the rise of Rosa to stardom.

Several years ago in Meriden, Conn.—so the story goes—the Ponselles were choir and vaudeville singers, Rosa, a soprano, and Carmela a mezzo-soprano. Each had ambitions for the opera and each, the critics said, had a good voice. But training was expensive, and—their father was an ice dealer—money was none too plentiful. So Carmela insisted that Rosa should use what there was for further study, while she herself would stay on the vaudeville stage.

Rosa's phenomenal success at the Metropolitan on the night of November 20, 1918, when she sang "La Forza Del Destino" with Caruso was the beginning of a brilliant career in opera; Carmela remained obscure.

But tonight Carmela got her "bravos" in the world's most famous music hall. Singing the aria "O Don Fatale from "Don Carlos" she was recalled a half dozen times by the audience which filled the great house from orchestra pit to the deep top gallery; and then a half hour later, she shared with Rosa the applause that followed their singing of the duet in the second act of "Aida."

Lawrence Tibbett, the youthful California baritone who received an ovation a week ago for his part in "Falstaff" with the great Scotti, also sang tonight and was recalled repeatedly.

Whittier a Bachelor

The poet Whittier was one of a number of Americans who achieved fame and never married. In his long and active life as an editor, author, legislator, reformer and poet, he seemed to give no thought to marriage.

Time Wasted

"Sendin' Mariar ter that finishin' school was all nonsense," said old Hawhuck as his daughter went into the parlor to meet her visitor. "Here's that young man Foster been callin' here for six months an' she ain't able to finish him yet."

This May Mean Something

The intelligence of the lower animals is something remarkable. We once knew a writer of popular songs who could stand on his hind legs.—Duluth Herald.

Would Be Clumsy

We wear away quite two inches of shoe leather in a year. A pair of boots that would "last a lifetime" would, consequently, have to be provided with soles from eight to nine feet thick.

A $5 goldpiece in your pockets is much better than a five-pound gold brick in your hand.

MOVEMENT TO OUST MAJOR THORNTON A. MILLS

Chicago, Jan. 11—Wealthy members of the council of the New England Congregational church have decided to go before the congregation next Wednesday evening with the demand that Major Thornton Anthony Mills, the pastor, be ousted. The congregation will be asked to vote on the proposition, according to the announcement from the pulpit by Major Mills today. At the same time, the minister expressed his desire to remain and his determination not to minister to one church group but to the entire congregation and community.

Major Mills was first asked to resign on December 19, wealthy parishioners objecting to his throwing open the church to Dr. Ben L. Reitman, and his proteges from the "hobo college."

Major Mills later declined at a meeting of the council to hand in his resignation but agreed to abide by any resolution regarding his resignation that met the approval of his congregation.

SAILOR WAS RESCUED BY THREE PATROLMEN

New York, Jan. 11—Three patrolmen of the marine division played an exciting game of aquatic blind man's buff in the dark waters of the lower Hudson river today and rescued "Sandy" Ferguson, a sailor, who had fallen from a stringpiece between two piers. Ferguson who said he was a brother of John Lawrence Ferguson, former prize fighter, tripped in the dark and fell from the stringpiece. His cries were heard by the marine police at the station house only a few yards away, and several patrolmen rushed to his rescue, three of them plunging into the river to search for the drowning man while others went for a boat.

They found Ferguson clinging to the edge of a scow, numb with cold and almost unconscious. He was sent to a hospital suffering from submersion and exposure.

TEX RICKARD PICKS TEN RANKING BOXERS IN ALL THE DIVISIONS

New York, Jan. 11 (By the A. P.)—For the first time in the history of boxing in this country, an international ranking list of the "first ten" in each of the nine divisions has been compiled. The selections, have been made by Tex Rickard, internationally known promoter, for the January issue of the Ring National Boxing Publication. It is intending to make Rickard's ranking list an annual feature along the lines of all-star selections already made annually in baseball, football, golf and tennis.

Recognized champions head all Rickard's selections except the light heavyweight division in which Mike McTigue, world's titleholder, is rated only fourth. Top position is given to Gene Tunney, American 175-pound king, with Young Stribling, sensational Georgia schoolboy, second, and Kid Norfolk, New York negro, third.

The sensational climb of Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro, who is ranked next to Champion Harry Greb in the middleweight division, is an outstanding feature of the list while other important developments of 1924 are listed by Rickard as follows:

"1. The collapse of Firpo through defeats of Willis and Weinert and the rise of Romero and the further development of Gibbons in the heavyweight class.

"2. The success of Young Stribling, who may have a lot to say in boxing during 1925.

"3. The rise of Sid Terris as a runner-up in the lightweight class.

"4. The decline of Johnny Dundee and his resignation of the world's featherweight championship due to inability to make the weight."

Rickard gives only complimentary positions to Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard at the top of the heavyweight and lightweight divisions, respectively, because of their inactivity during 1924. Dempsey did not defend his title at all, while Leonard was injured in his only important match, a bout at Cleveland with Pal Moran. Rickard makes it plain his rankings are based on last year's actual performances and on this basis puts Harry Willis at the top of the heavyweights and Terris first among the lightweights.

Rickard ranks Tom Gibbons next to Willis among the heavyweights because he feels that Gibbons' moneymaking powers are in that division, rather than in the light heavyweight ranks, where he has done considerable fighting.

Latin-America's bid for pugilist fame is reflected in the assignment of five Central and South Americans to place on the list. Luis Firpo, who was considered Dempsey's closest rival at the end of 1923, drops to seventh place in the 1924 list, while Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight, is placed fifth. Luis Vicentini of Chile, is sixth among the lightweights, Jose Lombardo of Panama, fifth among the featherweights; and Al Brown, Panama flyweight, third in his division.

Eight nationalities are represented in Rickard's list. The United States has the bulk of representatives with 76, while the Philippines and England are each represented with three fighters; Chile, Panama and Canada with two each; and Argentine and Italy with one each.

Rickard's rankings follow:

BULKELEY SWAMPED BY RHODE ISLAND FRESHMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

South Kingston, R. I., Jan. 11.—Bumping along the road of misfortune, the Bulkeley basketball team of New London sailed full steam ahead into the waiting arms of the Rhode Island State College freshmen, who, with a powerful, well balanced quintet gave the Orange and Black their second lacing in as many days, the score being at the termination of this contest, 52 to 29. It was the second game in two days that 50 or more points had been scored against the Bulkeley team. On Friday, the Bulkeley team, traveling to Springfield, where Commerce High of that city administered a lacing to the Whalers.

An inconsistent attack, with little chance of preparation for this contest, and hardly any defense for a fast passing team, Bulkeley was no match for the powerful frosh team. The frosh possessed everything that the visitors did not, having two clever forwards, and three other men who were continually intercepting the ball and converting the chances for a score. The offense of the freshmen could not be stopped, with four men used in bringing the ball down the floor. And then the individual play of "Stumpy" Hare, a robust forward on the freshmen team did much in making the game a runaway affair. "Stumpy" Hare, perhaps 206 in weight, moved about like a lad of ordinary height and weight would. He was a flash and good deal depended upon his quick execution of plays to make them come out successful. The only way Bulkeley could hope to hold him was to tie him hands and feet.

The freshmen lost no time in taking the lead from the very start with Hare dropping in two baskets in quick succession, followed by Johnston and Harris. The score was well up in two figures, before Bulkeley tallied, a field basket by Vogt. The succeeding quarters brought substitutions as well as more points to the frosh team, leaving Bulkeley trailing far behind.

Hare for the Freshmen starred, helped by Rosen and Harris. For Bulkeley, Vogt was again high scorer with five field baskets; while Parisi was next with seven points.

FLOWERS AND DELANEY TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

New York, Jan. 11—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., negro middleweight, and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., conqueror of Paul Berlenbach, will meet at Madison Square Garden on Friday night in a ten-round match. Flowers, who recently beat Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, is one of the most promising middleweights in the game and for the past three months, his rise has been rapid.

Delaney, a polished boxer and a clever and hard puncher, sprang into pugilistic prominence by knocking out Paul Berlenbach when the latter was riding on a wave of success. The victory for the Bridgeport lad came when it appeared that he was about to be swamped but a hard right to the chin dropped Berlenbach, for first time he had ever been stopped during his professional career.

Another fight which is likely to arouse popular interest this week is the appearance of Sid Terris, leading contender for the lightweight crown, who meets Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo in a 12-round match.

Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, world's bantamweight champion, will meet Tommy Murray of Philadelphia in Philadelphia tomorrow night in another top notch attraction for the week.

ARMORY FIVE WINS EASILY FROM HEBREW TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, Jan. 11.—There was an attendance of about five hundred basketball fans at the state armory on Dixon street, Saturday night, to witness the defeat of the Hebrew Five of the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Brockton, Mass., by the Armory Five, the score being 38 to 21.

The game was a fast one from start to finish and was featured by exceptionally close covering of opponents, both by the home team and the visitors. The baskets caged were perhaps not quite as clean as those of the previous week but then there were many close ones when the ball balanced on the edge of the baskets only to roll off.

The first half of the game was close, first one team and then the other tying the score. In the second half, the Armory Five took the lead and held it until the end of the game. For the Battery Wilbur and Nigrelli were the bright and shining stars. Capt. Glacier and Rautenberg for the visiting aggregation made the best showing for the Brockton quintet.

At the end of the game dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

The score follows:

FAST GAMES IN N. L. DUSTY LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 11.—The regular week end games in the Industrial league played Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. saw the New London Ship and Engine continue its winning streak gaining a decisive victory over the Standard Oil five by a 57 to 24 score. In the second game, the Connecticut Power by making a strong finish, nosed out the Palmer Brothers quintet by a 39 to 23 score.

In the initial encounter, the Ship & Engine's superiority was not to be questioned for a minute, and they continued their scoring rampage with the two forwards Risch and Foote, scoring almost at will. The Socony had no offense with which they could expect to overcome the sharp shooting of the Ship Workers forwards. The defense was ragged, allowing the league leaders to run wild at all times. It looks as though the Ship and Engine will go through the season again undefeated, for every team has fallen by a score as large as the Standard Oil five did.

Minus the scientific work of a basketball team and other qualities, the second game between the Connecticut Power and Palmer Brothers quintets found a red hot contest tapering off with the calling out of the fire department seeming imminent. The members of both teams went at it hammer and tongs for 40 minutes, and when the whistle blew ending the game, they were ready to call it quits. The Connecticut Power won because the team had enough determination to finish and do it strong. Up until this time, the quilt makers vied with the power team for honors, but fell behind when their work should have improved.

COAST GUARD FIVE TAKES CITY TITLE FROM SUBMARINE BASE TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 11.—The day of the Submarine Base basketball predominance is over, for at least the present, anyway, if not for all time. Substituting for the tars in the first position of basketball teams reposes the heretofore unknown and unrecognized Coast Guard Cadet quintet, which wrested the City title away from the gobs, the first time a basketball team has had this distinction since 1918 when the gobs lost to the Groton Iron Works team. Saturday night before a crowd that tared the steel armory to its capacity, a death struggle was fought with the Coast Guard Cadets flashing out ahead by a 21 to 20 score.

Only those present at the game can appreciate the tense moments of the players and the crowd alike. The very rafters of the huge armory shook beneath a howling mob of fanatical fans which the Cadet admirers were in the majority. Hats of the cadets were hurled recklessly into the air, and with the feminine color adding additional incentive for the ostentatious display of hilarity, the town was captured by this band of rejoicing young people.

Nobody as yet can fully explain how the game was won by the Cadets. The figures, however, are the only proof that the Cadets won. The game can be summed up in this short phrase, the ability of the Coast Guard Cadets to start and the stability to finish, gave them this victory which makes them leaders in this particular form of athletic activity.

An early start gave the Cadets the lead which later in the contest proved to be a reason for their victory. The Submarine Base players were bewildered, whether it was by the amateur rules under which the game was played or whether it was the fast passing of the Cadets, nobody seems able to explain. The defense of the tars stiffened to such an extent in the next quarter that the Cadets failed to come anywhere near the basket.

The Cadets meanwhile used the five-man defense with great success. In the second quarter the sailors turned to this means of keeping the Cadet score down. It proved to be successful and was retained for the remainder of the game, but too late for the Cadets had already won the game. It was not necessary to finish that contest. The Cadets mounted the score while they could and this stood them in good stead when the final whistle blew. Only twice was the Base in the lead, while the remainder of the game found the Cadet colors high above those of the Base. A field basket by Murphy after O'Hare scored a foul gave the gobs the lead. French matched his field goal with that of Murphy's, and Purcell whose work from the foul line was good all evening, accounted for the tying point with a foul goal. But Bartz swished the draperies from the foul line for the point which gave the Base the lead. French thrust aside all hopes for a Base victory when he lucked one in from the middle of the floor, bowling a minute later with another field goal, giving his team the lead to stay.

The entrance of the two teams down the home stretch nearly saw several people pass out from heart failure. The whistle had blown at half time with the score 13 to 11 for the Cadets, the Base not allowing a single point in the second quarter. Coughlin, making substitution for Cowart, threw in the winning points in the last seven minutes of play, when he was allowed to romp around free, accounting for five points. The Base made a strong attempt to come back, but their rally fell short a single point with one of the hardest fought games seen locally in some time terminating.

During the last three minutes of play, the Base had several opportunities to gain a victory, but the attempts at the basket rolled around the hoop several times and then decided to fall on the outside.

LANDIS MAKES PUBLIC TESTIMONY IN BRIBERY CASE

Chicago, Jan. 11 (By the A. P.)—All the secret testimony of the 1924 baseball scandal involving members of the New York Giants was revealed to the public yesterday by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner.

The document, comprising 20,000 words of questions and answers, including the confession of Jimmy O'Connell, banished Giant outfielder, contained nothing that had not already been made public regarding the attempted $500 bribe of Heine Sands, shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals, by O'Connell and "Cozy" Dolan, expelled coach of the Giants.

Sands was asked not to "bear down too hard" in a game with Philadelphia which won the National league championship for the Giants.

Judge Learns No More.

The stenographic report of the examination of players involved was withheld by Commissioner Landis for three months while his investigation was continued, but apparently he learned no more about the alleged bribe than at the time of the investigation last fall just before the world's series.

Commissioner Landis said he gave out the record at this time because of the insistence of sports writers for complete details and to set at rest the reports that he was holding back important evidence. He declared, however, that the publication of the records did not indicate that his investigation has been completed.

Evasiveness is Guilt.

Landis' action in barring O'Connell and Dolan and exonerating Frank Frisch, Ross Young and George Kelly involved by O'Connell's confession was fully explained.

O'Connell was replaced on the ineligible list because of his confession. Dolan because of his famous "I don't remember, I can't recall," and "I don't know" answers and his generally evasive attitude.

Young, Frisch and Kelly were exonerated because their denials were straightforward and in several instances indignantly given, Landis commented upon their general attitude of innocence. He declared that Dolan's evasiveness virtually amounted to a confession of guilt.

While the record shows Landis told O'Connell that his confession and substantiation by Sands were sufficient to remove him from organized baseball, nothing incriminating was disclosed against Dolan except O'Connell's story.

The record shows that Landis told Dolan the principal thing against him was his evasive attitude, in claiming he could not remember the hatching of the plot as described by O'Connell.

On the other hand, Frisch, Young and Kelly, involved by O'Connell's confession, vigorously denied any knowledge whatever of the plot and insisted O'Connell had not mentioned any such thing to them.

Accuses Commissioner.

O'Connell, in the record, accuses the commissioner of "making a liar" out of him because Frisch, Young and Kelly were exonerated, despite O'Connell's claims. The commissioner replied that these three were straightforward in their stories and he believed them.

Frisch's story was that he sat beside Manager McGraw of the Giants during the game when the bribe offer was presumed to have been made and hence knew nothing about it. Kelly told the commissioner that James Tierney, secretary of the Giants, had notified him to come there for examination. These two cases were the only mention of any baseball officials in the entire inquiry.

Didn't Come for Fight.

The record shows that Landis and Dolan engaged in a heated argument during which the commissioner wanted to know if Dolan was seeking a fight. Landis told the Giants' coach that although he was an old man, he could "put up some sort of defense if he wanted to try it."

"Judge, I didn't come down here looking for a fight," Dolan quickly assured the commissioner.

Sands' Story.

The story of the actual bribe offer by O'Connell to Sands, as related by Sands to the commissioner, follows:

"Johnny Couch, also a member of the Philadelphia ball club, and myself walked out on the field and started to warm up when Jimmie O'Connell came up to me and started to talk about a few games that he had arranged with the San Francisco ball club that were to be played when we arrived home.

"After talking to Couch and Oeschger and myself for a while, getting their word that they would take part in these games, and asking if I would play, I told him I could not play on account of staying east this winter. Oeschger went to the bench and Couch walked about forty feet away toward the third base line and started warming up.

"Jimmie O'Connell asked me what our club thought of his club winning the pennant. I said to Jimmie, 'I hope the best club will win, Jimmie.' He said 'That is not it. How do you fellows feel toward us winning the pennant?' 'Well,' I said, 'as far as I am concerned, I would like to see you win, being a friend of mine.'

"He said: 'Well, how do the other boys feel about it?' And I said 'I don't know.' I said something about 'Well, I would like to see it end up with us taking two games from you and Brooklyn beating Boston two games, where a tie would come in.'

"He said: 'Hell, we don't want to play Brooklyn,' and I said: 'Well, that is the way I would like to see it finished,' and it was my guess all the rest of the boys would, too. He said: 'Would $500 change your opinion, Heinie?' and I looked at him kind of disgusted, and I said 'Jimmie, I am not interested,' and he said 'All right, this is just between you and I. It needn't go no further.'

"He said 'You go out there and do your best,' and with that I walked to my bench and he went to the batting cage."

ALL-BLACK RUGBY TEAM WINS EASILY FROM FRENCH

Paris, Jan. 11.—(By the A. P.)—New Zealand's All-Black rugby football team continued its victorious European tour today by beating France 37 to 8.

The Frenchmen were outweighed, outgeneralled and outkicked, but nevertheless, they held their own in speed and in gameness against the Maoris. The New Zealanders showed a wonderful brand of rugger football; amazing teamwork, short and snappy passes, deadly tackling and perfect dribbling.

Rene Lasserre, the veteran captain of the French rugby team and who has played both against the New Zealanders and the American Olympic team, when asked today for his opinion of the relative strength of these two teams, said:

"Man for man, I think the Americans would hold their own with the New Zealanders but the combination work of the All-Blacks is more perfect and their teamwork is better than that of the Americans. The Americans, however, are superior at kicking. The teams would be well balanced as to weight, and a clash between the forward lines in scrimmage would bring about some terrific battling, surely would like to see Babe Slater of the American team tackling Cyril Brownlie, the big Maori who scored three touchdowns today.

KANE HAS NOT CALLED OFF FIGHT NEGOTIATIONS

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Eddie Kane, Manager of Tommy Gibbons, declared here tonight that negotiations for a fight between Gibbons and Luis Firpo, in London, have not been abandoned as reported.

"I want to say very explicitly," said Kane. "That I have no fear of not collecting every penny called for in any contract that might be made if we should accept the match. There was some talk of Tommy not getting his money when he fought Bloomfield, in London. I knew exactly what we were going to receive before Gibbons entered the ring. There were merely unfortunate circumstances in connection with the match."

Kane said further negotiations for the Gibbons-Firpo match would await his return to New York.

DAZZY VANCE FIRST HOLDOUT OF SEASON

New York, Jan. 11.—Arthur "Dazzy" Vance, pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers, and recently voted the most valuable player in the National league, is the first baseball player to hold out on his contract for next year, it became known here today, following word from Clearwater, Fla., that Vance had refused the contract offered by President Charles H. Ebbets.

Vance, who has been in Clearwater, Ebbet's winter home, for two days, refused to sign the new contract, it is understood, because it was made only two years, and he was holding out for three. He was content with Ebbet's salary proposal, it is said.

Fans here suggest that an explanation of Vance's dissatisfaction with the two-year contract proposal may be that since he is an old-timer in baseball he feels that there might be danger of his right arm giving way at any time under the strain of his pitching. Vance is noted for putting his entire strength into every pitch.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Monterey

We were not many—we who stood
Before the iron sleet that day—
Yet many a gallant spirit would Give half his years if he then could
Have with us been at Monterey.

Now here, now there, the shot, it hailed
In deadly drifts of fiery spray,
Yet not a single soldier quailed
When wounded comrades round them wailed
Their dying shout at Monterey.

And on—still on our column kept
Through wall of flame its withering way;
Where fell the dead, the living stept,
Still charging on the guns which swept
The slippery streets of Monterey.

The foe himself recoiled aghast,
When, striking where he strongest lay,
We swooped his flanking batteries past
And braving full their murderous blast,
Stormed home the towers of Monterey.

Our banners on those turrets wave,
And there our evening bugles play;
Where orange boughs above their grave,
Keep green the memory of the brave
Who fought and fell at Monterey.

We are not many—we who pressed
Beside the brave who fell that day;
But who of us has not confessed
He'd rather share their warrior rest
Than not have been at Monterey?

—Charles Fenno Hoffman.

The Use of Flowers

God might have have made the earth bring forth
Enough for great and small,
The oak tree and the cedar tree,
Without a flower at all.
We might have had enough, enough
For every want of ours,
For luxury, medicine and food,
And yet have had no flowers.

Then wherefore, wherefore were they made,
All dyed with rainbow light,
All fashioned with supremest grace,
Upspringing day and night—
Springing in valleys green and low,
And on the mountains high,
And in the silent wilderness
Where no man passes by?

Our outward life requires them not—
Then wherefore had they birth?—
To minister delight to man,
To beautify the earth;
To comfort man—to whisper hope,
Whene'er his faith is dim,
For who so careth for the flowers
Will care much more for him!

—Mary Howitt.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

For several days after the recent light fall of snow children in considerable numbers were seen sliding on the hilly streets and roads in and about Norwich. The fact that the streets are used daily by automobiles and auto trucks seemed to have but little effect on the small boy and girl. On one especially busy street in Norwich boys anywhere from five to twelve years of age could be seen dashing down the hill and weaving in and around heavy auto trucks and machines. As it happened there were no accidents, at least none serious enough to cause attention, but this does not mean that such a practice is a safe one.

Sliding in a perfectly harmless pastime. In fact it is health giving and very popular with the younger generation. But busy city streets are not the place for the boy and his sled. Very serious accidents sometimes occur when city streets are used for sliding. Children have been maimed for life and a number have been killed outright in recent years when their sleds crashed into automobiles and trolley cars. Only this winter, in a town in a nearby state two little boys went out on a hill near their home to try out a new Christmas sled. As the boys were dashing down the hill an automobile suddenly turned a corner. There was a crash and one little boy was so badly hurt that he died in the hospital.

Boys and girls should be very careful about selecting a hill on which to slide. Places used by automobiles and trolley cars should be avoided. It is better to slide on a hill where there is no traffic than to take a chance of injury on a hill used by machines and trolley cars. Slide all you want to, boys and girls enjoy yourself as much as you can, but pick out a hill where you will be safe from accidents.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

My Kitten

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about my kitten. She is about three months old; she has a bobbed tail. She is a tiger. We call her Bobby because she has a short tail. She runs about the room and plays with the legs of the table. We have a Christmas tree. She tries to climb up the tree and pull off the trimmings. When my father holds the cat he puts his head on my father's arm and when my brother sees him he runs and puts his head up to his neck to get closer than the cat.

DOROTHY PALMER.
Westerly, R. I.

My Favorite Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: My favorite dogs' name is Sport. He is a very good watch dog. He came from Pennsylvania. We did not know his name for over a week. The man we got him from wrote and told us that the dog's name was Sport. He is a medium sized dog. His color is black, white and tan. Every time he hears some one coming he will bark so as to let us know there is some one coming. My dog will bark until he sees them, then he will stop barking. When we play the victrola he will bark because he thinks it is some one talking. When my brother and I come home he looks for something to eat out of our dinner box. We do not let him off the chain because we live too near to the track. One day one of my brother's friends came to my house, and the dog broke loose. When he is tied up he is very ugly. But when he gets loose he will make friends with anybody.

Peter Small

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about an adventure with Indians. Once upon a time there was a boy named Peter Small. He was very little and that is the reason his name was Small. Peter's father and mother died when he was but six years old. Peter though he remembered his father talking about a big brother, but he did not know where he lived. So Peter took a little money that he possessed and put his clothes in a red bandana on a stick and started out on his journey.

Peter was young and had not learned that there were Indians lurking in the highways, byways, forests and everywhere. When it came night he was in the dense forest. He ate a big supper which was chiefly of rye bread. It was very dark and he grew quite sleepy, so he lay down under a tree and went to sleep. It was not very long before he heard footsteps. They came closer and closer and finally stopped in front of him.

He stood up rubbing his eyes and thought it was his brother. He said, "Are you Peter's brother?" The Indian said, "Ugg, ugg." Peter was very much frightened and started to run but the Indian said, "Ugg! Stop. No hurt. Me kind." Peter came back. He said, "Help me find my brother." The Indian said, "Come me find."

So Peter gathered his parcel and the chief carried him to the Indian Village. The boy became quite frightened when he saw a large fire and many red people jumping around. This is what the Indians called dancing. Peter thought it very nice so he took a stick as a war club and ran toward the fire. He saw a buck dog and it growled at him. He ran faster and jumped like the others. This is what the Indians called dancing.

The Indians thought what a nice boy Peter was. The Indian that took him to this place came to him and said, "Come, you sleep with me." So Peter took his big hand and followed him. He came inside a very funny house. He saw a fire inside on the ground, but it was not in a stove. He saw a little boy. He thought he would like him so he went over and sat down beside him. The little boy was frightened and Peter said in a kind voice, "I will not hurt you, I will be kind to you." So the little Indian asked Peter "what name?" Mine is Peter. What is yours? Fleetfoot. As Fleetfoot and Peter were talking the chief told Peter to go with Fleetfoot and he would show him where to sleep. He took him to the next tent. Peter did not see any bed in the tent but skins of animals. He pointed his finger at the skins, then he lay down on the skin. Peter did the same. In the morning Peter awoke but Fleetfoot was gone. He jumped up and he saw Fleetfoot by his mother. She was busy getting something to eat. He went out a Fleetfoot and ate his breakfast of parched corn.

Peter thought of his rye bread. He ran to get it and soon came back chewing on his bread. He gave Fleetfoot some and he ate it very heartily. Peter asked the father to gather his men together. Fleetfoot's father did so and he asked each one if his name was Robert Small at last he came to the right one. You are my brother, he said and I want you to come to the place where we used to live. So he and his brother came back to their old homestead and his brother married and Peter grew to be a great man of honor. He died and the Indians were sorry to lose their little chief.

Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you yet so I am writing about the birds. Many boys and girls who love birds have never thought very much about their ways of life. They do not realize what a strange silent thing spring would be if the birds should all suddenly disappear. The world would be sad and lonely without these beautiful winged voices. But something even more dreadful would happen if they should leave us. People would be in danger of starving. Can you tell the reason?

HELEEN PLOPA, Age 10.

The First Winter in Plymouth

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to the Wide Awakes for quite a while so I'll write to you about The First Winter in Plymouth.

The winter was very cold and by the time the spring buds began to open, half of the Pilgrims were dead in their graves. When the Mayflower sailed for England in April, not one of the colonists went back in her.

One day when they were at work an Indian suddenly appeared. He walked boldly into the little log cabin and shouted. "Welcome Englishmen!" Then he went away but soon came back with an Indian chief named Massasoit.

Governor Carver made a treaty or agreement with Massasoit by which they promised to stand by each other as friends.

The Indians belonging to Massasoit's tribe were very kind to the Pilgrims. They showed them how to plant corn and shoot fish with bows and arrows. They also taught the white men how to catch eels by treading them out of the mud. If the Indians had not helped the colonists in this way they might all have starved.

When autumn came the corn was all gathered. Then the little band of Pilgrims, with the Indians, sat down to a great feast. They had deer meat, fish and wild turkey. This was the first Thanksgiving celebrated in New England. Now that day is celebrated all over the United States. More than ninety million of people on this continent sit down to this great feast.

Sitting Erect

Dear Uncle Jed: We should sit erect at all times, for it makes us feel stronger and healthy. If we do not sit erect our back will bend over and we will soon get tuberculosis. If we would all follow this motto Sitting Erect, there would not be so many people at the sanatorium today.

Rooster Wanted to Fight

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to ask permission if I may join the Wide Awake circle. I have not written to you before and hope this will be a successful start. I go to the South Ashford school. I am fourteen years old and in the seventh grade. I have one brother going to school and one sister working in Willimantic. I have a father but no mother. It is very lonesome sometimes. I live on a farm but have not lived on a farm all my life. We came here in 1918.

Sometimes I help to feed the chickens. The other day I was gathering eggs when I felt something pecking me. I looked around and found out a rooster wanted to fight with me. Did you ever have a rooster fight with you?

Friday the nineteenth of December, we had an entertainment at our school. It was in the afternoon. Some spoke pieces and some sang songs. There were not many people there on account of the weather. I wish you all had a merry Christmas and we have a happy New Year.

JOSEPHINE TRENTELY, Age 14.

My Pets

Dear Uncle Jed: Just a line to say that I am seven years old and have not been to school long. I have a cat. His name is Socrates but I call him Minnie, it is easier for me to remember. My dog's name is Mississippi but I call her Miss. These are my two pets. I hope this new year will bring your readers happiness.

EILEENE HEPBURY, Age 7.

My Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed and Wide Awakes: I haven't written to you for a long time, so I'll try and tell you about my birthday party. I was thirteen years old October 11th and I invited the older boys and girls to come. The invitations I wrote one night and the next morning I took them to school and put them in their desks. They were all delighted and when Saturday night came all the boys and girls arrived at my house.

All that were invited were present and altogether there were thirty people. I received many nice presents, including four boxes of chocolates, beads, handkerchiefs, pen, pencils, fountain pen, and eleven dollars and a half from my relatives, besides many other useful gifts.

We played games for a long time and then we had refreshments, which were cake, cookies, sandwiches, lemonade, etc. After we had finished eating, we played the phonograph and danced the square dances while my father promoted for us. It was finally time to go, and it was around half-past eleven before all of my friends had departed. They all went away saying they had had a fine time. I hope you all will enjoy my letter, and I will write again soon.

Is in Fourth Grade

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a pupil in the fourth grade. This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes. In the morning after breakfast I have to practice fifteen minutes on the piano and go to school. At school in the morning we have arithmetic, spelling, reading and a writing lesson. In the afternoon we have history and geography and other things. After supper I clear the table and do the dishes and practice a half hour and go to bed at eight o'clock. I hope the Wide Awakes like my story.

BLANCHE GOULET, Age 10.
Danielson.

Little Sunshine

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you this story during my Christmas vacation. Little Sunshine.

That was not her real true name but just a pet name that those who knew her best used to call her.

Father called her "Sunshine" because when she ran to meet him as he came home at night she always laughing and had something nice to tell him. Mother called her "Sunshine" because she always loved to help her, and would keep baby nancy as long as mother wished her to care for him. Her teacher called her "Sunshine" because she always liked to do what her teacher wished her to do.

Then she loved to help the other children. She would show the little strangers where to put their coats and hats and dinner pails and then get acquainted with the other children.

LAURETTE DESPATIE, Age 11.

An Acorn's Experience

Dear Uncle Jed: I am an acorn on an oak tree with a lot of other acorns about me which are my companions. One day a great wind storm arose and I fell right into a hole. I layed there in the sunshine when a boy came along and stepped on me and I was covered up and was shut out of the sunshine. I kept on growing until I saw daylight again. I grew and grew when one day I saw some men come and cut my mother down. In about forty years I was cut down and was hauled to the mill. I was put on the carriage and how the saw did hurt when it was sawing me but I kept up my courage. I was sawed into boards and other pieces. I was then hauled to the factory where furniture is made, I was made into a chair and sent to a house. I was used every day. One day I heard the people calling fire! fire! I felt a bit heat and I was all afire. I was never saved and that ends my life.

WILLIAM KENDALL, Age 11.

The Old House

Dear Uncle Jed: Nestled in a valley is an old house. It was built one hundred years ago. It is made of very fine wood. There are eight rooms in it, counting the cellar and attic. The kitchen and sitting room are large but the two bedrooms and front and back halls are not so large. There are four fine places and eight ovens in it. They are made of bricks.

I was told that a cannon ball from the revolutionary war was shot through it. My grandfather lived in the house when he was a boy.

Uncle Jed, I just wish that you could see that house. The plaster is nearly all off the walls and the bricks are falling apart. I think that house is very interesting don't you?

Lives On a Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a girl twelve years old. I love on a farm. My father has ten cows, five calves, a pair of oxen, one horse and three pigs. We have a puppy and his name is Jack. My father gave him to my brother for a Christmas present.

I have a pony. He came from the west. He has a brand on his shoulder. I do not drive him very much in the winter. We have some calves. I drive them like a horse. I made a harness for them and when there is snow I hitch them to my sled.

I go to Glasgo school. We are transported from Boardman school to Glasgo. I am in the seventh grade.

LUCY MELDRED CULVER.

Clara Barton

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you of Clara Barton. Clara Barton was born in the town of North Oxford, Mass. Dec. 25, 1821.

The family was well-to-do and Clara being the youngest, received much attention from all.

On the farm where she lived were several fine horses. Her brother, David, would put her on the horses back and tell her to hang on to the mane. She soon could ride well and was later glad that she could for many times on the battlefield she had to secure a strange horse and ride to a place of safety. When she was old enough she was sent to an academy in Clinton, New York. She became a teacher and opened her first school in Bordentown, N. J. She was very successful the first year but finally her health failed so she gave up school work in 1854 and obtained a position as head clerk in the Patent Office at Washington.

When the Civil war broke out she offered her services as a volunteer nurse and from the beginning of the war until its close she worked in the hospital, in the camp and on the battlefield.

After the war ended she went to Switzerland. She heard of the Red Cross society. She did work in the French-Prussian war, he did relief work in Paris also.

In 1873 she returned to America. She secured members for a Red Cross society here and was its first president. She helped in many floods, fires, sieges, battles, earthquakes and other disasters too numerous to mention. She was an earnest and hard working woman and worked nearly up to the time of her death. She died April 12, 1913 much to the sorrow of those who knew her.

My Pet Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes about my pet dog. My dog's name is Cute. She is about ten inches from the ground. She is about one and one half feet in length from the tip of her nose to the tip of her tail. Her coat is all white and her ears are all tan. Her intelligent eyes are blue. She is a female dog. When we wash her, she is white Miss Grey. If she wants to go out she will whine and whine till we let her out. When we go to bed she will whine till we take her in bed and will put her little head on the pillow like a grown up person. I am very fond of my dog because she is a good dog for doing tricks. She is a faithful dog and she likes to play with us.

JUNE CADIEUX, Age 16.

The Quakers

Uncle Jed: Many years ago some people came to America. They came from England and were Quakers. William Penn was a Quaker also. The king owed Penn's father a large sum of money. He gave Penn a tract of land in payment of the money and Penn brought the Quakers to this new land and called it Pennsylvania and now it is one of the largest states in the United States.

HELEN O'BRIEN, Age 10.

Twin Dolls

Dear Uncle Jed: One of my little girl friends came to see me and brought her doll with her. When we got into the house I noticed that I got one just like the one she had. Its hair was blonde and my dolls hair is brunette. We sat both of them on my little rocking chair at the window so everybody could see them.

After we played dolls we played quoits. Then it was half past four. We asked her to stay till her father came by but she said she couldn't. When she went I walked as far as the schoolhouse with her.

Then I came home and had my supper. I think we had a very pleasant afternoon.

Where I Live

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I ever wrote to you so I will tell you where I live. My house is on the state road from Jewett City to Voluntown on a little farm of about twenty acres. We always keep one and most of the time two cows, about fifty hens and a pig or two.

In the spring we plant a big garden and in the fall we have lots of vegetables to store in the cellar. I say "we" because my father calls me his "boy" and I help him all I can outdoors. I like to help him in the garden best. I am a little girl nine years old and I am in the third grade.

I like to go to school very much and I like my teacher.

ALICE S. PERKINS, Age 9.

The Birds' Best Friend

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before and I hope that this story will be a success. There is a very good, kind lady living near my house. She is very fond of animals and birds. She has a number of pigeons, sparrows and other birds as friends.

Every day she goes to the attic window which overlooks a roof. She opens this window and whistles. All of the birds that have heard her call flock about on the roof. Grain and bread crumbs are thrown among them and they eat it eagerly.

Many times during the long cold winter she saves them from starvation. I think that she is one of the kindest women in the world. Don't you?

Nine White Braves

Dear Uncle Jed: My second letter to the Wide Awake, will be about Nine White Braves.

Standish, with eight armed men, was sent to the assistance of the settlement at Weymouth. They arrived in time to prevent the attack. The Indians, who had begun to collect for the massacre, were surprised and defeated in a brief engagement, and the chief, who was the leader of the conspiracy, was slain, with a number of his men. This gallant exploit established the supremacy of the English in New England, and many of the native tribes sought their friendship and alliance. The Weymouth men were unwilling to continue their colony after their narrow escape. Some went to Plymouth where they became a source of trouble, and others returned to England. The spring of 1623 saw the last of this settlement. In the autumn of 1623 the best harvest was gathered in that had yet blessed the labor of the Pilgrims. It was an abundant yield and put an end to all fears of a renewal of the dangers of famine. When the work of the harvest was over Governor Bradford sent out men to collect game, in order that the people might enjoy a Thanksgiving feast. On the appointed day the people met together, and thanked God with all their hearts for the good world and the good things in it. Thus was established the custom of an annual thanksgiving to God for the blessings of the year, which at first a celebration peculiar to New England has become a national festival.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

by DAVID CORY

A New Book

Up the Shady Forest Trail
Hops a little bunny,
Knapsack bouncing up and down
Full of Pumpkin Money.

Yes, sir. Pumpkin Pennies had just found their way into Rabbitland. They looked like Uncle Sam's penny pieces when just out of the mint. Dear Uncle Looky, the old gentleman bunny uncle of Little Jack Rabbit, made them down at his bank in Rabbitville. With a small round tin box he worked all day long cutting these new bright pennies out of pumpkin shells. You see all the carrots had been stored away for winter use but there were so many pumpkin shells lying around after the Thanksgiving Pies had been made that the wise old gentleman bunny had decided to turn them into Pumpkin Pennies. Wasn't he a wonderful bank President? Well I guess yes. He was the big financier of Cabbage street, Rabbitville. Yes, sireebus.

And now that I have explained all this to you, Little Reader, I'll turn to our bunny boy, who is hopping, chipperty clip, hopperty hip up the snow-covered path through the Shady Forest. It was not easy hopping. Indeedy. Mr. North Wind had piled the snow into big drifts, but around these hills skip-toes the little rabbit, until by and by after a while, and a long windy mile, he came to the Big Brown Bear's Cozy Cave House. Dear me, he (the little bunny, of course) could hardly find the door for the snow had drifted all around almost hiding the front doorknob.

Giving a tipperty tap with his little red-striped candy cane, he pushed open the door before even the kind old bear could answer "Come in, come in."

"Here I am," panted the little rabbit, holding out his right paw which the Big Brown Bear shook very gently of course, so as not to jiggle the bunny boy too much. "Cousin Cottontail has come over to spend the night. Mother won't be alone, so I can stay here until tomorrow morning if you ask me."

"Well, you're invited," laughed the Big Brown Bear. "I have a surprise for you. A new book with my picture on the cover. It's called 'Little Jack Rabbit's Big Blue Book.' I bought it the other day at the Three-in-One Cent Store in Rabbitville. Here it is," and the kind old bear handed a box with a picture cover on it to the happy little rabbit.

"Isn't it a dandy," he shouted, "and my picture's on the cover too. You have on your red flannel shirt and white apron.

"So I have," answered the Big Brown Bear, looking over the bunny boy's shoulder. "But I have on another today. Bought half a dozen at the Three-in-One Cent Store to last me all winter. We're going to have a cold spell. Busy Beaver has built his house deeper in the water this autumn. He was afraid the ice would freeze on his front door unless it was way down deep."

But the little rabbit hardly heard what his nice old bear friend was saying—he was so interested in the Big Blue Book by your Uncle Dave Cory.

And in the next story.

R. R. CONDUCTORS AND AUXILIARY INSTALLATION AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan 11.—The order of Railroad Conductors installed officers this afternoon in conjunction with the ladies' auxiliary at Odd Fellows' hall. There was a large attendance of members and a banquet was served when the work was completed. The installing officers were C. B. Hanson, assisted by E. R. Thayer. The following officers were installed; Chief Conductor, E. L. Smith, Jr.; assistant, William J. Scrogie; secretary and treasurer, George L. Spofford, who has served in that office since 1907; senior conductor, L. N. Blanchard; junior conductor, Thomas K. McKenzie; outside sentinel, W. H. Bugbee; outside sentinel, George H. Skinner. There were present from other divisions W. S. Likens and Mrs. Likens of Wickford and A. L. Okerstorm of Waterville, L. I.

The officers of the auxiliary were installed by Mrs. Robinson of Boston assisted by Mrs. Kingsbury of the same city. They were president, Mrs. C. B. Hanson; vice president, Mrs. J. Crimmins; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. P. J. Scanlon; senior sister, Mrs. H. M. Darling; junior sister, Mrs. H. J. Bennett; executive committee, Mrs. T. J. McIntosh, Mrs. Collier and Pflauger; flag bearers, Mrs. Renache and Newell; link officers, Mrs. P. D. Clark, Mrs. J. C. Howard, Mrs. J. McVey and Mrs. C. Harris.

The auxiliary elected as delegates to the national convention, Mrs. Walter Moyle, Mrs. Pflauger and Mrs. J. J. Renacher, Jr. The delegates to the national convention of the conductors are H. M. Hanson and C. B. Hanson.

The school committee of the first district of Groton has just won an interesting decision from the court of common pleas. Miss Julia Sawyer, who had long been a teacher of the Groton Heights school, was released from her engagement because she was unable to secure a certificate from the state board of education to insure her qualifications as a graduate of the state normal school. She sued the district to compel her retention in her position, but Judge Waller has decided that she was dismissed by the committee of the school acting within its rights.

Dismissals from Lawrence-Memorial hospital Saturday were Mrs. Ralph Bump and infant son, of Tilley street, Miss Ruth Wilder, Old Lyme, Mrs. Seymour Wright of Groton, Miss Emilus Harding of Groton.

Mrs. A. J. Malcof, of Bank street, underwent an operation for the removal of a tumor at New Haven and Saturday returned home. Mrs. Malcof gave birth to a child some two months ago, and since then has been in impaired health. The case is an unusual one, and was so regarded by physicians in this city.

The Elks will inaugurate a bowling tournament at the club house Tuesday evening. The contests in the past have aroused keen competition. Four teams have been organized.

Daniel DeLong represented to the police Thursday night that he had lost $11 in a gambling game at the pool room of Floyd Mitchell on Atlantic street. On the strength of that complaint Mitchell was arrested. Then it developed that De Long was under the influence of liquor, the arresting officer deciding that, so though he took Mitchell into custody, he was doubtful as to whether De Long was competent to make the complaint he did. The prosecutor made investigation and learned that De Long went to the Mitchell place and expressed a desire to engage in a card game or pool contest that was going on, but his condition was such that he was asked to go away and not being disposed to comply, he was ejected. When the case came to the police court the complaint against Mitchell was nolled. De Long was charged with intoxication, but that complaint was nolled also, as De Long was not disposed to contradict the information which the prosecutor had obtained. He was at liberty then on a bond and that was deemed annoyance enough for him for becoming so "lit up" that he fancied things that were not true.

Morimer Nott successfully defended a case in which he was charged Saturday with having operated an automobile recklessly on Bank street. Nott pleaded not guilty and though State Policeman Bobnick was a witness against him and made the arrest Nott was able to convince the court that he used ordinary precaution and that a slight accident that occurred was not due to his carelessness. He had parked his car by the curbing on Bank street, while Bobnick was in a barbership nearby. When Nott sought to leave his parking station he thrust out his arm to warn that he was to leave.

A car driven by James Romano was coming along and did not see that Nott extended his arm, or that he was to leave the curbing, so he ran against the Nott car, caromed against another and then against the car of Bobnick. The testimony of Nott was so positive and that of others so uncertain that the court found Nott guiltless.

Thomas Carney can consider himself fortunate that he did not answer to a charge of assault with intent to kill when in the police court Saturday, instead of being presented on a charge of breach of the peace for downing Annie Cuddy at her home on John St., one night last week.

Annie got a terrible walloping from a man who was her associate. Judge Crandall who was on the bench Saturday fined Carney $50, which he paid with the costs attending his prosecution. It was regretted by many in the court room that Annie was not sent away for a considerable stay as she has been before the court many times and often in past years. Annie came to New London from Montville some years ago.

Oliver Nason, a fimiliar character, to residents of this locality during the past half century has reached his 99th year. He served in the war of the rebellion and is said to be the oldest member of the G. A. R. in this state if not in the nation. Mr. Nason was for years a member of the Thomas Hose company and wore the uniform of that company in the days when fire parades were common and when he appeared in the street in the uniform of the company at 3 o'clock in the morning, notwithstanding the fact that the parade did not take place till afternoon. Mr. Nason's health is fairly good and that he will be spared many years is probable.

The young son of Mrs. Irving Walter of Crystal avenue was run down and fatally injured on State street last November. It is probable that a suit to recover damages will be instituted by the child's mother who is seeking information as to the identity of persons who witnessed the accident.

Information was received here on Sunday of the death of Ernest Sears, known to his associates as "Pop" Sears. He was a conductor on the Central Vermont railroad out of this city for more than a generation and made the acquaintance of many friends. Mr. Sears made his home in this city at the Metropolitan hotel.

Mrs. Nellie Beaudry, who lost a handbag with four bank books therein Friday, reported to the police that she had recovered her property Sunday.

Mrs. Vera Gordon reported to the police that while her car was parked on Bank street, near Golden, an automobilist drove up to and crashed against her machine, damaging it somewhat. She said the cost of repair would be but a few dollars so rather than appear in the police court she would stand the damage. Mrs. Gordon lives on Latham street, Groton. The car that smashed into her machine was registered as Connecticut 8334.

Oscar Hill was arrested Sunday morning on complaint of Rose Mayhew, who represented to the police that Oscar was endeavoring to get into her home. He raised a window and sought to climb through it. Mrs. Mayhew declared that she was frightened and asked for the arrest of the intruder. This is the fifth time that Oscar has been arrested since last March.

Two drunks were taken from the Learned Mission Sunday. They are held for appearance in the police court Monday.

Policeman McCaskey reported two dangerous breaks in the sidewalk on State street in front of the Union bank, Sunday. The street department superintendent was notified, that the city might be saved from a damage suit in the event of an accident there.

Dealers in sleds are wondering whether they have stocked up with goods that they will have to carry over to another season. To date there has been no snow in this city and perhaps there will be none.

It is rumored that certain radical changes are contemplated and that the number of policemen here is to be reduced. The police hold that before changes esuch as are rumored can take place charges must be made and substantiated and that to do that the officers accused must be allowed the opportunity to defend themselves when they are accused. General opinion is that the committee will recommend changes in the rules that govern the department and that more stringent discipline will be put into effect, but that there will be charges preferred against any member of the police force is not believed. It is apparent to the citizens of New London that its police force will compare favorably with the best in the country. There have been more arrests made here than are made in many cities twice the size of New London, the evidence against the parties arrested is secured and in the prosecutions convictions are the result in a very great majority of the cases. There is another rumor that the department is to be reorganized, but when that matter is discussed and the proposed changes are analyzed there seems to be no basis for the wisdom of any such change as is proposed in the gossip going around. There is a vacancy in the office of lieutenant of the force that has not been filled, though it has existed for more than a month. It is not likely that it will be filled till the committee making the investigation has reported and the report has been adopted by the council.

It is believed the city lost a chance to get property which it will sooner or later need for the extension of North Bank street, for it has let slip from its grasp the Lawrence property on the east side of Main street, north of Federal. North Bank street cannot be extended until the property mentioned is acquired by the city. Frederick C. Mercer offered the land and the building thereon to the city at a nominal cost, but the city council's committee decided that the extension of North Bank street should not be undertaken now. Thereupon Mr. Mercer sold the land in question to Belton A. Cook, and it has gone beyond the reach of the city.

Rev. Dr. T. M. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's church, means that his parishioners shall abstain from liquor or take the rebukes which he has given them on more than one occasion in recent weeks. Today he addressed them in vigorous language at the high mass at 10.30. He spoke of incidents of which he had been informed and was so plain in his utterances that there must have been some burning ears among those who heard him. He declared his purpose of making complaint to the authorities whose duty it is to proceed against law violators, if conditions continue as they have been known to exist of late.

Rev. Chester Howe spoke from the pulpit of the First Baptist church this evening on the proposed amendment to the federal Constitution on the laws concerning the employment of children. Mr. Howe is in favor of the amendment as his arguments disclosed. The matter is being agitated here as elsewhere by women and women's associations.

Nine and a half inch ice is being harvested today in southern Waterford by the New London Ice company. The men engaged are from New London, where, the company says, it has no difficulty in engaging any number of men sought. The Perry Ice company is harvesting in New London where nine-inch ice in abundance has been placed in the houses of the company.

A large party of skaters enjoyed the sport on Rogers' pond today. The Perry Ice company has had one cutting of ice from this pond and expects to get another before the winter is over.

Several New London auto dealers have been in New York the past week in attendance upon the Jubilee automobile show.

It is expected that the new rules and regulations to govern the water and sewer systems of New London will be adopted in the form of an ordinance Monday evening by the city council. The ordinance has had two readings in the council and now has received the final amendments so that it is in the form that will be satisfactory to the council members.

Miss Charlotte M. Holloway of this city, representing the state labor department, at a meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club in New Haven Friday night, stated that the proposed child labor amendment gave too much power to congress, that one could not trust congress to abuse such a power and that she feared the amendment was socialistic in origin.

At the same meeting Prof. Henry P. Fairchild of Yale university outlined a series of arguments in which he declared that there was a necessity for such an amendment in this state. Professor Fairchild maintained that there was a need of a national standard for the protection of working children.

WESTMINSTER

Phil 3:13. Forgetting the things which are behind and reaching forward to those which are before, I press toward the work, was the motto suggested the first Sunday of the year for each to follow during all of 1925.

At the annual meeting of the Westminster Ecclesiastical Society last Monday, Albert Pellett was elected moderator. The report of the secretary and treasurer, Charles Barstow was read and accepted. Officers were elected.

It was decided to take out $800 of additional insurance on the church edifice.

No decision was reached with regard to the several propositions under consideration concerning a new parsonage, and a committee consisting of Charlest Barstow, Albert Pellett and William Davis of Raymond district, was appointed to report at a subsequent meeting of the society called for Monday afternoon, Jan. 19th.

Considerable money had been laid out upon the parsonage within a few weeks of its destruction by fire. No windows had been put in all over the house and the shed had been repaired and strengthened.

The Canterbury W. C. T. U., Buell with dinner at noon Wednesday next Union is to have an all day session at the green, with the regular meeting and programme in the afternoon. The all day meetings usually have a good attendance and are greatly enjoyed.

Clinton Frink, Canterbury's new representative who is his wife's successor in the state legislature went to Hartford Tuesday to assume his new duties. Andrew Clark resumes his place in that body, having been re-elected last fall. Mrs. Frink had served since women were first eligible and did not wish a third term.

The funeral of Gurdon Parker, whose mother was born in Westminster hell in the church at Brooklyn last Monday was attended by Edward Baker and his sister, born and for many years residents in Westminster and now living at the Plains.

Laura Bennett is a patient at Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, and reported doing well.

Horace Greeley Crawford, for some years a resident here, has written to friends several times of late. He is living with a son in Shaverstown, Pa., and is in poor health.

Charles Dawson is at his summer home, near his mother's for a holiday vacation.

GOSHEN

At the meeting of Goshen Community club Wednesday evening, a feature was an old time spelling match.

An airship passed over this place Wednesday traveling eastward.

The first intimation that spring is on the way was the rat-a-tat, tat of the woodpecker, as it echoed down the valley below Maple Hill, Wednesday morning.

These are busy days at the mill pond on the Yantic river where many are getting their year's supply of ice. The ice is of extra quality and some are coming from Bozrahville after it. The stone dam to this pond was "built to honor" by the Hayward Rubber company of Colchester over half a century ago, and bids fair to withstand the ice jams and spring freshets for many years to come.

Fifty years ago the rubber mill, a large wooden, well made, frame structure, was in full operation, employing many hands. Labor was cheap in those days, $1 a day was considered good wages. The mill employes were largely Irish and French. The fine waterfall was ample power for the gripding of the crude rubber and it was a pleasing sound to hear the rumble of the mill wheels as one drove by, with the good old "hoss and buggy."

After the rubber was ground and treated it came out in flat layers and was carted to the finishing mill in Colchester in large covered vans drawn by six mules. There were three of these teams, making daily trips. There were a number of colored teamsters. For many years the teaming was done by William F. Bailey. The crude rubber was shipped here in bins and a quarter clear, white pine boxes, 2x2 1-2x4 feet, large numbers of these boxes were sold for a small sum of 10 cents each and many barns and buildings were made from them. After the rubber company failed the mill was sold and changed over into what was called The Yantic River paper mill. After many years of service the building caught fire one snowy night and was entirely consumed. The ruins remain to tell of the good "old days gone by," the days when the school boys got a hunk of rubber and used it for chewing gum and rubber piping procured made rummer balls.

The big covered wagons passed the old brick schoolhouse and they made deep ruts in spring, and on frosty evenings the wheels made gruesome noises through the snow in winter, "and the moon was in the west."

POETRY

MY UNFOLDING LIFE.

I am not the man that I used to be,
I am not the self-same man.
For the man that was has died in me,
He was built on a human plan.
I have learned that the values of life are more
Than the wealth of an earthly state,
But the man that lived in me before
Saw all in the worldly-great.

I am not the man that I used to be.
I have changed with the passing of years,
For he that was gone was bound, not free,
Yes, bound by his coward fears.
The God of his vision wore frowning face
While mine smiles the whole day long,
His heart was a tomb and a gloomy place
While mine is bursting with song.

I am not the man that I used to be,
I have changed, and the change has come
With the whispered words from souls near
Who live in the heavenly home.
I have learned from them the secrets of life,
That the Soul is more real than clay,
That God is the essence of all, and strife
Must to peace forever give way.

I am not the man that I used to be,
Tomorrow the I that I am
Shall break away to the surging sea
And rush o'er the straining dam.
I, too, shall become an urging voice
And shall fashion some earthly soul,
I shall sing in the work and forever rejoice,
For I shall have reached my goal.
—Charles L. H. Wagner.

IN PRAISE OF LIFE.

Life is so very wonderful,
So beautiful, my dear;
It must be that for praise of it
We have our being here.

For praise of it the world is fair
And we its beauty know
That through our very praise of it
We beautiful may grow.

He made the sun to light the day
Who made our heart for praise;
And love of Him is love of all
Life's wondrous works and ways.
—Victor E. Southworth, in Nautilus.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

My face is my fortune.

Somebody shortchanged you, dear.—New York College Mercury.

Are those stockings fast color?

I'm not sure about the color, but the clocks in them are on daylight saving time.—Judge.

Probably George Washington could throw a dollar farther than President Coolidge.

But could he see one as far?—Detroit Free Press.

Emma, aged 4, suddenly burst into tears at the dinner table. "Why, Emma, what is the matter?" asked her mother.

"Oh," sobbed the little miss, "my t-teeth stepped on my t-tongue!"—Chicago News.

Celeste of the city was watching her grandmother milk a cow with a calf. When the milking was finished she asked, Aren't you going to milk the calf?

"No dear," answered the grandmother.

Why not? 'Cause it hasn't any milk bottles?—Everybody's.

"We give a bicycle with each car we sell," remarked the auto salesman.

"How's that?" asked the prospective purchaser.

So you can park your car in the suburbs and ride into the office.—Life.

The instalment salesmen was visiting the railroad shops. "This man you fellows call Slim Johnson," he said "wants a new suit of clothes on time payments. Is he honest?"

"Mister," answered the foreman solemnly, "Slim is one of the squarest men in the round house."—Good Hardware.

A man who was evidently a British tourist stood for a long time before the train board. Finally a train announcer stepped up to him and asked: "Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Thank you, I was just trying to make up my mind."

About what, sir.

I wish to see some Indians so I fancy I will just purchase a ticket for Indianapolis.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Weather reports were broadcast daily from Washington to the ZR-3 during its recent crossing.

Utah's coal resources are estimated to be sufficient to supply the needs of the whole of the United States for 2 years.

The bureau of standards transmits radio signals twice a month for the use of the public in standardizing wave meters and transmitting and receiving apparatus.

Ice cream may be shipped without ice or salt in a dry container, a double-walled vessel with two inches of cork between.

The Malays of Sumatra live under the matriarchal system, with women controlling property and line of descent. Under this system the husbands have no property rights whatsoever.

Operation of an electric interurban system and regular steam railway traffic upon a single track line has been tried out successfully on a thirty-eight-mile stretch of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road between Dallas and Denton.

New Orleans, rated the second largest port in the United States, is 110 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. The port facilities are valued at more than $100,000,000 and are publicly owned. The public wharves parallel the Mississippi river for more than five miles.

A Wichita (Kas.) man pawned a $10 bill for $9. The pawnbroker told the police that the man said the bill was a present to him. He said he needed money, but didn't want to give up entire rights to the bill by spending it, so he pawned it for thirty days. The bill is genuine.

One hundred and eighty pairs of Scottish curling stones are on their way to Canada. These stones are the gift of an enthusiastic Montreal curler, T. Howard Stewart, to fellow townsmen who are devotees of the game. This gift to the curlers of Montreal constitutes the greatest single order ever given for curling stones in the history of the game.

One depositor of a Rochester (N. Y.) bank, had an unexpected cause for thanksgiving. He called at the bank with a passbook that had not been presented for interest since 1905. When told there would be a little delay in writing up the passbook he flatly refused to wait and only did so after considerable persuasion. He apparently considered what interest might be due as of little importance. The passbook, when presented, showed a balance of about $1,100, and was returned to him with $1,463.89 credited in interest and a total balance of $2,553.31.

THE FEDERAL LAND BANK OF Springfield vs. Pietro Fasio, et als
Superior Court, New London County, Dec. 12, 1925.

Order Appointing Receiver.

The application of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action brought to the Superior Court held in Norwich, in and for the County of New London, on the first Tuesday of September, A. D. 1924, which application is dated the 5th day of December, A. D. 1924, came to a hearing before me on this 12th day of December, 1924, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when the Plaintiff appeared by Vine R. Parmelee, its Attorney, and the Defendants made default of appearance; and it is found that the allegations of said application are true and that a Temporary Receiver ought to be appointed forthwith;

Now, therefore, it is ordered:

1. That Edward C. Carroll of East Hartford, Conn., be, and he hereby is, appointed Temporary Receiver to manage and conserve the property described in the application and to collect the rents due and to become due therefrom;

2. That said appointment shall not take effect until said Carroll shall have filed with the undersigned a Bond in proper form, with good and sufficient surety in the sum of Two Hundred Dollars ($200), conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties under said appointment;

3. That the said Carroll, immediately upon taking effect of his said appointment, shall proceed to take possession of the property described in said application and to collect all monies due and owing on account of the rental of the said premises and to take all lawful steps within his power to secure and preserve said property from strip and waste;

4 That the said Carroll give notice of his appointment to all parties in interest, by publishing a copy of this order in The Norwich Bulletin, and by mailing a like copy, postage prepaid, to each Defendant mentioned in the application at their last known place of abode, and to the tenants now occupying the buildings on the premises, all on or before the 15th day of January, A. D. 1925.

Dated at Norwich, Conn., this 12th day of December, A. D. 1924.

TWELVE HEALTH RESOLUTIONS FOR THE NEW YEAR

The Connecticut State Department of Health has issued through its weekly bulletin a list of twelve New Year's resolutions in the interests of better health. The resolutions are as follows:

That 1925 shall be a health year for me and my family.

That the health standards which I believe in for my little ones shall be adopted for myself and all adult members.

That I shall seek out my physician and make an early appointment for a thorough physical examination so that I may know what my health assets are for the coming year.

That I shall follow his advice in the matter of physical health, should it require special treatment to correct some defeat, or the breaking of some habit which has proven detrimental to my health.

That I shall practice the rules of hygiene which will bring strength abundance of energy, and enthusiasm for the daily tasks which shall make life worth living.

That I shall adopt some daily form of exercise which will keep my muscles firm and alert to do my bidding.

That I shall look after instead of over my waist line so that I may not carry about excess baggage in the form of inert tissue.

That I shall seek fresh air as my health ally, sleeping and playing out of doors as much as possible.

That I shall put into my day some work, some play and some rest so that I may strike a healthful balance.

That I shall acquire some hobby which shall absorb my interest in leisure hours, so that my mind may not become introspective.

That I shall learn how to relax so that life may become less strenuous and less complex.

That I shall cultivate the companionship of others who believe in healthful living, so that I may catch some of their inspiration.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Jan. 11—A sharp reaction in stock prices followed by a brisk recovery which lifted a number of issues to their highest levels in years; Establishment of the highest quotation for sterling exchange since 1919; the demand rate rising above $4.79; Easier money rates with call loans getting back to 2 per cent., the lowest rate reached last year; and a record-breaking volume of new bond offerings, above $360,000,000, were the high spots of this week's financial markets.

One of the features of the stock market was the investment demand for high grade industrial and railroad shares, the general railroad average being elevated to the highest level since 1917. United States Steel common, Baldwin, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, New York Central, Illinois Central and Louisville and Nashville, all sold at their highest prices in a long time.
